AFter these thinges were done, the worde of the Lord came vnto Abram in a vision, saying: Feare not Abram, I am thy defence, & thy reward shalbe exceadyng great. And Abram sayde: Lorde God what wylt thou geue me when I go childlesse, and the childe of the stewardshyp of my house is this Eleazer of Damasco? And Abram sayde: See, to me thou hast geuē no seed: lo, a lad borne in my house is my heyre. And beholde, the worde of the Lord came vnto hym saynge: He shall not be thyne heyre, but one ỳ shall come out of thyne owen body shalbe thine heyre. And he brought hym oute and sayde: loke vp vnto heauen, and tell the starres, yf thou be able to number them. And he said vnto hym: Euen so shall thy sede be. And Abram beleued the Lorde, and that counted he to hym for ryghteousnes. And agayne he sayde vnto hym: I am the Lorde that brought the out of Vr of the Caldees, to geue the this lande, and that thou myghtest possesse it. And he sayde: Lorde God, whereby shall I knowe that I shal possesse it? He answered vnto him: Take an heyfer of three yere olde, and a she goate of three yeare olde, and a three yeare olde ram, a turtyldoue also and a yonge pigeon. He toke therfore all these vnto hym, and deuided them in the myddes, and layde euery pece, one agaynst another. But the foules deuyded he not. And when the byrdes fell on the carcases, Abram droue them away. And when the sunne was downe, there fel a slumber vpō Abram. And lo, a darke and great feare fell vpon hym. And he sayde vnto Abram: knowe thys of a suretye, that thy sede shalbe a straunger in a lande that perteyneth not vnto them. And shal serue them, and they shall entreate them cuyll. iiii. hundred yeares. But the nation whom they shall serue, wyll I iudge. And after warde shall they come out with greate substaunce. And thou shalte go vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalt be buryed in a good olde age. But in the fourth generation they shall come hyther agayne, for the wickednes of the Amorites is not yet full. And it came to passe that when the sunne was downe, there was a darke cloude beholde, there was a smokyng furnace and a fyrebrande goynge betwene the sayde peces. In that same daye the Lord made a couenaunt with Abram saynge: vnto thy sede haue I geuen thys lande, from the ryuer of Egypte, euen vnto the great ryuer the ryuer of Euphrates, the Kenites, ỳ Kenizites and the Cadmonites, the Hethites, & the Pherezites, and the Giauntes, the Amorites also, and the Cananites, the Gergesites, and the Iebusites.

SArai Abrams wyfe bare hym no childzen. But she had an handemayde an Egiptian, Hagar by name. And Sarai saide vnto Abram: Beholde, the Lorde hath restrayned me, that I can not beare. I praye thee go in vnto my mayde, peraduenture I maye be edified by her. And Abram obeyed the voyce of Sarai. And Sarai Abrams wyfe toke Hagar her mayde the Egyptian (after Abram hadde dwelled. x. yeare in the lande of Canaan) and gaue her to her husband Abram to be hys wyfe. Whiche when he went in vnto Agar, she conceaued. And when she sawe that she had conceaued, her maistresse was despysed in her eyes. And Sarai sayd vnto Abram: Thou doest me wrong: I haue geuen my mayde into thy bosome. Whyche seynge that shee hath conceaued, I am despysed in her eyes, the Lord iudge betwene the and me. But Abram sayde to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do with her as it pleaseth thee. And when Sarai fared foule with her, shee fled from the face of her. And the Aungell of the Lorde founde her beside a fountayne of water in the wylderues: euen by the well that is in the waye to Sur. And he sayde: Hagar Sarais mayde, thau, and whyther he sayd: I flee from mistresse Sarai. And the Lorde sayde vnto returne to thy maistresse agayne, submit thy selfe vnder her handes.

And agayne, the Aungell of the Lord sayd vnto her: In encreasynge I will encrease thy seede, and it shall not be numbred for multitude. And the Lor-des Aungell sayd vnto her: se, thou art with chylde and shalte beare a sonne, and shalte call hys name Ismaell: because the Lord hath heard thy tribulation. He also wyll be a wylde man, and his hande wyll be agaynst euerye man, & euery mans hand agaynst him.
And he shal dwell in the presence of al hys brethren. And she called the name of the Lorde that spake vnto her: thou God lokest on me: for she sayde: Haue I not sene here the backe partes of hym that seeth me? Wherefore the well was called the well of hym that lyueth, and seeth me. And it is betwene Cades and Bared. And Hagar bare Abram a sonne, and Abram called hys sonnes name whiche Hagar bare vnto hym, Ismaell. And Abram was .lxxx.vi. yere olde, when Hagar bare hym Ismaell.

1 AND the Lorde appeared vnto him in the playne of Mamre, as he sate in hys tente dore in the heate of the daye. And he lyfte vp hys eyes and loked: and lo, three men stode by him. And when he sawe them he ran to mete them frō the tent dore, and fell to the ground, and sayde: Lord (I beseche thee) yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght: go not (I pray the) from thy seruaunt. Let a litle water be fet, to washe your fete, and refresh your selues vnder the tre. And I wyl

And Abraham went apace into his tent vnto Sara, and sayde: make ready attonce three measures of fyne meale, kneade it, and make cakes. And Abraham ran vnto his beastes, fet a calfe tender and good, and gaue it vnto a man, and he hasted to make it ready attonce. And he toke butter & mylke and the calf which he had prepared, and set it before them: and stode hym selfe by thē vnder the tre * when they did eate. Heb.12.
And they sayde vnto hym: Where is Gen.18 sake of fifty righteous, that ar therin?

That be farre from thee, that thou shouldest do after this saying, and slay the righteous with the wicked, and that the righteous shoulde be as the not the iudge of all the worlde doo ac-

Yf I fynde in Sodom .fyfty rightethe place for their sakes. And Abrahã answeryng, sayd: Behold, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lord,

I wyll do nothyng yf I fynde thirtye taken vpon me to speake now also vn to my Lord: peraduenture ther shalbe

I wyll not destroy them for twenties be angrye, and I will speake yet but this once: Peraduenture ther shal ten not destroy them for tens sake. And ꝑ Lord went his way as sone as he had left communing with Abrahã. And Abraham also turned vnto his place.

¶ The .xix. Chapter.

destroy this place, because the crye of them is great before the face of God, Gen. 18. for the Lord hath sent vs to destroye get you out of this place, for the Lord wyl ouerthrow this citie. But he semed as though he had mocked, vnto his sonnes in lawe. And whan the mor-spede him, saying: Stād vp, take thy wife and thy two daughters at hand, lest thou perish in the syn of the citie.

Whyles he prolonged the time, ẏ men caught both him, his wife, & his two daughters by the hande, the Lord beynge mercyfull vnto hym: and they brought him forth, and set him without the citie. It fortuned when they had brought them out, he saide: Saue E thy life, and loke not behynd the, neither tary thou in this plain countrey.
Saue thy self in the mountayne, least thou perysshe. And Lot sayde vnto them: Oh nay Lord: behold thy seruant hath found grace in thy syght, & thou hast magnified thy mercy which thou hast shewed vnto me, in sauyng my lyfe. Behold, I cannot be saued in the mountain lest some misfortune fall vpon me, and I dye: Behold, here is a citie by to flee vnto, euen yonder litteli one: Oh let me be saued there: is it not a little one, and my soule shal lyue? And he said to him: See I haue receiued thy requeste as concernynge this thing, that I wil not ouerthrow this citie for thee, whiche thou haste spoken. Haste thee, and be saued there for I can do nothyng till thou be com thither. And therfore the name of the citie is called Zoar. And the Sunne was now risen vpon the earth, when Esa.13 d Lot was entred into Zoar. Then the Ier.50.f Lorde rained vpon - Sodome & Go-Eze.16 e morra, brimston & fire from the Lord out of heauen, and ouerthrewe those cities, and all the region, and all that dwelled in the cities, and that grewe vpon the earth. But Lots wyfe looked behynde her, and was turned into a pillar of salt. Abraham rysyng vp earelye, got vnto the place where he stoode before the presence of God, and lookyng towarde Sodome and Gomorra, and toward all the land of that contrey, he loked: and behold, the smoke of the countreye arose as the smoke of a fornace. And it hapned that when God destroyd the cities of that region, he thought vpon Abraham, & *2.pe.2. sent Lot - out from the middes of the Sa.10.a

Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth to come in vnto vs, after the maner of the world. Come, we wil make our father dronkē with wyne, and lye with hym, that we may saue seede of our father. And so they made their father dronken wyth wine that night. And ẏ elder daughter went & lay with her father: and he perceiued it not, neither whan she lay G down, neither when she rose vp. And on the morow it hapned, that the elder said vnto the yonger: Behold, yesternight laye I with my father. Let vs make him dronk with wine this night also, and go thou & lie with him, that we may rayse vp seede of our father.
And they made theyr father dronke with wyne that nyght also. And the yonger arose & lay with him. And he perceiued it not: neither when she lay down, neither whē she rose vp. Thus were both the daughters of Lot with childe by theyr father. And the elder bare a sonne, & called his name Moab The same is the father of the Moabi a sonne also, & called his name Ben children of Ammon vnto this day.

But Abimelech had not yet come nie heart & innocent handes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto hym by a dreame: I wot it well that thou didst it in the pureneſſe of thy hert. I kept thee also that thou shouldest not sinne against me: and therfore suffred I the not to touche her. Now therfore delia prophete: And he shall pray for thee,

Abraham, and sayde vnto hym: What on me and on my kingdome so great a syn? Thou haste done dedes vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abi-said: surely the feare of God is not in this place, and they shall slea me for my wiues sake: yet in verye dede she is my sister, for she is the daughter of my father: thoughe she be not the daughter of my mother: & she became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wander oute of my fathers house, I said vnto her: This kyndnes shalt thou shew vnto me in al places wher seruantes, and gaue them vnto Abrahe said: Se, I haue geuen thy brother a thousand peces of syluer: beholde, it shalbe a couering of thyne eyes, vnto all that are with the, and thus withall was she reproued. And so Abraham prayed vnto God, & god healed Abi-

& they bare children. For ỳ Lord had

And the water was spēt in the bottell, and she cast the lad vnder a bushe, and went and sate on the other side a greate waye, as it were a bowshote of: for she said: I will not see the death of the child. And she sytting downe on the other syde, lyft vp her voice, and wept. And God heard C the voyce of the chyld, and the angell of God called Hagar out of heauen, & said vnto her: what ayleth thee Hagar? Feare not, for God hath herd the voyce of the child where he lyeth. Arise, and lifte vp the lad, & take him in thy hande, for I wylle make of him a greate people. And God opened her eyes: and she sawe a well of water. and she went & filled the bottell with water, and gaue the boy drinke. And God was with the lad, & he grewe, & dwelt in the wildernes, and became an archer: and he dwelt in the wildernes of Pharan. And his mother got him a wife out of the land of Egypt. And it chanced the same season that Abimelech and Phicol his chefe captaine spake vnto Abraham, saying: * God

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, whiche Abimelechs seruantes had violentely taken away. And Abimelech said: I wote not who hath doone this thyng: also thou toldest me not: neyther heard I of it, but this day. And Abrahā toke shepe and oxen, and gaue theym vnto Abimelech. And they made bothe of them a bonde together. And Abrahā set. vii. ewe lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abrahā: what meane these. vii. ewe lambes which thou hast set by them selues? He answered: For these. vii. lambes shalt thou take of my hand, that they maye bee a witnesse vnto me, that I haue digged this well. Wherfore the place is called Beer Sheba, because ỳ there they sware both of them. Thus made they a bonde together at Beer Sheba. And Abimelech and Phicol his chief captaine rose vp, and turned again vnto the land of the Philistins And Abrahā plāted a wood in Beer Sheba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the euerlasting God, and so gouerned in the Philistines lande a long season.

Fter these sayings it hapned that God dyd * proue Abraham, & sayd vnto him, Abraham: whiche answered: here am I. And he sayde: Take thy onely sonne Isahac, whom thou louest, and gette thee vnto the land Moria, and sacrifice him there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountains which I wil shewe thee. Then Abraham rose vp early in the mornynge, and sadled his asse, and toke two of his ponge men with hym, and Isahac his sonne: and cloue wood for the sacrifice, and rose vp and got him to the place whiche god had appointed him. The third day Abrahā lift vp his eies, and sawe the place a farre of, and sayd vnto his yong men Byde here with the asse, I and ỳ lad wyll go yonder, and worshyppe, and

Thā spake Isahac vnto Abrahā his father, & said: My father? And he answered: Here am I my son. He saide: Se here is fyre and wood, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? Abraham answered: My sonne, god wil prouyde hym a shepe for sacrifice. And so they went both together. And when they came vnto the place whiche god had shewed him, Abraham made an aulter there, and dressed the woode, and bound Isahac his son, and * laide him Jac. 2. d

And the aungell of the Lorde called vnto him from heauen, sayinge: Abraham, Abraham? And he saide: Here am I, and he sayde: Lay not thy hande vpon the childe, neither do any thynge at all vnto hym: for nowe I know that thou feareſt God, and haſt for my ſake not ſpared thine only ſon. C And Abraham liftynge vp his eyes, loked about, and behold, there was a ramme caught by the hornes in a thicket. And he went and toke the rãme and offred him vp for a ſacrifice in the ſtede of his ſonne. And Abraham called the name of ẏ place, the Lorde will ſee. As it is ſayd this day: In ẏ moũt will the lorde be ſene. And the angell of the lord cried vnto Abraham from Hebr. 6.c heauen the ſecõd tyme, and ſaid: * By my ſelf haue I ſworne (ſaith ẏ lord) becauſe thou haſte done this thinge and haſt not ſpared thy only ſon: that in bleſſyng I will multiply thy ſede D as the ſtarres of heuen, & as the ſand which is vpon the ſea ſyde. So turned Abraham again vnto his yong men, & they roſe vp & went togither to Beer Sheba: And Abraham dwelt at Beer Sheba. And it chanced after theſe thinges, that one told Abrahã, ſaying: Behold, Milcha, ſhe hath alſo born children vnto thy brother Nachor: Hus his eldeſt ſon, and Bus his brother, & Kemuel, the father of the Syrians, and Cheſed, and Haſo, and Pildas, & Jedlaph, & Bethuel. And Bethuel begate Rebecca. Theſe. viii. did Milcha beare to Nachor Abrahams brother. And his cõcubine called Rhuma, ſhe bare alſo Tebah, and Gahan, Thaas and Mahaca.

Sara was an hũdred & .xxvii. yere old (ſo long liued ſhe) & Sara dyed in Kyriat Arba: The ſame is Hebron in the lande of Canaan. And Abraham cam to mourne Sara, and to wepe for her And Abraham ſtode vp from ẏ light of his coarſe, and talked with the ſonnes of Heth, ſaying: I am a ſtraunger and a foreyner among you: Geue me a poſſeſſion to bury in with you, that I may bury my coarſe out of my ſight. And the chyldren of Heth anſwered Abraham, ſaying vnto him: Heare vs Lorde, thou arte a Prince of God among vs. In the chiefeſt of our ſepulchres burie thy dead. None of vs alſo ſhal forbid the his ſepulchre, but thou B mayſt bury thy dead therin: Abraham ſtode vp, and bowed him ſelf before ẏ people of the lande, of the chyldren of Heth. And he communed with them. ſayinge: If it be your mynde that I ſhall bury my deade out of my ſighte, Heare me: & ſpeake for me to Ephron ẏ ſon of Zoar, that he may giue me the double caue whiche he hath, and that is in the ende of his fielde, but for as muche money as it is worth: ſhall he geue it me in ẏ preſẽce of you for a poſſeſſion to bury in. For Ephron dwelled among the chyldren of Heth. And Ephron ẏ Hethite anſwered Abrahã in ẏ audience of the childrẽ of Heth, & of all ẏ went in at the gates of his citie, ſaying: Not ſo my Lord, heare me: The field geue I thee, & the caue that therin is, geue I the alſo: and euen in the preſence of the ſonnes of my peo- C ple geue I it thee: bury thy dead. And Abraham bowed hym ſelfe before the people of the land, and ſpake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people of the countrey, ſaying: I pray the heare me, if it pleaſe thee: I will geue thee ſyluer for the field, take it, and I will bury my dead ther. Ephron anſwered Abraham, ſaying vnto hym: My lord hearken vnto me: The land is worth .iiii. hundred ſicles of ſiluer: what is that betwixt the and me? bury therefore the dead. And Abraham herkned vnto Ephron, and weyed hym the ſiluer which he had ſayd, in the audience of the ſonnes of Heth. Euen. iiii. hun- D dred ſyluer ſicles of currant money among marchauntes. And the fielde of Ephron with the double caue which was before Mamre: euen the fielde and the caue that was therein, and all the trees that were in the fielde, and that were in all the borders rounde aboute, was made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the sight of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gates of the citie. After this buryed Abraham bury Sara his wife in the double caue of the field, that lyeth before Mamre: The same is Hebron in the lande of Chanaan. And so both the field and the caue that is therein, was made vnto Abraham a sure possession to bury in, of the sonnes of Heth.

ABraham was old and stryken in dayes, & the Lorde had blessed hym in all thynges. And Abraham sayd vnto his eldest seruaunt of his house, which had the rule ouer all that he had: Put thy hand vnder my thigh, and I wyll make the sweare by the Lorde God of heauen, and God of the earth, that thou shalte not take a wyfe vnto my sonne of the daughters of Chanaã, amõg which I dwell. But thou shalt go vnto my countrey & to my native land, & take a wife vnto my sonne Isaac. Wherto the seruaunt said vnto him: Peraduenture the woman wyll not agree to come with me vnto this lande: shall I bryng thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whence thou camest out? To whom Abraham answered: Beware that thou bryngest not my sonne thyther agayne. The Lorde God of heauen which toke me from my fathers house, and from the lande where I was borne, and which spake vnto me, and that sware vnto me, saying: Vnto thy seede will I geue this lande, he shall sende his Ge. 15. d angell before thee: and thou shalt take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuertheles if the woman wyll not agree to folowe thee, than shalt thou be without blame of this my othe. Only bryng not my sonne thyther agayn. Then the seruaunt put his hande vnder the thigh of Abraham his master, and sware to him as concernynge that matter. And the seruaunt tooke ten camels of the camelles of his master, and departed: and had of all maner of goodes of his master with hym, and went to Mesopotamia, vnto the citie of Nahor. And made hys camels to lie downe without the citie by a well syde of water, at euen: about the tyme that women come oute to drawe water: And he sayd: Lorde god of my master Abraham, sende me good speede this day, and shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stande here by the well of water, & the daughters of the men of this citie come out to drawe water: Now the damsell to whome I shall saye, Bowe downe thy pitcher I praye thee, that I maye drinke, & she say: Drinke, and I wyll geue thy camels drinke also: the same is she that thou hast ordened for thy seruant Isaac: yea and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercye on my master. And it came to passe yer he had left speakyng, Behold, Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Melca, the wife of Nahor Abrahams brother, & her pitcher vpon her shoulder. The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, & yet a mayde and vnknowne of man. And she went downe to the well, and filled her pitcher, and came vp. And the seruaunt ronnyng vnto her, said: Let me suppe a lyttle water of thy pitcher, and she said: Drinke my Lord. And she hasted and let downe her pitcher vppon her arme, and gaue hym drynk. And whē she had geuen him drinke, she sayd: I wyll draw water for thy camels also, vntill they haue dronke inough. And she powred oute her pytcher into the trough hastily, and ran agayne vnto the well to fet water, and drew for all his camels. And the man wondred at her: But held his peace, to wete whether the Lorde had made his iourneye prosperous or not. And it fortuned as the Camelles had left drynkyng, the man toke a golden earynge of halfe a sicle weyght, and two bracelettes for her handes, of .x. sicles weyghte of golde, and sayd: whose daughter arte thou? tell me I praye thee, is there to come in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? She answered hym: I am the daughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca, whiche she bare vnto Nahor: and said moreouer vnto hym: we haue litter and prouander enough, and also rowme to lodge in. And the man bo-D wed hym selfe, and worshypped the Lorde God and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham, whych ceaseth not to deale mercifully and truly with my master and hathe brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and tolde them of theyr mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca hadde a brother called Laban. And he ran out vnto the man, euen to the well: for as sone as he had seene the earinges and the bracelettes in his systers handes (and hearde the wordes of Rebecca his sister, saying: thus saieth the man vnto me) he went oute vnto the man. And lo, he stode with the camels by the well syde. And he sayde: come in thou blessed of the Lorde: wherefore standest thou without? I haue prepared the house, and made rowme for the camels. And than the man came into the house: and he vnbrideled the camels and (Laban) brought litter and prouander for the camels, and water to wash his fete, and the mennes feete that were with hym, and sette meate before hym to eate. But hee sayde, I will not eate vntil I haue sayd mine erande. And he sayd, saye on. And hee sayde: I am Abrahams seruaunt, and God hath blessed my master oute of measure, that he is become great, and hath geuen him shepe, and Oxen, syl-Gen.21. uer and golde, mennes seruauntes, and mayde seruauntes, camelles, and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when shee was olde, and vnto hym hath hee geuen all that hee hath. And my master made me sweare, saying, thou shalte not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose lande I dwel. But thou shalt goe vnto my fathers house, and to my kynred, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: peraduenture the wyfe will not folowe me. And hee answered me: The Lorde before whome I walke, E will sende hys aungel with thee, and prosper thy iourney, and thou shalte take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred, and of my fathers house. Then shalte thou bee guiltelesse of my curse, when thou commeste vnto my kynred. And if they geue the not one, thou shalte bee giltelesse of my curse.

And so I came thys daye vnto the well, and sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so nowe that thou makest my iourney whiche I goe, prosperous: beholde, I stande by thys well of water, and when a mayden commeth forth to draw water, I saye to her: geue mee (I praye thee) a little water of thy pitcher to drynke, and she say to me, drinke thou, & I wyl also draw for thy Cammels: that same is the wyfe whom the Lord hath prepared for my masters sonne. And before I hadde made an ende of speakyng in myne hearte: behold, Rebecca came forth, and her pytcher on her shoulder, and she went downe vnto the well and drewe water. And I sayd vnto her: geue me drynke I praie thee. And shee made haste, and tooke downe her pitcher frome of her, and sayde: drinke, and I wyll geue thy camelis drynke also. And I dranke, and she gaue the Cammelles drynke also, And I asked her, saying, whose dagh- F

Milca bare vnto hym. And I putte the earynge vppon her face, and the bracelettes vppon her handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshypped the Lorde, and blessed the Lorde G O D of my master Abraham, whych hadde brought me the ryghte waye, to take my masters brothers daughter vnto hys sonne. Nowe also yf ye will deale mercyfully and truely with my Master, tell mee: and yf not, tell mee also, that I maye turne mee to the ryght hand, or to the lefte. Than answered Laban and Bathuell, saying,

This sayinge is proceaded euen vnto of the Lorde, we cannot therefore say vnto thee, eyther good or bad, beholde Rebecca is before thee, take her and go, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as GOD hath sayde: And when Abrahams seruaunt herd theyr wordes, hee worshypped the Lorde flatte vpon the earthe. And the seruaunte toke forthe iewelles of syluer, and iewelles of golde, and rayment, and gaue theym to Rebecca. And vnto her brother, and to her mother, he gaue giftes: and they dyd eate and drynke, bothe hee and the menne that were with hym, and tarped all nyghte. And when they rose vppe in the morninge, hee sayde: lette me departe vnto my master. Her brother and her mother answered: lette the damsell abyde with vs a whyle, and it bee but euen .x. dayes, and than shal she go. He sayde vnto theym: hynder me not, beholde: the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye therefore, that I maye go vnto my master. And they sayde: wee will call the damsell, and enquyre at her mouthe. And they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wylte thou go with this manne? And shee answered I will goe. So they lette Rebecca theyr syster goe, and her nurse and Abrahams Seruaunt, and his menne. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her, thou arte our syster, growe into thousande thousandes, and thy seede possesse the gate of theyr enemyes. And Rebecca arose, and her damsels, and sette theim vp vppon the camels, and went theyr waye after the manne. And the Seruaunt toke Rebecca, and wente hys waye. And Isahac was commynge frome the waye of the well of the lyuynge and seynge me: for he dwelte in the South countrye, and Isaac was gone out to pray in the feld at the euentyde. And he lyfte vppe hys eyes and sawe the camels commynge. And Rebecca lyfte vppe her eyes: and when shee sawe Isahac, shee lyghted of the camell, and sayde vnto the seruaunte: what manne is thys that commeth

And Isahac broughte her into his mother Saras tent, and toke Rebecca, and she became his wyfe, and he loued her: and so Isahac receaued comfort after his mother.

The .xxv. Chapter.

Abraham proceaded further, and tooke hym a wyfe called Ketura: whyche bare hym Simram, and Jeckſan, and Medan, and Madian, and Iesback, & Suah. Jeckſan begatte Seba, and Dedan. And the sonnes of Dedan were Assurim, Letusim, and Leummim. And the sonnes of Madian: Epha, and Epher, Hanoch, and Abdia, and Elda. All these were the chylderne of Ketura. And Abraham gaue all his gooddes vnto Isahac. But vnto the sonnes of the concubines whiche Abraham had, he gaue gyftes: and sent them awaye frome Isahac his sonne, (whyle he yet lyued) eastward vnto the lande of Kedes. And these are the dayes of the yeares of Abrahams life which he liued: an hundred and .lxxv. yeare: and then fell sycke and dyed, in a luſtye age, (when he hadde lyued ynough) and was put vnto his people. And hys sonnes Isaac and Ismaell buryed hym in the double caue, in the feld of Ephron, sonne of Zoar the Hethite, beside ỹ plain of Mamre which feelde Abraham bought of the soonnes of Heth: where Abraham was buryed, and Sara his wyfe. It fortuned after the death of Abraham, that God blessed Isahac his sonne, and Isahac dwelled by the welle of the lyuyng, and seyng me.

And these are the generations of Isahac Abrahams sonne: Abraham begat Isahac. And Isahac was. xl. yere olde when he toke Rebecca to wyfe, the daughter of Bethuel, the Syrian of Mesopotamia, and sister to Laban the Syrian. And Isahac made intercession vnto the Lord for his wyfe because she was barayne: and the Lorde was intreated of hym, and Rebecca his wyfe conceyued, and the children strone together within her. And there cam a dearth in the lande, passyng the fyrst derthe that was in the days of Abraham. And Isahac went vnto Abimelech kyng of the Philistins, vnto Gerar. And the Lord appered vnto him, and sayd: Go not downe into Egypt, but abyde in the land, whiche I shall shewe vnto the: soiorne in this lande, and I wyll bee with thee, and wyll blesse thee, for vnto thee, and vnto thy

And it happened, after he had ben ther long time, that Abimelech kyng of the Philistians, loked out at a windowe, and sawe Isahac kyssynge wyth Rebecca, hys wife. And Abimelech called Isahac, and sayd: She is of a suretie thy wife and why saydest thou, She is my sy-

Abimelech said why hast thou don this vnto vs? one of the people myght lyghtly haue lien by thy wyfe, and so shold est thou haue brought sinne vpon vs. And so Abimelech charged all his people, saying: he that toucheth this man or his wife shall dye the deathe. Isahac sowed in that land and founde in that same yere an hundred bushels: and the Lord blessed him, and the man waxed mightye, and went forth and grew, tyll he was exceedyng great, for he had possession of sheepe, of oxen, and a myghtye housholde, and therefore the Philystians had enuy at him, for the Philystyans stopped and fylled vppe with earth al the welles whych his fathers seruaũtes dygged in hys father Abrahams tyme. And Abimelech sayd vnto Isaac: get thee from vs, for thou art mightier then we a great deale. Therefore Isahac departed thence, and abode in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And Isaac returnynge, digged again the welles of water which they digged in the dayes of Abraham hys father, whith the Philistians had stopped after the deathe of Abraham, and gaue them the same names which his father gaue theym. Isahacs seruauntes digged in ỹ valley, & found a wel of liuing water. And the herd men of Gerar did stryue with Isahacs herd menne, sayinge: the water is ourcs. Then called he the well * Eseck, because they stroue wyth hym. And they digged a nother well, and stroue for that also. And he called the name of it Sitena. And than he departed thense, and digged an other welle, for the whyche they stroue not: therefore called he it * Rehoboth, saying: The Lord hath nowe made vs roome, that we may encreace vpon the earth. And he wente vp thense, to Beer Sheba. And the Lord appered vnto hym the same nyght, and sayd: I am the god of Abraham thy father: Feare not, for I am with the, & wyl blesse the, & multiplye thy sede for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. And he builded an aultar there, and called vpon the name of the Lord, and pitched his tent. And there Isahacs seruauntes dygged a welle. Then came Abimelech to hym frome Gerar: and Ahusath his frende, and Phicol his chief captain. And Isahac sayd vnto them: Wherfore come ye to me, seyng ye hate me, and haue put me away from you? whiche answered: In seeynge, we sawe that the * Lorde was with thee, and we said: Let there be nowe an othe betwixt vs, euen betwixt vs and thee, and lette vs make a bonde with thee, that thou shouldest doo vs no hurte, as we haue not touched thee, and as we haue doone vnto the nothing but good, and sent the away in peace: for thou arte nowe the blessed of the lord. And he made them a feast, and they dyd eate and drinke. And they rose vp betimes in the morryng, and sware one to another: and Isahac sent them away. And they departed from hym in peace. And that same daye it hapned, that Isahacs seruantes came and tolde hym of a well, which they had digged: and sayd vnto hym: we haue founde water. And he called it * Sheba. And the name of the citie is called * Beer Sheba vnto this day. Esau was. xl. yere olde, and he toke a wyfe called Judith, the daughter of Bery an Hethite, and Basmath the daughter of Elon an Hethite also, whiche wer disobedient vnto Isahac and Rebecca.

A And it came to passe, that whã Isahac waxed olde, and his eyes were dymme (so that he coulde not see) he called Esau his eldest sonne, and sayde vnto hym: My sonne, and he sayde vnto hym: Here am I. And he sayde: Beholde I am nowe olde, and knowe not the daye of my death: and nowe therfore take thy weapons, thy quiuer and thy bowe, and gette thee to the fieldes, that thou mayst take me som venison, and make me meate suche as I loue: and bryng it me, that I maye eate, and that my soule maye blesse thee, before that I dye. But Rebecca heard when Isaac spake to Esau his son. And Esau went into the field, to catche venison and to bryng it. ✠ And Rebecca saide vnto Jacob her son, saying: Beholde I haue herd thy father talkyng with Esau thy brother, and saying: Bryng me venison, and make me meate, that I maye eate, and blesse the before the Lorde, afore my death. Now therfore B my son, heare my voyce in that which I cõmaunde the: get the to the flocke and bring me thense two good kydded that I may make meate of theym for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may may eate, and that he blesse the before his death. Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca his mother: Behold, Esau my brother is a roughe manne, and I am smothe. My father shal peraduenture fele me, and I shall seme vnto him as though I went about to begyle hym, and so shall he bryng a curse vpon me, & not a blessyng: and his mother saide vnto hym: Upon me bee thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, and go & fetch me them. And Jacob went and fet them, and brought them to his mother. And his mother made meate suche as she knew that his father loued And Rebecca set goodly rayment of her eldest sonne Esau, whiche was in C the house with her, and put them vpon Jacob her yongest sonne, and she put skynnes of goates vpon his handes, and vpon the smooth of his neck. And she put the meate & bread which she had prepared, in the hande of her sonne Jacob. When he came to his father, he sayd: My father? And he answered, here am I, who arte thou my sonne? And Jacob sayde vnto his father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordyng as thou baddest me: Up and syt, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule may blesse me. And Isahac sayde vnto his sonne: Howe commeth it, that thou hast found it so quickely my sonne? He answered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hand. Then said Isahac vnto Jacob. Come nere, and lette me fele thee my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Than went Jacob to Isahac his father, and he felt and sayde:

handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, because his handes wer rough as his brother Esaus handes, and so he blessed hym. And he asked hym: Arte thou my son Esau? and he sayd: That I am. Then sayde he: Bryng me, and lette me eate of my sonnes benesson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought him, and he eate: and he brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And his father Isahac sayd vnto hym, Come nere, and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto him, and kissed him. And he smelled the sa- Eccl. 3.b and sayde: See the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a fielde, whiche the Lorde hath blessed. God geue thee of the dewe of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the earth, and plentie of corne and wyne. People bee thy seruaunts, and nations bowe vnto the. Be Lorde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers children stowpe vnto thee. Cursed be he that curseth thee, and blessed bee he E that blesseth thee. It hapened, that as soone as Isahac had made an ende of blessynge, and Jacob was scarce gone out of the presence of Isahac his father, then cam Esau his brother from his huntyng, and had made also meat, and brought it vnto his father, & sayd vnto his father: Lette my father arise, and eate of his sonnes beneyson, that thy soule may blesse me. Then hys father Isahac sayde vnto hym: who art thou? He answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isahac was greatly astonied out of measure, and sayde: Whyche is he, and where is he then, that hath hunted beneyson, and hathe brought it me? I haue eaten of al, before thou camest, and haue blessed him and he shall bee blessed. When Esau heard the woordes of his father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly, aboue measure, and sayde vnto his father: Blesse me also my father. Who answered: Thy brother came wyth sub

tilitie, and hath taken away thy blessynge. And he sayde agayne: He may well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermyned me now two tymes: fyrste he toke away my birthright, and see, now hath he taken away my blessyng also. And he sayd: Haste thou kepte neuer a blessyng for me? Isahac answered, and sayde vnto Esau: behold I haue made hym thy Lorde, and all his mothers chyldren haue I made his seruantes. Moreouer with corne & wyne haue I stablished hym, what can I doo vnto thee nowe my sonne? And Esau sayd vnto his father: haste thou but that one blessyng my father? Blesse me also my father: so lifted vp Esau his voyce, and wepte. Then Isahac his father answered, and sayd vnto hym: Beholde, thy dwellynge place shall be the fatnesse of the earth, and of the dewe of heauen frome aboue. And with thy sweard shalte thou lyue, and shalte be thy brothers seruaunt. And it wyll come to passe, that when thou shalt get the maistry, thou shalt louse his yoke from of thy necke. And Esau hated Jacob, because of the blessynge that his father blessed hym withall. And Esau sayde in his hart: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, and I wyll slea my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne was tolde to Rebecca. And she sente and called Jacob her yongest sonne, and said vnto hym: Beholde, thy brother Esau threatneth to kyll thee: Nowe therfore my son, heare my voyce: make the readye, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran: and tary with hym a while vntill thy brothers fearsnesse be swaged, and vntyll thy brothers wrathe turne awaye from thee, and he forget the thynges whiche thou haste doone to hym: than wyll I send and fet thee away from thens. Why should I bee desolate of you both in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Isahac, I am wery of my lyfe, for feare of the daughters of Heth. If Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, such one as these are, or of the daughters of the lande, what good shall my lyfe doo me?

The .xxviii. Chapter.

AND so Isahac called Jacob, A and blessed hym, and charged hym, and sayd vnto hym: Ge. 27. a Se thou take not a wyfe of the dauters of Chanaan, but aryse, and gette the to Mesopotamia, to the house of Bethuell thy mothers father: & there take thee a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy mothers brother. And god almighty blesse thee, and make thee to encrease, and multiplie the, that thou mayst be a numbre of people, and geue thee the blessyng of Abraham: to thee and to thy seede with thee, that thou mayst possesse the land (wherin thou art a stranger) whiche God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Isahac sent forth Jacob. And he wente to Mesopotamia vnto Laban, sonne of Bethuell, the Syrian, and brother to Rebecca, Jacobs and Esaus mother.

Jacob departed from Beer Seba, to comme vnto Haran, and came vnto a place by chaunce, and taryed there all nyght, because the sunne was downe. And tooke a stone of the place, and put it vnder his head, and layde hym downe in the same place to sleape. And he dreamed: and beholde, there stoode a ladder vppon the earthe, and the toppe of it reached vp to heauen. And see, the angelles of God wente vppe vp and downe vppon it, yes and God stode vpon it, and sayde: I am the god of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land which thou slepeste vpon, wil I geue thee and thy seede. And thy sede shalbe as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spreade abroade to the west and to the east, to the northe, and to the South. And through thee and in thy seede shal all the kynredes of the earth bee blessed. And see I am with thee, and will be thy keper in al places whither thou goeste, and wyll bring the agayne into thys lande, neether will I leaue thee vntill I haue made good all that I haue promysed thee. When Jacob was awaked oute of hys slepe: he sayd: surely the Lorde is in this place, and I was not aware

And Jacob vowed a vowe, saynge: if God will bee with me, and will kepe me in this iourneye whiche I go, and wil geue me breade to eate, and clothes to putte on, so that I come agayne vnto my fathers house in safetie, then shall the Lorde be my God: and this stone which I haue set vp an ende, shalbe Goddes house, and of all that thou shalt geue me, will I geue the tenth vnto the.

A THen Jacob lift vp his fete, and came into the east country.
And as he loked about, behold, there was a wel in the feld, and three flockes of sheepe laye there by, (for at that well were the flockes watered) and there was a greate stone vppon the welles mouthe, and thyther were all the flockes brought, and they roulled the stone from the welles mouthe and watred ỹ sheepe, and put the stone againe vppon the welles mouthe vnto his place. And Jacob laid vnto them: brethren whence be ye? and they sayd: of Haran are wee. And he sayde vnto theym: know ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? They sayde, we know hym. And he saide vnto them: is he in good healthe and they sayde: he is in good healthe, and behoulde, hys daughter Rahell commeth with the sheepe. And B he sayde, lo, it is yet but hye day, neyther is it tyme that the cattell shoulde bee gathered together: water yee the sheepe, and go and fet them. And they sayde, we maye not vntill all the flockes be brought together, and till they rolle the stone from the welles mouth Psal. 55. and so we water oure sheepe. Whyle hee yet talked wyth theym, Rahell came wyth her fathers sheepe for she kepte theym. And as soone as Jacob sawe Rahell, the daughter of Laban his mothers brother, and the sheepe of Laban hys mothers brother, hee C went and rolled the stone from the welles mouth, and watered the flock of Laban hys mothers brother. And Jacob kissed Rahell and lyfte vp his voyce, and weapte: and Jacob tolde Rahell, that hee was her fathers brother and Rebeccas sonne. Therefore ranne she and tolde her father. And it happened when Laban hearde tell of Jacob hys systers sonne, he ranne to mete hym, and embraced hym, and kyssed hym: and broughte hym to hys house. And he tolde Laban al the matter. To whom Laban sayd: wel, thou arte my bone and my flesshe. And hee abode wyth hym the space of a month And Laban sayde vnto Jacob, though thou bee my brother, shouldest thou therfore serue me for nought? tell mee what shall thy wages bee? Laban had two daughters, the eldest called Lea, and the yongest Rahell. Lea was tender eyed, but Rahell was beautyfull and well fauoured. And D Jacob loued Rahell, and sayd: I will serue thee vii. yeares for Rahell thy yongest daughter. Laban answered it is better that I geue her vnto thee,

then to another man: byde wyth me.
Ge.16.d And Jacob serued .vii. yeres for Rahell, and they seemed vnto hym but a fewe daies for the loue he hadde to her. And Jacob sayde vnto Laban, geue me my wyfe that I maye lye wyth her. For my daies are fulfilled.
E Than Laban gathered together all the menne of that place, and made a feast. And when euen was come hee toke Lea hys daughter, and broughte Ge.16.e. her vnto him, and he wente in vnto her. And Laban gaue vnto hys daghter Lea, Zylpha hys mayde to bee her seruaunte (To whom when Jacob came in accordynge to the custome.) And when the morynge was come, beholde it was Lea. Than sayd he to Laban, Wherefore haste thou played thus with me? Did not I serue the for Rahell? wherefore hast thou begyled me? Laban aunswered: it is not the maner of this place, to mary the yongest before the eldest. Passe oute thys weke, and than shall thys also be geuen the for the seruyce whyche thou shalt serue me yet vii. yeres more,
And Jacob did euen so, and passed out F that weke, and than he gaue hym Rahell hys daughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rahell his daunghter Bilham hys handmayde, to bee her seruaunte. So lay he by Rahell also, Ge.31.f and loued Rahell more then Lea, and serued him yet vii. yeres more.
When the Lorde sawe that Lea was despysed, he made her fruitefull. And Rahel remayned barreyn. And Lea conceaued and bare a sonne, and called hys name Ruben, for shee sayde: the Lorde hath loked on my tribulation. Nowe therefore my husbande G will loue me. And shee conceaued agayne and bare a sonne, and sayd: the Lorde hath hearde that I am despised, and hath therefore geuen me thys sonne also, and shee called hys name Symeon. And shee conceaued yet, 1 Par. 2a and bare a sone, and sayde: nowe thys once wyl my husbande kepe me companye, because I haue borne him thre sonnes: and therefore was his name called Leui. And shee conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, saying: nowe will I prayse the Lorde, therfore she called his name Juda, and lefte bearynge.

Rahell whan shee sawe that she bare Jacob no chyldren, A shee enuyed her syster, and sayde vnto Jacob: Geue me childr.n, or els I am but deade. And Jacob was wroth wyth Rahel, saying: Am I in Gods steade, whyche keepeth frome thee the fruyte of thy wombe? Then shee sayde: here is my mayde Bilha, go in vnto her, and she shall beare vpon my lap, that I maye be encreased by her. And she gaue him Bilha her handmayde to wyfe. And Jacob wente in vnto her: and Bilha conceaued and bare Jacob a sonne. Than sayde Rahell. God hath geuē sentence on my syde, and hath also hearde my voyce and hath geuen me a sonne. Therfore called she him. Da. And Bilha Rahels mayde conceaued agayne, and bare Jacob on other sonne. And Rahel sayde: with godly wrestlinges haue I wrestled wyth my syster, and haue gotten the vpper hand. And she called his name Nepthali. When Lea sawe that she hadde B lefte bearinge, shee toke Sylpha her mayde, and gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Sylpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayde Lea, Good lucke: and called hys name Gad. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob an other sonne. Than sayde Lea: happy am I, for the daughters wil call mee blessed. And called his name Asser. And Ruben went oute in the dayes of the wheate haruest, and found mādragoras in the feldes, and broughte thē vnto his mother Lea. Than sayd Rahel to Lea: geue me thy sonnes mādragoras. To whom Lea answered: It is not ynough that thou hast takē away my husband, but wouldest take away my sonnes mandragoras also? Thā said Rahel: well, let hym sleepe C with thee thys nyght, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And Jacob came from the feldes at euen, and Lea went out:

to mete him, and sayd: come into me, for I haue bought thee with my sonnes mandragoras. And he slept with her that night. And God heard Lea, that she conceaued and bare vnto Jacob the v. sonne. Than sayd Lea: GOD hath geuen me a reward, because I gaue my maidē to my husbād, and she called him Isachar. And Lea conceaued yet again, & bare Jacob ỳ sixt son. And Lea sayde: God hath endued me ẅ a good dowry. Now wil my husbande dwell with me, because I haue borne him vi. sōnes: & called his name Ge. 34 d D Zabulō. After that she bare a daghter & called her name Dina. And god remēbred Rahel, he hearde her, & made her fruitful: so that she conceaued and bare a son, and sayd: God hath takē awaye my rebuke. And she called hys name Joseph, saying: The Lord giue me yet another sonne. And assoone as Rahel hadde borne Joseph, Jacob said to Labā: send me awaye ỳ I may goe vnto mine owne place & contrye, giue me my wiues and my childrene, for whō I haue serued the, & let mee go: for thou knowest what seruice I haue done the. To whō Labā answered: yf I haue foūd fauor in thy sight
Ge. 29. a (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appoint what thy reward shall be, and I will geue it the. But he sayde vnto him, thou knowest what seruice I haue done thee, & in what taking thy cattel haue bene vnder me: For it was but little that thou haddest before I came, and now it is increased into a multitude: and ỳ lord hath blessed the for my sake E But nowe when shall I make prouision for mine owne house also? And he sayde: what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothinge at all, yf thou wylte doo thys one thyng for me, and then wyll I turne agayne and feede thy sheepe, and kepe theim. I wyll goe about all the shepe this day & seperate frō them all the shepe that are spotted and of diuers colours, and all blacke sheepe among the lambes: and the partie, and the spotted among the kiddes: and the same shalbe my reward. So shal my ryghteousnes answere for me to morowe, and shall come for my reward before thy face: and euerye one that is not speckled and partye amonge the goates, and blacke amonge the sheepe, the same shall be theft with mee. And Laban sayde: Goe to, wouldе God it myght bee accordinge to thy sayinge. Therfore he toke out the same day the he goates that were partie and of diuers coloure, and all the shee goates that were spotted and partie coloured and all that had whyte in theym, and all the blacke amonge the sheepe, and put thē in ỳ keping of his sōs, and set three dayes iourney betwyxt himself and Jacob. And so Jacob keapte the rest of Labans shepe. Jacob toke roddes of greene popular, of Hasell, and of the chestnut trees, and pilled white strakes in them, and made the whyte F appere in the roddes. But they that were whole: remayned greene: and thus was it made a variable coloure. And put the roddes which he had pilled, euen before the sheepe, in the gutters and waterynge troughtes, when the sheepe came to drynke: that they shoulde conceaue when they came to drinke. And the sheepe conceaued before the roddes, and broughte foorthe lambes straked, spotted, and partie. And Jacob parted the lambes, and G turned the faces of the shepe towarde spotted thyngs, and toward al maner blacke, that was among the sheepe of Laban: namelye puttinge hys owne flockes by thē self, and not with putting them with Labans sheepe. And it fortuned that in euerye rammynge tyme of the stronger shepe, Jacob laied the roddes before the eyes of the shepe in the gutters: namely, that hee might make them conceaue before the roddes. But when the shepe were feble, he put them not in. And so the febler were Labans, and the stronger Jacobs. And the man encreased excedinglye, and had a greate flocke, mayd seruauntes, and manne seruauntes, camels, and asses.

A ¶ The.xxxi. Chapter.

BVt he hearde the wordes of Labans sonnes saying: Iacob hath taken away all that was our fathers, and of oure fathers gooddes hath he gottē al this honour. And Iacob beheld the countenaunce of Labā, and behold, it was not as yesterday and ere yesterdaye. And the Lord sayd vnto Iacob: turne agayne into the lande of thy fathers, and to thy kynred, and I wyll bee wt thee. Therfore Iacob sent & called Rahel and Lea to the fielde vnto hys flocke, and sayde vnto them. I se your fathers countenaunce that it is not toward me as yesterdaye and ere yesterdaye, But the God of my father hath bene with mee. And yee knowe howe that I haue serued your father with all my myght: But youre father hath disceaued me, and chaunged my wages .x. tymes: but god suffered hym not to hurte mee. When he sayde, the spotted shalbe thy wages, then all the B shepe bare spotted. And whan he said ye straked shalbe thy reward, thā bare all the shepe straked: thus hath God taken away youre fathers sheepe, and geuen them me. But in ramming tim it happened, that I lifted vppe mine eyes, and sawe in a dreme: and behold the rammes leped vpon the shepe that were straked, spotted and partie. And the angell spake vnto me in a dreame, saying: Iacob: And I answered: here am I. And he said: Lift vp now thyne eies, and se all the rammes leapyng vpon the shepe that are straked, spotted and partie. For I haue sene all ye Labau doothe vnto thee. I am the god of Ge.28.d • Bethel, wher thou annoyntedst the stone, and wher thou vowedst a vow vnto me. Now therfore arise, and get Ge.32.c the • out of this countrey, and returne vnto the land where thou wast borne

C Then answered Rahel, and Lea, and said vnto him: haue we a porcion and inheritāce in our fathers house? Woth not he count vs euen as strangers, for for he hath solde vs, and euen eaten vp our money. But all the riches which god hath taken from oure father, that is ours and our childzens. And nowe whatsoeuer God hath said vnto thee, that doo. Then Iacob rose vp, and set his sonnes and wiues vpon camels, & caried away all his flockes, and al his substance which he had procured, hys riches and possessions whych he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Isahac his father vnto the lande of Canaan. But Laban was gone to Ge.38.c • shere his shepe, and Rahel had stolne 2.re.13.c her fathers images. And Iacob stale away the hart of Laban ye Sirian, in that he tolde him not that he fled. So fled he and all that he had, & made him self redy, and passed ouer the ryuer, & set his face streight toward the mount Gilead. Upō the third day after, was D it told Laban that Iacob fled. Then he tooke his brethren with hym, and folowed after hym. vii dayes iourney and ouertoke hym at the mounte Gilead. And God cam to Laban the Sirian in a dreame by nyght, and sayde vnto him: Take hede that thou speake not to Iacob ought saue good. And Laban ouertooke Iacob: and Iacob had pitched his tent in the mounte. And Laban with his brethrē puched their tent also vpon the mount Gilead. And Laban sayde to Iacob: Why hast thou this done to steale away my hart, and cary away my doughters, as though they hadde ben taken captiue with the swerde? Wherfore, wentest thou away secretly vnknowne to me, and dydst not tell me, that I myghte haue brought thee on the waye with myrth, syngyng, tymbrell and harpe, & hast not suffred me to kisse my childrē, and my daughters? Thou waste • a 2.re.13.c foole nowe to doo it, for I am able to 2.pa.26.c doo you euyll. But the God of youre father spake vnto me yesterdaye, saying: Take heede that thou speake not to Iacob ought saue good. And now though thou wētest thy way, because thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherefore haste thou stolne my goddes? Iacob answered, and sayde to Laban: Because I was afrayde, and thoughte thou wouldest haue taken away thy daughters from me.

But (wher as thou laiest theft to my charge) with whom soeuer thou fyndest thy Goddes, let hym dye here before our brethren. Seke that thyne is by me, and take it to thee. But Jacob wist not that Rahel had stollen them. Then went Laban into Jacobs tent and into Leas tent, and into the two maidens tentes: but found them not. Then went he out of Leas tent, and entred into Rahels tent. And Rahel had taken the images, and put theym in the Camels straw, and sat downe vpon them. And Laban serched al the tent: but found them not. Then sayde she to her father: My lord, be not angry that I can not ryse vp before the, for the custome of women is come vpon me. So searched hee, but founde not those Idolles. And Jacob was wrothe, and chyde with Laban. Jacob also answered and sayd to hym: What haue I trespassed, or what haue I offended, that thou folowedst so after me? Thou haste searched all F my stuffe, and what hast thou founde of all thy housholde stuffe? put it here before thy brethren & myne, that they may iudge betwixt vs both. Behold, this .xx. yere haue I bene with thee, thy shepe and thy goates haue not ben bareyn, and the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eaten. What soeuer was torne of beastes, I brought it not vn to the, but made it good my selfe: Of my hand diddest thou require, euē as it that was stolne by daye or nyghte. By daye the heate consumed me, and the frost by nyghte, and my sleepe departed from myne eies. Thus haue Ge. 19. f I ben .xx. yeare in thy house, and serued the. xiiii. yeres for thy ii. daughters, and .vi. yeres for thy shepe, and thou hast chaunged my reward .x. tymes. And excepte the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the feare of Isahac had ben with me: surely thou haddest sent me away now all emptie. But God beheld my tribulation, and the labour of my hands and rebuked the yesterday. Laban answered and sayd vnto Jacob: These daughters are my daughters, & these childzen are my childzen, and these shepe are my shepe, & all y thou seest, is myne. And what can I doo thys day vnto these my daughters, or vnto theyr childzen whiche they haue borne? Now therefore come on, and let vs make a bonde, I & thou, which may be a witnesse betwene thee and me. Then toke Jacob a stone, and set it vp an ende, and Jacob sayde vnto his brethrē: Gather stones. And they tooke stones, and made an heape, and they dyd eate there vppon the heape. And Laban called it * Jegar Sahadutha: but Jacob called it Gilead. (either of them accordyng to the propertie of his own language.) Then said Laban: * This heape is * witnesse betwene the and me this day: therefore is it called Gilead. (that is a heape of witnesse) and * Mizpah. For he sayde: The Lorde loke betwene me and thee, when we are departed one from an other: If thou shalt vexe my daughters, or shall take other wiues beside my daughters. Here is no man with vs: behold God be witnes betwixt the & me. And Laban said moreouer to Jacob: behold, this heape and this marke whyche I haue sette here betwixt me and the: This heape bee witnesse and also this marke that I will not comme ouer this heape to thee, and thou shalte not come ouer this heape, and this marke vnto me: to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, and the god of theyr fathers be iudge betwixt vs. And Jacob sware by the feare of his father Isahac. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon the mount, and called his brethren to eate breade. And they dyd eate bread, and taried all nyght in the hyll. And early in the morning Laban rose vp, and kyssed his childzen, and his daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departyng, went vnto his place agayne.

BUt Jacob went forth on his iourney. And the angelles of God cam, and met hym. And when Jacob sawe theim, he sayd:

this is gods host, and called the name A double of the same place Mahanaim (That armye. is an armie.) And Jacob sent messengers before hym to Esau his brother, Ios. 33. a vnto the lande of Seir, and the felde of Edom. And he commaunded them, sayinge: Thus shall ye speake to my Lord Esau: thy seruaunt Jacob sayth thus: I haue sogcourned and bene a straunger with Laban vnto this time and haue oxen, asses, and shepe, men B seruauntes and women seruauntes. and haue sente to shewe it my Lorde, that I may fynde grace in thy sight. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob, saying: we came vnto thy brother Esau, & he cometh agaynst the, & hath foure hundreth men with hym. But Jacob was greatly afrayed, and wyste not whiche waye to turne hym selfe, and deuided the people that was with hym, and the shepe, and oxen, and camels, into .ii. companyes, and sayde: If Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other shall saue it selfe.
And Jacob sayde agayne: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isahac: Lorde whyche saydest
Ge. 31. b vnto me returne vnto thy countrey C and to thy kynred, and I wyll do all wel with the, I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies & trueth which thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunte. For with my staffe came I ouer thys Iordan, and now haue I gotten two droues. Delyuer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym, lest he wyll come and smyte the mother with the children. Thou saydst: I wyll surely do thee good, and make thy sede as the sande of the sea, whiche can not be numbred for multitude.
D And he tarryed there that same nyght, and toke of that which came to hande, a presente for Esau hys brother: two hundred she goates, and .xx. he goates two hundred shepe, and .xx. rammes: thirty milch camels, with their colttes xl. kyne and .x. bulles .xx. she asses, and tenne foles, and delyuered them into the handes of hys seruauntes, euerye droue by them selues, and sayde vnto hys seruauntes: go fourthe before me, and putte a space betwyxte droue, and droue. And he commaunded the formost, saying: Yf Esau my brother met the, & aske thee saying: whose art thou, and whyther goeste thou: and whose are these that go before the: thou shalt say, they be thy seruaunte Jacobs, and it is a present sent vnto my Lord Esau: and behold he him selfe commeth after vs: And so cõmaunded he the seconde, and the third, and all that folowed the droues, sayinge of thys maner: se that you speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym, and saye moreouer: thy seruaunt Jacob also commeth after vs, for he sayde: I wyll pease hys wrath with the presente that goeth before me, and after warde I wyll see hym my selfe, yf peraduenture he wyll receaue me to grace. So went the present before hym, and he tarryed all that nyghte in the companye, and rose vp the same nyght, and toke hys two wyues, and hys two maydens, and hys eleuen sonnes, and went ouer the foorde Jabok. And he lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe the wemen, and the chyldren, and sayde: whence haste thou these? (And do they belong vnto thee,) And he answered: they are the chyldren whiche
B God hath geuen thy seruaunte. Then came the maydens fourthe, and theyr chyldrē, and did their obeysaunce. Lea also with her chyldren came, and dyd theyr obeysaunce. And last of all came Joseph and Rahell, & dyd their obeysaunce. And he sayde: what is all the droue whiche I met? Hys answered: that I may fynde grace in the syght of my Lorde. And Esau saide: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou hast vnto thy selfe. To whom Jacob answered: oh nay, but yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, receaue my present of my hande: for I haue seene thy face

And he sayde: let vs take our iourney, and go, I will go before thee. Jacob answered hym: my Lord thou knowest, that the chyldren are tender, and the ewes and kyne with yonge vnder myne hande, whyche yf men shoulde ouerdryue but euen one daye, all the shepe wyll dye. Oh let my Lorde go before his seruaunte, and I wyll dryue fayre and softlye, accordynge as the cattell that goeth before me, and the chyldren be able to endure: vntyll I come to my Lorde vnto Seir. And Esau sayd: let me yet leaue some of my folke with thee. And he answered, what needeth it? (Thys one thynge onely D haue I nede of:) Let me fynde grace in the syghte of my Lorde. So Esau went hys waye agayne that same day vnto Seir. And Jacob toke his iourney towarde Succoth, and buylte hym an house and made boothes for hys cattell. And therefore is it, that the Bothes name of the place is called • Suchoth. And Jacob came to Salem a citie of Sichem, whyche is in the lande of Canaan, after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pytched before the citie: and boughte a parcell of grounde (where he pytched his tent) of the children of Hemor, Sychems father, for an hundred peces of money. And he made there an aulter, and called vpon the myghtye God of Israell.

¶ The.xxxiiii.Chapter.

DIna the daughter of Lea • A went oute to see the daughters of the lande. Whom whē Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Henite, Lorde of the countrey, sawe, he toke her, and laye with her, and forced • her: and hys harte laye vnto Dina 2 Re. the daughter of Jacob. And he loued that damsell and spake kyndlye vnto her, and Sychem spake vnto hys father Hemor, saying: get me thys mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob heard that he had defyled Dina hys daughter, hys sonnes beynge with their cattell in the felde, and he held his peace, vntyll they were come. And Hemor the father of Sychem wente oute vnvnto Jacob, to comen with hym. And when the sonnes of Jacob commynge oute of the fyelde hearde it, it greued them: and they wer not a lytle wroth, because he had wroughte folye in Israel, in that he hadde lyen with Jacobs daughter, whiche thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor cõmuned B with them, saying: the soule of my son Sichem longeth for youre daughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make mariages with vs: and geue your daugh ters vnto vs, and take our daughters vnto you: and ye shall dwell with vs, and the land shall be before you, dwell and do youre busynes, and haue youre possessions therin. And Sichem sayd vnto her father, and her brethren, let me fynd grace in your eies, and whatsoeuer ye appoynte mee, that will I geue. Axe freely of me both the dowry and gyftes, and I wyl geue according as ye saye vnto me, so that ye geue me the Damsell to wyfe. But the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Hemor hys father, talkynge amonge them selues deceitfully, because he had defiled Dina their sister, and they said vnto them: we can not do thys thyng that we shoulde geue our syster to one that is vnsircumcysed, for that were a shame vnto vs. But in this will we C consent vnto you: If ye wil be as we be, and al the men children among you be circumcised, than will we geue our daughters to you, & take your daughters to vs: and wyll dwell with you, and be one people. But and if ye wyll not harken vnto vs to be circumcised, then will we take oure daughter, and go oure wayes. Theyr wordes pleased Hemor and Sichem hys sonne.

And the younge man deferred not for to do the thinge, because he had a luste to Jacobs daughter: he was also most set by of all that were in hys fathers house. Then Hemor and Sichem his sonne went vnto the gate of their citye, and communed with the men of theyr citie, sayinge: these men are vnsayned towarde vs, and dwell in the lande, and do theyr occupation therin, and in the lande is roume ynough for them: we wyll take theyr daughters to wyues, and geue them our daughters. Only herein wyll they consente vnto vs for to dwell with vs, and to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are amonge vs be circumcised as they are. Shall not theyr goodes and theyr substaunce and all theyr cattell be ours, onely yf we consente vnto them: For they will dwell with vs.
And vnto Hemor and Sichem hys D sonne harkened all that wente oute of the gate of hys cytye. And all the men chyldren were circumcysed whatsoeuer wente out at the gates of hys citye. And it happened the thyrde daye (when it was paynefull to them) two of the sonnes of Jacob. Simeon and Leuy, Dinas brethren, toke ey-ther of them hys • swearde and went Gen. 49a into the Citye boldelye, and slewe all Judi. 9, a that was male, and slewe also Hemor and Sichem hys sonne with the edge of the swearde: and toke Dina out of Sichems house and went their way.
And the sonnes of Jacob commynge vppon the dead, spoyled the Citie, because they had defyled their syster: and toke theyr shepe, oxen, and theyr asses, and whatsoeuer was in the citye, and also in the feldes. And all theyr good-des, and all theyr chyldren, and theyr wyues toke they captyue, and made hauocke of all that was in the house.
But Jacob saide to Simeon and Le-ui: ye haue troubled me, and made me stynke before the inhabitoures of the lande, before the Cananite & the Phe-rezite: And I beyng fewe in number, they shal gather them selues together agaynste me and slaye me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered: sholde they deale with our syster as with an whore?

AND God sayd vnto Jacob: a- A

face of Esau thy brother. Then sayde Jacob vnto hys housholde and to all all that were with hym: put away the straunge goddes that are among you, and be cleane, and chaunge youre garmentes, for we will aryse and go vp to Bethel: and I will make an altare ther vnto God, which heard me in the daye of my tribulation, and was with me in the waye which I wente. And they gaue vnto Jacob al the straunge goddes which they had in their hand, and all theyr earynges which were in their eares, and Jacob hid them vnder an oke which was by Sichem. And when they departed, the feare of God fell vpō the cities ỹ were round about them. And they dydde not folowe after the sōnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus whiche is in the lande of Canaan, the same is Bethel, he and al the people that was with hym. And he buylded there an aulter, and called the place: The god of Bethel: because that God appered vnto hym ther, whē he fled frō the face of hys brother. But Debora Rebeccas norse, died: & was buryed beneth Bethel vnder an oke, and the name of it was called the oke of lamentation. And God appeared vnto Jacob agayne after he came oute of Mesopotamia, and blessed him, and God sayd vnto hym: thy name is Jacob, notwithstanding ỹ shalt be no more called Jacob, but Jsrael shalbe thy name. And he called his name Jsrael. And God sayde vnto hym: I am God almyghty, growe & multiply, people, & a multitude of people shall spryng of the, yea, and kinges shall come oute of thy lōnes. And the lande whiche I gaue Abraham & Isahac, will I geue vnto thee, and vnto thy sede after thee will I geue that land also. And so god departed vppe from hym in the place where he had talked with hym. And Jacob sette vp a marke in the place wher he talked with him: cuē a marke of stone, and powred a drinke offering thereon, and powred also oyle theron, and Jacob called the name of the place wher God spake vnto hym, Bethel. And they departed from Bethell, and when he was but a felde bredth from Ephrath, Rahell beganne to trauell: and in traulynge shee was in peryll: and it happened as she was in paynes of her labour, the midwyfe sayde vnto her: feare not, for thys sonne is thyne also. Then as her soule was a departyng, that she must dye, she called his name. Ben Ony: (The son of my sorowe.) But his father called him Bē Jamin. (The son of the ryghthand.) And thus dyed Rahel and was buried in the waye to Ephrath, whiche is Bethlehem. And Jacob set vp a stone vpon her graue, whiche is called Raheis graue stone vnto thys daye. And Jsrael wente thence, and pytched vp hys tent beyonde the towre of Eder. And it chaunced as Jsrael dwelte in the lande, that Ruben wente and laye with Bilha hys fathers concubine: and it came to Jsraels eare. The sonnes of Jacob were .xii. in number. The sonnes of Lea, Ruben Jacobs eldest sone, and Simeon, Leui, Juda, Jsachar, and Zabulon. The sonnes of Rahel: Joseth and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Raheis maide: Dan and Neptali. The sonnes of Silpha Leas mayd, Gad and Aser. These ar the sōnes of Jacob which were borne hym in Mesopotamia. And so Jacob came vnto Jsahac his father to Mamre, vnto Kyriath Arba, whiche is in Hebron: where Abraham and Jsahac sogeourned as straungers.

And the dayes of Jsahac were an hundred and .lxxv. yeares: and Jsahac fell sycke and dyed, and was put vnto hys people: beyng olde & full of dayes. And hys sonnes Esau and Jacob buryed hym.

tuned from the tyme that he had made hym ruler ouer hys house, and ouer al gyptians house for Josephs sake: and the blessynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he had: in the house, and in the ned after this, that hys masters wyfe cast her eyes vpon Joseph, and sayde: come lye with me. But he refused, and sayde to hys masters wyfe: Because thou art hys wyfe. Howe than can I do this greate wyckednes, and syn against God? And after this maner spake she to Ioseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her compante. And C it fortuned on a certayne conuenient daye, that Ioseph entred into the house to do his busines: and there was none of the house should by, in the house.

And she caught him by the garmente, saying: come slepe with me. And he lefte his garment in her hand and fled and got hym oute. And it chaunced when she saw that he had left his garment in her hande, and was flede out. (And she not regarded) she called vnto the men of her house, and told them, sayinge: See, he hath brought in an Hebrewe vnto vs to do vs shame: for he cam into me, for to haue slept with me: and I beganne to cry with a loud voyce. And when he heard that I lift vp my voyce and cryed, he left his garment with me, and fled away, and got hym out. And she laid vp his garment

And she tolde him with these wordes saynge: The hys Hebrewes seruaunte whiche thou haste brought vnto vs, came into me to doo me shame, but as soone as I lift vp my voyce and cryed he lefte hys garmente with me, and fled oute. When hys maister (beynge to lyght of credence) heard these wordes of hys wyfe, which she told hym, saying: after thys maner dyd thy seruaunte to me, he waxed wroth. And

But the Lorde was with Ioseph, and shewed hym mercye, and gote hym fauoure in the sight of the Lorde of the prison. And the keper of the prison committed to Ioseph hande all the prysoners that were in the prison house. And whatsoeuer was done their, that dyd he. And the keper of the prison loked vnto nothinge that was vnder hys handes, seing that the Lord was with him. For whatsoeuer he did, the Lorde made it to prosper.

AND it chaunced after thys, that the butler of the kyng of Egypt, and his baker had offended their Lorde the kyng of Egypte. And Pharao was angrye agaynst hys two officers: agaynst the cheife butler, and the cheife baker: and put them in warde, in his cheife stewardes house: euen in the prison & place where Ioseph was bounde. And the cheife steward gaue Ioseph a charge with them, and he serued them. And they continued a season in ward. And they dreamed either of theym in one nyghte: both the butler and the baker of the kynge of Egypte, whych were bounde in the prison house, eyther of them hys dreame: & eche mans dreame of a sondry interpretation. When Ioseph came in vnto theym in the mor-
B nynge, and loked vpon them: behold, they were sad. And he asked Pharaos officers that were with him in his maysters warde, sayinge: wherefore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no manne to declare it. And Ioseph sayde vnto them: Do not interpretinges belonge to God? yet tell me. And the cheife butler tolde hys dreame to Ioseph, and sayd vnto him: In my dreame me thought, ther stode a vyne before me, and in the vine were C three braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossomes shete forth: and the grapes thereof, waxed rype. And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and tooke of the grapes, and wronge them into Pharaos cup, and deliuered Pharaos cup in hys hande. And Iosephes sayde vnto hym: thys is the interpretation of it. The three braunches are three dayes: for within three dayes shall Pharao lyfte vp thine head, and restore the vnto thine office agayne: and thou shalte deliuer Pharaos cuppe into hys hande, after the olde maner, wherein thou waste wonte to geue hym drynke. But if thou thinke on me with them, when thou arte in good case, shew mercy (I praye thee) vnto me: and make mention of me, to Pharao, and bring me out of thys house. For I was stolen oute of the land of the Hebrewes, and here also haue I done nothyng at al, wherfore they should haue put me into this dongeon. When the cheife baker sawe that the interpretation was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: me thoughte also in my dreame, that I had thre wicker

And Joseph answered and sayde: thys is the interpretation therof. The three baskettes are thre dayes, for this day thre dayes shall Pharao take thy heade from the, and shall hange the on a tre, and the byrdes shall eate the flesshe fró

And he lifted vp the head of the cheife butler, and of the cheife baker among hys seruauntes. And he restored the cheife butler vnto his butlershyp agayne: whyche also reached the cup into Pharaos hande: but he hanged the cheife baker: euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. Neither did the cheife butler remẽbre Joseph, but forgat hym.

I AND it fortuned after twoo yeares, that Pharao dreamed and beholde, he stode by a ryuers side, and there came out of the ryuer seuen goodlye kyne and fat flesshed, and fedde in a medowe: and seuen other kyne came vppe after them out of the ryuer, euill fauoured, and leane flesshed, and stode by the other kyne vppon the brynke of the ryuer. And the euill fauoured and leane flesshed kyne dyd eate vp the well fauoured and fatte kyne: and Pharao awoke. And he slept agayne, and dreamed the second tyme. And beholde, seuen eares of corne grewe vppon one stalke, ranke and goodlye: and agayne seuen thinne eares blasted with the east wynde, sprange vp after theym: the seuen thinne eares deuoured the seuen ranke and full eares: and Pharao awaked: and see, it was a dreame. And when the morning came his spirite was troubled. And he sente and B called for all the south sayers of Egypt, and all the wyse menne thereof, and Pharao tolde theym hys dreame: but ther was none of them that could interprete it vnto Pharao. Than spake the cheife butler vnto Pharao, saying: I do remembre my fautes this daye. Pharao beyng angrye wyth his seruauntes, put in warde, in the cheife stewardes house, both me, & the cheife baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one night, and eche mannes dreame of sondrye interpretation. And ther was with vs a ponge manne, an Hebrewe bonde, seruaunt vnto the cheife Steward: To whom whan we told them he declared our dremes, to vs accordig to eyther of our dreames. And as hee declared them vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. For he restored me to mine office agayne, and hanged him. Pharao sent therefore, and called Joseph: and they brought hym hastely out of prison. And he shaued himselfe, and chã- Psa. 104 ged hys rayment, and came into Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I haue sene a dreame, and no man can C interprete it, and I haue heard saye of the, that as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou canst interpretate it. Joseph answered Pharao, saying: Not I, but God shall geue Pharao an answere of peace. And Pharao said vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a riuers side, and ther came oute of the riuer seuen fat flesshed, and well fauored kyne, and fed in the medowe. And then seuen other kyne came vppe after theim, poore and verye euyll fauouredde, and leane flesshedde: suche as I neuer sawe in all thys lande of Egypte, they were soo euyll fauoured. And they seuen leane and euell fauoured kyne dyd eate vp the firste seuen fatte kyne. And when they had eaten them vp, a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten thē: but they were still as euell fauored as they were at the begynnynge: and I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreame, and beholde seuen eares spryng out of one stalke, full and fayre: and seuen other eares agayn wythered thin and blasted with ỹ east wind, sprange vp after them: and the thin eares deuoured the seuen good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the sothe sayers, but there was no manne that coulde tell what it meaneth. And Ioseph aunswered Pharao: bothe Pharaos dreames are one, and GOD hath shewed Pharao what he is about to doo.

The seuen good kine, are seuen yeres: and the seuen good eares, are seuen good yeares also, and it is but one dreame. Lykewyse, the seuen thinne
D and euill fauored kine that came oute after theym are seuen yeares: and the seuen emptie, and blasted eares, shalbe seuen yeares of hunger. This whych I haue sayde vnto Pharao is it that God is aboute to do: and sheweth it vnto Pharao. Behold there come seuen yeare of great plenteousnes throughe oute all the lande of Egypte.

And agayne, there shall aryse after them, seuen yeares of hunger. And also the plenteousnesse shalbe forgotten in the lande of Egypte, and the hunger shall consume the lande: neyther shall the plenteousnes be knowen in the lande, by reason of that hunger that shall come after, for it shalbe exceadyng greate. And as concernyng that the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the second tyme, beholde the thinge is certaynely prepared of GOD, and GOD wyll shortelye bringe it to passe. Nowe therefore, lette Pharao, prouyde for a manne of vnderstandynge and wysedome, and sette hym ouer the lande of Egypte. And lette Pharao doo thys also, that he make officers ouer the lande, and take vppe the fyfthe parte of the lande, of Egipte, in the seuenth plenteous yeares, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres, that come, and lay vp corne vnder the hande of Pharao, that there may be foode in the Cities, and there let them kepe it: that there maye be founde in store in the lande, agaynste the seuen yeares of hunger, whyche shall come in the lande of E- E gypte: that the lande perysshe not thorowe hunger. And the sayinge pleased Pharao and all his seruauntes.

Then sayde Pharao vntohis seruantes: where shall we fynde such a man as thys is, in whome is the spirite of GOD? And Pharao sayde vnto Ioseph: for as muche as GOD hath shewed the all thys, there is noo man of vnderstandynge or of wysedome lyke vnto the. Thou therefore shalte be ouer my house, and accor- Psa.104 sayde agayne vnto Ioseph: beholde, I haue set the ouer all the lande of Egypte. And he toke of hys ryng from hys hande, and putte it vpon Ioseph hande, and arayed hym in clothe of raynes, and put a goldenne chayne aboute hys necke, and sette hym vppon the best charette that he hadde, saue one. And they cryed before hym: bowe the knee: And Pharao made hym ruler ouer all the land of Egipt. And Pharao sayde vnto Ioseph: I F am Pharao, without the shall noo man lyfte vp hys hande or foote in all the lande of Egypte. And he called Ioseph's name Zaphnath Paena. And he gaue hym to wyfe Aseth the doughter of Putiphar, preist of On. Than wente Ioseph abroade in the lande of Egypte. And he was thyrtie yeare olde when he stode before Pharao kynge of Egypte. And Ioseph departynge from the presence of Pharao, went throwe oute all the lande of Egipt. And in the seuen plenteous yeares they made shewes, & gathered vp al the foode of the seuen plenteous yeares, whyche were in the lande of Egypte, and layed vppe the same in the cities. The foode of the fyeldes that grewe rounde aboute euerye cytye, layde he vppe in the same.

And Joseph layde vp Corne in store, lyke vnto the sande of the sea, in multitude oute of measure, vntyll he lefte numbryng: For it was without number. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes (before the yeres of hunger came) whiche Aznath the doughter of Putiphar preaste of On, bare

And when the lande of Egipte also beganne to hunger, the people cryed to Pharao for breade. And Pharao sayde vnto all the Egipcians, go vnto Joseph, and what he sayeth to you, that doo. And the dearthe was thorowoute all the lande. And Joseph opened all that was in the Cities, and solde vnto the Egyptians: For the hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: because that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

B And whan he ouertoke theym, he said the same wordes vnto them. And they aunswered hym: wherfore saith my Lorde suche wordes? GOD forbyd that thy seruauntes should do so: beholde, the money which we founde in oure sackes mouthes, we broughte agayne to the out of the lande of Canaan: howe then should we steale out of thy Lordes house, eyther siluer or golde? with whomsoeuer of thy seruauntes it be founde, let hym die, and, we also will be my Lordes bondmen. And Joseph sayde vnto theym: what dede is thys whyche ye haue done? wote yee not that such a man as I can prophesye? Then sayde Juda: what shal we saye vnto my Lorde? what shall we D speake, or what excuse can we make? God hath founde out the wyckednes of thy seruauntes. Beholde both we and he with whom the cup is founde, are my Lordes seruauntes. And he answered: God forbyd that I shoulde do so, but the manne with whome the cuppe is founde, he shalbe my seruant. And go ye in peace vnto youre father. Then Juda went vnto hym, and sayde: Oh my Lorde, let thy seruaunt speake a worde in my Lordes eares, and be not wroth with thy seruaunt: for thou arte euen as Pharao. My Lord asked his seruaunt saying: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my Lorde: we haue a father that is olde, and a younge lad whyche Gen.42. he begat in hys age: and the brother of E the sayde lad is deade, and he is all that is lefte of that mother: and hys father louyth hym. And thou saydest vnto thy seruauntes: bringe him vnto me, that I maye set myne eye vpon hym. And we answered my Lord, that the lad couldc not goo from hys father, for yf he shoulde leaue hys father, he were but deade. Than saydest thou vnto thy seruauntes: except youre yongest brother come with you, Ge.43.a loke that ye se my face no more. And F when we came vnto thy seruaunt our father, we shewed hym what my lord hadde sayde: And oure father sayde vnto vs: goo agayne, and bye vs a litle foode. And we aunswered: we cannot go downe: Neuertheles yf oure yongest brother goo with vs, then wyll we go downe, for we maye not see the mans face, except our yongest brother be with vs. And thy seruaunte our father sayde vnto vs: ye knowe that my wyfe bare me twoo sonnes. And the one went oute from me, and I sayde: of a suretye he is Gen.37. torne in peces, and I sawe hym not sence. And ye take thys also from me. If somme myschoytune happen vnto hym, ye shall bringe my Gen.42 graye graye head in sorowe vnto the graue.

Nowe therfore, when I come to thy seruaunt my father, and the lad be not with vs (seyng that hys life hangeth by the laddes lyfe) then shal it come to passe, that as soone as he seeth that the Gen.42. lad is not come, he will dye. So shall we thy seruauntes * bryngе the graye fore my father, and sayde: * if I bryng the blame vnto my father all my lyfe long. Nowe therefore let me thy sernaunte byde here for the lad, and be my Lordes bondman: and let the lad goo vppe with hys brethren. For howe can I go vp to my father, if the lad be not with me? vnlesse I would se the wretchednes that shall come on my father.

And vnto his father he sent after the same manner ten asses laden with good oute of Egypte, and ten shee asses laden with corne, breade and meate: for his father by the waye: So sente he his brethren awaye to departe. And hee sayde vnto theym: see that ye fall not oute by the waye. They departed therefore from

And they tolde hym all the wordes of Joseph, which he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe the charettes, whiche Joseph had sent to cary hym, the spyrite of Jacob theyr father reuyued. And Israell sayde: I haue ynoughe, that Joseph my sonne is yet alyue: I wil go and see him ere that I dye.

The xlvi. Chapter.

A ISrael toke hys iourney with all that he had, and came vnto Beer Seba, and offred offrynges vnto the God of his father Isaac. And Israell sayde vnto Joseph: Nowe am I content to dye, in somuche as I haue seene thee, and because thou arte yet alyue. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren, and vnto his fathers house: I wyll goe vppe, and shewe Pharao, and tell hym: My brethren and my fathers house whiche were in the lande of Canaan are come vnto mee, and they are shepeheardes (for they were menne of cattell) and they haue brought theyr shepe, & theyr oxen, and all that they haue. And yf it chaunce that Pharao call you, and aske you, what your occupation is: ye shal aunswere, thy seruauntes haue beene men occupyed about cattel, from our childhoode vnto thys tyme wee and oure fathers, that yee maye dwell in the lande of Gosan. For euerye sheepe keaper is abhomination vnto the Egyptians.

¶ The. xlvii. Chapter.

IOseph came therefore and tolde Pharao, and sayde: my father and A my brethrenne, theyr sheepe and theyr oxen, and all that they haue are come oute of the lande of Canaan: and beholde, they are in the lande of Gosan. And Joseph toke of the hynmost of hys brethrenne: euen fyue menne, and presented theym vnto Pharao.

And Pharao sayde vnto hys brethren: What is youre occupation?

And they answered Pharao: shepeherdes are thy seruauntes, both we and also oure fathers. They sayde moreouer vnto Pharao: for to sogeourne in the lande are wee come, for thy Seruauntes haue not pasture for theyr shepe, so sore is the famyshment Ge. 23.1 in the lande of Canaan. Nowe therefore lette thy seruauntes dwell in the B lande of Gosan. And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto thee. The lande of Egypte is before thee: In the beste place of the lande make bothe thy father and thy brethrenne dwell: euen in the land of Gosan lette them dwel: Moreouer, yf thou knowe any man of actiuitie among thē, make thē rulers ouer my cattell. And Joseph brought in Jacob hys father, and sette hym before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto Jacob: howe olde arte thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharao: the dayes of my pylgremage are an hundreth and thyrtye yeares. Fewe and cuyll haue the dayes of my lyfe beene, and haue not attaynted vnto the yeares of the lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of theyr pylgrymages. And Jacob blessed Pharao, and wente oute from hym. And Joseph prepared dwellynges for hys father, and hys brethrenne, and gaue theym possessyons in the lande of Egypt, in the beste of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharao hadde commaunded. And Joseph made prouysion for hys father, hys brethrenne, and all hys fathers housholde wyth breade, euen as ponge chyldrenne are fedde. Ther C was noe breade in all the lande, for the dearthe was exceadynge sore: soo that the lande of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were famyshed by the reason of the greate dearthe. And Joseph broughte together all the money that was found in the land of Egipt and of Canaā, for the corne which they bought: and he layd vp the mony in Pharao house. When money failed in the lande of Egypt and of Canaan, all

all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph and sayde: geue vs breade: wherefore sufferest thou vs to dye before thee whan oure money is spente? Than sayde Joseph: bryng your cattell, and D I wyll geue you for youre cattell, yf yee bee without money. And they brought theyr cattell vnto Josephe: And Josephe gaue theym breade for horses and sheepe, and oxen, and asses, and fedde them with breade for theyr cattell that yeare. But when that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the nexte yeare, and sayde vnto hym, wee wyll not hyde it from my Lorde how that oure money is spente, my Lorde also hadde oure cattell and beastes, neyther is there oughte leste in the syght of my Lorde, but euen oure bodyes and our landes. Wherefore letteste thou vs dye before thyne eyes, and the land to go to nought? Bye vs and our landes for bread: and both we and our landes wil be bound to Pharao. Only geue vs sede, that we may lyue and not dye, and that the lande goe not to E waste. And so Joseph bought all the lande of Egypte for Pharao. For the Egyptians sold euery manne his land because the derth was sore vppō thē & so the land becam Pharaos. And he appointed the people vnto ẏ cities, frō one syde of Egypt vnto the other: only the land of the Priestes bought he not. For the Priestes had an ordinaunce of Pharao, that they shoulde eate that whyche was appointed vnto them: which Pharao hadde geuen theim, wherefore they solde not theyr landes. Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: Beholde, I haue boughte you this daye, and your lande for Pharao. Take there bread, and sede, and sowe land. And of the encrease, ye shal geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharao, and fower partes shall be youre owne, for the F sede of the field and for you, and them of youre housholdes, and for youre chyldren to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued oure lyues.

Lette vs fynde grace in the syght of my Lorde, and wee will bee Pharaos seruantes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this day: that Pharao should haue the fyfte part, except the lande of the Priestes onely, which was not Pharaos. And Israell dwelt in Egypt: euen in the countrey of Golan. And they had their possessions therin, and grew and multiplied excedingly. Moreouer Jacob lyued in the lād of Egypt. xvii. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was G

When the tyme drewe nye, that Israell muste dye, he sent for hys sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: If I haue founde grace in thy sight, Oh, put thy hande vnder my thygh, and deale mercyfully and truelye wyth me, that thou burye mee not in Egypte, but I wyll lye wyth my fathers, and thou shalte carye me oute of Egypte, and burye mee in theyr buryall. And hee aunswered: I wyll do as thou haste sayde. And he sayde: Swoare vnto me, and he sware Ge. 25. d

¶ The. xlviii. Chapter. I

After these deedes it happened, that a messenger sayd vnto Joseph: thy father is sicke. And he toke with hym hys two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it sayde vnto Jacob: beholde thy sonne Josephe commeth vnto thee. lande of Canaan by the waye: when there was but a fields bredth to come sonnes and sayde: what are these? Joseph sayd vnto his father, they are my sonnes which GOD hath geuen me here. And he sayde: oh bringe them to me, and let me blesse theym. And the C eyes of Israell were dym for age, soo that he could not wel se. And he brou ght them to hym, and he kysled them, and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thoughte to haue sene thy face, and yet lo, GOD hath shewed it me and also thy seede.

And Joseph toke them away frō hys lappe, and worshypped on the ground before hym. Then toke Joseph theim both: Ephraim with his ryght hande toward Israels left hand, and Mana-sses with his left hand toward Isra-ells ryght hande, and broughte theym vnto hym. And Israell stretched oute hys ryght hand, and layde it vpon Ephraims head, whyche was the yon-ger, and hys left hand vppon Manasses heade, guyding hys handes wisely for Manasses was the elder. And bee blessed Joseph and sayde: God before my name be named in theym, and the name of my fathers Abraham, and Isaac, and that they maye growe into a multytude in the middes of the earth.

When Joseph sawe that hys father layde his right hand vpon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him. And hee lifted vppe his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraims head vn-D to Manasses head: and Joseph sayde vnto hys father: Not so my father, for thys is the eldest. Put thy right hand vpon his head. And his father would not but sayd: I knowe it wel my son, I knowe it well. He shalbe also a people and shalbe greate: But his yonger brother shalbe greater then he, and his sede shalbe full of people. And he blessed them that daye, and sayde: In thee let Israell blesse and saye: God make the as Ephraim before Manasses.
And Israell sayde vnto Joseph: behold, I die, and God shalbe with you, and bryng you agayne vnto the lande

THese ar the names of the children of Israell, whyche came to Egypt with Jacob: euery man cam with his household: Ruben, Simeon, Leui, & Juda, Isachar, Zabulō & Beniamin, Dan, Nephtali, Gad, & Aser. All the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob, were. lxx. But Joseph was in Egypt alredy. And Joseph dyed, & all his brethren, & all that generation. encreased, and multiplied, and waxed exedyng myghtie: and the lande was full of them. But there rose vp a new king in Egypt, which knew not Ioseph. And he said vnto his folke: Behold, the people of the childzen of Israell, are greater and myghtyer than we. Come on, lette vs playe wysely with them, lest thei multiply, and lest it happen that (yf there chaunce anye warre) they ioyne them selues vnto our enemies, and fighte agaynste vs, and so get them out of the land. Therfore dyd they set tal kemaysters ouer them, to keepe them vnder with burthens. And they buylt vnto Pharao, treasure cities, Phiton, and Rameses But the more they vexed theym, the more they multiplied & grewe, so that they abhorred the chyldzen of Israell. And the Egyptians held the childzen of Israell in bondage without mercye. Therefore was theyr lyfe bytter vnto theym in that cruell bondage, in clay and bryck, and all maner of worke in the fieldes. For all theyr bondage whych they serued them, was full of tyrannye. And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Hebrues womenne, of whiche, the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua, when ye do the office of a mydwyfe to the woman of the Hebrues, and see in the byrthe tyme that it is a boye, ye shall kylle it. But if it bee a daughter, it shall lyue. Not withstãdynge, the mydwyues feared God, & dyd not as the kynge of Egypt commanded them: but saued the men childzen. And the kynge of Egypt called for the mydwyues, and sayd vnto thẽ, why haue ye delte on this maner, and haue saued the men childzen. And the mydwyues answered Pharao, that the Hebrewes women are not as the women of Egypte: for they are sturdye women, and are deliuered ere the mydwyues come at theim. And God therfore delte well with the mydwyues. And the people multiplied and waxed very myghty. And it fortuned because the midwyues feared God, he made them houses. And Pharao charged all his people, sayinge: All yͤ men childzen that are borne cast into the riuer, & saue the mayd childzen alyue.

AND there went a man of the house of Leui, & toke a daughter of Leui. And the wife conceiued and bare a sonne. And whẽ she saw that it was a proper childe, she hyd him thre moneths: And when she coulde no longer hyde hym, shee toke a basliette of bulrusshes and daubed it wyth slyme and pytche, and layed the childe therein, and putte it in the flagges by yͤ ryuers brinke. And his sister stoode a farre of to wete what woulde come of it. And the daughter of Pharao came downe to washe her self in the ryuer, and her maydens walked alonge by the riuers syde, And whẽ she saw the basket among the flagges: she sente her mayde to fetch it. And when she hadde opened it, shee sawe it was a chylde: & beholde, the babe wepte. And shee had compassion on it, and sayde, it is one of the Hebrues chyldzen. Then sayde hys syster vnto Pharaos daughter: shall I go and cal vnto the a nurse of the Hebrewes wemen, to nurse the the childe? Pharaos daughter answered her: Go, and the mayd ran and called the childes mother. To whõ Pharaos daughter sayde: Take this childe awaye, and nurse it for mee, I wil rewarde thee. And the woman toke the childe, and nursed it vppe. The childe grew, and she brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, and it was made her son, and she called the name of it, Moyses: because (sayd she) I toke him oute of the water. And it happened in those dates, when Moses was waxed great that he went out vnto hys brethren & looked on theyr burdens, and spyed an Egyptian smytynge an Hebrewe whiche was one of his brethren. And the Lord ſayde vnto hym: what is that whyche is in thyne hande? he aunſwered, a Rodde. And he ſayde: Caſt it on the grounde, and he caſte it on the grounde, and it became a ſerpente: and Moyſes fledde frome the ſyght of it. And the Lorde ſayd vnto Moyſes: Putte foorth thyne hande, B

And the Lorde ſayd furthermore vnto hym: Thruſte thyne hande into thy boſome: and he thruſte hys hande into hys boſome: and whan he tooke it out agayne, beholde his hande was leaprous euen as ſnowe. And he ſayde: Put thyne hande into thy boſome agayne. And he put hys hande into his boſome agayne, & plucked it oute of hys boſome: and beholde, it was turned agayne as his other fleſh. And the Lord was angry with Moyses, and sayde: do not I knowe Aaron thy brother the Leuite, that he can speake? For loe, he commeth forth to meete thee: and when hee seeth thee, he wyll be glad in hys hearte. The Lorde also sayd vnto Moses: Pharaos heart is hardened, he refuseth to lette the people goe: Gette thee vnto Pharao in the mornyng, Lo, he wyl come vnto the water, and thou shalt stande vpon the riuers brynk against he come and the Rodde whyche tourned to a Serpente, shalte thou take in thyne hande: and thou shalte say vnto hym:

And the fyshe that is in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer stynke: and it shall greue the Egyptians to drynke of the water of the riuer. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say vnto Aaron: Take thy staffe and stretche out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egypte, ouer theyr streames, ouer theyr ryuers and pondes, and all pooles of water, whych they haue, that they maye be bloudde: and that there maye be bloode thorought oute all the lande of Egypte: bothe

And he lift vp the staffe, & smote the waters that were in the ryuer in the syght of Pharao, and in the syghte of his seruauntes, and all the water that was in the ryuer, turned into bloud. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the waters of Egypt, and the frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypt. And the sorcerers did likewise with their sorcerie, and brought frogges vp vpon the lande of Egypt. Then Pharao called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: * Praye ye vnto the Lorde, that he maye take away the Frogges frome me, and frome my people: and I wyll lette the people go, that they maye doo sacrifyce vnto the Lorde.

C And Moyses sayde vnto Pharao: Reioyce thou ouer me, and appoynte whanne I shall pray for thee, and for thy seruauntes, and for thy people, to dryue awaye the Frogges frome thee, and thy houses, and that they maye remayne but in the ryuer onely. He sayde: To morowe. And he sayde: euen as thou haste sayde, that thou mayst know, that there is none lyke vnto the Lorde oure God. And so the Frogges shall departe frome thee, and from thy houses, from thy seruauntes, and frome thy people,

D and shall remayne in the ryuer onely. Moyses and Aaron wente out from Pharao, and Moyses cryed vnto the Lorde vppon the appoyntemente of Frogges, whyche he had made vnto Pharao. And the Lorde dyd accorto to the sayinge of Moyses. And the Frogges dyed oute of the houses, out of the courtes and fieldes.

And they gathered them together vppon heapes, and the lande stanke of theym. But when Pharao sawe that he hadde reste geuen hym, he hardened hys hearte, and hearkened not vnto theym, as the Lorde hadde sayde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: saye vnto Aaronne: Stretche oute thy Rodde and smyte the duste of the lande, that

E it maye tourne to lyce thorowoughoute all the lande of Egypte. And they dydde so. For Aaron stretched oute his hande, and with his rod, he smote the duste of the earth, wyych turned to lyce in menne and beaste, so that all the duste of the lande tourned to lyce, thorowoughout all the lande of Egypt. And the enchaunters assayed lykewyse wyth theyr enchauntementes to bring forth lyce: but they could not And the lyce were both vpon menne and beastes. Then sayde the enchantars vnto Pharao: It is the fynger of God. And Pharaos harte remayned obstinate, and he harkned not vnto theim, euen * as the Lord had said.

And the Lorde said vnto Moyses: Rise Exo.7. vp early in the morwyng, and stande before Pharao, for he wyl come forth vnto the water, and thou shalte saye vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lord: Let my people go, that they may serue me els, yf thou wylte not lette my people go, Beholde, I wyll send all maner of flyes bothe vppon thee and thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into the howses. And I wyll put a diuision betweene my people and thyne. And euen to morowe shall thys myracle be doone. And the Lorde dydde euen so: and there came noysom flies into the house of Pharao, and into seruauntes houses, and into all the lande of Egypte: and the lande was corrupte with these flies. And Pharao called for Moses and Aaron, and sayd: Go and do sacrifice vnto youre God in the lande. And Moses aunswered: It is not mete that we do so. For thenne we muste offer vnto the Lorde oure God, that whyche is an abhomination vnto the Egyptians. But & if we sacrifice that which is an abhominatiō vnto ẏ Egiptiās before theyr eies, thuld thei not stone vs? we wil go thre days iourney into the de- Exo. sert, & do sacrifice vnto the Lord our G God, * as he hath cōmaūded vs: And Pharao sayd: I wyl let you go, that ye may do sacrifice vnto the Lord your God in the wyderneſſe: but goe not farre away, pray for me. And Moses sayd, Beholde, I wyll go out frome thee, & pray vnto the Lord ẏ the flyes may depart from Pharao, & from his seruauntes, & from his people to morowe. But lette Pharao from henseforthe deceaue no more, that he wyll not let the people goe to sacrifice vnto

And the Lorde dyd accordyng to the sayinge of Moyses: And the flyes departed from Pharao, and frō hys seruauntes, and from his people, and there remayned not one. And Pharao hardened his hert euen then also, and dyd not let the people go.

A THe Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: Go in vnto Pharao, and thou shalte tell hym: Thus saythe the lorde God of the Hebrues: * lette my people go, that they may serue me Exo.7.c. If thou wylte not lette them go, and wylte holde theim styll, Beholde, the hande of the lorde, is vpon thy flocke, whyche is in the fielde: for vpon horses, asses, camelles, oxen, and sheepe, there shalbe a myghty great murcyn. And the lorde shall doo wonderfully betweene the beastes of Israell, and the beastes of Egypte: so that there shall nothynge dye of all that pertayneth to the chyldren of Israell. And the lord appointed a time, sayying: To morowe the Lorde shall fynishe this B worde in the land. And the Lord dyd it on the morow, and all the cattell of Egypt dyed: but of the cattell of the chyldren of Israell died not one. And Pharao sente, and beholde, there was not one of the cattell of the Israelites dead. And the heart of Pharao was hardened that he wouldе not lette the people go. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses and Aaron: Take youre hands full of ashes out of the fornes, and Moyses shall sprinkle it vp into the ayre, in the syght of Pharao, and it shall turne to dust in all the land of Egypte: that there may be swellynge sores with blaines bothe on man and beast thorowe out all the lande of Egypt. And they toke out ashes out of the fornace, and stode before Pharao, and Moyses sprynkled it vp into the ayre: And there were sores with blaines bothe in men, and in beastes: and the sorcerers coulde not stande before Moyses, because of the blaynes, for there were botches vpon the enchanters and vpon al the Egyptiās. And the Lord hardned the hert of Pharao and he hearkened not vnto them * as Exo.5.c the Lord had sayd vnto Moyses. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: Ryse vp early in the morynge, and stande beefore Pharao, and thou shalte telle hym: Thus saieth the Lorde God of the Hebrues: * Lette my people goe, that they may serue me: or els I wyll Exo.8.a at this time sende all my plages vpon thyne herte, and vpon thy seruauntes and on thy people, that thou mayste knowe, that there is none lyke me in al the earth For now I will stretche out my hand, that I may smite thee, & thy people with pestilence: and thou shalt perish from the earth. And in be ry dede * for this cause haue I kepte Ro.9.e. thee, for to shew the my power, & that Psa.47.c they myght declare my name thorow out all the worlde. Yet thou exaltest D thy selfe against my people, that thou wilt not let them go: Behold, to morow this tyme I wyll send downe a mighty great haile: euen such a one as was not in Egypt, sens it was groū ded, vnto this tyme. Sende therfore now, and gather thy beastes, and all that thou hast in the fielde. For vpon all the men and the beastes which are founde in the fielde, and not brought home, shal the haile fall: and they shal die. And as many as feared the word of the Lorde among the seruantes of Pharao, made theyr seruants, & their beasts flee into the houses: but he that regarded not the worde of the Lorde, left his seruauntes and his beastes in E the fielde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Stretche foorthe thyne hand vnto heauen, that there may be hayle in all the land of Egypte: vpon man, and vppon beastes, and vppon all the herbes in the field, thorought al the lande of Egypt. And Moyses stretched oute hys Rodde vnto heauen: and the Lorde thundred and hayled and the fyre ranne alonge vppon the ground. * And the Lorde so hailed in the lande of Egypte, that there was Psa.78.c hayle, and fyre mingled with ỹ hayle, and.105 so greso grenous, and suche as there was none throughout all the lande of Egypte, sence people inhabited it. And the hayle smote throughoute all the lande of Egypte, all that was in the felde both manne and beaste. And the F hayle smote all the herbes of the feld, and broke all the trees of the fyelde, onely in the land of Gozan, wher the childzen of Israell were, was no hail.

Exo. 8 b And Pharao sent and called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto theym: I haue nowe synned: the Lorde is ryghteous: and I and my people are vngodly. Praye ye vnto the Lord: for it is much that there should be thunders of God, and hayle. I wyll lette you go, and ye shall tarye no longer. Moses sayd vnto hym: As soone as I am out of the citie, I wyll spreade abrode my hands vnto the Lord, and the thunder shall ceasse, neyther shall there bee any more hayle: that thou mayest knowe how that the earthe is G the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruauntes, yet feare not the face of the Lord God. And so the flax and the barleye were smitten: for the barley was shot vp, and the flaxe was boulled: but the wheate and the rye were not smitten: for they were late sowen. And Moses went out of the citie from Pharao, and spreade abrode his hands vnto the Lord: and the thũder and hayle ceassed, neyther rayned it vpon the earth. And when Pharao saw that the rayne and the hayle and thunder wer ceassed, he sinned again: and hardened his heart, he and his seruantes. And the hert of Pharao was hardened: neyther would he lette the childzen of Israell goe, as the Lorde had sayd, by the hand of Moyses.

And so Moyses and Aaron came vnto Pharoo, and sayde vnto him: Thus sayth the Lord God of the Hebrues: How long shall it be or thou wylt submyt thy selfe vnto me? Lette my people go, that they maye serue me, or elles (if thou doo refyste) Exo. 1. and wilt not let my people go, behold and. 9a to morow will I bryng greshoppers into thy coastes, and they shall couer the face of the earthe, that it can not be sene, and they shal eate the residue whyche remayneth vnto you: and is escaped from the hayle: and they shall eate euery grene tree that beareth you fruite in the fielde: and they shall fyll 25

And he turned hym selfe aboute, and wente out from Pharao. And Pharaos seruants sayd vnto hym: How long shal he be a slander vnto vs? Let the men goe, that theye maye serue the Lorde theyr God: knowest thou not, that Egypt is destroyd? And Moses and Aaron were broughte agayne vnto Pharao, and he sayde vnto them: Go, and serue the Lorde your God. Who are they that shall go? And Moyses answered: We wil go with our yong and with our olde: yea and with oure sonnes, and with our daughters, and with our sheepe and with oure oxen muste we goe. For we muste holde a feast vnto the Lord. And he sayd vnto them, Lette it be so. The Lord bee

Naye not soo: but goo they that are men, and serue the Lorde: for that was youre desyre. And they thruste them out of Pharaos presence. And the Lord said vnto Moyses: Stretch out thyne hande ouer the land of Egypte for greshoppers, that they may come vppon the lande of Egypt, and

And they vyd eate all the herbes of the lande, and all the fruites of the trees, and whatsoeuer the hayle had lefte: there was no grene thynges left in the trees and herbes of the felde through all the lande of Egypte.

And Moyses sayde: Thou muste geue vs also offerynges and burnt offerynges for to sacrifice vnto the Lord our God: our catell also shall go with vs, and there shall not one hoffe be left behynde: for therof muste we take to serue the Lorde our God. Neyther do we knowe what we shall offer vnto the Lorde, vntyll we come thyther. But the Lorde hardened Pharaos harte: and he wouldе not let them go. eate therof. A stranger and an hyred seruaunt shall not eate therof. In one house shal it be eaten. Thou shalt cary none of the fleshe oute of the house.

Neyther shal ye breake a bone ther of. All the multitude shall obserue it. Yf a straunger also dwel among you, & wyl hold Passeouer vnto the Lord, let hym circumcise all that be males: and then lette him come and obserue it, and he shall be as one that is borne in the lande. For the vncircumcised person shal not eate thereof. One maner of lawe shal be vnto him that is borne in the lande: and vnto the straunger that dwelleth among you. And al the children of Israell dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses and Aaron: euen so dyd they. And the self same day did the Lord bring the children of Israel out of the lande of Egypte wyth theyr armies.

The .xiii. Chapter.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: Sanctyfie vnto me all the first borne that open all maner matrymonye amonge the chyldren of Israell, as well of man as of beastes: for it is myne. And Moses sayde vnto the people: thynke on this daye in which ye came out of Egypte, oute of the house of bondage: for thorow a mighty hand the Lord brought you out from thence. There shal no leuen bread be eaten. This daye come ye out in the moneth when corne beginneth to ripe. Whē the Lorde hath brought the into the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Heuites, and Jebusites: which he sware vnto thy fathers, that he would geue the a lande wherein mylke and hony floweth, thou shalte kepe this seruice in this same moneth. Seuen dayes thou shalte eate sweete bread: and in the seuenth daye, it is the feast of the Lorde. Sweete bread shalbe eaten seuen daies, and ther shal no leuened bread be sene, nor yet leuē with the, in all thy quarters. And thou shalt shewe thy son in that daye, sayinge: thys is done, because of that which the Lord did vnto me, when I came oute of Egypt. And it shalbe a sygne vnto the vpon thyne hande, and for a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe may be in thy mouth. For in a strong hand the Lorde brought the out of Egypte. Kepe therfore this ordinaunce in his season, from yere to yere. And it wyll come to passe that the Lord shal bring thee into the lande of the Cananites, which he sware vnto the, and to thy fathers: and shall geue it the: And thē thou shalt appoint vnto the Lord al y openeth the matrice. And euerye caste thynge that firste doth open the matrice of a beast whiche thou haste: yf they be males, they shalbe the Lordes. And euerye firste gendred of an asse, thou shalte redeme with a lambe: yf thou redeme hym not, y shalte breake hys necke. All the first borne amonge thy children also, shalte thou bie oute. And when thy sonne asketh the to morowe, sayinge: what is this: thou shalt saye vnto him: With a mightye hande the Lorde brought vs oute of Egypte, oute of the house of bondage. And when Pharao was loth to lette vs go, the Lord slew al the first borne in the land of Egypt: aswell the firste borne of man as of beast. Therefore I sacrifice vnto the Lorde all the males that open the matrice, and all the first borne of my children I redeme. This shalbe a token vpon thine hande, and a remembraunce betwene thine eyes, that the Lorde brought vs oute of Egypte, thorowe a myghty hande.

It came to passe that whan Pharao had let the people goo, GOD caryed them not thorowe the waye and land of the Philistines whiche was the morre nie waye: but God sayde: leaste the people haply repent whan they se warr: and so turne agayne to Egypte: But God led the people aboute thorowe the waye of the wylderneße of the red sea. And the children of Israell wente vppe harnelled oute of the lande of Egypte. And Moyses toke the bones of Joseph wyth hym: for he made the children of Israell sweare, sayinge: GOD wyll surely vysyte you, and ye shall take my bones away hence with you. And they toke their iourney

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, that they turne and remaine before Pi Hiroth, betwene Migdoll and the sea, Nu.33.b ouer agaynste • Baalzephon: and before that shall they pytche by the sea.
For Pharao wyll saye of the children of Israel: they are tangled in the land, the wildernes hath shut them in. And I will harden Pharaos herte. that he shall folowe after you: and I will get me honoure vpon Pharao and vpon all hys hoste, the Egiptians also shall knowe that I am the Lorde. And they B dyd euen soo. And it was tolde the kynge of Egypt that the people fled. And the harte of Pharao and of hys seruantes turned agaynst the people. And they sayde: why haue we thys done, that we haue let Israell go oute of our seruice? and he made ready hys charettes, and toke hys people with hym, and toke fyre hundred chosen charettes, and all the charettes of Egypte and captaynes vppon euery one of them. And the Lorde hardened the harte of Pharao kyng of Egypt, and he folowed after the chyldren of Israell. But the chyldren of Israell

But they sayde vnto Moses: because there were no graues in Egypt, haste thou therefore brought vs away for to dye in the wyldernes? wherefore haste thou serued vs thus, for to carye vs oute of Egypte? Dyd not we tell thee thys in Egypte, sayinge lette vs be in reste, that we maye serue the Egyptians? For it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egiptians, thē for to dye in the wildernes. And Moyses sayde vnto the people: • feare ye not: stande styll, and beholde 2Pa.20.c howe the Lorde shall saue you thys daye. For ye that haue sene the Egiptians thys daye, shall see them nomore for euer. The Lord shal fyght for you, D and ye shall holde your peace. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: wherfore cryest thou vnto me? speake vnto the chyldren of Israell that they goo forwarde. But lifte thou vp thy rod, and stretch out thy hande ouer the sea, and deuyde it a sunder: and let the chyldren of Israell go on dyre grounde thorow the myddest of the sea. And beholde, I wyll harden the heart of the Egiptians that they maye folowe them. And I wyll gette me honoure vpon Pharao, and vpon all hys hoste, and vppon hys charettes, and vppon hys horsemen. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon hys charettes, and vpon hys horsemen.
And the aungell of God which went E before the hoste of Israell remoued, and began to go behinde them. And ✠ clowden pyller that was before the face of them, began to stande behynde them, and came betwene the hoste of the Egyptians, and the hoste of Israell. It was also a darke cloude, and gaue lyght by nyght: and al the nyght longe the one came not at the other. And Moyses stretched fourthe hys hande ouer the sea: and the Lorde caryed awaye the sea by a derye stronge Easte wynde all that nyghte, and made the sea drye lande, and the waters were deuyded. And the chyldren of Israell went out into the myddest f of the sea, vpon the drye ground. And the waters were a wal vnto them, on the ryghte hande, and on theyr lefte hande. And the Egyptians folowed g went in after them to the myddest of the sea, euen all Pharaos horses, and charettes, and hys horsemen. And in Iud.9.a the morynge watche, the Lorde * loked vnto the hoste of the Egyptians out of the fyrye and clowdy piller: and troubled the hoste of the Egyptians, and toke of hys charette wheles and caryed them away violently. So that the Egipcians sayde: Let vs flee from the face of Israell: for the Lorde fighteth for them agaynst the Egipcians.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: stretch out thyne hande ouer the sea, that the waters may come agayne vp-on the Egpycians, vpon hys charets, g and vpon his horsemen. And Moises stretched fourth hys hande ouer the sea, and it came agayne to hys course earely in the morynng: and the Egipcians fled agaynst it. And the * Lorde Sap 19d ouerthrew the Egiptians in the mids of the sea: and the water returned and couered the charets and the horsemen, and al the hooste of Pharao that came into the sea after them, so that there remayned not one of theym. But the childzen of Israell walked vpon drye Esa.11d lande * thorowe the middest of the sea: and the waters wer a wall vnto them on the ryghthande of them, and on the hande of the Egyptians: and Israell sawe the Egypcians dead vpon the sea

Then Moyses and the childzen Exo.15c of Israell sange this songe vnto the Lord, and sayde: * I will synge vnto the Lorde: for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and hym Esa.12a that rode vpon hym, hath he ouerthro-ysa.118c wen in the sea. * The Lorde is my strength and prayse, and he is become my saluation. He is my God, and I wil glorify hym, my fathers god, & I will exalte hym. The Lorde is a man of warre. The Lorde is hys name.
Pharaos charettes and his hoste hath he caste into the sea. Hys chosen captaines also are drowned in the red sea, the depe waters haue couered theym: they sunke to the botome as a stone.
Thy ryghte hande Lorde, is become glorious in power: thy ryghte hande Lorde hath all to dashed the enemye.
And in thy great glory thou hast ouer throwen them that rose vp agaynste thee: thou senteste fourthe thy wrathe whiche consumed them euen as stubbell. Thorowe the wynde of thy nostrels the water gathered together, the flowdes stoode styll as an heape, and the depe water congeled together in the hearte of the sea. The enemye B sayde: I will folowe on them: I will ouertake theym, I wyll deuyde the spoyle, I wyll satisfye my luste vpon them, I wyll drawe my sweard, mine hand shall destroy them. Thou blew-dest with thy wynde, the sea couered them: they sanke as leade in the migh-tye waters. Who is lyke vnto the O Lorde amonge gods: who is lyke the, so glorious in holynesse, fearefull in prayses, shewynge wonders? Thou stretchedst out thy righthand, the erth swalowed them. Thou in thy mercye haste caryed thys people whyche thou deliuerdest: and hast brought them in thy strength vnto thy holy habitaciō.
The nacions heard and were afrayed, sorowe came vppon the Philistines.
Then the dukes of the Edomytes were amased, and the myghtiest of the Moabites, trembylynge came vppon theym: all the inhabiters of Canaan waxed faynt harted. C Let feare and drede fall vpon them in the greatenes of thine armye, let them be as stil as a stone, till ỹ people passe thorowe, O Lorde: while this people passe thorow which thou hast gotten.
Thou shalt brynge them in, and plant them in the mountayne of thine enhe-ritaunce: the place Lorde whyche thou hast

hast made for to dwel in: the sanctuary O Lord, which thy handes hath prepared. The Lorde shall raygne euer & alway. For Pharaos horse wente in with his charettes and horsemen into the sea, and the Lord brought the waters of the sea vpon them. But the chil dren of Israell went on dry land in ỹ myddest of the sea. And Mir Iam a prophetisse the sister of Aaron, toke a timbrell in her hande, and all the women came out after her with timbrels Ex.9.5a and daunced. And Mir Iam sang be fore them: Syng ye vnto the Lorde: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and ryder hath he ouerthrowen in the sea. And so Moyses brought Israel from the red sea, and they went out into the wildernes of Sur. And they went thre dayes long in the wil-dernesse, and founde no waters. And when they came to Mara, they coulde not drynke of the waters of Mara: for they were bytter: therefore the name of the place was called, Mara, (that is to saye bytternes.) And the people Iudi.5.b murmured agaynge Moyses, saying: Num.38.a what shall we drynke? And he cried vnto the Lord: and the Lorde shewed hym a tree, whiche when he had caste into the water, the waters wer made swete. There he made them an ordeynaunce and a lawe, and there he pro-Deu.28k ued him, and sayde: If thou wylt harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, and wylt do that which is right in his syghte, and wylte geue eare vnto hys cōmaundementes, and kepe all his ordeynances: then wil I put none of these diseases vpon thee whiche I brought vpō the Egipcians: for I am the Lorde that healeth thee.

Nu.33b The chyldren of Israell came and they abode there by the waters.

And they toke theyr iorney frō Elim: and al the whole company of the children of Israell came to the wildernes of Sin, which is betweene Elim and Sinai: the.xv. daye of the.ii. moneth after theyr departynge out of the land of Egypte. And the whole multitude Nu.11.a of the chyldren of Israell murmured agaynste Moyses and Aaron in the wildernes. and the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto them: Wouldе to God we had dyed by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypte, when we sat by the fleshepottes, and when we dyd eate breade our belyes full: for ye haue brought vs out into thys wylderne s, to kyll this hole multitude with hon- B ger. Then sayde the Lord vnto Moy- Sapi.16 ses: behold I wyll rayne breade from Isa.88,e heauen to you: and the people shall go Jhon.6d out, and gather day by day that I may proue them whether they will walke in my lawe or no. The.vi. daye they shal prepare for thē selues that which they wyll bryng in, and let it be twyse asmuch as they gather in dayly. And Moyses and Aaron sayde vnto all the chyldren of Israell: at euen ye shall knowe that it is the Lorde, whiche brought you out of the land of Egipt:
and in the morenyng ye shall se the glorye of the Lorde, because he hath heard youre grudgynges agaynst the Lord.
And what are we that ye haue murmured against vs? And Moises sayd: Nu.11b At euen shal the Lord geue you flesh to eat, & in the morning bread ynough: for the Lorde hath heard youre mur-murynges which ye murmure against hym: for what are we? your murmuringes are not agaynst vs, but against the Lorde. And Moyses spake vnto Aaron: Say vnto all the company of the chyldren of Israell, come fourthe before the Lorde: for he hath heard your grudgings. And as Aarō spake vnto the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israell, they loked towarde the wildernes: and beholde the glorye of the Lorde appeared in the cloude.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: I haue heard the murmuryng of the children of Israell. Tell them therfore and saye: at euen ye shall eate flesshe, and in the morenynge ye shalbe filled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God.

Nu.11g And at euen the * quayles came and co uered the grounde where they laye:
And in the moznynge the dewe laye rounde about the hoste. And when the dewe was fallen, beholde it laye vpon the gronnde in the wyldernes, smale, and rounde, and thin as the hoze frost on the grounde. And when the chyldren of Israell sawe it, they sayd euer y one to hys neighbour: It is Manna. Foz they wist not what it was.
And Moyses sayde vnto theym: thys is the breade whiche the Lozde hathe geuen you to eate. This is the wozde which the Lozde hath commaunded: gather it euerye man foz hym selfe to eate: a gomer full foz a man, accozding to the number of you: and take euerye man foz them whyche are in hys tent.
And the children of Israell did euen so: and gathered some moze, some lesse: 2.Co. 8. and when they dyd mete it with a go-mer * vnto him that hadde gathered much, remayned nothing ouer, & vnto him ỹ had gathered litle, was there no lacke: euery man gathered sufficyente foz hys eatyng. And Moses sayd vn-E to them: Se that noman let ought re-mayne of it tyll the moznynge. Not-withstandyng they harkened not vnto Moses: but some of them left of it, vntyll the moznyng, and it waxed full of wozmes and stanke, and Moyses was angrye with theim. And they F gathered it al moznynges, euery man foz hys eatynge. And assone as the heate of the sunne came, it melted. And the sixte daye they gathered twyse soo muche breade, two gomers foz one man: and all the rulers of the multy-tude came and tolde Moses. He sayde vnto theym: thys is that whiche the Lozde hath sayd: to mozowe is the rest of the holy Sabboth vnto the Lozde: bake that which ye wyll bake, & sethe that ye will sethe: and that whych remayneth, laye it vp till the moznynge.
And they layde it vp till the mozning, as Moses bad: and it stanke not neyther bred there any wozme therein.
And Moses sayde: that eate this day:
foz it is the Sabboth vnto the Lozde:
to day ye shall not finde it in the field.
Sixe dayes shall ye gather it: and in the seuenth days whiche is the Sabbothe, there shalbe none. Notwythstandynge, there went out some of the people in the seuenth daye foz to gather, and they founde none. And the Lozde sayde vnto Moyses: how long refuse ye to kepe my commaundemen-tes and my lawes? Se, the Lozd hath geuen you a Sabboth, therefoze he geueth you the sixt day breade, foz two dayes. Bide therefoze euery manne at home, and let no man goo oute of hys place, the seuenth day. And the people rested the seuenth day. And ỹ house of Israell called it manna. * And it was like vnto Coziander sede, white: and Nu.11 the taste of it was like vnto wayfers made with honey. And Moises sayd: this is that whyche the Lozde commaundeth, fylla gomer of it, whyche may be kept foz youre chyldren after, you: that thei may se the bread wher-I haue fed you in wildernesse, when I brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And Moses spake vnto Aaron: take a cruse, and put a * gomer full of Manna therein, and laye it vp befoze the Lozde, to be kept foz your children Heb.9 after you. As the Lozde commaunded Moyses, soo Aaron layed it vp befoze ỹ testimony to be kept. * And the children of Israell did eate Manna fourtie yeare, vntill they came vnto a land 2.Es inhabyted. And so they dyd eate Man Judith na, euen vntyll they came vnto the Josu. bozders of the land of Canaan. A go-mer is the tenth parte of an Epha.

to Iosua: chose vs out men, & go fight with Amalech: and to morowe I wil stand on the top of the hill, and the rod of God shalbe in my hand. Iosua did as Moises bad him, and fought with Hur, went vp to the toppe of the hyll.

Iudi. 4. c And it happened, that when * Moses hym: and he sat downe thereon. And Aaron and Hur, stayed vp hys han-des remayned stedie vntill the goyng comfyted Amalech and hys people, the Lorde will haue war with Ama-out to mete his father in law and dyd obeysaunce, and kyssed hym, and eache hys father in lawe, all that the Lorde

And when Moses father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayde: What is this that thou doest vnto the people? why sittest thou thy self alone and all the people stande about the frō morynynge vnto euen? And Moyses sayd vnto his father in law: Because the people come vnto me to seke councell of GOD: whenne they haue a matter, they come vnto me, & I iudge betwene euery man and his neighbor: and shewe theym the ordinaunces of God, and hys lawes. And Moses father in lawe sayd vnto hym: It is not well that thou doest. Thou both weryest thy self, and this people that is

The length of a boorde was tenne cubites, the breadth one cubite and a halfe. One boord had two feete, whereby they were ioyned one to an other. And thus made he for all the borders of the tabernacle. And he made. xx. boordes for the southsyde of the habitation, and. xl. sockets of siluer, vnder the. xx. boordes, two sockettes vnder one borde, for his two feete, and two sockets vnder another boord for his two fete (where the sockets of the sydes end in the corners.) And for the other syde of the dwellyng, which is toward the north, he made twentye boordes, and their fourty sockettes of syluer, two sockets vnder one boorde, and two sockets vnder the other. And toward the west ende of the tabernacle. (That is to say) at that end of the tabernacle whiche enclineth toward the sea. He made sixe bordes, & two other boordes made he in the corners of the habitation, for eyther syde, & they were ioyned close benethe and aboue, with a clampe, and thus they dydde to both the corners. And there wer. viii. boordes, and sixtene sockets of syluer, vnder euery boorde two sockets. And D he made barres of Sethim wood, fiue for the bordes of the tabernacle in the one syde: and fiue for the bordes of the tabernacle in the other side, & fiue bars for the bordes of the habitation in the west end, (Toward the sea.) And he made the myddest barre to shoote thorow the boordes, euen frome the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the boordes with gold, and made rynges of gold to thrust the barres thorowe, and couered the barres wyth golde. And he made an hangynge of yelowe sylke, purple scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke, euen with pictures made he it of broudred woorke. And made therevnto fower pyllers of Sethim wood, and ouerlayd them with gold. Their knoppes were also of gold, and he cast for them fower sockets of syluer. And he made an hangyng for the tabernacle dooze: of yelow silke, purple, scarlet, and white twined silke of nedle woorke. And the fyue pyllers of it with their knoppes, and ouerlayde the knoppes of them, and the houpes with golde. Theyr fiue sockets also were of brasse.

And he made the mercye seate. (That is to say, Goddes answeryng place) of pure golde: two cubites and a half was the length thereof, and one Cubite and a halfe the breadthe: And he made two Cherubines of thick golde B vppon the twoo endes of the Mercye seate. One Cherub on the one ende, and an nother Cherub on the other ende. Euen of the Mercy seate made he the Cherubines, namely in the endes thereof. And the Cherubines spreade oute theyr wynges aboue an hye, and couered the mercyseate therwith. And theyr faces were one to another: euen to the mercy seat ward were the faces of the Cherubines.
* And he made the table of Sethim wodde twoo cubites was the length thertherof and a cubite the breadth, and a cubite and a halfe the height of it. And he ouerlayde it with fyne golde, and made thereto a crowne of gold round about, and made thereto an whope of an hande breade, rounde aboute, and made vpon the whope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of gold, and put the ringes in the foure corners, that were in the foure feete thereof. Euen hard by the whope were the ryuers, into the C whyche the barres were put, to beare the table withal. And he made the barres of Sethim wood, & couered them with golde to beare the table with all, and made the vessels (for the table) of pure golde: the dysshes, spones, flatte Exo. 25. peeces, and pottes to poure withall. And he made the candelsticke of pure golde: euen of one peece made he the candlestycke. For his fote, his shafte, his cuppes, his knoppes, & his flowers were of one pece. Sixe braunches proceding out of the sides therof, three oute of the one syde, and three oute of the other. And in one braunche three cuppes made like vnto almonds with knoppes and flowers. And in another braunch, three cups made like vnto almōdes w̄ knops & flowers, & so thorough out the fyxe braunches, that proceded oute of the candlestycke.

And vpon the candlesticke selfe were foure cuppes after the facyon of almondes wyth knoppes and flowres: vnder euery two braunches a knop. And the knoppes and the braunches proceded out of it, and it was all one peece of pure thycke golde. And he made hys seuen lampes with the tonges and snuffers thereof, of pure gold.
D Euen of an hundred weighte of pure golde, made he it with all the vessells thereof. And he made the cens alter of Sethim wood. The length of it was a cubite, and the breadth a cubite for it was foure square, and two cubites hye, with hornes proceding out of it. And he couered it with pure gold both the toppe and the sydes thereof rounde aboute, and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde aboute. And he made two rynges of golde for it, euen vnder the crowne thereof, in the two corners of it, and in the two sydes thereof to put barres in, for to beare it withall: and made the barres of Sethim wood, and ouerlayde them with golde. And he made the holy anoynting oyle, and the swete pure incense, after the apotycaries craft.

fyue cubites was the lengthe thereof, and fiue cubites the breadth: euen fowre square, and three cubites hye. And he made vnto it hornes in the foure corners of it, proceding oute of it, and he ouerlayde it with brasse. And he made al the vessels of the alter: the cauldrones, shouels, basynes, flesshehokes and colepannes. All the vessels thereof made he of brasse. And he made a brasen gredyrō of net worke vnto the alter, rounde aboute, alowe, beneth, vnto the myddes of the alter, & cast fowre rynges of brasse, for the fowre endes of the gredyren, to putte barres in. And he made the barres of Sethim wood, and couered thē wyth brasse, and put the barres into the ringes in the foure corners of the alter, to beare it withall, and made the altarre holowe with in the bordes. And he B made the lauer of brasse, and the foote of it also of brasse in the sight of them, that dyd watche at the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse. And he made the courte on the southsyde, and the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, haupng an hundred cubytes. The pyllers were twenty, and theyr brasen sockettes twenty. But the knoppes of the pyllers, and theyr whopes were of syluer. And on the Northesyde the hangynges were an hundred cubites. Theyr pyllers were xx. and their sockets of brasse xx. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pyllers were of syluer. On the west syde, were hangynges of fyfty cubites, ten pyllers, and theyr ten sockets (of brasse.) But the knoppes and the whopes of the pyllers, were of syluer.

And toward the east syde, were hangyngs of.l. cubites: the hangyngs of the one syde of the gate, were sixtene cubites longe, with three pyllers, and three sockets. And of the other syde of the court gate, were hangyngs also of C xv. cubites long, with three pillers and three sockets. All the hanginges of the court round about, wer of white twined sylke: but the socket of the pillers were of brasse: and the knops and the houpes of the pillers were of siluer, & the coueryng of the heades was of siluer, and all the pyllers of the courte were houped about with syluer. And the hāging of the gate of ỹ court was nedell wozke, of yelowe silke, purple, scarlet & white twined silk xx. cubites longe, and fiue in the breadth, ouer against the hangynges of the Courte. And theyr pillers were fower, & their foure sockettes of brasse, and the knoppes of syluer, and the headdes ouerlayd with siluer, and whouped about wyth syluer, and all the pinnes of the Tabernacle and of the courte rounde about were of brasse. This is the sum of the habitation of wytnes, as it was counted accozding to the commaundement of Moses foz the office of the Leuites by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the priest. And Bezaleel the sonne of Uri the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda, made all that the lozde commaunded Moyses, and with hym was Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, a connynge grauer, and a wozker of nedle wozke in yealowpeke silke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned silke. All the golde that was occupyed foz al the wozke of the holye place, was the golde of the waue offeryng, euen.xxix. hundzeth weyghte and seuen hundzeth and xxx. sickles, accozding to the sickle of the Sanctuary. And the sume of syluer that came of the multitude, was.v. skoze hundzed weyghte, and a thousande seuen hundzed and.xxxv. sickles after the sickle of the Sanctuary. Foz euerye manne an halfe weight, euen halfe a sickle after the sickle of the sanctuary, foz al them that went to be numbzed from xx. yere olde and aboue, euen foz vi. hundzethe thousande and three thousande and. v. hundzeth and.l. menne. And of the.v. skoze hundzeth weyght of syluer, were cast the sockettes of the Sanctuarye, and the sockettes of the vayle, an hundzed sockettes of the fyue skoze hundzed weyght an hundzed weyghte to euery socket. And of the thousande seuen hundzethe and. xxx, sickles, hee made knoppes to the pillers, and ouer layed the heades and whooped theym wyth Syluer. And the brasse of the waue offerynge was. lxx. hunderde weyght, and two thousande and. iiii. hundzede sickes. And therewith he made the sockettes to the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gredyron foz it, with all the vessels of the altar, and the sockets of the court round aboute, and the sockets foz the courte gate, and all the pynnes of the habitation, and all the pyns of the court round about.

The.xxxix. Chapter.

A Nd of the yelow silke, purple and scarlet, they made the 3 stimentes of mynistration to doo seruice in the holy place, and made the holy garmentes foz Aaron, as the Lozde commaunded Moses. And he made the Ephod of gold, yelow silke, purple, scarlet, and white twyned silk And they dyd beate the gold into thin plates, and cut it into wiers: to wozk it in the yelow sylke, purple, scarlette, and in the fine white, with bzowdzed wozke. And they made two sydes foz it, to close them vp by the two edges. And the bzowdzyng of the gyrdle that was vppon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same wozke: of golde, yelow silk, purple, scarlette, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lozd commanded Moses. And they wzought Onix stones closed in ouches of gold, and grauen as signettes are grauen with the names of the chyldzen of Israell, and put theym on the shoulders of the Ephod, that they should be stones foz a remembzance of the chyldzen of Israell, as the Lozde commaunded Moses

and he made the brestlap of cunnyng worke, and lyke the worke of the Ephod: euen of gold, yelowe silke, purple, scarlet and twyned whyte silke.

C It was .xiii. square: and they made the brestlap double, an hande breadth long and an hande breadth brode. And they filled it with .iiii. rowes of stones. The first rowe, a Sardios, a Topas, and Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Rubie, a Saphir, and a Diamonde: in the third rowe, Ligurios, an Achat, and an Amatist: in the fourth rowe, a Turces, an Onix, and a Jaspis. And they were closed in ouches of golde in theyr inclosers. And the .xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyldren of Israel: euery stone with his name, accordyng to the twelue tribes. And they made vpon ẏ brestlap two fastnyng cheines of wrythen worke and pure golde. And they made two hookes of golde and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges in the two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two chaines of gold in the two rings, in the corners of the brestlap: and the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in ẏ two hokes and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the fore front of it. And they made two rynges of golde, and putte them on the two corners of the brestlappe vpon the edge of it whiche was on the inside by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod. beneth on the forsyde of it, and ouer against his felowe, aboue vppon the brodryng of the Ephod, and they streyned the brestlappe by his rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of yelowe silke: that it myght be vpon the brodrynge of the Ephod, and that the brestlap should not be loosed from of the Ephod: as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And he made the tunicle vnto the Ephod of wouen worke; all together of yelowe sylke; and there was an hole in the myddest of the tunicle, as the collor of a parslet, with a bande rounde about the coler, that it should not rente. And in the tunicle they made belnes with pomgranates, of yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet & whit twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them among the pomgranates rounde about vpon the edge of the tunicle: a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranat rounde about the hemmes of the tunicle to minister in, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worke for Aaron and his sonnes, and a myter of fyne whyte, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and linnen breches of twined whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelowe sylke, purple and scarlet: euen of nedle worke, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And they made F the plate for the holye crowne of fyne gold, & wrote vpō it lyke grauen worke the holines of the Lorde: and tyed vnto it a lace of yelowe sylke to fasten it an hye vppon the myter, as the Lorde commaunded Moises. Thus was all the worke of the habitation and of the Tabernacle of witnesse finished. And the chyldren of Israell dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde had commaunded Moyses: euen so dyd they. And they brought the habitation vnto Moises: the tent and all hys apparell, buttons, boordes, barres, pyllers and sockets, the couerynge of rams skynnes red, and the couerynge of barres skynnes, and the hangynge vayle, the arcke of G witnesse & the barres thereof, and the mercyeseate: the table and al the vessels thereof, and the shewbreade: the pure candlestycke, with the lampes thereof: euen with the lampes to be prepared and all the vesselles thereof, and the oyle for lyght: the golden aultare, and the anoyntynge oyle, and the sweete sence, and the hangynge of the Tabernacle doore, and the brasen aultare with hys gredyron of brasse, hys barres, and all hys vessels, the lauer and hys foote: the hangynges of the courte with hys pyllers and sockottes: the hangynge to the courte gate, and hys pynnes and coardes, and all the vessell of the scrupce of the habitation for the Tabernacle of witnesse:

the ministrynge vesselimentes to serue in the holye place, and the holy vestimentes for Aaron the preaste, and his sonnes rayments to minister in accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so the chyldren of Israell made al the worke. And Moses beheld all the worke, and see, they had done it euen as the Lord cõmaunded: euen so had they done, and Moyses blessed them.

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: In the fyrst day of the first moneth shalte thou sette vp the habitation and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put therin the arcke of wytnesse, and couer the arcke withe the vayle, and bryng in the table and apparell it accordyng to the order therof. And thou shalte bryng in the candelsticke, and light his lampes, and set the sens auiter of golde before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hangynge at the dore of the habitation. And set the burnteofferynge auiter before the dore of the habitation and tabernacle of wytnes, and set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the auiter and put water therin, & make the court round about, and hange vp the hangynge at 2 the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynte the habitation and all that is therin, and halowe it with all the vessels therof, that it may be holy. And thou shalt annoynt the auiter of burntofferyng and al hys vessels, and sanctifie the auiter, that it maye be an auiter moste holye. And thou shalt anoynte also the lauer and his fote, and sanctifie it. And thou shalt bryng Aaron and his sonnes vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of witnes, and wash them with water. And thou shalte put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, & anoynte him, and sanctifye hym that he maye minister vnto me. And thou shalt bryng hys sonnes, and clothe them with garmentes, and anoynt them as thou dyddest annoynt theyr father, that they maye minister vnto me. For theyr anoyntyng shalbe an euerlastynge preasthode vnto them throughout theyr generations. * And Moyses dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: euen so dyd he. Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp the fyrste daye in the fyrste moneth in the seconde yeare. And Moyses reared vp the Tabernacle and fastened hys sockettes, and sette vp the borders therof, & put in the barres of it and reared vp hys pillers, and spred abrode the tente ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tente an hye aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moises. And he toke the testimonye, and put it in the arke, and set the barres to the arke, and put the mercyseat an hie vpon the arke, and brought the arke into the habitation, and hanged vp the vayle, and couered the arke of witnesse, as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And he put the table in the tabernacle of wytnesse in the northeside of the habitation, (but withoute the vayle) and set the breade in order before the Lorde, euen as the Lord had commaunded Moses. And he put the candelsticke in the tabernacle of witnesse ouer agaynste the table towarde the southside of the habitation, and set vp the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he put the golden auiter in the tabernacle of wytnesse before the vayle and brent swete cense theron, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he hanged vp the hangyng at the dore of the habitacion, and set the burntofferynge auiter by the entrynge in of the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and offered burntofferinges and meateofferynges theron, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. * And he set the lauer be- e twene the tabernacle of wytnesse and p the auiter, and powred water therin, to washe withall. And Moyses, Aaron and hys sonnes washed theyr handes and theyr fete thereat: when they went into the tabernacle of witnesse, and when they went to the auiter they washed them selues, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

2 THe soule that will offer a meate offerynge vnto the Lorde, the same offerynge shall be of fyne floure, and he shall poure oyle vpon it, and put frankencens theron, and shall bryng it vnto Aarons sonnes the preastes. And he shal take therout his handefull of the floure, and of the oyle with all the frankencens, & the preast shall burne it for a memoriall of hym vpon the aultare: to be an offeryng for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And the remnaunte of the meateofferynge shalbe Aarons, and hys sones, a thing

Yf thou bryng also a meateofferynge that is baken in the ouen, let it bee a swete cake of fyne floure myngled wyth oyle, or an vnleuened wafer anoynted with oyle. And if thy meateofferynge be a thynge broyled vpon the gredyron, then let it be of floure myngled with oyle.

And thou shalt bring the meatoffring (that is made of these thynges) vnto the Lord, and shalt delyuer it vnto the preaste that he maye offer it vpon the aulter, and the preaste shall take of the meateofferynge a memoriall, and shall 4 burne it vpon the aulter: that it maye be a burntoffering for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that whiche is lefte of the meateofferynge shalbe Aarons and hys sonnes. It is a thynge moste holye of the offerynges of the LORDE. All the meateoffrynges which ye shall bryng vnto the Lorde, shalbe made without leuen. All the meate offrynges also shalte thou season with salte: neyther shalte thou suffer the salte of the couenaunte of thy God to be lackyng from thy meatoffering: but vpon all thyne offerynges thou shalte bryng salte. And if thou offer a meatofferyng of the firste rype frutes vnto the Lord, thou shalt offer for the meatofferynge of thy firste frutes, eares of corne dryed by the fyre, and corne beaten as meale. And thou shalte put oyle vpon it, and laye frankencens theron, that it maye be a meatoffering. And the preast shall burne parte of the beated corne and part of that oyle with all the frankencens, for a remembraunce. And it shall be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And Aarons sons the preastes shall sprynkle the bloode vpon the aulter rounde about. And he shall offer somwhat of the peaceoffering to be a sacrifice vnto the Lord: euen the fat that is aboute the inwardes, and all the fatte that is about the inwardes: and the two kydneys, and the fatte that is on them and vpon the loines: and the aboundaunce that is on the lyuer shall he take away with the kydneys. And Aarons sons shall burne them on the aulter vpō the burntsacrifice whiche is vppon the wod that is on the fyre to be a burntsacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. Yf he bryng a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde from of the flocke, let hym offer male or female: but without blemyshe. And if he offer a shepe for hys sacrifyce, he shall bryng it before the Lorde, and put hys hande vpon hys offerynges head, and kyll it before the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse, and Barons sonnes shall sprinkle the blood therof rounde about the auiter. And of the peaceoffring, let him bring a sacrifice vnto the lozd: the fat therof, and a rumpe altogether, whiche they shall take of, harde by the backe bone: and the face that coureth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is vpon them and vppon the loynes, and the aboundaunce that is vppon the lyuer shall be take awaye with the kydneys. And the preaste shal burne them vpon the auiter, to be the foode of a sacrifice vnto the Lozd. If hys offring be a goat, he shal bryng it before the Lozde, and put hys hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before the Tabernacle of the couenaunt, and the sonnes of Baron shall sprynkle the blood therof vpon the aiter round about. And he shall bringe therof, his offerynge, euen a sacrifyce vnto the Lozde: the fatte that coureth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneys, and the fat that is vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the aboundaunce vpon ꝑ lyuer shall he take away with the kydneys. And the preaste shall burne thē vpon the auiter foz the food of the sacrifice: that all the fat may be a swete sauour vnto the lozd. Let it be a perpetuall statute foz youre generations throughout your dwellynges, that ye eate neyther fat noz blood,

And the Lozd spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye: If a soule synne through ignozaunce, and hath done anye of those thynges whiche the Lozde hath fozbydden in hys commanndementes to be done. As ꝑ the preast that is annoynted do synne, (accozdynge to the synne of the people) let hym bryng foz hys synne whiche he hyth synned a yonge oxe without blemyshed vnto the Lozd foz a synne offeryng. And he shall bryng the yonge oxe vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of witnesse before the Lozde, and shall put hys hand vpon the yongoxe heade, and kyll the yong oxe before the Lozde. And the preaste that is appoynted • shall take of the yonge oxe blood, and bryng it into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the preast shall dyppe hys synger in the blood, and sprynkle thereof seuen tymes before the Lozde, euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall putte some of the bloode before the LORD, vpon the hoznes of the auiter of swecte sence, whiche is in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall powze all the blood of the younge oxe vnto the botome of the auiter of burnteofferynge, whiche is at the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shall take awaye all the fat of the oxe that is foz synne, the fat that coureth the inwardes, and all the fat that is aboute the inwardes, and the two kydneys, and the fat that is vppon them, and vppon the loynes and the aboundaunce of the lyuer shal he take awaye wyth the kydneys: as it was taken awaye in the oxe of the peaceofferynge, and lette the preaste burne them vpon the auiter of burntofferyng. • But the skyn of the yonge oxe, and all hys flesche, with hys heed, and hys legges, with hys inwardes, and hys donge, shall he beare oute and carye the yonge oxe altogether oute of the hoolste vnto a cleane place: euen where the asshes are powred out, and burne hym there on wood in the fyre: euen by the place where the asshes are caste oute, shall he be brente.

C Exo. 29 c

If the whole congregation of Israel synne through ignozaunce, and the thynge be hyd from theyr eyes, so that they haue commytted anye of those thynges whyche the Lozde hath fozbydden to be done in hys commaundementes, and haue offended. when the synne whyche they haue synned in, is knowen, the congregation shall bryngе a yonge oxe foz the synne, and bryngе hym before the tabernacle of the wytnesse, & the elders of the multitude shal put theyr handes vpon the heade of the yong ore before the Lord. And the yong ore shalbe slayne before the Lorde. And the preaste that is annoynted shall bringe of hys blood into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the preaste shall dyppe hys fynger in the blood, and sprynkle it seuen tymes before the Lorde, euen before the vayle. And shall put of the bloode vpon the D hornes of the aulter, whiche is before the Lord in the tabernacle of wytnes, and shall poure all the blood vnto the botome of the aulter of burntofferyng which is before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall take al hys fatte from hym, and burne it vpon the aulter, and shall do with thys yonge ore, as he dyd with the yonge ore for synne: euen so shall he do with thys. And the preaste shall make an attonement for them, and it shalbe forgeuen them. And he shall bringe this yonge ore without the hoost, and burne hym as he burned the first. For it is an oblacion for the synne of the congregation. When a Lorde synneth, and com-E mytted throughe ignorance anye of these thynges (whiche the Lorde hys God hath forbydden to be done in his commaundementes) and hath offended. And if thys synne be shewed vnto hym whiche he hath done, he shall bringe hys offeryng: euen an he goate without blemyshe and laye hys hande vpon the head of the hee goate, and kyl it in the place wher the burntofferyng is vsed to be kylled before the Lorde. For it is a synneofferyng. And let the preast take of the blood of the offeryng with hys fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burntofferynge aulter, and powre his blood vnto the botome of the burntoffering aulter, and burne all his fatte vpon the aulter, as the fat of the peaceofferinges. And the preast shall make an attonement for hym, as concernynge hys synne, and it shalbe forgeuen him. If one of the commen F people of the lande synne through ignorannce, and committe anye of the thinges which the Lord hath forbydden in hys commaundementes to be done, and so hath trespassed: If thys synne which he hath synned, come to hys knowledge he shal bringe for his offerynge, a she goate from among the flockes, without blemyshe for hys synne which he hath synned, and laye hys hande vpon the heade of the offeringe, and slee it in the place of burntofferynges. And the preast shall take Leui.

of the blood thereof with hys fynger, and put it vpō the hornes of the burntofferyng aulter, and poure al the blood vnto the botome of the aulter, and shal take awaye all his fat, as the fat of the peaceofferynges is taken awaye. And the preast shall burne it vpon the aulter that it maye be a swete sauour vnto the Loide, and the preast shall make an attonemente for hym, and it shalbe forgeuen him. And if he bryng a shepe hande vpon the heade of the offeryng, and slee it for a synneofferynge in the place where they kyll the burnteofferynge. And the preast shall take of the blood of the offeryng with his fynger, and put it vpō the hornes of the burnt offerynge aulter, and shall poure the bloode thereof vnto the botome of the alter: And he shall take away all the Leui.

fatte thereof, as the fatte of the sheepe of the peaceofferinge is wont to be taken away. And the preast shall burne it vpon the aulter, that it maye be the Lordes burntsacrifice, and the preaste shall make an attonement for hys syn, that he hath committed, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

IF a soule sinne and heare the I voyce of swerynge, and is a wytnesse: whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he have not vttered it, he shall beare hys synne. Eyther yf a soule touche anye vncleane thing: whether it be a carion of an vncleane beaste, or of vncleane catell or vncleane wormе, and is not ware of it: beholde, he is vncleane and hath offended. Ether yf he touche any vnclennesse of man (whatsoeuer vn-

And it shall come to passe that when he hath synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that he hath synned in that thynge, Therfore shall he bryng hys trespace offeryng vnto the Lord, for hys synne which he hath synned. A female from the flocke, a lambe or a she goate, for a synnofferyng. And the preaste shall make an attonement for hym concernyng hys synne.

Leu. 12 d Luke. 2 d * And yf he be not able to bryng such a sheepe, he shall bryng for hys trespace which he hath synned, two turtil doues or two yonge pigeons vnto the Lorde, one for a synneofferynge, and the other for a burntofferyng. And he shall bryng them vnto the preaste, whyche shall offer the synneofferynge firste, and wrynge the necke a sundre C of it, but plucke it not cleane of. And he shall sprynkle of the bloode of the synneofferynge vppon the syde of the aulter: and the reste of the bloude shall be powre by the botome of the aulter: for it is a synneofferyng. And he shall offer the seconde for a burntofferynge as the maner is: and so shall the preast make an attonemente for hym (for the synne whyche he hath synned) and it shalbe forgeuen hym. And if he be not able to bryng two turtyll doues or two yonge pygeons, then he that hath synned shall bryng for hys offerynge: the tenth part of an Epha of fine flour for a synneofferyng, but put none oyle theron, neyther put any frankencense thereto for it is a synneofferynge. And let the preaste offer it, and the preaste shall take hys handefull of it, for a remembraunce therof, and burne it vpon the aulter, to be a sacrifyce for the Lorde, it is a synneofferyng. And the preaste shall make an attonemente for hym as touchynge hys synne that he hath sinned in one of these, and it shalbe forgeuen. And the remnaunt shall be the preastes, as a meateofferynge. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, D saying: If a soule trespasse and synne throughe ignorannce in thynges, that are consecrated vnto the Lorde, lette hym bryng for hys trespasse vnto the Lorde a ram without blemyshe out of the flocks, valued in money at two sycles after the sicle of the sanctuarye, ỳ Exo. 30 b it may be for a trespaceofferynge. And he shall make amendes for the harme that he hath done in the holy thyng, & let him put the fyfth part more therto, and gaue it vnto the preaste. And the preaste shall make an attonemente for hym with the ram that is for the trespace, and it shalbe forgeuen hym. If a soule synne and commyt anye of these thinges which are forbidde to be done by the cõmaundementes of the Lord: and wyste it not, and hath offended, he shall beare his synne and shall bryng a ram without blemyshe out of ỳ flocke that is estemed to be worth a trespaceofferynge, vnto the preaste. And the preaste shall make an attonemente for him concerning his ignorannce, wherin he erred and was not ware, and it shalbe forgeuen him. This is the trespaceoffering, which he offred vnto the Lorde for that trespace.

The. vi. Chapter.

AND the Lord spake vnto Mo A ses, saying: if a soule sinne and trespasse against the Lord, and deny vnto hys neyghbour that which was taken hym to kepe, or that was put into hys handes, or doeth violent robberye or wronge vnto hys neyghboure, or if he haue founde that which was loste, and denyeth it, and sweareth falsely, vpon whatsoeuer thing it be that a man doth, and synneth therin: If he haue so sinned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he tooke violently away, or the wronge which he dyd, or that which was delyuered hym to kepe, or the loste thyng which he found, and all that about which he hath sworne falsely, he shall restore it.

rest therof, shall Aaron and hys sons eate: vnleuened shall it be eaten in the holye place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of witnesse, they shall eate it. It shall not be baken with le-uen. I haue geuen it vnto theym for theyr portion of my sacrifyces. It is moste holye, as is the synneoffrynge & trespasse offerynge. All the males amonge the childzen of Aaron shal eate of it: It shalbe a statute for euer in your generations concernyng the sacrifice of the Lorde: lette euerye one that toucheth it be holy. And the lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: this is the offrynge of Aaron and of his son-is moste holye. And noo synne offe-rynge, whose bloude is broughte incyle withall in the holye place, shalbe eaten: but shalbe burnte in the fire.

A This is the lawe of trespasse offringe: it is mooste holy. In the place where they kill the burntoffring, shall they kyll the trespasseoffrynge also, & his bloud shall he sprynkle rounde aboute vpon the alter. All the fat therof shall they offre: the roumpe and the fatte thereof that couereth the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, and the fat that is on them, and vpon the loynes: and the aboundaunce that is on the liuer shalt thou take awaye with the kydneyes, and the preist shall burne them vppon the alter, to be a sacrifice vnto ỹ Lorde: for it is a trespasse offrynge. All the males amonge the preistes shall eate thereof in the holy place, for it is moste holy. As the sinne offryng is, so is the trespasseoffryng, one lawe serueth for both, and it shalbe the preistes that reconcyleth therewith. And the preiste that offreth any mans burntoffrynge, shall haue the skynne of the burntoffrynge whiche he hath offred. And all the meate offring that is baken in the ouen, and that is dressed vpon the gredyren, and in the frying pan, shalbe the preistes that offreth it. And euerye meateoffrynge that is myngled wyth oyle, and that is drye, shall pertayne vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as muche as another.

B This is the lawe of the peaceoffring, whan it is offred vnto the Lorde. If he offre it to geue thankes, he shall bringe vnto hys thankeoffring swete kakes mingled with oyle, and swete wafers, annoynted wyth oyle, and kakes mingled with oile of fine flour fryed. He shall bryng hys offerynge vppon kakes of ieucned bread, for his peaceoffringes, to geue thankes: and of all the sacrifye he shall offre one for an heueoffrynge vnto the Lorde, and it shalbe the preistes that sprynckeled the bloude of the peaceofferynges. And the flesshe of the thankeoffrynge in his peaceofferynges shalbe eaten, the same day that it is offred. And let hym lay vp nothynge of it vntyll the morowe. But if he offre his sacrifyce by reason of a vowe, or of hys owne freewyll, it shalbe eaten the same daye that he offereth hys sacrifyce. And yf ought remayne vntyl the morowe it may be eaten: but as muche of the offered flesshe as remayneth vnto the thyrde day, shalbe burnt with fire. And if anye of the flesshe of hys peaceofferynges be eaten in the thirde day, then shall he that offereth it, obtayne no fauoure, neyther shall it be reckened vnto hym, but shalbe an abhomination. & therefore the soule that eateth of it shall beare hys synne. C And the flesshe that toucheth anye vncleane thynge shall not be eaten, but burnte with fyre: and all that be cleane, shall eate the flesshe. But yf anye soule eate of the flesshe of the peaceofferyng that pertayneth vnto the Lorde, hauynge hys vnclennesse vppon hym: the same soule shall perysshe from amonge hys people. Moreouer, the soule that doth touche anye vncleane thynge, that is of the vncleanneffe of man, or of anye vncleane beaste, or any abhomination that is vncleane: and then eate of the flesshe of the peaceofferynge whyche pertayneth vnto the Lorde that soule shall perysshe fron his people. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell and saye. Ye shall eate no maner fatte Leui.3.c of oxen of shepe and of goates: neuerthelater the fat of the beast that dyeth alone, and the fatte of that whiche is torne with wylde beastes, shalbe occupyed in anye maner of vse, but ye shall in no wyse eate of it. For whosoeuer eateth the fatte of the beaste of whyche men vse to bringe an offryng vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it shall perysshe from hys people. Moreouer, ye shall eate noo maner Gen.9.d of bloude, whether it be of foule or of beaste, whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth anye manner of bloude, the same soule shall perysshe from hys people. And the Lorde talked with Moyses, D saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell and saye: he that bryngeth his peaceoffrynge vnto the LORDE, lette hym bringe hys gyfte vnto the LORDE of hys peaceoffrynges

let his owne handes bryng the offerynges of the Lorde: euen the fat with the breſt ſhall he bryng: that the breſt maye be waued for a waue offerynge before the Lorde. And the preiſt ſhall burne the fatte vpon the alter, and the breſt ſhalbe Aarons and hys ſonnes. And the right ſhoulder ſhall ye geue vnto the preiſt, for an heueoffrynge, of youre peaceoffrynges. The ſame that offreth the bloude of the peaceoffrings and the fatte, amonge the ſonnes of Num 18 Aaron, ſhall haue the righte ſhoulder for hys parte, for the waue breſte and the heue ſhoulder haue I taken of the chyldren of Iſrael euen of their peace offrynges, and haue geuen it vnto Aaron and vnto his ſonnes: by a ſtatute for euer of the chyldren of Iſrael.

This is the annoyntinge of Aaron & the anoyntynge of hys ſonnes in the ſacrifyces of the Lord, in the day whē he offered them to be prieſtes vnto the Lorde. And theſe be the ſacrifyces whyche the Lorde commaunded to be geuen them (in the daye of their annoyntynge) of the chyldren of Iſrael, by a ſtatute for euer in theyr generacione. This is the lawe of the burntoffrynge and of the meatoffryng, and of the ſacrifice for ſynne and treſpaſſe, for conſecration, and for the peaceoffrynge: whyche the Lorde commaunded Moyſes in the mounte of Synai, when he commaunded the chyldren of Iſrael to offre their ſacrifices vnto the Lord in the wildernelle of Sinai.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moyſes ſaying: take * Aaron and hys ſonnes with hym, and the veſtures and ỹ annoynting oyle, and a yonge oxe for ſinne, and two rammes, and a baſket with ſwete breade: and gather thou all the congregation together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And Moyſes did as the Lord commaūded hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of witneſſe.

And Moyſes ſayde vnto the congregation: this is the thing which the Lord commaunded to be done. And Moſes brought Aaron and his ſonnes, and waſſhed theym with water and put vpon him the albe, and gyrded him with a gyrdle, and put vpon him the tunicle, (of yealowe ſycke) and put the Ephod thereon, whych he gyrded with the brodered gyrdell that was in the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therewith. And he putte the breſtlappe thereon and put in ỹ breſtlap, Urim & Thumin. And he put the mytre vpon his head, and putte vpon the myter (euen vpon the fore front of hys face) the golden plate or the holye crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moyſes. * And Moſes toke the anoyntyng oyle, and annoynted the tabernacle, and all that was therin, and ſanctifyed them, and ſprynckled therof vppon the aulter ſeuen tymes, and annoynted the alter, and all his veſſels, the lauer and his foote, to ſanctyfie them (with the oile.) And he powred of the annoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons head, and anoynted him, to ſanctifie him. And Moſes broughte Aarons ſonnes, and put albes vpon them and gyrded theym with gyrdels, and put bonetes vpon their heades: as the lorde commaunded Moſes. * And he brought the ponge oxe for ſinne. And Aaron and hys ſonnes put their handes vppon the heade of the ponge oxe that was for ſin. And Moyſes ſlewe him, and toke of the bloud, whiche he put vpō the hornes of the alter round aboute with his fynger, and purified it, and powred the bloud vnto the bottome of the alter, and ſanctified it, and reconcyled it. And he toke all the fatte that was vpon the inwardes, and the aboundaunce of the liuer and the two kydneyes, and theyr fat, and Moyſes burned it vpon the aulter. But the ponge oxe and his hide, his fleſhe and hys dong, he burnt with fire without the hoſt as the Lorde commaunded Moyſes. And he brought the ram for the burntoffrynge, and Aaron and his ſonnes put theyr hands vpon the head of the ram, which Moyses killed, and sprynkled the bloude vppon the auiter rounde aboute, and Moises cutte the ram in peces and burnt the heade, the peces and the fatte, and washed the in wardes and the legges in water, and Moises burnt the ram euery whyt vp on the alter, for a burnt sacrifyce that it myghte be a swete sauoure, and an offeryng vnto the Lord, as the lord Exo. 29. commaunded Moses. ✱ And he brou-ghte the other ram, namelye the ram of consecration (of the priestes) and Aaron and hys sonnes put their han-des vpon the head of the ram: whyche Moyses slewe, and toke of the bloude of it, and put it vpon the typpe of Aarons right eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the great E too of his righte fote. And Moyses brought Aarons sonnes, and putte of the bloude (of the ram) on the typpe of the right eare of them, and vpon the thombes of their right handes, and vp on the great tooes of their right feete, and Moses sprynkled the bloud vpon the alter rounde aboute. ✱ And he toke Exo. 29. the fatte and the roumpe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the aboundaunce of the lyuer, and the two kydneyes with theyr fat, and the right shoulder. And out of the basket of swete breade that was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled bread, and one wafer, and putte them on the fat, and vpon the right shoulder and put altogether vpon Aarons han-des, and vpon his sonnes handes, and waued it a waueoffrynge before the Lord. And Moses toke them from of F theyr handes, and burnt them vppon the alter, euen vpon the burntoffringe alter: for it was the sacrifice of consecration, for a swete sauoure and a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. ✱ And Moses Exo. 29. toke the breast & waued it for a waue offryng before the Lorde, for it was of the ram of the consecratiō, and it was Moses parte, as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And Moses toke of the annoyntynge oyle, and of the bloude whiche was vpon the alter, and sprin kled it vpon Aaron and vpon hys vestimentes, vppon hys sonnes and on hys sonnes vestymentes with hym, and sanctifyed Aaron, hys vestures &

Moyses commaunded) before the ta-

Aaron therefore wente vnto the aulter, and slewe the calfe whiche he had for synne. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the blood vnto hym, and he dypte hys synger in the bloode and put it vpon the hornes of the aulter, and powred the blood vnto ỹ botome of the aulter. But the fat and the two kydneyes and the aboundaunce of the lyuer of the synneofferyng, he burnt vppon the aulter as the Lorde commaunded Moises. ¶ The flesshe and the hyde he burnt with fyre without the hoste. D And Moyses soughte the goate that was offred for sinne, and see, it was burnte. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar the sonnes of Arō whyche were left alyue, saying: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offerynge in the holye place, seynge it is most holy: and God hath geuen it you to beare the sinne of the congregation, to make agrement for them before the Lozd: Behold the bloud of it was not brought in within the holy place. Yee shoulde haue eaten it in the holy place as I commaunded. And Aaron sayde vnto Moyses: beholde, this day haue I offered theyr synne offerynge and theyr burntofferynge before the Lozd, and it is chaunced me after thys maner. And yf I had eaten the sacrifyce to daye, should it haue bene accepted in the sight of the Lozd? And whē Moses hearde that, he was content.

AND the Lozd spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayd vnto them: speake vnto the childzen of Israell, & say, these are the beastes whiche ye shall eate, amonge all the catteil that are on the earth: whatsoeuer parteth the hoofe, and deuydeth it into two clawes, and chaweth cudde amonge the beastes, that shall ye eate. Neuertheless, these shall ye not eate, of them that chawe cud, and deuydeth the hoofes: as is the camell, whyche chaweth cud, but he deuydeth not the hoofe, therefore is he vncleane vnto you, euen so the coney whiche chaweth the cud but deuideth not the hoofe he is therefore vncleane to you. And the hare though he chaweth the cudde yet because he deuydeth not the hoofe, he is therefore vncleane to you. And agayne, the swyne, though he deuyde the hoffe in to two clawes, yethe chaweth not the cud. He is vncleane to you Of theyr flesshe shall ye not eate, and theyr carkesses shal ye not touche, but let them be vncleane to you. Let al that haue no finnes nor skales in the waters be abhommable vnto you. C These are they whych ye shall abhorre amōg the foules, and that oughte not to be eaten, for they are an abhomination. A AND the Lord spake vnto Mo ses & Aaron saying: whē ther apperethe arising in any mans flesshe, either a scabbe, or a gylstrynge whyte: and the plage of a leprosie, be in the skyn of his flesh, he shal be brou ght vnto Aaron the Priestе, or vnto one of his sonnes the Priests, and the Priest shal loke on the sore in the skin of his flesshe. And when the heare in the sore is turned vnto white, and the sore also seme to be lower, thē the skin of his flesshe it wilbe a plague of lepro sie, and the preastes shall loke on hym and iudge hym vncleane. If there be but a white pleke in the skinne of hys flesshe, and seme not to be lower then the skyn, nor the heare thereof is turned vnto white, the Priest shal shutte hym vp seuen dayes. And the Priest shall loke vpon hym agayn the seuēth day: And if the plague seme to hym to abyde styll, and the plague growe not in the skyn, the Priest shall shut hym vp yet. vii. dayes mo. And the Priest shall loke on hym agayne, the seuen daye. Then if the plague be darker, & not growen in the skynne, the Priest shall iudge him cleane, for it is but a skirfe. And he shall washe his cloths, and be cleane. But and if the scabbe growe in the skyn after that he is sene of ỹ priest, and iudged clene hē shalbe sene of the Priest againe. If the priest se that the skabbe be growen abrode in the skyne, the Priest shal make him vncleane: for it is a leprosie. When the plague of the leprosie is in a manne he B shalbe brought vnto the Priestе, and the Priest shall se hym. And yf the risinge be white in the skinne, and haue made the heare whyte, and there be rawe flesshe in the sore, it wilbe an old leprosie in the skynne of hys flesshe.
And the Priest shall make hym vncleane, and shall not shut hym vp seynge he is vncleane. If a leprosye breake out abrode in the skynne, and couer all the skynne, from hys heade to his fote, whersoeuer the Priest lo-keth, and the Priest loke vpon hym.
And if the leprosye haue couered all hys flesshe, he shal iudge the plague to be cleane, because it is all turned into whitenesse, and he shalbe cleane. But and yf there be rawe flesshe on hym when he is sene, he shalbe vnclene.
And the Priestе shall see the rawe flesshe, and declare him to be vncleane.
For the rawe flesshe is vncleane seing it is a leprosye. Or yf the rawe flesshe departe agayne, and chaunge vnto white, he shall come to the Priest, and the Priest shall se hym, and behold: If the sore be chaunged vnto white (and couer the whole man) the Priest shall iudge the plagus clene and he shalbe clene: the flesh also in whose skin ther-is a bile and is healed, and in the place of the bile, there appeare a whyte rysynge, either a shyning white & somewhat reddilhe, it shall be sene of the Prest. And if when the Prest seeth him, it appeare lower thē the skynne, and the heare therof be chaunged vnto whyte, the Prest shall iudge hym D vncleane: for it is a plague of lepzosye, bzoken out of the bile. But and if the Prest loke on it, and ther be no white heares therein, and yf it be not lower then the skyn, but be darker, the prest shall shut hym vp. vii. dayes. And yf it spread abzode in the flesh, the Prest shall make hym vncleane, seing it is ỹ plague. But and if the spot stand styl, and growe not, it is the pzinte of an hote byle, and therefore the Prest shal declare hym to be cleane. If there bee any flesh, in whose skynne there is a hote burnyng, and the flesh that burneth haue a white spot, somwhat reddylhe or white, the Prest shall loke vpon it. And if the heare in that bzight spot be chaunged to white, and it appeare lower then the skynne, it is a le prosie bzoken out of the burning. And therefore the Prest shall iudge hym vncleane, seyng it is the plague of leprosie. But if the Prist loke on it, and there be no white heare in the bzyght spotte, and be no lower then the other skyn, but be darker, the Prieste shall shut hym vp seuen dayes. And the Prest shall loke on hym the seuenthe daye: And yf it be growen abzoade in the skynne, the Prest shall iudge him vncleane, seinge it is the plague of le-E prosye. And yf the spot stand styl in it and growe not in the skynne, but is darcke, it is a rysynge of the burnyng, and the Prest shall therefore declare hym cleane, seyng it is the pzint of the burning. If a man or a woman hath a sore vpon the heade or the bearde, the Prest shall see it. And if it appeare lower then the skin, and there be in it a yealowe heare: and thinne (more thē it was wonte to be) the Prieste shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge that the same freting is a token of leprosie vpon the head or beard. And if the prest loke one the sore of the pzynt, & it seme not lower then the skynne, and that ỹ heare is not blacke, the prest shal shut vp the fretyng sore seuen dayes. And in the seuenth day the prest shall loke on the sore: and if the sore be not growen, and there be in it no yealowe heare and the soore seme not lower then the skynne, he shalbe shauen: but the place of the sore shall he not shaue, and the prest shall shet vp the sore seuen daies mo. And in the seuenth day the preste shall loke on the sore: And yf the sore be not growen in the skinne, nor seme lower then the other skyn, the Prest shall clense him, and he shall wash his clothes, and be cleane. But yf the sore growe in the flesh after hys clensing the prest shall loke on him. And if the sore be growen in the skyn, the prest shall not seke for yelowe heare for he is vncleane. But yf he see the pzinte stande styll, and that there is blacke F heare growne vp therein, the soore is healed, and he shalbe cleane, and the prest shall declare him to be cleane.

If there be white spottes in the skyn of the flesh of man or womā, the prest shall loke vpon it. And if the spottes in the skynne of their flesh be somewhat darke and white withall, (hee maye be sure, that it is no lepzosie) it is a frekell growynge in the flesh: Therefore is he cleane. And the man (whose heade is destitute of heare, wherby he is made balde) is cleane. And he that hath his heare out in hys forehead is forched bald and cleane. If ther be in the bauld head or bauld forehed a white reddilhe sore scabbe, there is lepzosie sprong vp in his bauld hed or bauide forehead. And ỹ prest shall loke vpō him and if the rysinge of the sore be white reddilhe in his bald hed, or bauld foreheade after the maner of lepzosye whiche is in the skyn of the flesh, then he is a leperous man & vncleane. And the prest shall make hym vncleane for ỹ plague thereof is in hys hed. The leper in whō the plague is, shall haue his clothes rent, & his head bare, & shal put a couering vpon his lip, & shalbe called vncleane & defiled.

The priest therfore shall se the plague, and shut it vp seuen dayes, and loke on the plague the seuenth day. Which if it be increased in the clothe (whether it be in the warpe or woof, or in a skyn) or in any thyng that is made of skyn, it is the leaprosye of a frettynge sore: it is vnclean: and that cloth shalbe burnt either warpe or woofe, whether it be wollen or lynnen, or any thyng that is made of skyn, wherein the plague is, for it is a frettyng leprosye, it shall be burnte in the fire. And of the reſte of the oyle that is in his hande, ſhall the Prieſt put vppon the typpe of the ryghte eare of hym that is for to bee clenſed, and vppon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the greate toe of his ryght fote, euen vpon the blood of the treſpaſſe offryng. And the remnaunte of the oyle that is in the prieſtes hande, he ſhall powre vppon the heade of hym that is for to be clenſed: and the Prieſte ſhall make an attonement for hym before the Lorde. And the prieſt ſhall offer the ſynneoffryng, and make an attonement for hym that is to bee clenſed, for his vncleanneſſe. And then ſhall he kyll the burnteoffering & the prieſt ſhal offre ꝯ burnt offeryng, and the meate offeryng vpon the aultare: and the Prieſte ſhall make an D attonemente for hym, and he ſhalbe Leui. 5. b cleane. * If he bee poore, and can not get ſo muche, he ſhall take one Lambe for a treſpaſſe offeryng to waue it for his clenſyng, and a tenthe deale of fine flower myngled with oyle for a meat offerynge, and a logge of oyle, and two turtill doues or twoo yonge pigeons, ſuche as he is able to get, whereof the one ſhalbe for ſynne, and the other for a burntoffrynge. And he ſhall bryngе theym the .viii. daye for his clenſynge vnto the Prieſt before the dooze of the Tabernacle of witneſſe before ꝯ Lord And the Prieſt ſhall take the Lambe that is for the treſpaſſe, and the logge of Oyle, and waue theim before the Lorde. And he ſhall kyll the lambe for the treſpas, and the Prieſte ſhall take of the blood of the treſpas offerynge, and put it vpon the tippe of his right eare that is to bee clenſed, and vppon the thombe of his right hand, and vpon the great toe of his right foote. And the reſt of the oyle that is in the prieſtes hande, he ſhall putte vppon the heade of hym that is to be clenſed: that he may make an attonment for hym before the lord. And he ſhall offer one of the turtle doues, or of the yong pigeons, ſuch as he can get: the one for a ſynneoffrynge, and the other for a burntoffryng, with the meateoffrynge. And the Prieſte ſhall make an attonemente for hym that is to be clenſed, before the Lord. This is the law of hym, in whom is ꝯ plague of Leproſy, & whoſe hande is not able E to gett that whiche pertaineth to hys clenſynge: And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron, ſayinge: When ye be comme vnto the lande of Canaan, which I gene you in poſſeſſion. And yf I putte the plague of Leproſy in a houſe of the lande of your poſſeſſion, he that oweth the houſe ſhall comme, and tell the Prieſt, ſaying: Me think that there is as it were a Leaproſy in the houſe. And the Prieſt ſhall commaunde them to emptie the houſe before the Prieſte goe into it to ſee the Plage: that all that is in the houſe be not made vncleane, and then muſt the Prieſt go in, to ſee the houſe. If the Prieſt alſo ſee, that the plague is in the walles of the houſe, and that there be holow strakes pale or redde, whiche seeme to be lower thanne the walle it selfe, the Priest shall goe oute at the house doores, and shut vp the house seuen days. And the Priest shall comme agayne the seuenth day, and yf he see that the Plague bee increased in the walles of the house, the F Priest shall commaunde them to take awaye the Stones, In whyche the Plague is, and lette theym cast them into a fowle place without the Citie, and he shall commaund the house to bee scraped within rounde aboute, and powre oute the duste (that they shrape of) without the Citie into a foule place. And they shall take other stones, and put theym in the places of those stones, and other morter, to plaster the howse wythall. And yf the Plague come agayne, and breake out in the house, after that he hathe taken away the stones, and scraped the walles of the house, and after that he hath plastered the howse a new: the priest shall come and see it. And yf he perceaue, that the plague hathe growne further in the house, it is a frettynge leaprosye in the house. It is therefore vncleane. And he shall breake downe the howse. And the stones of it, and the tymbre thereof, and all the morter of the house shall he carye oute of the citie vnto a foule place. Moreouer, he G that goeth into the house al the while that it is shutte vp, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen. He that sleapeth in the house, shall washe his clothes: he lykewyse that eateth in the house, shall washe his cloathes. And yf the Priest come and see, that the plague hath spreade no further in the house, (after that it is newe plastered) the Priest shall Judge that howse, cleane, because the plague is healed. And lett hym take to clense the house wythall: two byrdes, Cedre wodde, purple cloth, and Isope. And he shal kylle one of the byrdes in an earthen vessell, and vpon runnyng water: and take the Cedre wodde, and the ysope, and the purple with the lyuyng bird, and dyppe them in the bloode of the slayne byrde, and in the runnyng water, and sprinkle the house seuen tymes, and clense the howse with the bloode of the byrde, and with the runnyng water, wyth the lyuyng birde, with the Cedre wodde, and the ysope and the purple cloathe. But he shall let the liuing byrde fle out of ỹ towne into the broade fields, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for al maner plague of leprosy and breakynge out, and of the leaprosye of clothe and house: for a swellyng for a scabbe, and for a white blister. To teache when it muste be made vncleane and cleane. This is the lawe of Leprosye.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, sayinge: A Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto theim; who so euer hath a runnynge issue out of hys flesshe, is vncleane by reason of that issue. And this shalbe the token of his vncleannesse in his yssue: when he is vncleane. If his flesshe ronne, or if his flesshe congele by the reason of his issue, then is it vncleannes. Euery couche whereon he lyeth that hathe the issue, is vnclean, and euery thyng wher on he sytteth, is vncleane: whosoeuer toucheth his couche, shall washe hys clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water and be vncleane vntyll the euen. And who so euer he toucheth that hathe the issue, (and haue not fyrste washed his handes in water) shall wash his clothes, Leui.6.d and bathe hym selfe in water, and bee E.11.f vncleane vnto the euen. * The vessell of earth that he toucheth, whiche hath the yssue, shall be broken: and all vessels of wodde shal be rinsed in water. When he also, that hathe any issue, is cleansed of his issue, he shall numbre vii. dayes for his clensyng, and washe his clothes, and bathe his flesh in runnyng water, and so shall he be cleane. And the. viii. day he shall take to hym two turtill doues, or two yonge pigeons, & come before the Lord, vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and geue theym vnto the Priest. And the Priest shall offer them: the one for a synoffryng, and the other for burnte offryng: and the Priest shal make an attonement for hym before the Lorde, as concernyng his issue. If any mās seede depart from hym in his slepe, he shall washe his flesshe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And all the clothes and al the furres, wherin is such seade of sleape, shall be washed wyth water, and be vnclean vntill the euen. And yf he that hath suche an yssue of seede, do lye with a woman, they shal both washe them selues with water, C and be vncleane vntyl euen. If a womans naturall course of blood do run, she shall be put aparte. vii. days: who soeuer toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth vpon, in the tyme of her naturall disease, shall bee vncleane lyke as euerye thyng also that she sytteth vpon, is vncleane. Who soeuer toucheth her bed, shall washe hys cloathes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane, vnto the euen. And who soeuer toucheth any thyng that she sat vpon, shal washe his clothes, and bathe himselfe in water, and be vnclean vnto the euē: so that whether he touche her couche, or any vessell whereon she hath sitten, Le.18.e he shall bee vncleane vnto the euen. * And if a man lye with her, and her vncleannesse come vpon hym, he shall be vncleane. vii. dayes, and all the couche whereon he lyeth, shall bee vncleane. * When a womannes bloode runneth Mat. long tyme: out of the tyme of her natu- D rall course: or yf it runne beyonde her naturall course, let all the days of the yssue bee iudged vncleane, euen as the dayes of her naturall disease. And she shalbe vnclean. All her couches wher on she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be as her couche when she hathe her naturall disease. And what soeuer she sytteth vppon, shalbee vncleane, as is her vncleannesse, when she is put apart. And whosoeuer toucheth any of these, shalbe vnclean, and shall wash his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto ẏ euen. And after that she is clensed of her yssue, she shal coūt her seuen dais, and after that, she shall bee cleane. In the. viii. daye shee shall take vnto her two turtils or two yong pigeons, and bryng theim vnto the priest bifore the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the priest shall offer the one for a synofferyng, and the other for a burnte offering: & make an attonement for her before the Lord, as cōcerning the issue of her vncleannesse. Therfore shal he separate the childzen of Israel frō their vncleannes, ẏ they die not in their vncleannesse: if they defyle my habitation that is among them. This is the law of hym that hath a runnyng yssue, and of hym whose sede runneth from him in his slepe, and is defiled therin, and of her, that (for her naturall disease) is put aparte, and of whosoeuer hathe a runnyng issue, whether it be man or woman, and of hym that lyeth wyth her, whiche is vncleane.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moy- I ses, * after the deth of the two Le. sonnes of Aaron, when they offered before the Lord, and died: And he sayde vnto Moyses: Speake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all tymes into the holye place, within the vaile before the mercyseate, which is vpon the arke, that he dye not. For

wyll appeare in the * cloude vpon the mercyseate. But wyth thys thynge shall Aaron come to the holy place: euē with a bullocke for synne, and wyth a ram for a burntofferynge. He shall put the holye linnen albe vppon hym, and shall haue a linnen breche vppon hys flesh, and shalbe girded with a linnen gerdle, and put the linnen mytre vpon hys head: These are holye garmentes: therefore shall he washe his flesche in water, when he doeth putte them on, And he shall take of the multitude of the childzen of Israell, two hee goates for synne, and a ram for a burnte offerynge. And Aaron shall offer his bullocke for synne, * and make an attonemente for hym, and for his house. And he shall take the two goates, and present them before the Lorde at the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Aaron shall caste lottes ouer the two goates: one lotte shalbe for the Lord, and the other for the scapegoate. And Aaron shall bryng the goate vpon which the Lordes lotte fell, and offer him for synne. But the goate on whiche the lotte fel to scape, shalbe set alyue before the Lorde, to reconcyle with, and to let hym goo (as a scape goate) free, into the wildernes. And Aaron shal bring his bullocke for synne, and reconcyle for hym selfe, and for his house: and shall kyll his bullocke for synne. And he shall take a censer full of burnynge coales out of the aultar before the lord and shall fill his hande full of sweete cens, beatē small, and bring them within the vayle, and put the cens vpon the fyre before the Lorde: that the cloud of the cens may couer the mercyseat that is vpon the wytnesse, and that hee dye not. * And hee shall take of the bloude of the bullock, and sprinkle it with his finger vpon the mercyseate eastwarde: and before the mercyseate shal he sprinkle of the bloud wyth his finger seuen tymes. Then shall hee kyll the goate that is the peoples synneofferyng, and bryng hys bloude within the vayle, and do with that bloud as he did with the bloude of the bullocke, sprynklyng it vpon the mercyseate, and before the mercyseate. And he shall reconcyle the holye place from the vnclennesses of the childzen of Israell, and from theyr tresspasses in all theyr synnes. And soo shall he doo for the tabernacle of wytnesse that is set amonge theym, euen amonge theyr vnclennesses. And lette there bee no bodye in the tabernacle of wytnesse when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holye place, vntyl he come out. And lette hym make an attonemente for hym selfe and for hys housholde, and for all the multitude of Israell. And he shall go out vnto the aulter that is before the Lorde, and reconcile vppon it, and shall take of the bloud of the bullocke, and of the bloud of the goate, and put it vppon the hornes of the aultare rounde aboute and sprinkle of the bloude vppon it wyth hys synger seuen tymes, and clense it, and halowe it from the vnclennes of the childzen of Israell. And when he hath made an ende of reconcylyng the holy place, and the tabernacle of witnes, and the altar, hee shall bryngе the lyue goate, and Aaron shall put both hys handes vppon the head of the lyue goate, and confesse euer hym all the mysdeedes of the childzen of Israell, and all theyr tresspasses, in al their sinnes, puttyng theim vpon the heade of the goate, and send hym away (by the hand of a conuenient manne) into the wyldernes. And the goate shal beare vpon hym al their mysdedes vnto the wildernes, and he shal leue the goate goo free into the wildernes. And Aaron shall come into the Tabernacle of witnesse, and put of the linnen clothes whiche he put on (when he went in into the holye place) and leaue theym there. And let hym washe hys flesche with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out, and offer his burntofferinge and the burntofferinge of the people, and make an attonement for him selfe and for the people, and the fat of the syme offering shal he burne vpon the altar. And he that caried foorth the goate to Azazel, shal wash his clothes, & bathe his flesh in water, and then com into the hoste. And the bullock whiche is for synne, and the goate that is for syn (whose bloode was broughte in, to clense the holye place) shall one carye out without the hoste to be burnte in the fyre with their skyns, theyr flesshe and theyr dong: And he that burneth theym, shall washe hys cloathes, and bathe his flesshe in water, and thenne come into the hoste. And this shall bee an ordinance for euer vnto you: that in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth ye humble youre soules, and doe no woorke at all, whether it bee one of your selues, or a straunger that soiorneth among you: for that day shall the Priest make an attonemente for you to clense you, and that ye may be clean from all your synnes before the Lord. Let it be a Sabboth of rest vnto you, and ye shal humble your soules, by an G ordynaunce for euer. And the priest that is annoynted, and whose hande was consecrated (to mynister in hys fathers steede) shall make the attonement, and shall put on the lynnen clothes and holy vestimentes, and reconcile the holye sanctuarye and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall clense the aultare, and make an attonemente then, for the Priestes, and for all the Ex.30.b people of ỹ congregatiō. And this shal be an euerlastynge ordinaunce vnto you, that he make an attonemente for the children of Israel for all their synnes once a yeare: and he dydde as the Lorde commanded Moses.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto Aaron, and vnto hys sonnes, and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: This is the thyng whyche the lord hath charged, saying: What man soeuer of the house of Israell kylleth an oxe, or lambe or goate in the hoste, or that kylleth it oute of the hoste, and bryngeth it not vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnes, to offer an offryng vnto the lorde before the dwellyng place of the lord, blood shall be imputed vnto that manne, as though he hadde shed blood, and that man shall be rooted out from amonge his people. Wherfore, whan the children of Israell bryng theyr offryngs, that they offer in the wyde feide, they should bryng thē vnto the Lord: euen vnto the dooze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse to the priest, to offer theym 5 for peaceofferynges vnto the Lorde. And the priest must sprinkle the blood vpon the altar of the Lord, whiche is before the dooze of the Tabernacle of witnes, and burne the fat for a swete sauour vnto the Lord. And let them no more offer theyr offryngs vnto deuils, after whome they haue gone a whoorying. Thys shalbe an ordināce for euer vnto them in theyr generations. And thou shalt say vnto them: What soeuer man it be of the house of Israell, or of the strangers, which soiourne amōg you that offreth a burnt offerynge or sacrifice, and bryngeth it not vnto the dooze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse to offer it vnto the Lord, C that man shall perishe fromc amonge his people. And what soeuer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the strāgers that soiorne among you, that eateth any maner of blood, I wyll sette my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloode, and will destroye hym from among his people: for the lyfe of the flesshe is in the bloode, and I haue giuen it vnto you vppon the aultar, to make an attonement for your soules, for bloode shall make an attonemente for the soule. And therefore I sayde vnto the children of Israell: Lette no soule of you eate bloode. Neyther let any straunger that soiourneth among you, eate blood. And what soeuer man it be of the children of Israell, or of the straungers that soiourne amonge you, which hunteth, and catcheth any beast or fowle that may be eatē, let him powre out the bloode thereof, and couer it with earthe: For the lyfe of all flesshe is in the blood of it, therfore I sayde vnto the chylderne of Israell, ye shal eate the blood of no maner of Gen. flesshe, for the lyfe of all flesshe, is the Leui. bloode thereof: who soeuer eateth it, and. 11

And euery soule that eateth it whyche dyed alone, or that which was torne with wyld beasts, whether it be one of your selues, or a stranger, he shall washe his cloathes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and bee vncleane vnto the euen, and then shall he be cleane. For that yeare of iubelye shalbe holy vnto you: but ye shall eate of the encrease therof out of the fielde. In the yeare of thys iubelye ye shall returne euery man vnto his possession agayne. If thou sellest ought vnto thy neighboure, or byest of thy neyghboures hande, ye shall not disceaue one another: but accordyng to the numbre of yeares after the iubelye, yeare thou shalt bye of thy neyghbour, and accordyng vnto the numbre of yeares, and of the fruites, he shall sell vnto the. Accordynge vnto the multytude of yeares, he shall encrease the pryse thereof, and accordyng to the fewenesse of yeares, he shall mynyshe the price of it: for the numbre of frutes doth he sell vnto the. *Disceaue not ye therefore euery man his neighbour but thou shalte feare thy God. For I am the Lorde your God: wherefore, ye shall dwell after myne ordynaunces and kepe my lawes, and do theym, and ye shall dwell in the lande in safetie. And the lande shall geue her fruite, & ye shall eate your fyll, and dwel therin in safetie. And if ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yeare, for we shall not sowe, nor gather in oure encrease: I wyll sende my blessyng vpon you in the sixte yeare, and it shall brynge forth fruit for three yeares: and ye shall sowe the eyght yeare, and eate yet of olde corne vntill the nine yeare: euen vntill her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde stoare. The land shal not be solde to be wast: for the lande is myne, and ye be but straungers and sojourners with me. In all the lande of your possession, ye shall graunte a redemption for the lande. *If thy brother be waxed poore, and hath solde awaye of hys possession, and yf anye of hys kinne come to redeme it, let hym bye out that whych his brother solde. And if he haue noo man to redeme it, let hys hande get asmuche as maye be sufficient to bye it out agayne, and let hym counte howe longe it hath bene solde, and delyuered the rest vnto the man to whome he solde it, that he may retourne to his possession againe. But and if his hande cannot get sufficient to restore to the other agayne, thē that whiche is solde shall remayne in the hande of him that hath bought it, vntil the yere of iubelie: and in the iubylie it shall come oute, and he shall retourne vnto his possession again. And if a man sell a house or a dwellynge wythin the walles of a citie, he maye bye it oute again within a whole yere after it is solde: euen anye daye of the yeare shall he redeme it agayne. But and if he bie it not oute agayne within the space of a full yere, thē the house that is in the walled citie shalbe stablyshed, and be his own that boughte it, and his successours after hym, and shall not go oute in the iubelye. But the houses of villages which haue no walles rounde aboute them, are counted as the field of the countre & therefore they maye be bought out agayne, and shall returne in the iubelye.

Not-

Notwythstandyng, the Cities of the Leuites, and the houses of the cytyes of theyr possession, maye the Leuites redeeme at all seasons. And yf a man purchase ought of the Leuits, the hous that was solde, and the citie of theyr possession shall goe out in the yeare of iubelye: for the houses of the cities of the Leuites, are theyr possession amõg the childzen of Israell. But the fielde of the suburbe that is beside theyr cyties, maye not be sold: but is theyr perpetuall possession. If thy brother bee waxen poore, and fallen in decay with thee, thou shalte relieue hym, both the straunger and soiourner, that he maye liue wyth thee. And thou shalt take none vsurye of hym, or vauntage, But thou shalt feare thy God, that thy brother maye liue wyth thee. Thou shalt not geue hym thy money vpon vsury, nor lende hym thy corne for increase. I am the Lord your god, which brought you out of the lande of Egypt to geue you the land of Canaan, & to be youre God. ✠ If thy brother that dwelleth by the, be waxen poore, and be sold vnto thee, thou shalt not compell hym to the bondage of seruantes: but as an hired seruaunt, and as a soiourner, he shalbe with thee, and shall serue thee, vnto the yeare of Jubilie, & then shall he departe from thee bothe he and hys childzen with hym, and shall returne vnto his own kinred agayn, and vnto the possession of his fathers: for they are my seruantes, which I brought out of the land of Egypt, and shal not therfore be solde as bondemen. Thou shalt not raigne ouer hym cruelly, but shalt feare thy God. Thy bondseruãt and thy bondmayd whych thou shalte haue, shall be of the heathen that are rounde about you: of them shal ye purchase seruantes and maides, and of the childzen of the straungers that are soiourners among you, and of their generations that are with you, whyche they begat in your land. These shalbe your possession, and ye shal take them as inheritance for youre childzen after you, to possesse them, they shalbe your bondemen for euer. But ouer youre

If a soiourner or stranger waxe riche by thee, and thy brother that dwelleth by hym, waxe poore, and sell hymselfe vnto the stranger or soiourner by thee or to any of the straunges kinne: after that he is solde, he may be redemed agayn: one of his brethren (that wyl) eyther his vncle, or his vncles sonne, may bye hym out: or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kinrede, may redeme him: either if his hand can get so much, he may be loosed. And he shal recken with hym that boughte hym, from the yere that he was sold in, vnto the yeare of Jubelie, and the price of his bying shalbe valued, accordyng vnto the numbre of yeares. As an hired seruaut shall he be with hym. If there be yet many yeres behynd accordyng vnto them, let hym geue agayne for his deliuerance, of the money that he was bought for. If there remayne but fewe yeares vnto the yeare of Jubelie, let hym count with him againe, and accordynge vnto hys yeares geue hym agayn for his redemption, and he shalbe with hym yeare by yeare, as an hyred seruant, and the other shall not reygne cruelly ouer hym in thy sight. If he be not redemed thus, he shal go out in the yere of Jubelie, both he and his childzen with hym: for the childrē of Israell are my seruantes, which I brought out of the land of Egypt. I am the Lord your God.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto the childzen of Israell, and saye vnto them: If any man wyll geue a synguler vowe vnto the Lorde accordynge to the value of the soules, the value of the male from twentye yeare olde vnto sixty shalbe fyftye sicles of siluer, after ỳ weight of ỳ sanctuary. H And yf it be a female, the value shalbe thirtye sicles. And from fiue yeres to twentye, the male shalbe set at twentye sicles, and the female at ten sycles. And from a moneth vnto fyue yeare, the male shall be set at fyue sicles of syluer, and the female at three. And he that is fyftye yeare olde, and aboue, shalbe valued at fyftene sicles, and the woman at ten. But yf he be to poore so to be sette, he shall presente hym selfe before the Priest: and the priest shall value hym, accordynge as the hande of hym that vowed is able to get, euen so shall the priest value him. I If it be a beaste of whiche men bryng an offerynge vnto the Lorde: all that any man geueth of such vnto the Lord shalbe counted holye. He shall not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And yf he chaunge beaste for beaste, then bothe the same beaste, and it also wherwith it was chaunged shalbe holye. If it be anye maner of vncleane beaste, of whyche men do not offer a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde, he shall set the beaste before the Priest, and the Priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad. And as the Priest setteth it, so shall it be. But if he wyl bye it agayne, he shall geue the fyfte parte moare aboue that it was set at. K If anye man dedicate his house, to be holye vnto the Lorde, the Priest shall set it whether it be good or bade

and as the Prieste hath set it so shall the value be. And when he that sanctifyed it, wyll redeme hys house, lette hym geue the fyfth parte of the money that it was iudged at thereto, and it shalbe hys.

If a man halowe a pece of hys enheryted lande vnto the Lorde: it shall be sette accordynge to the seade thereof. If it beare an homer of Barley it shal be sette at fyftye sicles of syluer. If he halowe hys fielde immediatelye from the yeare of Jubelye, it shall be worth accordynge as it is estemed. But and yf he halowe his fielde after the Jubelye, the Prieste shall recken the money accordynge to the number of the yeares that remayne vnto the yeares of Jubelye folowynge, and there after it shalbe lower set. If he that consecrated the field, will redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyfte parte of the pryce that it was sette at therevnto, and it shalbe hys. And if he will not redeme the fielde, but selleth the fyeld to another man, he (that vowed) may redeme it nowore. But when the fielde goeth out in the yeare of Jubelye, it shalbe holy vnto the Lorde: euen as a fielde that is vtterlye put awaye, and it shalbe the Prestes possession.

If a man sanctifye vnto the Lorde a fyelde whiche he hath bought, and is not of hys enherytaunce, the Prieste shal recken vnto hym what it is worth vnto the yeare of Jubelye, and he shal geue the pryce that it is sette at, the same daye as a thinge consecrated vnto the Lorde. And in the yeare of Jubelye, the fyelde shall, retourne vnto him, of whom he bought it: euen vnto hym, whose enherytaunce of lande it is. And all settynge shalbe accordyng to the sicle of the sanctuarye. One sycle conteyneth twentye halfepens.

Ge.30b Eu.15d * But the fyfte borne of the beastes that is appoynted vnto the lorde, may no man sanctifye: whether it be oxe or shepe, for it is the Lordes already. If it be an vncleane beaste, he shall redeme it, as it is sette at, and geue the fyfte parte moare thereto: Or, yf it be not redemed, it shalbe solde, accordyng to the value. Notwithstandynge, no dampned thynge that a man putteth from him and dedicateth vnto the lord of all hys good (whether it be man or beaste, or lande of hys enherytaunce) maye be solde or redemed: for euerye thynge so putte awaye, is moste holye vnto the Lord. Let no dampned thyng that a man separateth, be redemed, but dye the death. Euerye tythe of the lande which is of the seade of the land or of the frupte of the trees, is the Lordes, and is sanctifyed vnto the Lorde. And yf a manne wyll redeme oughte of hys tythes, let him adde the fyfte parte thereto. And euerye tythe of oxe and of shepe and of euerye beast that goeth vnder the rod, euen euerye tenth shalbe holy vnto the LORD. He shall not loke yf it be good or bad. nor chaunge it. Elles if he chaunge it, both it, and that it was chaunged withall, shalbe halowed vnto the Lorde and may not be redemed.

These are the cõmaundementes which the Lord commaunded by Moyses vnto the chyldren of Israell in Mounte Sinai.

And of Cahath came the kynred of the Amramytes, and the kynred of the Izeharites: the kynred of the Hebronites, and the kinred of the Ozielites. These are the kynredes of the Cahathites. The office of the children of Cahath in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, is most holye. And when the host remoueth, Aaron and hys sonnes shall come and take downe the vayle, that hangeth betwene, and wrappe the Arke of wytnesse in it: and shall put thereon a couerynge of taxus skynnes and shall spredc vpon it a clothe that

And vppon the shewe table, they shall spzede abzoade, a cloth of yelowe silcke, and put theron the dysshes, spones, flatpeces, and pottes to powze with, and ther shalbe bzeade thereon continually: and they shall spzeade vpon them a couerynge of purple, and couer the same with a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and putte in the barres thereof. And they shal take a clothe of yelowe silcke, and couer the candlestycke of lyghte, wyth hys lampes, tonges, and snoffers, and all the oyle vessells whyche they occuppe aboute it, and they shal put both it, and all the vessell thereof within a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put it vp on a barre. And vpon the golden alter they shall spzede a cloth of yelow silke and couer it with a couering of taxus skinnes, and put in the barres thereof. And they shall take all the thynges (whyche they occuppe to mynyster within the holy place) and put a cloth of yelowe silke vpon them, and couer them with a couering of taxus skins, B and put them on a barre. And they shall take awaye the asshes from the alter, and spzed a purple cloth thereon, and put vpon it all the vessels thereof that they minister withall: euen the colepannes, the flesshehokes, the shouels, the basens and the other vessells of the alter, and they shall spzede vpon it a couerynge of taxus skynnes, & put in the barres of it. And when Aaron and hys sonnes haue made an ende of couerynge the holye thynges, and all the vessells of the sanctuary (agaynst that the host remoue) then the sonnes of Cahath shall come in for to beare but they shal not touch ani holy thing least they dye. And this is the charge of the sonnes of Cahath in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And to the office of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preist, partayneth the oyle for the lyghte, the swete cense, the daylye meateoffringe, & the annoyntynge oyle, and the ouersyghte of all the Tabernacle, and of al C that therein is, both in the sanctuary, and in all the vessels thereof: And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: Ye shall not destroye the trybe of the kynredde of the Cahathites, from amonge the Leuites. But thus doo vnto theym, that they maye lyue and not die, when they goo vnto the most holy thinges: Let Aaron and hys sonnes goo in, and take them downe, to euerye one after hys seruyce, and after hys charge. But let them not goo in, to se when the holye thynges are folden vp, least they dye. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: Take also the summe of the chyldren of Gerson, throughoute the houses of their fathers, and throwout their kynreds: from .xxx. yeare and aboue, vntill fyftye, shalte thou nombze them, all that are able to go forthe to the warre for to doo seruice in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And thys is the seruice of the kinred of the Gersonites, to serue and to beare. They shall beare the curtaynes of the dwellynge, and the rouffe of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, his couerynge, and the couerynge of taxus skynnes, that is aboue vpon it, and the hangyng of the doze whyche is in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: and the hangynge that is in the entrynge in of the gate of the court rounde about the dwellyng, and the alter, with the coardes, and all the instrumentes that serue vnto theym, and all that is made for to serue them. At the mouth of Aaron and his sons, shall the seruice of the children of the Gersonites be done, in all their charges, and in all theyr seruice, and ye shall numbze vnto them all their burthens to kepe. And thys is the seruice of the kynred of the chyldren of Gerson in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and theyr watche shalbe vnder the hande of Ithamar, the sonne of Aaron the Preist. And thou shalte numbze the sonnes of Merari after theyr kynredes, & after the houses of theyr fathers: from thyrtie yeares and aboue vnto fyftie, shalte thou numbze them, euerye one that is able to goo forth to the warre, to do the seruice of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And this is the charge ỹ they muſt wayte vpon, accordyng to al their ſeruice in the Tabernacle of wytnes. The bordes of the dwellyng, with the barres pyllers, and ſockettes thereof, and the pyllers that are rounde aboute the courte, with theyr ſockettes, pinnes, and cordes, and withall the inſtrumentes of it, for all theyr ſeruice. And by name ye ſhall reken the thinges that they muſt wayte vpon to beare. This is the ſeruice of the kinredes of the ſonnes of Merari, accordynge to all their office in the tabernacle of wytneſſe vnder the hande of Ithamar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſt. And Moſes and Aaron and the princes of the multitude numbred the ſonnes of the Cahathites, after their kinredes and houſes of their fathers: from thyrtye yeare and aboue vnto fyftie, all that were able to go forth to the warre, to do ſeruice in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the nombres of theym throughout theyr kynredes were two thouſande, ſeuen hundred and fyftye. This is the numbre of the kynredes of Cahath: namely, all that myght do ſeruice in the Tabernacle of wytnes, whych Moſes and Aaron did numbre accordynge to the commaundemente of the Lorde by the hande of Moyſes. These are the numbres of the ſonnes of Gerſon throughout their kynreds and houſes of their fathers, from thyrtye yeare vp vnto fyfty, all that were able to go forth to the warre, for to do ſeruice in the Tabernacle of witneſſe. And the numbres of them throughe-out their kynredes, and houſes of theyr fathers, were two thouſand, ſixe hundred and thyrtye. Thys is the nuvnbre of the kynredes of the ſons of Gerſon, of all that dydde ſeruyce in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, whyche Moyſes and Aaron didde numbre accordynge to the commaundemente of the Lorde. And theſe are the numbres of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Merari, throughout their kynredes, and houſes of their fathers, from thyrtye yeare vp vnto fyftie: all that wente forth to the warre, and ſerued in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the nvmbres of them after their kinreds were three thouſande, and two hundred.

This is the ſumme of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Merari, which Moſes and Aaron numbred accordynge to the word of the Lord, by the hand of Moyſes. And ſo all the numbres of ỹ Leuites, whiche Moyſes, Aaron and the Lordes of Iſraell numbred, after their kynredes and houſeholdes of their fathers, from thyrtye yeare vppe vnto fyftye, euerye one that came to do hys office, and ſeruice and to beare his burthen in the Tabernacle of witnes were (whan they were numbred.) eyghte thouſande, fyue hundrede and fortyſcore. Accordynge to the worde of the Lorde dyd (Aaron) numbre them by the hande of Moyſes, euerye one accordynge to their ſeruice and charge and accordyng to their offices: as the Lorde commaunded Moyſes.

AND the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: commaunde the childzen of Iſraell that they put out of the hoſte, euerye leper and euery one that hath an yſſue, & whoſo euer is defyled vpon a ſoule. Bothe male and female ſhal ye put out: euen out of the hoſte ſhall ye put them, that they defile not the tentes among whiche I dwell. And the chyldzen of Iſraell dyd ſo, and put theim oute of the hooſte, euen as the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſo dyd the childzen of Iſrael. And the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the childzen of Iſraell: whether it be man or woman. If they haue committed anye ſynne that a man doeth, and haue treſpaſſed agaynſte the Lorde, that ſoule hathe done amyſſe: Therefore they ſhall knowledge their ſynne whyche they haue done, and let him reſtore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole and put the fift part of it more therto, and geue it vnto hym whom he hathe treſpaſſed agaynſt. But and if there be not a man to reſtore the hurt vnto, nor a kynſeman of hys, let the treſpace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it ſhalbe shalbe the Preistes, beside the ram of the attonement whereby an attonement shalbe made for hym. And euery heue offrynge that is made of the holy thynges of the childzen of Israel whi che they bzynge vnto the preist shalbe his, and euery mans halowed things shalbe his: and whatsoeuer anye man geueth the preist, it shalbe hys. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying Speake vnto the childzen of Israell, and saye vnto thē: If any mans wife goo syde, and trespace agaynste hym, so that another man lye with her fleshly, and it be hidde from the eyes of her husbande, & is not come to lyghte that she is defiled, and there is no witnesse agaynst her, neither she taknne with the maner, and the spzite of ielousye commeth vpō him so ỹ he is ielouse ouer his wife which is defiled: oz if the spzit of ielousie cōe vpō him, so ỹ he is ielouse ouer his wife which is vndefiled thē let the mā bzyng his wife vnto the Preist, and bzynge with her an offeryng foz her: the tenth part of an Epha of Barley meale, but let him pour none oyle vppon it, noz put frankencens thereon: foz it is an offerynge of ielousie, an offringe foz a remembzāce, causyng the sinne to be thought vpō. And the Preist shall bzynge her and Num 19 C set her before the Lorde, and let hym *take holy water in an erthen vessell, and of the dust that is in the floure of the habitation, and put it into the water. And let the Priest set the woman before the Lord, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memozialL of the offerynge in her handes which is the ielousie offeringe, and the Preiste shall haue bitter, and cursed waters in hys hande, and the Preist shal charge her, and saye vnto the woman. If no man haue lien with the, neither haste gone a side to vnclennes without thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of this bitter, and cursed waters. But and yf thou hast gone asyde behynde thyne husband, and art defiled, & some other man hath lien with the beside thyne husbande, (and the Preist shall charge the woman with an horrible curse, and the Preiste shall saye vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhomination and a curse amonge the people: when the Lord doth make thy thye rotte, and thy belye swell: These cursed waters go into the bowels of the, that they may make thy belye swell, and thy thye rotte, and lette D the woman say, Amen, Amen. And let the Preiast wzyte these curses: And when they be cleansed, lette hym cast thē into bitter waters, and gette the woman those bytter, and cursed waters to dzyncke, that those cursed and bitter waters may enter into her. And then the Preist shall take the ielousie offrynge oute of the womannes hande, and waue it before the Lorde, and bzynge it vnto the alter and the Preist shall take an handefull of the offerynge foz a memozyall, and burne it vpon the aulter, and then make the woman dzinke the waters: and when he hath made the woman dzynke the waters (if she be defiled, and haue tresspassed agaynste the husbande:) then shall the cursed and bitters waters go into her, and her belly shall swell, and her thye shall rotte, and that woman shalbe a curse amonge her people. And if the woman be not defyled but is cleane, she shall haue noo harme, but shall conceaue and beare. This is the lawe of ielousie, when a wyfe goeth asyde behynde her husbande, and is defyled, oz when the spirite of ielowsye commeth vpon a man, and he beynge ielouse ouer his wyfe, doth bzyng her before the Lorde. And the prieste shall do accozdynge vnto all thys lawe, and the man shalbe gyltlesse, and the woman shall beare her synne.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: speake vnto the childzen of Israel, and say vnto them: when either man oz woman doth separate theym selues to bowe a bowe of an absteyner, and appoynt them selues vnto the Lorde, he shall seperate him selfe from * wyne Iud. 13. and stronge dzinke, and shall dzynke Amos. 2 no vynygere of wyne oz of stronge dzinke noz shal dzynke whatsoeuer is

Thys is the lawe of the abſteyner, when the tyme of his abſtynence is out, he ſhall be bzought vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and he ſhall bzynge hys offerynge vnto the LORD: an hee lambe of a yere olde without blemyſhe foz a burnteofferynge, and a ſhe lambe of a yeare olde withoute blemyſhe foz ſynne, a ram withoute blemyſhe alſo foz a peaceofferynge, and a baſket of ſweete bzeade, euen cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, and wafers of ſweete bzed annointed with oyle with theyz meateofferynges and dzynke offerynges. And the Pzieſte ſhall bzynge hym befoze the Lozd, and offer his ſinneoffering and his burntofferynge, and ſhall offer the ram foz a peaceofferinge vnto the Lozde, with the baſkette of ſweete bzeade, and the pzieſt ſhal offer alſo his meateoffering and hys dzynke offeryng. And he ſhall ſhaue the heade of the abſteyner in the dooze of the tabernacle of wytneſſe: euen the heade of hys abſtynence, and ſhall take the heare of hys ſober head, and put it in the fyze, whiche is vnder the peaceofferynge. And the Pzieſte ſhal take the ſodden ſhoulder of ỹ ram and one ſweete cake oute of the baſket, and one ſweete wafer alſo, and putte them vpon the hands of the abſteyner (after he hath ſhauen hys abſtynence of) and the pzieſte ſhall (take them of hym, and) waue them befoze the Lozd. And theſe holye thynges ſhall be the D pzieſtes with the wauebzeſt and heue ſhoulder: and then the abſteyner maye dzinke wyne. This is the lawe of the abſteyner which hath voweb hys offerynge vnto the Lozde foz hys conſecracion: Beſydes thoſe thynges that hys hande can gette, accozdynge to the vowe whiche he voweb, euen ſo he muſte do after the lawe of hys abſtinence. And the Lozd ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto Aaron and hys ſonnes, ſayinge: of thys wyſe ye ſhall bleſſe the chyldzen of Iſraell, and ſaye vnto them. The Lozd bleſſe thee, and kepe thee. The Lozde make hys face ſhyne vpon thee, and be mercifull vnto thee. The LORDE lyfte vp hys countenaunce vppon thee, and geue thee peace. And they ſhal put my name vpon the chyldzen of Iſrael, and I wyll bleſſe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moises saying: take it of them, that they may be to do the seruice of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and thou shalt geue theym vnto the Leuytes, to euery man accordinge vnto his office. And Moises toke the charettes and the oxen, and gaue them vnto the Leuyts, two charets, & foure oxen, he gaue vnto the sons of Gerson accordyng vnto their office. ¶ The. viii. Chapter.

AND the Lorde spake vnto a Moyses sayyng: speake vnto Exo. 25. Aaron, and saye vnto hym:
• when thou puttest on the lampes, the same seuen lampes shall geue lyght towarde the forefront of the candlestycke.
And Aaron dydde euen so, and lighted the lampes towarde the forefronte of the candlestycke, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and the worke of the candlestycke was of fyne golde, both the shaft and the floures thereof: accordynge vnto the vision which the Lorde had shewed Moses: euen so he made the candlestycke. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: take the Leuites from amonge the children of Israell, and cleanse them. But thus shalt thou do vnto them, when thou clensest them: sprynkle water of purifying vpon them, and let them make a rasure to runne a longe vpon all the fleshe of them, and lette them washe B their clothes, and soo make thē selues cleane. Then lette them take a bullocke wyth hys meatoffrynge: euen fine floure myngled with oyle: and another bullocke shalte thou take for sinne. And when thou doest bringe the Leuytes before the tabernacle of witnesse, thou shalt gather the whole multitude of the chyldren of Israell together, and bringe the Leuytes before the LORDE, and the chyldren of Israell shall put their handes vpon the Leuytes. And Aaron shall waue the Leuites before the Lord, for a waueoffryng of the chyldren of Israell, that they may execute the ministration of the seruice of the Lorde.
And the Leuites shal put their handes vppon the heades of the bullockes, and thou shalte offer the one for synne and the other for a burnte offrynge, vnto the LORDE, that thou maiest make an attonemente for the Leuytes. And thou shalt set the Leuites before Aaron and hys sonnes, and waue them for a waueoffrynge before the Lorde. And thus thou shalt seperate the Leuites from among the children of Israell, and the Leuytes shall be myne: after that shall the Leuites goo in, to doo the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse. AND thou shalte C clense them and waue them, for they are geuen and delyuered vnto me frō among the children of Israel, for suche as open euerye wombe: euen for the fyrst borne of al the children of Israel haue I taken them vnto me. And D Moses and Aaron and all the congregation of the chyldzen of Israell dyd with the Leuites, accordyng vnto all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses concernyng the Leuites: euen soo dyd the childzen of Israell vnto them.
And the Leuites were purified, and washed their clothes. And Aaron waued them before the Lorde, & made an attonement for theim, and clensed them. After that went the Leuites in to do their seruice in the Tabernacle of wytnes, before Aaron & his sonnes as the Lord had commaunded Moses concernyng the Leuites, euen so they did vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: this is it that

Thus therefore shalte thou doo vnto the Leuites in their watche.

A Ex. 12. a Leui. 21 Num 28 Deu. 16

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wildernesse of Sinai, in the firste moneth of the second yeare, after they * were come out of the lande of Egypte, saying: let the childzen of Israell offer Passeouer in his season: euen the xiiii. day of this moneth at euen, let them kepe it in hys season, accordynge to all the ceremonies of it, and accordyng to al the maners thereof. And Moses spake B vnto the childzen of Israell, that they shoulde offer Passeouer, and they offred Passeouer ꝯ xiiii. daye of the first moneth at euen in the wildernesse of Sinai, accordyng to all that the Lord commaunded Moses, euen soo did the chyldzen of Israell. And certayne men were defiled vpon the soule of manne, that they myght not offer Passeouer, the same daye. And they came before Moses and Aaron the same day. And the men sayde vnto hym: We are defyled vpon the soule of man: wherefore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offering vnto the Lord in the due season, amōg ꝯ childrē of Israell.
And Moyses sayd vnto them: Stand styll, and I will heare what the Lord wyll commaunde concernynge youe.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldzen of Israell and saye: If anye man among you or your chyldzen after you be vncleane by the reason of a coarse, or is in the way farre from you, and will offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde: the. xiiii. day of the seconde moneth at euen let them offer it, and eate it with sweete C breed and sowre herbes: let them leaue none of it vnto the morynge * nor breake anye bone of it: But accordyng to all the ordeynaunce of the Passeouer let them offer it. But the man that is cleane and is not in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offer Passeouer: the same soule shall perysshe from hys people, because he brought not the offerynge of the Lorde in hys due season: that man shall beare hys synne. And E yf a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyll offer Passeouer vnto the Lord, accordyng to the ordeynaunce of Passeouer and maner thereof, he shall offer it thus.
Ye shall haue one lawe bothe for the straunger, & for hym that was borne at home in the lande. And the same daye that the Tabernacle was reared vppe, a cloude couered ꝯ habitatyon, which was a Tabernacle of the wit-nesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitation, as it were the similitude of fyre vntyll the morninge. So it was alway, the cloude couerd it by day, & the similitude of fyre by nyght.

And when the cloude was taken vp from of the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israell iourneyed: and where the cloude abode, there the children of Israell pitched theyr tentes. At the mouthe of the Lord the childrē of Israel iourneyed, and at the mouthe of the Lord they pytched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitation they lay stil: and when the cloude taryed styll vpon the habitation long tyme, the chyldren of Israell kept the watche of the Lorde, and iourneyde not. And it chaunced, that whan the clowde abode a fewe days vppon the habitation, they abode in theyr tentes accordynge to the commandemente of the Lord: and they iorneyd also at the commaundement of the LORDE.

D And it happened, that when the cloude abode vpon the habitation, frō euen vnto the morninge, and was taken vp in the morninge, then they iorneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyght, that the cloude was taken vp their iorneyed. Or yf the cloud taryed two dayes or a moneth, or a long season vpon the habitatiō, and remayned thereon the children of Israell abode styll, and iorneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken vp, they iorneyd. At the mouth of the Lord, they rested in the tentes, and at the com-maundemente of the Lorde, they iorneyed keppyng the watche of the lorde at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

A And the Lord spake vnto Mo ses, sayinge: Make the twoo Trompettes of syluer: of an whole piece shalt thou make theym, that thou mayst vse theim, to calle the congregation together, and when the hoste shall iorney. Therfore shal they blowe with them, that all the multitude may resort to thee before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And yf they blowe but one trompet, than the princes whyche are heades ouer the thousandes of Israell shall come vnto thee. But if ye trompe, the hostes that lye on the east partes, shall go forward. And yf ye trompe the seconde tyme, the hoste that lieth on the south syde shall take their iourney: for they shall trompe whenne they take their iornets. But when the congregation B is to bee gathered together, they shall blowe only, and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron the priest shal blow with their trompets, and ye shal haue them as a lawe for euer in your generations. And yf ye goe to warre in your lande against your enemies that vexe you, ye shal blow with the trom petts: and ye shalbe remembred before the Lorde your God, to be saued from your enemies. Also in the day of your gladnes, and in your feaste dayes, and in the beginnyng of your monethes, ye shall blow the trompets ouer your burnte sacrifices and peaceoffrynges, that they may be a remembraunce for youe before youre God. I am the Lorde our God. And it came to passe the twentith day of the second month in the seconde yeare, that the clowde was taken vp from of the habitation of wytnesse. And the childrē of Israel tooke their iorneye out of the deserte of Sinai, and the cloude rested in the wyldernesse of Pharan. And the fyrste tooke theyr iourneye at the mouthe of the Lorde, by the hande of Moyses. In the fyrste place wente the standarde of the hoofte of Iuda, C accordynge to theyr armyes: whose captayne was Nahasson, the soonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoofte of the Trybe of the chylderne of Is-sachar, was Nathanael, the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldern of Zabulon, was Eliab, the sonne of Helon. And the habitation was taken downe: and the sonnes of Gerson and Merari wente forthe bearynge the Habytation.

C And the hoste of Ruben went forth with theyr standerde and armyes, whose captayn was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the host of the tribe of ỹ chyldren of Simeon was Salamiel the son of Suri Saddai.
And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chylderne of Gad was Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. The Cahathites also went forwarde, and bare the san-ctuarye, and the other dydde sette vp the habitation agaynst they camme.
And the standerde of the hoste of the childerne of Ephraim wente forthe accordyng to theyr armies, whose captayne was Elisama the sonne of Ammiud. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the sons of Manasse, was Gamaliel, the sonne of Pedazur. And ouer the hoaste of the tribe of the sonnes of Beniamin was Abidan the sonne of Gedeon. And the standerde of the hoaste of the chylderne of Dan came forth (hauyng al the hostes togethey) throughoute their armyes: whose capitayne was Ahiezer, the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the Tribe of the chyldren of Aser, was Pagiel, the sonne of Ochran.
And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Nephthali, was Ahira, D the sonne of Enan. These are the iour-neys of the children of Israel throw out theyr armies: and thus the hostes remoued. And Moses sayd vnto Hobab, the sonne of Raguel the Madianite: whiche was Moyses father in lawe: We go into the place of whych the Lorde sayde: I wyll geue it you.
Come thou therfore wyth vs, and we wyll doo thee good: for the Lord hath promysed good vnto Israell. And he answered hym: I wyll not goe: but wyll departe to myne owne land, and to my kynrede. He sayde: Oh naye, leaue vs not: for thou knowest oure mansions in the wildernes: and thou haste bene to vs in stede of eyes. And yf thou go wyth vs, loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vnto vs, the same wyll wee shewe vnto thee. And they departed from the mounte of the Lord, thre dayes iorney: and the arke of the testament of the Lord went before them in the three dayes iorney, to serche out a restyng place for theym.
And the Lorde made a shadowe for theym throwout the clowde by day, Pl. when they went out of the tentes.
And it fortuned, that when the Arke wente forth: Moyses sayde: • Ryse vp Lorde, and lette thyne ennemyes be scattered: and let thē ỹ hate thee, flee before thee. And when the Arke rested, he sayde: Returne O Lorde, vnto thee many thousands of Israel.

the vttermoste of the hoste. And the people cried vnto Moses. And when Moyses made intercession vnto the Lorde, the fyre quenched. And the B name of the place was called Thabe-call people that was amonge theym, felt a lustynge, and turned them selchyldren of Israell) and sayde: Who of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And whenne the dew fell whenne Moyses hearde the people the face of the Lorde was prouoked vnto wrath exceadyngly: and it greued Moyses also. And Moyses sayde vnto the Lorde: wherfore hast thou dealte cruelly with thy seruaunte? And wherfore haue I not founde fauoure in thy syght, seynge that thou puttest the weyght of all thys people vppon me? haue I conceaued all thys people? Or haue I begotten them? that thou shouldest saye vnto me? carye theym in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckynge chylde) vnto the lande, which thou swarest vnto their fathers? where shoulde I haue flesshe to geue vnto all thys people, whiche wepe before me, saying: geue vs flesshe that we maye eate? I am not able to beare all thys people alone, seynge it is to heauy for me. If thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I praye thee, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, that I see not my wretchednes. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses, • gather vnto me. lxx. men of the elders of Israell, whiche thou knowest, that they are elders of the people and officers ouer them, and thou shalt bringe them vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse that they may stād ther with thee: And I wyll come downe, and talke with the there, and take of the spyrite which is vppon thee, and put vppon them, and they shal beare the burthen of the people with the, leste thou be constrayned to beare it alone. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Shall • the Lordes hande bee waxed short? Thou shalt see nowe whither my worde shall comme to passe vnto thee, or not. And the Lorde came downe in a clonde, & spake vnto him, and toke of the spirite that was vpon him, and gaue it vnto the. lxx. elders. And it fortuned that when the spirite rested vppon theym, they prophecied, and dyd not ceasse. But there remayned two of the men in the hoste, the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad. And the spirite rested vppon theym, and they were of them that were writtē, and went not out vnto the tabernacle, but prophecied in the hoste. And there ran a yong mā, and told Moses, and said: Eldad and Medad do prophecy in the hoste. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaunt of Moyses, one of hys yong men, answered and sayd: Moyses, Moses, • forbyd them. And Moses sayd vnto hym: Enuiest thou for my sake? • Would God that all the Lordes people coulde prophecie, and that the Lorde would put his spirite vpon them. AND the LORD spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: • Sende I De.

menne oute to sear the the land of Canean which I geue vnto the childrenne of Israel: of euerye Tribe of their fathers shal ye sende a manne, and lette all be suche as are rulers amonge them. And Moses at the commaundemente of the Lorde sente foorth out of the wylderneesse of Pharan suche menne as were all heades of the childrenn of Israell: Their names are these. Of the tribe of Ruben, Sammua the sonne of Zacur. Of the tribe of Simeon Saphat the sonne of Horye. Of the Tribe of Juda, Caleb the sonne of Iephune. Of the Tribe of Issachar, Igeall the sonne of Iosephe. Of the Tribe of Ephraim, Osea the sonne of Nun. Of the Tribe of Ben Jamyn. Paithi the sonne of Raphu. Of the Tribe of Zabulon, Gadiell the sonne of Sodi. Of the Tribe of Ioseph, namely of the Tribe of Manasse, Gaddi, the sonne of Susi. Of the Tribe of Dan, Ammiell the sonne of Gemali. Of the tribe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michaell. Of the B tribe of Nephtali, Nahebi the son of Waphsi. Of the tribe of Gad, Guell the sonne of Machie. These are the names of the menne, whyche Moyses sente sent to spye out the lande. And Moses called the name of Osee the sonne of Nun, Josua. And Moyses sente theym forth to spye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayd vnto theim: Gette you vp this way southwarde, that ye may go vp into the hye countrey, and see the lande what maner thyng it is, and the people that dwelleth therein: whether they be strong or weake, either fewe or many, and what the land is that they dwelle in, whether it ber good or badde: and what maner of cities they be, that they dwell in, whether they dwelle in tentes or walled townes: and what maner of lande it is: whether it be fat or lean, and whether there be trees therein, or not. Be of a good courage, and bringe of the fruite of the land. And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrst rype.

C And so they went vp, and serched out the land from the wyldernes of Zin, vnto Rehob, as men come to Hemath and they ascended vnto the south, and camme vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was, and Sesai, and Thalmani, the sonnes of Enack. Hebron was buylt seuen yeare before Zoan in Egypte. And they came vnto the ryuer of Escol, and cut downe there a braunche with one cluster of grapes, and twain bare it vpon a staffe, and they brought also of the pomegranates, and of the figges. And the place was called, the ryuer Escoll, because of the cluster of

D grapes, which the chyldren of Israell cut downe thense. And they tourned back agayn from serchyng of the land after forty dayes. And they went and came to Moses and Aaron, and vnto all the multytude of the chylderne of Israell, in the wyldernesse of Pharan: whiche is Cades, and brought them word, and also vnto all the congregation, and shewed them the fruit of the lande. And they told hym, and sayde: we came vnto the lande whether thou sentest vs, and surely it flowyth with milke and houye: and here is of the fruite of it. Neuertheles, the people be strong that dwell in the lande, and the Cities are walled, and exceadynge greate: and moreouer, we saw the chyldren of Enack there. The Amalechites dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethites, Jebusites, and the Amorites dwelle in the mountayns, and the Cananites dwel by the sea, and by the coast of Jordan. And Caleb stylled the (murmur that was rayled vp) of the people before Moses, saying: we wyll go vp, and conquere it: for wee bee able to ouercome it. But the mē that went vp with hym, sayde: we bee not able to go vp agaynst the people: for they are stronger than we. And they brought vp an euyll reporte of the lande, which they had searched, sayeng vnto the chyldren of Israell: The land which we haue gone thorow to search it out, is a land that eateth vp the inhabiters therof: and the people that we sawe in it, are men of a great stature. And there we sawe also gyantes, the children of Enacke, whyche come of the gyantes. And we semed in our syght, as it were grashoppers, and so we dyd in their syghte.

AND all the multitude of the A people cryed oute, and wepte thorowe out that nyght, and all the chyldren of Israell murmured agaynst Moyses and Aaron. And the whole congregation sayd vnto them: Woulde God that wee hadde dyed in the lande of Egypte, eyther that wee had dyed in this wyldernesse. Wherefore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto this lande, to fall vppon the swearde: and that oure wyues, and oure chyldren shoulde be a praye? Were it not better, that we returne vnto Egypt agayn? Edom denyed to geue Israell pas-

Hesbon was the Citie of Sehon the kyng of the Amorites, which fought

Jo. 24. b of Jordayne, ouer agaynste Jericho. And ✠ Balac the sonne of Zyphor sawe all that Israell had done to the Amorytes: and the Moabytes were sore afraide of the people, because they were manye, and stoode in feare of the chyldren of Israell. And Moab sayde vnto the chyldren of Madian: nowe shall thys companye lycke vp all that are rounde aboute vs, as an oxe licketh vp the grasse of the fielde. And B Balac the sonne of Zyphor was kyng of the Moabites at that time. He sent
deu. 23. a messengers therefore vnto ✠ Balaam
2. Pe. 2. c the sonne of Beor in Pethor (which is by the ryuer of the land of the children of his folke) to call hym, saying: Beholde, there is a people come oute of Egypte, and behold, they couer the face of the erth, and dwel ouer against me. Come nowe therefore, and curse this people for my sake. For they are to myghtie for me, ỹ so peraduenture I might be able to smyte them, & to driue thẽ out of the land. For I wote that he whom thou blessest, is blessed, and whome thou curssest, is cursed. And the elders of Moab, and the Elders of Madian departed, hauyng the rewarde of the soothsayinge in theyr hande. And they came vnto Balaam, and tolde hym the wordes of Balac. He answered them: Tarye here this nyght, and I wyll bryng you worde, euen as the Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the Lords of Moab abode with C Balaam. And God came vnto Balaam, and sayde: What men are these with thee? And Balaam sayde vnto God: Balac, the son of Zyphor kyng of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayinge: Behold, there is a people come out of Egypte, and couereth the face of the earth: Come nowe therefore, & curse them for my sake, ỹ so peraduenture I may be able to ouercome theym in battaile and to dryue them oute.

And GOD sayde vnto Balaam: Goe not with theym, neyther curse the people, for they are blessed. And Balaam rose vp in the morning and sayde vnto the Lordes of Balac: Get you vnto your land: for the lord wyll not suffre me to goe with you. And the Lords of Moab rose vp, and went vnto Balac and sayde: Balaam wouldes not come with vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater company of lordes, and more honorable then they: which cam to Balaam, and told him: Thus saieth Balac, the sonne of Zyphor: Oh, let nothyng lette thee, but come vnto me: for I wil greatly promote thee vnto greate honoure, and will doo what soeuer thou sayest vnto me, Come I pray thee, curse thys people for my sake. And Balaam answered, and sayde vnto the seruantes D of Balac: ✠ If Balac wold geue me his house fulll of syluer and golde: I can not go beyonde the worde of the Lorde my God, to doo lesse or more. Nowe therefore tarye ye here thys night: that I may wete what the lord wil say vnto me more. And God came vnto Balaam by nyght, & sayd vnto hym: If the menne come to call thee, ryse vp and go with them: but looke what I say vnto thee, that shalt thou

do. And Balaam rose vp earlye, and saddeled hys Asse, and went with the Lordes of Moab. And the countenance of God was angrye because he went. And the aungell of the Lorde stode in the waye against hym, as he rode vpon hys asse, and hys two seruauntes were with hym. And when the Asse sawe the aungell of the Lord stand in in the waye, and hauynge a swearde drawen in hys hande, the asse turned a syde oute of the waye, and went oute into the fielde. And Balaam smote the Asse, to tourne her into the waye. But the aungell of the Lorde stode in a path betweene the vyneyardes, and there was a wall on the one syde and another on the other. And when the Asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, she wrenched vnto the wal, and thrust Balaams foote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And the aungell of the Lorde went further and stode in a narowe place, where was no waye to tourne, eyther to the ryghte hande or to the left. And when the asse sawe the aungel of the Lord, she fell downe vnder Balaam: and Balaam was wroth, and smot the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouthe of the asse, and shee sayde vnto Balaam: what haue I doone vnto thee, that thou hast smytten mee nowe three tymes? And Balaam sayde vnto the asse: because thou hast mocked me: I woulde also there were a swearde in myne hande, for euen nowe would I slyll thee. And the asse sayde vnto Balaam: am not I thyne asse which thou hast rydden vpon sence thou wast borne vnto thys daye? was I euer wont to do so vnto thee? he sayde: nay. And the Lord opened the eyes of Balaam, and he sawe the aungell of the Lorde standynge in the waye hauyng a swearde drawen in hys hande. He bowed hym selfe therfore, and fell flat on his face. And the angell of the Lord sayde vnto hym: wherfore hast thou smytten thyne asse thre times? behold, I came out as an aduersarye, because thou makest thy waye contrarye vnto me, and the asse sawe me, and wente backe fro me three tymes: or els yf she had not turned fro me (geuynge place to me that stode in the waye.) I had surely slayne thee, and saued her alyue. Balaam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lord: I haue sinned: for I wist not that thou stodest in the waye agaynste me. Nowe therfore if it displease the I will turne home againe. The Aungell sayde vnto Balaam, go with the men: but what I saye vnto thee, that shalte thou speake. And so Balaã went with the Lordes of Balac. And when Balac herde that Balaam was come, he went oute to mete hym vnto a citie of Moab, which is in the border of Arnon, euen in the vtmost coast. And Balac sayd vnto Balaam: dyd I not sende for thee, to call thee? And wherefore camest thou not vnto me, because I am not able to promote the vnto honour? ℭ The. xxx. Chapter.

AND Moses spake vnto the ℣ heades of the tribes of the children of Israell, sayinge: thys is the thinge whiche the Lorde hath

Deu. 23d commaunded: If a man bowe a bowe vnto the Lorde, or sweare an oth, to bynde his soule: he shall not go backe with his worde: but shall fulfill all that is proceded out of hys mouth. If a woman also bowe a bowe vnto the LORD, and bynde her selfe beinge in her fathers house in the tyme of her youth, and her father heare her bowe, and bonde which she had made vpon her soule, and holde hys peace thereto: then all her bowes & bondes B which she hath made vpon her soule, shal stand in effect. But and yf her father forbyd her the same daye that he heareth it, none of her bowes nor bondes whiche she hath made vppon her soule, shalbe of value: and the Lorde shal forgeue her, because her father forbadde her. If she hadde an husbande whē she bowed or prouounced ought out of her lips, wherwith she bounde her soule, and her husbande hearde it, and helde his peace, thereat the same daye he harde it, then her bowes and her bondes wherewith she bound her soule, shall stande in effect. And yf her husbande forbadde her the same daye that he harde it: and made her bowe whyche she hath vpon her of none effecte, and released the openynge of her lyppes, wherewith shee bounde her soule, the Lord shall forgeue her. But euerye bowe of a wedowe and of her C that is deuorced (that they haue bōd their soule withal) shall stande in effecte with them. If she bowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an othe, and her husbande harde it, and helde his peace, and forbad her not, then all her bowes and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shal stande. But if her husbande disanulled them, the same daye that he hearde them, then nothynge that proceadeth oute of her lyppes, in bowes and bondes (wherwith she bounde her soule) shall stande in effecte: for her husbande hath lowsed them. And the Lord shal forgeue her. All bowes & othes that D bynde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablyshe or breake. But yf her husbande holde hys peace from one daye vnto another, then he stablysheth all her bowes and bondes wht che she had vpon her, because he helde his peace the same daye that he harde them. But yf he breake thē after that he hath harde them, he shall beare her synne hym selfe. These are the ordynaunces whyche the Lorde commaunded Moyses, betwene a man and hys wyfe: and betwene the father and his daghter beyng yet a damsel in her fathers house.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: auenge the chyldren of Israel of the Madianites, and afterward shalt þ be gathered vnto thy people. And Moses spake vnto the folke sayinge: Harnesse some of you vnto war, and let them go vppon the Madianites, and auenge the Lorde of the Madianites. Let there be chosen a thousande oute of euerye tribe of Israell, that oute of all tribes ye maye sende some to the warre. And there were taken out of the thousandes of Israell, twelue thousande prepared vnto war of euerye tribe a thousand. And Moses sente theym to the warre, euen a thousande of euerye trybe, and with them, Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the Preiste, and the holye vessels: and the trompettes to blowe, were in hys hande. And they warred agaynste the Madianites, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and slue all the males. And they slue the kynges of Madian among other, that were slayne: Manahy, Eui and Rekem Zur and Hur and Reba: fiue kynges of Madian, wyth Balaam the sonne of Beor, whome they slewe with the swearde: And the chyldren of Israell toke all the women of Madian prysoners, and theyr chyldren, and spoyled all theyr catell, and all theyr flokes, & al theyr goods. And they burnt all theyr cities wherin they dwelte, and all their castelles with fire. And they toke all the spoile and all that they coulde catche both of men

And they brought the captyues and that whyche they had taken and the spoyle vnto Moses and Eleazar the Priest, and vnto the companye of the children of Israell, euen vnto the hooste that were in the fieldes of Moab, by Iordan, ouer agaynste Iericho. And Moyses and Eleazar the Priest, and all the lordes of the congregation went oute of the host agaynst them. And Moises was angrye with the officers of the hoost, with the captaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, whych came frō the warre and battayle: and Moyses sayde vnto theym: Haue ye saued all

And Eleazar the Priest sayde vnto the men of warre, whyche came from the battayle: this is the ordeynaunce of the lawe, whyche the Lord commaunded Moyses, Golde, syluer, brasse, and yron, tynne and lead, and all that may abyde the fier, ye shall make it goo thorowe the fier, and it shalbe cleane. Neuertheles, it shalbe sprynkled with sprynklyng water. And all that suffereth not ꝑ fier, ye shal make go thorowe the water. And washe youre clothes the seuenth day, and ye shalbe cleane. And afterward come into the hoost. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying, take the summe of the praye that was taken bothe of the women and of catteil, thou and Eleazar the Priest, and the auncient fathers of ꝑ congregatiō. And deuide it into two partes betwene theym that toke the warre vpon them, and went oute to battayle: and all the congregacion. And take a portion vnto the LORDE of the men of warre, whyche went oute to battayle: one soule of fyue hundred, both of the wemen, and of the oxen, and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of their halfe, and geue it vnto Eleazar the Priest, as an heueoffrynge of the Lorde. And of the halfe of the children
E of Israell, thou shalte take one portyon of fyftie, of the women of the oxen, of the asses, and of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes: and geue them vnto the Leuites, whyche wayte vpon the habitation of the Lorde. And Moyses and Eleazar the Priest didde as the Lorde commaunded Moises. And the botye and the praye whyche the men of warre hadde caughte, was fyue hundred thousande, and thriescore and fyftene thousande shepe: and thriescore and twelue thousande oxen, thriescore and one thousande asses: and two and thyrtie thousande soules of women, that hadde lyen by no man. And the halfe whyche was the parte of theim that went oute to warre was three hundrede thousande and seuen, and thyrtie thousande and fyue hundred sheepe. And the LORDES part of the sheepe was fyue hundred thriescore and fyftene. And the oxen were fyue and thyrtie thousande, of whyche the LORDES parte was thriescore and twelue. And the Asses were thyrtye thousande and fyue hundrede

And Moses gaue that sum which was the Lords heueoffering vnto Eleazar the priest as ꝑ Lord commaunded Moses. And the other halfe of the children of Israel which Moses seperated frō the mē of war, (that is to wete ꝑ halfe ꝑ pertened vnto ꝑ congregatiō)

was three

three hundred thousande, and.xxxvii. thousande, and fyue hundred sheepe: and.xxxvi. thousande oxen and thirtye thousande asses, and fyue hundred and xvi. thousande soules of wemen. And Moyses toke of thys halfe that perteyned vnto the chyldren of Israell, one portion of fyftye, both of the wemen and of the catell, and gaue them vnto the Leuites, whiche wayted vpon the habitation of the Lorde, as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And the officers of thousandes of the hoost, the captaynes ouer the Thousandes, and the captaynes ouer the hundreds came fourth, and sayde vnto Moyses: Thy seruauntes haue taken the summe of G the men of warre, whiche are vnder our auctoritie, and there lacketh not one manne of vs. We haue therefore broughte a present vnto the Lorde, what euery man founde of Jewels of golde, cheynes, bracelettes, rynges, earynges, and spangelles, to make an attonemente for our soules before the Lorde. And Moyses and Eleazar toke the golde of them, Jewels of all maner fashyons. And all the golde of the heueoffrynge that they heued vp to the Lorde, (of the captaynes ouer Thousandes and hundreds) was.xvi. thousande, seuen hundred and fyftye sicles, for the men of warre had spoyled, euerye man for hys selfe. And Moses and Eleazar the Priest, toke the golde of the captaynes ouer the thousands and of the captaynes ouer the hundredes: and broughte it into the tabernacle of witnesse, for a memoriall of the chyldren of Israell before the Lord.

A The chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad had an exceadynge greate multitude of catell. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and the lande of Gilead that it was an apte place for catell, the chyldrē of Ruben & the chylderen of Gad came and spake vnto Moyses and Eleazar the Priest and vnto the Lordes of the congregacion, saying: The lande of Ataroth and Dibon, Jazer and Nemrah, Hesbon and Elealeh, Saban and Nebo and Beon: which contrey the Lorde smote before the congregacion of Israell: is a lande mete for catell, and we thy seruauntes haue catell: wherefore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syghte, lette thys lande be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and brynge vs not ouer Jordan. And Moyses sayde vnto the chyldren of Gad, and of Ruben: shall your brethren go to warre, and ye shal syt here? Wherefore dyscorage ye the herte of the chyldren of Israell, that they should not go ouer into the land, whiche the Lorde hath geuen them? Thus dyd youre fathers, when I sent them from Cades Barne to see the lande. For when they went vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escol, and sawe the land: they discoraged the hertes of the chyldren of Israel, that they shold not go into the lande which the Lorde hath geuen them. And the Lord was wroth the same tyme and sware, sayinge: None of the men that came out of Egypt from twenty yeare olde and aboue, shall see the lande whyche I sware vnto Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, because they haue not wholye followed mee: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite, and Josua the sonne of Nun: for they haue followed the Lorde. And the Lorde was angrye with Israell, and made them wander in the wildernesse fourtye yeare, vntyll all the generacion yͭ had done euil in the syghte of the Lorde were consumed. And behold, ye are risen vp in your fathers steade, as an encreace of synfull men, to augmente the fearce wrath of the Lorde, towarde Israell. For yf ye tourne awaye from hym, he wyll yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, and ye shall destroye all this folke. And they went nere him and sayd: we wyll buylde shepefolds here for oure shepe and for our catell, and (walled) cities for our chyldren. But we our selues wyll go ready armed before the childrē of Israel, vntill we haue brought thē vnto their place.

And

And oure chyldren (and whatsoeuer we maye haue) shall dwell in the fenced cities, because of the inhabiters of the lande. We will not returne vnto our houses, vntyll the chyldren of Israel, haue enherited, euery manne hys enherytaunce. Neither will we enheret with them on yonder syde Iordan forwarde, because our enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this side Iordan Eastwarde. And Moses sayde vnto them: if ye will do this thynge, and goo harnelled before the Lorde to warre, and will goo all of you in harneste ouer Iordan before the Lord, vntil ye haue cast out his enemies before hym: and vntyll the lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shall returne and be without synne before the Lorde, and before Israeli, and thys lande shalbe youre possession before the Lord. But and if ye will not do so, behold ye haue synned agaynst the Lorde: and be sure your sinne will finde you out. Make therefore, build cities for your chyldrē, and foldes for your shepe, and do that ye haue spoken. The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: thy seruauntes will do as my Lorde commaundeth. Our chyldren, oure wyues, our sheepe, and our cattell shall remayne here in the cities of Gilead. But thy seruaunts Iosu. 4. will go al harnelled to warre, and vn to battayle before the Lorde, as my Lorde saith. And for their sakes, Moses commaunded Eleazar the Priest, and Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the tribes of the chyldren of Israeli: and Moses sayde vnto them: If the childrē of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben will go with you ouer Iordan, all prepared to fight before the Lord, then when the lande is subdued before you ye shall geue them the lande of Gilead to possesse: but and yf they will not go ouer with you in harneste, they shall haue their possessions among you in the lande of Canaan. And the children of Gad, and the children of Ruben answered, sayinge: As the Lorde hathe sayde vnto Iosu. 22. thy seruauntes, so will we doo. We will go harnelled before the Lorde into the lande of Canaan: that the possession of oure enheritaunce, maye be on this side Iordan. And Moyses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad, and to the chyldren of Ruben, and vnto halfe the tribe of Manasse, the sonne of Ioseph, the kyngedome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and the kingdome of Og, kyng of Basan, the lande with the cities therof in the coastes and cities of the countrey rounde aboute. And the chyldren of Gad buylte Dibon, and Acaroth, and Aroer, and Atroth, Sophan, Jaeser, and Jegabea, Bethnimra, and Betharan, fenced cities, and they buylte foldes for the shepe. And the chyldren of Ruben buylte Hesbon, Eleale, Kyryathaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, and turned their names, and Sibama also: and gaue other names vnto the cities, whyche they buylded. And the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasse, went to Gilead, and toke it, and put out the Amorites that dwelte therein. And Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir, the sonne of Manasse, and he dwelte Deu. 3. b therein. And Jahir the sonne of Manasse went and toke the small townes therof, and called them Hanoth Jair. And Nobah went and toke Kenath, and the townes longyng thereto, and calleth it Nobath, after hys owne name.

1 AND the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: commaunde the childzen of Israell, and say vnto them: when ye come into the lande of Canaan, this is the lande that shal fall vnto your enheritaunce, the lande of Canaan, with her coastes. • And Iof.15.a youre southquarter shalbe from the wyldernes of Sin, along by the coast of Edom, so that youre southquarter reache vpon the side of the salt see eastwarde: and fette a compasse from the south vp to Acrabim: and reache to Zinna. And go oute from the south to Cades Barne, and go oute also to Hazar adar, and go a longe to Azmon: and fet a compasse agayne from Azmon vnto the riuer of Egypte, and shall goo oute at the sea. And let youre west-quarter be the great see: let the same B seabe youre westcoaste. And this shalbe youre northquarter: ye shal compasse youre border from the great see vnto mount Hor. And from mounte Hor, ye shall describe youre border, til it come vnto Hemath, and the ende of the coaste shalbe at Zedada, and the coaste shall reache oute to Ziphron, and go oute at Hazar Enan. Thys shalbe your northquarter. And ye shal compasse youre eastquarter from Hazarenan to Sephan. And the coaste shall go downe from Sephan to Ribla, on the east syde of Ain. And the same border shall descende and go out at the syde of the sea of Cenereth eastwarde. C And then go downe a long by Iordane, and leaue at the salte sea.

And thys shalbe youre lande with the coastes therof, rounde aboute.
And Moyses commaunded the childzen of Israel sayinge: this is the land whyche ye shall enherit by lotte, and which the LORD commaunded to geue vnto nyne trybes and an halfe: Nu.32.f for the tryde of the childzen of Rubin accozdyng to the housholdes of their fathers, and the tribe of the childzen of Gad, accozdynge to theyr fathers housholdes, and halfe the trybe of Manasse, haue receaued their enheritaunce. Two tribes and an halfe haue receaued their enheritaunce on the other syde of Iozdan, ouer agaynst Iericho eastwarde. And the Lozd spake D to Moyses, sayinge: these are the names of the menne whyche shall deuyde the lande vnto you: Eleazar the Priest, and Iosua the sonne of • Nun.
Deu.3.d Ios.14. And ye shall take also a Lozde of euerye trybe, when ye deuyde the lande.
The names of the men are these: Of the trybe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Iephune. Of the tribe of the childzen of Simeon, Semuel the sonne of Amiud. Of the trybe of Ben Iamin, Elidad the sonne of Cislon. Of the tribe of the childzen of Dan, the Lozde Bucki, the sonne of Iagli. From amonge the childzen of Ioseph for the trybe of the childzen of Manasse, the Lozde Haniell, the sonne of Ephod.

Of the tribe of the children of Ephra im the Lorde Camuel, the sonne of Siphtan. Of the tribe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the Lorde Elizaphan, the sonne of Parnath. Of the tribe of the children of Isachar, the Lorde Paltiel, the sonne of Asan. Of the tribe of the sons of Aser, the Lorde Ahihud the sonne of Salomi. Of the tribe of the children of Nephtali, the Lorde Pedahel, the sonne of Ammihud.

These are they whom the Lord commaunded to deuide the enheritaunce vnto the children of Israell in the lande of Canaan.

The .xxxv. Chapter.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses in the fieldes of Moab by Iordan, ouer against Jerycho, sayinge: commaunde the children of Israell, that they geue vnto the Leuites of ye enheritaunce of their possession, cities to dwell in. And ye shall geue also vnto the cities of the Leuites, suburbes harde by their cities rounde aboute them. The cities shall they haue to dwell in, and the suburbes for their cattel, and for their possession and all maner of beastes of theirs And the suburbes of the cities which ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the citie outeward, a thousande cubites rounde aboute. And ye shall measure without the citie of the eastside, two thousand cubites. And of the southside, two thousande cubites. And of the westside two thousande cubites. And of the northside, two thousand cubytes also: and the citie shalbe in the mides. And these shalbe the suburbes of their cities. And from amonge the Cities whyche ye shal geue vnto the Leuits, there shall be sixe cities for refuge, whyche ye shall appoynte to that intente, that he whych killeth, may flye thether. And to them ye shall adde xlii. cities more: so that all the cities whych ye shall geue the Leuytes, maye be eyght and fortye, with their suburbes And the cities whyche ye shall geue, shall be oute of the possession of the children of Israell. Them that haue many, shall geue many. But of them that haue fewe, ye shall take fewe. Euery one shall geue of his cities vnto the Leuites, accordynge to the enheritaunce whych he enheryteth. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake, vnto the children of Israel and saye vnto them: When ye be come ouer Iordane, into the lande of Canaan, ye shall appoynte you cities to be cities of refuge, for you: that he which sleeth a soule vnwares, may flye thether. And the citie shalbe to flye from the auenger of blonde, that he whyche killeth, dye not, vntill he stand before the congregation in iudgement. And of these sixe free cities, whych ye shall geue, ye shall geue three on thys syde Iordan, and three in the lande of Canaan. And these sixe free cities shalbe refuge both for the children of Israell, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you: that all they whyche kyll anye personne vnwares, maie flye thyther. And if any man smite another with an instrumēt of yron that he dye, then is he a murtherer, and shall dye for it. If he smite hym with a throwynge stone that a man maye dye with, and yf he dye, he that smote hym is a murtherer, let the same murtherer be slayne therefore. Or yf he smite hym with a hand weapon of wood, that a man may die with then if he die, he is a murtherer, let the murtherer be slayne therefore. The iustice of blond shall slay the murtherer: whan he meteth hym, he may slay hym. But yf he thrust at hym of hatred or hourle at hym with laying of waite that he dye, or smyte hym with hys hande of enuye, that he dye, he that smote hym shall dye, for he is a murtherer. The iustyce of blonde shal slay the murtherer as soone as he fyndeth hym. But and yf he pushed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or cast at him with anye maner of thynge, and not of layinge awayte: or caste anye maner of stone at hym (that a man maye dye with) and sawe hym not. And he caste iudge betwene the slayer and the executer of bloude in suche cases. And the congregation shall delyuer the slayer oute of the hande of the auenger of bloude, and the congregation shall restore hym agayne vnto the Cytie of hys refuge, whether he was fled. And Deu.20b D he shall byde there vnto the death of the hye Priestе, which was anointed with holye oyle. But and if the slayer uiledged citty whether he was fled, yf the auenger of bloud finde hym with out the borders of hys free towne, and slaye the murtherer, he shalbe giltlesse because he shoulde haue bidden in hys free towne vntil the deathe of the hye Priestе, and after the death of the hye Priestе to retourne agayne vnto the lande of hys possession. These commaundementes shalbe a lawe vnto you for your generations in al your dwel shall one witnesse aunswere to put a man to death. Moreouer, ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the mur-therer which is worthye to dye. But he shall be put to death. Also yee shall take no money of hym that is fled to a free citie, that he shoulde come again and dwel in the land, before the death of the hye priestе. And see that ye pollute not the lande which ye shal dwel in: for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwyse be clen-sed of the bloude that is shed therein, but by the bloude of hym that shedde bloude. Defyle not therfore the lande which ye shall inhabyte, for I am in the myddes therof: Euen I the Lord raell.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

AND the auncientе fathers of the chyldrenne of Gylead the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldren of Ioseph, came forthe and spake before Moyses and the Princes and auncient fathers of the chyldren of Is- Nu.26f raell, and sayde: The Lord commaun ded my Lorde, to geue the lande to inherite by lotte vnto the chyldren of Is- Nu.27a raell. And my Lorde commaunded in Gods behalfe, to geue the inheritaūce of Zelaphead oure brother vnto hys daughters. Whom yf anye of the sons of the other trybes of Israell take to wiues, then shal theyr inheritaunce be taken from the inherytaunce of oure fathers, and shalbe put vnto the inhe- B rytaunce of the trybe whiche they are receyued into: and shalbe taken from the lotte of oure inherytaunce. And when the yere of iubelye of the chyl-drenne of Israell commeth, then shall theyr inherytaunce be putte vnto the inherytaunce of the Trybe wherein-to they are receyued: and so shall theyr inherytaunce bee taken awaye from the inherytaunce of the Trybe of our fathers. And Moyses commaunded the chyldrenne of Israell accordynge to the woorde of the LORDE saye-inge: the chyldrenne of the Trybe of Ioseph haue sayde wel. Thys ther- Tob.2.b fore doeth the LORDE commaund and,7c the daughter of Zelaphead sayinge: lette theym be wyues to whom they theym selues thynke beste, onelye to the kynred and Trybe of their father shall they marye, soo shall not the inherytaunce of the chyldrenne of Israell remoue from Trybe to Trybe, whan the chyldrenne of Israell abyde C euerye manne in the inherytaunce of the Trybe of hys fathers. And euerye daughter that possesseth anye inherytaunce in anye Trybe of the chyldren of Israell, shall bee wyfe vnto one whyche is of the kinred of the Tribe of her father, that the chyldrenne of Israell maye enioye euerye manne the inherytaunce of hys father: Neyther oughte the inheritaunce to goe from one trybe to an other: but euery one of the Trybes of the chyldren of Israell muste abyde in his owne inherytaunce. And as the Lorde commanded Moyses, euen so vnto the daughters of Zelaphead. And Maheth, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha, and Noa were maried vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, whyche were of the chylderne of Manasses, the sonne of Joseph: and so their enheritance remayned in the tribe of the kynrede of their father. These are the commandementes and lawes, whyche the Lorde commanded by the hand of Moyses, vnto the chyldren of Israell in the fieldes of Moab, by Jordan ouer against Jericho.

THese be the woordes which Moses spake vnto all Israell, on thother side Jordan in the wildernes, in the playne ouer against the Red sea, betwene Pharan, and Thophell, Laban, Hazeroth, and Dizahab, eleuen dayes iourney from Horeb vnto Cades barne, by mount Seir. And it fortuned the first day of the eleuenth moneth in ỹ fortieth yeare, that Moyses spake vnto the children of Israell, accordyng vnto all that the Lord hadde geuen in commandement vnto them, after that he had smyten * Sehon the Nu. 21. C kyng of the Amorites which dwelte in Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan, whiche dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai. On the other side Jordan in the land of Moab began Moyses to declare this lawe, sayinge: The Lorde oure GOD spake vnto vs in Horeb, sayinge: Ye haue dwelte longe ynough in this Mounte, departe therefore, and take youre Journeye, and goe vnto the hyll of the Ammorites, and vnto all places nye therevnto: bothe vnto the playn, and hylles and dales: to the Southe, to the Seas syde, to the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the greate ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue sette that lande beefore you: * Goe in, and possesse the lande which the Lorde sware vnto youre fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to geue vnto theym, and their seede after theym. And I spake vnto you the same season, sayinge: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde youre God hath multiplied you: and beeholde, ye are this daye as the starres of heauen in numbre (the Lorde God of youre fathers make you a thousande tymes so many mo as ye are, and bielle you, as he hathe promysed you:) Howe can * I my selfe alone, beare the combraunce, charge, and stryfe that is among you? Bryng (from among you) menne of wisedome and of vnderstandyng, and expert, accordyng to your tribes, and I will make theym rulers ouer you. And ye answered me, and sayd: That which thou hast spoken, is good for vs to doo. And so out of your Tribes I take the Captaynes (menne of wysedom, and that were experte) and made them rulers ouer you: Captaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fyfye, and ouer tenne, and officers among your Tribes. And I charged your Judges that same tyme, sayinge: Heare the cause of your brethern, and * iudge ryghteously betweene euery man and hys brother, and the stranger that is with hym. See that ye knowe no faces in iudgement: * but heare the small as well as the great, and bee afrayde of no manne, for the iudge-

.18.d iudgement is goddes. And the cause that is to * harde for you, dyyng vnto me, and I wyll heare it. And I commaunded you the same season, all the thynges whyche ye shoulde doo. When we departed from Horeb, wee went thorowe all that great and terrible wyldernesse, as ye haue seene a long by the way of the hyll of the Amorites, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and camme to Cades Barne: And I sayde vnto you: Ye d are come vnto the hyll of the Ammorites, whiche the Lord oure GOD wyll geue vnto vs. Behold, the Lord thy God hathe sette the lande beefore thee, go vp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath sayde .20.8 vnto thee, * feare not, neither be dis- .1.3 couraged. But ye came vnto me euery one and sayd: * We wyll send men before vs, to searche vs out the land, and to dyyng vs worde agayn, what waye we muste goe vp by, and vnto what cities we shall come. And the saying pleased me well. And I toke xii. men of you, of euery Tribe one. Whyche departed, and wente vp into the hye countreye, and came vnto the tyuer Escol, and searched it oute, and toke of the fruite of the lande (to declare the plenteousnes therof) in their handes, and broughte it vnto vs, and brought vs worde agayne, and sayde: It is a good lande, whiche the Lorde our God doth geue vs. Notwithstanding ye would not consent to go vp, but were disobedient vnto the mouth of the Lorde your God, and murmured in your tentes, and sayd: Because the Lord hateth vs, therfore hathe he brought vs out of the land of Egypt to delyuer vs into the hand of the Amorites, & to destroy vs. Howe shall e we go vp? Our brethren haue discou- .1.9.d raged our heartes, saying: * The people is greater and taller than we, and haue cities great, & walled euen vp to heauen: and moreouer we haue seene the soonnes of the Enakims there. And I sayde vnto you: Dreade not, nor be afrayde of theym. The Lorde your God which goeth before you, he shall fyghte for you, accordyng to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypt before youre eyes. In the wyldernesse also thou haste seene howe that the Lorde thy God bare thee euen as a man doth beare his sonne in all the way which ye haue gone by, vntyll ye come vnto this place. And yet in this thynge ye dyd not beleue the Lord your god. He went in the way before you, to serche you out a place to pitche youre tentes in, * in fyre by night, that ye myght se Ex.13.d what way to go, & in a cloude by day. And the Lord heard the voyce of your wordes, and was wrothe, and sware, saying: * There shall not one of these Nu.14.g men and of this froward generation, and.26.g see that good land which I sware to f geue vnto your fathers, saue Caleb, the sonne of Jephune, he shall see it, Iosu.14 * and to hym wyll I geue the lande that he hath troden vpon, and to hys children, because he hath folowed the Lorde (wonderfull was the indignation agayne the people, seyng that) Nu.20.c * the Lorde was angry with me, like and.37.c wise for your sakes, saying: Thou also shalt not go in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun, whyche standethe before thee, he shal go in thither. Wolden hym therefore, for he shall cause Nu.14.f Israell to inherite the land. * Moreouer, youre chyldren whiche ye sayde shoulde be a praye, and youre sonnes which in that day had no knowledge betwene good and euill, they shall go in thither, and vnto them wil I geue it and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne youre faces, and take youre iourney into the wildernesse: euen by the way of the redde sea. Then ye answered and sayde vnto me: * we haue synned agaynst the Lord: we will go vp and fighte, accordynge to all that the Lorde our God commaunded vs. And when ye had gird on euery man his weapons of war, behold, ye were ready to goo vp into the hill. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: saye vnto them that they go not vp, and y they fighte not, for I am not amonge you: lest ye fall before youre enemyes; I told you therefore, and ye would not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and wēt presumptuously vp into the hill. And the Amorites which dwelt in that hill, came out against you, and chased you (as bees vse to do) & smote you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came againe, and wepte before the Lord: but the Lord would not here your voyce, nor geue you audience. * And so ye abode in Cades, a long season, accordynge vnto the tyme that ye remayned in other places.

Then we * turned our face, and toke our iourney into the wyldernesse, euen by the way of the redde sea as the Lorde spake vnto me. And wee compassed mounte Seir a long tyme. And the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Ye haue compassed thys mountayne long ynough, tourne you northwarde. And warne thou the people, saying: Ye shall goe thorowe the coaste of your brethren the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir, and they shall be afrayde of you: Take ye good hede vnto youre selues therefore. Ye shall not prouoke them: for I will not geue you of their land, no not so much as a foote breadth, * because I haue geuē mount Seir vnto Esau to possesse, ye shal bye meate of them for money to eate, and ye shal procure water of them for money to drynke. For the Lord thy God hath blessed thee in all the workes of thy hande. He knewe thy entryng into this greate wildernesse this .xl. yeares, and the Lord thy God hath ben with thee, so that thou haste lacked nothyng. And when we were departed from our brethren, the children of Esau, whyche dwelte in Seir, the plain way from Elath, and from Ezion Gaber, we tourned and went by the waye of the wyldernesse of Moab. And the Lord said vnto me: * Thou shalte not fyght agaynst the Moabites, nether moleste them to battaile, for I will not geue thee of their land to possesse: because I haue geuen Ar vnto the children of Loth to possesse. The terrible people the * Emims dwelte therin in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims, whyche also were taken for Giauntes, as the Enakims: whome the Moabites cal Emims. The Horims dwelte in Seir beefore tyme, whose possession the children of Esau occupied, and destroyde them beefore them, and dwelte in their stede: as Israell dyd vnto the land of his possession, whiche the Lord gaue them. Nowe ryse vp (sayd I) and get you ouer the ryuer Zared: and we wente ouer the ryuer Zared. The space in whiche we came frome Cades barne vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer Zared was .xxxviii. yeres: vntyll all the generation of the men of warre were wasted out from among the hoste, as the Lord sware vnto them. * For in deede the hande of the Lorde was against them, to destroy them frome among the host, tyll they were consumed. And so it came to passe, that all the men of warre wer consumed and deade from amonge the people. And the lord spake vnto me, saying: Thou shalt go thorowe Ar the coast of Moab this daye: and when thou commest nyghe vnto the children of Ammon, thou shalte not lay siege vnto them, nor moue warre agaynst them. For I wyll not geue thee of the lande of the children of Ammon a possession, but I haue geuen it vnto the children of Loth to possesse. That also is taken for a lande of Gyauntes, and Gyauntes dwelte therin in olde tyme, whome the Ammonites call Zamzummims. * A people that was greate, & manye, and talle, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed them beefore them, and they succeeded them in the inheritance, and dwelt in theyr stede: as he dyd for the children of * Esau, whyche dwelte in Seir whan he destroyed the Horims beefore them, they conquered theyr possession, and dwelt in their stede vnto this day. And the Auims whyche dwelte in Hazarim, euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims, whyche came oute of Caphthor, destroyed them, and dwelte in their

E them and dwelte in theyr steade. Rise ye vp therefore, and take youre iourneye ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, Nu.21.f * I haue geuen into thy hande Sehon the Amorite king of Hesbon, and hys lande. Goe to therefore and conquere, and prouoke hym to battell. This day wil I begynne to send the feare and dreade of thee, vpon al nations that are vnder all the heauen: soe that they whiche here speake of thee, shall tremble and quake before thee. And so I sent messengers out of the wildernes of Kidmoth vnto Sehon king of Hesbon, with wordes of peace Nu.21.e saynge: * I wil go through thy lande Deu.20. I will goe alonge by the hye waye: I F will neyther tourne vnto the ryghte hand nor to the lefte. Thou shalte sell me meate for money for to eate, and geue me water for money to drynke, Onelye graunte me, that I maye goe through on my foote (as the childzen of Esau which dwel in Seir, and the Moabites whiche dwell in Ar, didde vnto me) vntill I become ouer Iordā into the lande whyche the Lorde oure God geueth vs. But Sehon the king of Hesbon woulde not let vs passe by hym, for the Lorde thy God hardened hys spirite, and made his hearte tough because he woulde deliuer hym into thy hande as it is come to passe thys daye. And the Lorde sayde vnto mee: beholde, I haue begon to set Sehon Nu.21.g and hys lande before thee: goe to and Deu.29 conquere, and possesse his land. * Thē G both Sehon and all hys people came out against vs to fyghte at Jaza. And the Lorde set hym before vs, and wee smote hym and hys sonnes and al his people. And wee tooke all hys cyties the same season and slue the men, wemen and childzenne of all the Cytyes and let nothynge remaine, saue the cattell onelye we caugh vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cities which we tooke, frome Aroer whiche is by the brynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and frō the citie that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one City to strōg for vs. The Lord oure God deliuered all vnto vs: onelye vnto the lande of the chyldzen of Ammon thou camest not, nor vnto euerye place of the riuer Jabok, nor vnto the Cityes in the mountaines, nor vnto whatsoeuer the Lorde our God forbad vs.

¶ The iii. Chapter.

THen we tourned and wente vp by the way to Basan. * And A Og the kyng of Basā came Nu.21.g out agaynst vs, he and al hys Deu.29.b people to battell at Edzai. And the Lorde sayde vnto mee: feare hym not, for I wyll deliuer hym and all hys people, and hys lande into thy hande, and thou shalte doe vnto hym, as thou dyddest vnto Sehon kynge of the Amorytes, whyche dwelte at Hesbon. And so the Lorde oure God deliuered into our handes, Og also the kynge of Basan & al hys folke. And we smot hym, vntyll none was lefte hym aliue And we toke all hys Cityes the same season, (neyther was there a Cytye which we toke not from theym) euen thzee scoze cityes throughoute all the region of Argob, the kingdome of Og in Basan. All these cities also were made stronge wyth hye walles, gates and barres, besyde vnwalled townes a greate manye. And wee vtterlye destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Sehon kyng of Hesbon, bzyngyng to nought all the cities, with menne wemen and childzenne. But all the cattell and the spoyle of the Cyties, wee caughte for our selues. And thus we toke the same season, out of the hande of twoe Kyn- B ges of the Amorytes, the lande that was on the other side Jordan from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (whyche Hermon the Sydons call Sirion, and the Amorytes call it Senir) all the Cities that laye in the playne, and all Gilead and all Basan vnto Salecha and Edzai, Cytyes of the kyngedome of Og in Basan. For onelye Og kyng of Basan remained of the remnant of the Giantes, whose bed was a bedde of yron. And is it not yet at Rabah amonge the childzen of Ammon? nyne cubyttes doeth the length thereof contayne, and foure cubytes the breadeth of it, after the cu-

And the reste of Gilead, and all Basan of the kyngedome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe tribe of Manasse: euen all the region of Argob with all Basan: whiche is called the lande of gyantes. Iair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coastes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called theim after his owne name: Basan Hauoth Iair vnto thys daye. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir. And vnto the Rube-

And I commanded you the same tyme, saying: The Lord your God hath giuen you this lande to enioye it: ye shall go harnessed before your brethren, the chyldren of Israell all that are mete for the war. Your wiues onely, your chyldren, and your cattell (for I wote that ye haue muche cattell) shall abide in your cities, whiche I haue geuen you, vntyll the Lorde haue geuen rest vnto youre brethren as well as vnto you, and vntill they also haue conquered the lande, whiche the Lord youre God hath geuen them beyonde Iordan: and then shall ye returne agayne, euery man vnto his possession which

Ye shall not feare them, for the lord your God, he shal fight for you. And I besought the Lord the same tyme, sayinge: O Lord God, thou hast begon to shewe thy seruaunt, thy greatnesse, and thy mighty hand: for eis where is there a God in heauen, or in earthe, that can doo after thy workes, & after thy power? let me go ouer and see the good land that is beyōd Iordan, that goodly mountain, and Libanon. • But the Lorde was angry with me for youre sakes, and wold not heare me. And ỳ lord said vnto me: Be content, speake no more vnto me of this matter. Get thee vp into the toppe of the hyll, and lyft vp thyne eies westward, northward, southwarde, and eastward, and beholde it with thyne eyes, for thou shalte not go ouer this Iordan. But charge Iosua: and courage hym, and bolden him. • For he shall go before this people, and he shall deuide vnto them the lande which thou shalt see, and so we abode in the valey ouer against the house of Peor.

HEare O Israel, thou passest ouer Jordan this daye, to go in, and conquere Nations, greatter and myghtyer then thy selfe: cities greate, and walled vp to heauen, a people greate and talle, euen the chyldrene of the Enakyms, whyche thou knowest of, & of whom thou hast heard saye, who wil stande before the chyldren of Enake? Understande therfore this day, that the Lord thy God is euen hee, whiche goeth ouer before thee, as a (deuouring and) a consuming fier, he shal destroy them and he shall bryng them down before thy face. He shall caste them out, and dryue them to naught quickly, as the Lord hath sayd vnto the. Speake not thou in thyne hart (after that the lord thy God hath caste theym oute before thee) saying: for my righteousnes the Lorde hath brought me in, to possesse this lande: Nay: but for the wickednesse of these nations, the Lord hathe caste theim out before thee. It is not for thy righteousnesse sake, or for thy right hert, that thou goest to possesse their lande: But for the wickednes of these nations, the Lorde thy God dooth caste them out before thee, euen to performe the worde which the lord thy God sware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob. Understande therefore, that it is not for thy righteousnes sake, that the Lorde thy God dothe geue thee thys good lande to possesse it, seyng thou art a stiffnecked people. Remembre and forgette not, howe thou prouokedst the Lorde thy God in the wyldernes, sence the day that thou dydst departe out of the lande of Egypt, vntyll ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled against the Lorde. Also in Horeb ye angred the Lorde, so that the Lorde was wrothe with you, euen to haue destroyed you when I was gone vp into the mount to receaue the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntment, which the lord made with you. And I abode in the hyll.xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes, when I neyther dyd eate breade nor drynke water. And the Lorde deliuered me two tables of stone, wrytten wyth the fynger of God, and in them was accordyng to all the wordes, whiche the Lord sayd vnto you in the mounte oute of the myddest of the fyre in the day, of the gatheryng togethers. And whenne the .xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the two tables of stone, the tables of the couenant, and the Lord saide vnto me. Vp, and get the down quickely from hēce, for thy people whichthou hast brought out of Egypt, haue marred all. They are tourned attonce out of the waye, whyche I commaunded them, and haue made theym a molten image. Furthermore, the Lord spake vnto me, saying: I haue sene this people, and behold, it is a stiffnecked people, let me alone, that I may destroye them, and put oute the name of theym from vnder heauen, and I will make of the a myghty nation, and greatter than they be. And I turned me, and came downe from the hill (euen from the hill that burnt with fyre) and the two tables of the appoyntment were in my handes. And I looked, and beholde, ye had synned agaynst the Lord your God, and had made you a molte calfe, and had tourned attonce oute of the way, whiche the Lord had commaunded you. And I toke the two tables, and caste them out of my two handes, and brake them before youre eyes. And I fell downe flat before the Lorde: euen as at the fyrste tyme. and .xl. dayes and xl. nyghtes I dyd neyther eate breade nor drynke water, because of all your synnes, which ye synned, in doing wickedly in ye sight of the Lord in that ye prouoked hym vnto wrathe. For I was afrayd that for the wrath and fiersnes wherwith the Lord was moued against you, he woulde haue destroyed you. But the Lorde herd me at that tyme also. The Lord was very angry with Aaron also, euen to haue destroyed hym, and I made made intercession for Aaron also the same tyme. And I toke youre sinne, the calf which ye had made, and burnt hym with fier, and stamped hym and grounde hym a good, euen vnto small duste. And I caste the duste thereof into the brooke, that descended oute of the mounte. Also at the burninge at the tentation, and at the sepulchres of lust ye angred the Lord, likewise whē the Lorde sent you from Cades barne saying: go vp, and conquere the lande whiche I haue geuen you. Ye disobeyed the mouth of the Lord your god and neyther beleued hym nor herkned vnto his voyce. Ye haue bene disobedient vnto the Lord, sence the day that I knewe you. And I fell downe flat before the Lorde xl. daies and xl nightes which I laye there, for the Lorde sayde that hee woulde destroye you. I made intercession therfore vnto the Lord, and sayde: O Lorde God, destroye not thy people and thyne inheritaunce, whiche thou haste delyuered thorough thy greatnesse and whiche thou haste broughte oute of Egypte thrugh a myghtie hande. Remembre thy seruauntes Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob, and looke not vnto the stoburnesse of thys people, nor to theyr wyckednes and synne: lest the land whēce thou broughtest them say: The Lorde is not able to bryng thē into the lande whiche he promised them: and because he hated them, therfore he hath caryed them out, to slaye them in the wildernesse. Beholde, they are thy people, and thyne inheritaunce whiche thou broughtest in thy myghtie power and in thy stretched out arme.

The. x. Chapter.

AT the same season the Lorde sayde vnto me: hewe the two tables of stone like vnto the fyrst, and come vppe vnto me into the mounte, and make thee an Arcke of wood, and I wyll wryte in the tables the woordes that were in the fyrst tables whiche thou brakeste, and thou shalte put theym in the Arcke. And I made an Arke of Sethem wood, and hewed twoe tables of stone: like vnto the fyrste, and went vp into the mountayne, hauyng the two tables in mine hande. And he wrote in the tables ac cordynge to the fyrst, wrytynge (the ten verses which the Lorde spake vnto you in the mounte oute of the myddes of the fyer, in the day of the gatheryng together) and the Lorde gaue thē vnto me. And I departed, and came downe frō the hill, and put the tables in the Arke which I had made: and there they bee, as the Lorde commanded me. And the childzen of Israell tooke theyr iourneye from Beroth of the childzenne of Jakan to Mosera, where Aaron dyed, and was buryed and Eleazar hys sonne became preest in hys steade. From thence they departed vnto Gadgad: and from Gadgad to Jathbath a lande whiche hath ryuers of water. The same season the Lorde separated the Tribe of Leui to beare the Arke of the appointmente of the Lord, and to stand before the Lord, and to minister vnto him, and to bielle in his name vnto thys daye, wherefore the Leuites haue no part nor inheritaunce with theyr brethren. But the Lord is theyr inherytaunce as the Lorde thy God hath promised them. And I taried in the mount, euen as at the fyrste tyme. xl. dayes and. foure nyghtes, and the Lorde herkened vnto me at that time also, and the LORD woulde not destroye thee. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: vp, and go forth in the iourneyes before the people, that they maye go in and conquere the lande whyche I sware vnto theyr fathers, to geue vnto theym. And nowe Israell what doeth the LORD thy GOD require of thee but to feare the Lorde thy GOD, and to walke in all hys wayes, to loue him, and to serue the Lorde thy God, with all thyne hearte, and with all thy soule: Namelye, that thou keepe the commaundementes of the LORD and hys ordeynaunces whyche I commaunde thee thys daye, for thy wealthe. And if any man haue planted a vineyarde, and haue not made it common; and let him go for euer, that he go and returne agayne vnto his house, lest he dye in battayle, and another make it common. And let the officers speake further vnto the people and saye: If any man feare and be faynt harted, let him go and returne vnto his house, lest he make his brethren harte faynt as well as his. And when the officers haue made an ende of speakynge vnto the people, they shall make captaynes of warre ouer them. When thou comest nye vnto a citie to fyght agaynst it, offer the peace. Luke. 13 shalte not see thy brothers asse or oxe fall downe by the waye, and withdrawe thy selfe from them: but shalte helpe him to heue him vp agayne.

The woman shall not weare that whyche partayneth vnto the man, neither shall a man putte on womannes rayment. For all that do so, are abhomination vnto the Lorde thy God.

If thou chaunce vppon a byrdes nest by the way, in whatsoeuer tree it be, or on the grounde, whether they be younge, or egges, and the damme sytteynge vppon the younge, or vppon the egges: Thou shalt not take the damme with the ponge. But shalte in anye wyse let the damme goo, and take the younge to the, that thou mayest prosper and prolonge thy dayes. When thou buyldest a newe house, thou shalt make a battilmente on the rouffe, that thou lade not bloude vpon thine house if any man fall therof. Thou shalte not sowe thy vyneyarde with diuerse seedes: lest the fruite of the seede whyche thou hast sowen, and the fruits of thy vyneyarde be defyled. Thou shalt not plowe with an oxe, and an asse together. Thou shalte not weare a garmente made of woll and flaxe together. ✠ Thou shalte make the gardes (in the hemmes,) vppon the foure quarters of thy vesture, wherewyth thou coueresi thy selfe. If a man take a wyfe, and when he hath lyen with her, hate her, and lay shamefull thynges vnto her charge, and bryng vppe an euyll name vpon her, and saye: I toke thys wyfe, and when I came to her, I founde her not a mayde: Then shall the father of the damsell and the mother bryng forth the tokens of the damsels virginitie vnto the elders of the cytie in the gate. And the damsels father shall saye vnto the elders: I gaue my daughter vnto thys man to wyfe, and he hateth her: and lo, he layeth shamefull thynges vnto her charge, sayinge: I founde not thy daughter a mayde. And yet these are the tokens of my daughters virginitie. And they shall spreade the vesture before the elders of the citie. And the elders of the citie shal take ✠ man and chastice hym, and mearce hym in an hundred sycles of syluer, and giue the vnto the father of the damsell, because he hath brought vp an euill name vpon a mayde of Israell. And she shalbe hys wyfe, and he maye not put her away all hys dayes. But and if the thinge be of a suertie, that the damsell be not founde a vyrgyn, ✠ they shall bryng the damsell to the doore of her fathers house, and the men of that cytie shall stone her with stones to deathe, because shee hath wrought ye of Israell, so playe the whore in her fathers house. And so thou shalte put euyll away from thee. • Yf a man be founde lyinge with a woman that hath a wedded husband, they shal dye either other of them: both the man that laye with the wyfe, and also the wyfe: and so thou shalt put away euyll from Israell. Yf a mayde be handfasted vnto an husbande, and then a man fynde her in the towne, and lye with her, ye shall bringe them both, out vnto the gates of the same cytie, and shal stone them with stones to death: The damsell, because she cryed not, beynge in the cytie. And the man, because he hath humbled hys neyghbours wife, and thou shalt put awaye euyll from thee. But yf a man finde a betrouthed damsell in the fielde, and force her, and lye with her: Then the man that laye with her shall dye alone, but vnto the damsell thou shalte doo no hurte: because there is in the damsell no cause of death. For as when a man ryseth agaynste hys neyghboure, and slayeth hym, euen so is this matter. For he founde her in the fieldes, and the betrouthed damsell cryed: and ther was no man to succour her. • Yf a man fynde a mayde that is not betrouthed, and take her, & lye with her, and they be founde: Then the man that laye with her, shall gyue vnto the damsels father, fyfte sycles of syluer. And shee shalbe hys wyfe, because he hath humbled her: and he may not putte her awaye all hys dayes. • No man shall take his fathers wife nor vnheale his fathers couerynge.

No one that is gelded or hath his preuy membres cutte of, shall come into the congregation of the Lorde. And he that is borne of a common woman, shall not come into the congregation of the Lorde, no, not in the tenth generation he shall not enter into the congregation of the Lorde. The Ammonites and the Moabites shal not come into the congregation of the Lorde, no, not in the tenth generation, neo, they shall neuer come into the congregation of the Lorde: because they mette you not with breade and water, in the waye, when ye came oute of Egypte, and because they hyred agaynste the Num 22 Balaam the sonne of Beor, of Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse the Neuertheles the Lorde thy God would not herken vnto Balaam, but the Lorde thy God turned the curse to a blessing vnto the, because the Lorde thy God loued the. Thou shalte not seke the prosperitie or wealth of them all thy B dayes for euer. • Thou shalte not abhorre an Edomite, for he is thy brother: neyther shalte thou abhorre an Egiptian, because thou wast a straunger in hys lande. The chyldren that are begotten of them shall come into the congregation of the Lorde, in the thyrde generation. When thou goest oute with the hoaste agaynste thyne enemyes, kepe the from all wickednes If there be amonge you any man that is vncleane by the reason of vncleannesse that chaunceth hym by nyghte, let hym goo oute of the hoaste, and not come in agayne into the hoaste, but at euen lette hym washe hym selfe with water, & then when the son is downe, lette hym come into the hoste againe, C

Thou shalte haue a place also without the hoaste, whyther thou shalte resorte to, (for thy naturall necessitie) and thou shalte haue a sharpe poynte vppon thy wepon, and when thou wylte ease thy selfe, dygge therwyth, and turne and couer that whyche is departed from thee. For the LORDE thy God walketh in the myddest of thyne hoaste, to rydde thee, and to sette thyne enemyes before thee. Therefore shall the place of thyne hoaste be pure, that he see noo vncleane thynge in the, and soo turne hym selfe from thee. Thou shalte not deliuer vnto hys Mayster the seruaunte whyche his escaped from hys Mayster vnto thee.

He shall dwell with thee, euen amonge among you, in what place he hymselfe lyketh beste, in one of thy cities wher it is good for hym, and thou shalt not vexe hym. There shalbe no whore of the daughters of Israell, nor whore keper of the sonnes of Israell. Thou shalte neyther bringe the hyre of an whore, nor the price of a dogge into the house of the Lorde thy God, in any maner of vowe: for euen both of them are abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt not hurte thy brother by vsurye of money, or by vsurye Exo. 22 d Leui. 25 f of corne, nor by vsurye of anye thynge that he maye be hurte withall. Vnto a straunger thou mayest lende vpon vsurye, but not vnto thy brother, that the Lorde thy God maye bielle the in all that thou settest thyne hande to, in the lande whyther thou goest to conquere it. When thou haste vowed a Nu 30 d Eccl. 5. a Baru. 6 c vowe vnto the Lorde thy God, thou shalt not be slacke to paye it. For the Lorde thy God wyll surely require it of the, and it shalbe synne in the. If thou shalte leaue vowyng, it shalbe no synne in the: but that whiche is once gone oute of thy lyppes, thou muste kepe and do: accordynge as thou haste vowed vnto the Lorde thy God of a freewyll: and as thou haste spoken with thy mouth. When thou commest vnto thy neyghbours vineyarde, thou mayest eate grapes thy bellye full at thyne owne pleasure: but thou shalte put none in thy vessel. Euen so when thou commest into thy neyghbours matt. 12 a corne, thou mayest plucke the eares with thyne hande, but thou shalte not moue a sicle vnto thy neybours corne.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

When a man hath taken a wyfe and maryed her, yf she synde no fauoure in hys eyes, because he Iere. 3. a Mala. 2 d mat. 19. a hath espyed some vncleannesse in her. Then let hym wryte her a bill of deuorcement, and put it in her hande, and sende her oute of hys house. And when she is departed out of his house, let her go, and be an other mans wyfe. And yf the seconde husbande hate her, let hym wryte her also a letter of deuorcement, and put it in her hande, and sende her out of hys house, or the second man dye which toke her to wyfe, her fyrste man which sente her away, maye not take her agayne to be hys wyfe, after that she is defyled. For that is abhominacion in the syght of the Lord. And thou shalt not cause the lande to synne, whiche the Lorde thy God shall geue the to enherite. When a man taketh a new wyfe, he shall not go a warfare neyther shall be charged with anye busynesse, but shalbe free at home one yeare, and reioyce with hys wyfe which he hath taken. No man shal take the nether, or the vpper mylstone to pledge, for then he shall hurte a mans lyfe. If anye man be founde stealynge any of hys brethren the chyldren of Israell, and abuseth hym, or selleth hym, the the same shall dye. And thou shalt put euyll away from the. Take hede to thy selfe in case concernynge the plage of leprosie, that thou obserue diligently. And ye shall do accordynge to all that the Prieste the Leuites shal teache you. Euen as I commaunded them so ye shal obserue to do. Remember what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto Myr. I am by the waye after that ye were come oute of Egypte. When thou doest lende thy brother any thyng, thou shalte not goo into hys house to fetche a pledge from thence: but shall stande without, and the man that borroweth it of thee, shall bringe the pledge oute vnto thee: Furthermore yf it be a poore bodye, thou shalte not slepe with his pledge, but deliuer hym the pledge againe when the sunne goeth downe, that he maye slepe in hys owne rayment, and bielle thee. And it shall be ryghteousnesse vnto thee, before the Lorde thy God. Thou shalte not defraude an hyred seruaunte that is nedye and poore, whether he be of thy brethren, or of the straunger that are in thy land within thy gates: but shalt geue hym his hyre the same day, and let not the sunne go downe theron. For he is nedye, and therwith sustayneth hys lyfe: least he cry agaynst the vnto the Lord, and it be syn vnto the.

The fathers shall not dye for the children, nor the children for the fathers: but euery man shall dye for hys owne syn. Thou shalt not hynder the righte of the straunger, nor of the fatherlesse nor take a widowes raiment to pledg But remembre that thou wast a seruaunte in Egypte, and how the Lord thy GOD deliuered the thence. And therefore I commaunde the to do this thinge. When thou cuttest downe thyne harueste in the fielde, and haste forgotte a shefe in the field, thou shalt not go agayne to fet it. But it shalbe for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the widowe, that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thyne hand. When thou beatest downe thyne olyue tree, thou shalt not turne agayne to gather by that, thou lefteſt behynde the: but it shalbe for the stranger, the fatherlesse and the widowe.
When thou gatherest thy vyneyarde, thou shalt not gather ẏ grapes cleane after the: but leaue them for the straun ger, the fatherlesse and the widowe.
And remembre that thou also waste a seruaunt in the lande of Egipte: and therefore I commaunde the to do this thynge.

a WHen thou arte come into the land which the Lord thy God giueth the to enherite, and hast enioyed it, & dwelest therein: • Take of the firste of all the fruite of the earthe, and bringe it oute of the lande, that the Lorde thy GOD giueth thee, and putte it in a maunde, and go vnto the place which the Lord thy God shall chose to set his name in it. And thou shalt come vnto the Preist, that shalbe in those dayes, and saye vnto him. I knowledge this daye vnto the Lorde thy God, that I am come vnto the countrey which the Lorde sware vnto oure fathers for to giue vs. And the Preist shal take the b maunde oute of thyne hande, and sette it downe before the aulter of the Lord thy God, and thou shalt answere and saye before the Lorde thy God: The Syrians went aboute to destroye my father, • and he went downe into Egypte, and soiourned there with a fewe folke, and grewe there vnto a nacion greate, mightie, and full of people. • And the Egyptians vexed vs, and troubled vs, and laded vs, with most cruell bondage. And whan we cryed vnto the Lorde God of oure fathers, • the Lorde hearde oure voyce, and loked on our aduersitie, laboure, and oppression. And the LORDE • brought vs oute of Egypte in a mighty hande, and a stretched oute arme, and in great terrible nesse and sygnes, and wonders. ✠ And he hath brought vs into this place, and hath geuen vs this land that floweth with mylke and honye. • And nowe ✠ loo, I haue brought the first fruites of the lande, which thou (O Lord) hast geuen me. When thou haste made an ende of tythynge of all the tythes of thyne encrease: the thyrde yeare, which is the yeare of tithynge: thou shalte giue it vnto the Leuite, the straungers, the fatherlesse and the wyddowes, that they may eate within thy gates, and fill themselues And thou shalte saye before the Lorde thy God. • I haue brought the halowed thinges oute of myne house, and haue giuen theim vnto the Leuytes, the straungers, the fatherlesse and the wyddowes, accordynge to all the commaundementes which thou hast commaunded me: I haue not ouerskypped thy commaundementes, nor forgotten them. I haue not eaten thereof in my mourning, nor suffred ought to perysshe thorowe vnclennesse, nor giuen ought thereof for the deade, but haue herkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde my God, and haue done • after all that thou hast commaunded me. ✠ • ✠ Loke downe therefore from thy holy habitation, euē from heauen and blesse thy people Israell, and the land which thou hast giuen vs (as thou sworest vnto our fathers) a lande that floweth with milke and honey. This day the Lord thy God hath commaunded the to do these ordeynaunces, and lawes, kepe thou them, and do them, with all thine harte, and all thy soule. • Thou hast set vp the Lorde this day to be thy GOD, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his ordeinaunces, his commaundements and his lawes and to herken vnto his voyce. • And the Lorde hath set the vp this daye, to be a seuerall people vnto hym (as he hath promised the) and that thou kepe his commaundementes, and to make the hyghe aboue all nacions (which he hath made) in prayse, in name, and honoure: • and that thou mayest be an holye people vnto the Lord thy God, as he hath sayde. ✠

And ỹ Lord shal bryng a natiō vpon the frō far of, & from the end of ỹ world as swift as an Egle flieth: a nation whose tonge thou shalte not vnderstande: a harde fauoured nation, which shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion of the younge. ¶ The. xxix. Chapter.

THese are the woordes of the . appointmente, whyche the LORDE commaunded Moyses, to make wyth the chyldrenne of Israell in the lande of Moab, beside the appoyntment whyche he made wyth them in Horeb, and Moses called al Israell, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue sene al that the Lorde did before your eyes in the lande of Egypte, vnto Pharao and vnto all his seruauntes, and vnto all hys lande, the greate temptations whyche thyne eyes haue seene, thos great miracles and wonders. And yet the LORDE hath not geuen you an hearte to perceaue, and eyes to se, and eares to heare, vnto thys day.
And I haue ledde you forty yeare in the wyldernesse: and youre clothes are not waxed olde vppon you, and thy shoowe is not waxed olde vppon thy foote, Yee haue eaten no breade nor dronke wyne or stronge drynke, that yee myghte knowe, how that I am the LORDE youre GOD. *

21.c * And ye came vnto this place: & Sehon the kyng of Hesebon, & Og kyng of Basan, came out agaynst vs vnto battaile, and we smote them: and toke their lande, and gaue it for an inheritaunce vnto the Rubenites and Gadites, and to the half tribe of Manasse. 4.a * Kepe therfore the wordes of this appointmēt, and do them, that ye may vnderstand al that ye ought to do. Ye stand this day euery one of you before the Lord your God: your Captayns your tribes, your elders, your officers and all the men of Israell: your children also, your wyues, and the stranger that is in youre hoste, * from the hewer of thy wodde, vnto the drawer of thy water, that thou shouldest goe into the appointment of the Lord thy 17.a God, and into his othe * whiche the Lord thy God maketh with thee this daye. For to make thee a people vnto him self, and that he may be vnto thee a God, as he hath sayd vnto thee, and as he hathe sworne vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob. I make not this bond and this othe with you onely, but bothe with hym that standeth here with vs this day before the Lorde oure God, and also with hym that is not here with vs thys daye. For ye know, how we haue dwelt in the land of Egypt, and how we came thorough the myddes of the nations, whyche yee passed by. And ye haue haue sene their abhominations, and their Idoles, (wood and stone, siluer and golde) which were among them. Lest there be among you man or woman kinred or tribe, whose hart turneth away thys daye from the Lorde youre God, to goe and serue the gods of these nations: and leste there be amonge you some roote, that beareth gall and wormewood, so that when he heareth the wordes of this othe, he 5.c blesse hym selfe in his hearte, sayinge. I shall haue peace, I will walke in the meaning of mine owne heart. To put the dronken to the thyrstie, And so the Lorde will not consent to bee merciefull vnto hym, but then the wrath of the Lorde, and his gelousie shall smoke agaynst that man and all the curses that are wrytten in this booke, shall lyghte vpon hym, and the Lorde shall do out his name from vnder heauen, and the Lorde shall seperate hym vnto euil, out of all the tribes of Israell, according vnto all the curses of the appointmente, that are wrytten in the boke of this lawe. So that the generatiō to come of your childrē D that shall rise vppe after you, and the straunger that shall come frō a farre land shal say, when they se the plages of that lād, and ỹ diseases wherwith the Lord hath smitten it, howe all the lādes is burnte vp with brimstone, & salt, & that it is nether sowen nor beareth nor any gras groweth therin like as in the place of ỹ ouerthrowing of * Sodō, Gomor, Adama and Zeboim whiche the Lorde ouerthrewe in his Ge.19c wrath and angre. Euen then shall all nations say: * Wherfore hath the Lord Jer.22b done of thys fashion vnto this lande? and c. O howe fearse is thys great wrath? 3.Re.2b And men shall say: because they lefte the Testamente of the Lorde God of theyr fathers, whiche he made wyth them, when he brought them oute of the lande of Egypte. For they went and serued straung Goddes and worshipped theym: Goddes whyche they knowe not, and whyche haue geuen them naughte. And the wrathe of the Lord waxed whote agaynst thys land to bringe vpon it all thee curses that are wrytten in this boke, And the lord cast them out of their lande in angre, wrath, and greate indignation, and cast them into a straunge land as this daye beareth witnes. The secrettes of the Lord our God are opened vnto vs, and to our childrē for euer, that 1Co.4a we may do al the wordes of this lawe.

When all these woordes are B come vppon thee, the blessynge and the curse whyche I haue sette before the, thou shalte tourne vnto thyne hearte, amonge all the natyons whyther the LORDE thy GOD hath thrust thee, and come agayne vnto the Lorde

And the Lozde thy God wyll tourne the captiuitie, and haue compassion vpon thee and will tourne, and sette thee agayne from all the nacions, amonge which the Lozde thy God shal haue scattered thee. Thoughe thou wast calle vnto the extreame partes of heauen: euen from thence wyll the Lozde thy God gather thee, and from thence wyll he fet thee, and the Lozde thy God wyll bzynge thee into the lande whyche thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt enioye it. But thou shalte tourne, and hearken vnto the voyce of the Lozde, and do all his commaundementes, whych I commaund thee this day. And the Lozd thy God wil make the plenteous in al the wozkes of thyne hande, in the fruit of thy bodye, and in the fruite of thy catteil, and if thyne hearte tourne aswaye, so that thou wilte not heare: but shalte goe astraye and woozshippe straunge goddes: and serue them, I pronounce vnto you also thys daye that ye shall surelye perysshe, and that yee shall not prolonge your dayes vppon the lande whether thou passeste ouer Jozdane, to goe and possesse it. ✠ I call heauen Deu.

AND Moyses went and spake these wozdes vnto all Israel, and sayde vnto them: I am an hundzed and twentye yeare olde thys day, and canne no moze goe out and in. Also the Lozde hath sayde vnto me. ✠ Thou shalte not go ouer thys Jozdan. The Lozde thy God he wyl go ouer before thee, and hee wyll destroye these nations before thee, and thou shalte conquere them. ✠ And Jesua, he shall go before thee as the Lozd hath sayde. And the lord shall gene them ouer before your face, ♁ ye may do vnto them accordinge vnto all the commaundementes whyche I haue commaunded you. Plucke vp youre heartes therefore and be strong, dreade not, nor bee afrayde of theym, for the Lorde thy God hymselfe doeth goe wyth thee. Hee shall not fayle thee, nor forsake thee. And Moyses called vnto Iosua, and sayde vnto hym in the sighte B

Gather the people together: men, women, and children, and the straunger that is within thy gates that they maye heare, and learne and feare the Lorde youre God, and keepe and obserue all the woordes of thys lawe, and that their children which know nothynge, maye heare, and learne to feare the Loorde youre God, as longe as ye lyue in the lande whether ye go ouer Iordan to possesse it. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Beholde thy dais are come, that thou must dye Call Iosua therefore, and stand ye in the Tabernacle of wytnes, that I maye gyue hym a charge. And then my wrath wil ware whote against them E

And muche aduersitie and tribulations shall come vpon them, so that then they will saye: Are not theese troubles come vpon me, because GOD is not with me? And I also wylle surelye hyde awaye my face in that daye for all the euylles sake whyche they shal haue wrought in that they ar tourned vnto straunge goddes. Nu.20a rael, at the waters of stryfe, at Cades in the wyldernesse of Zin: for ye sanctified me not among the chyldren of Israel. Thou shalt therfore se the land before thee, and shalt not go thither vnto the land, which I geue the chyldren of Israell.

The.xxxiii. Chapter.

A THis is the blessing wherwith Moyses the man of God blessed the chyldren of Israell before hys death, and sayd: * The Lord

Exo.3.a came frome Sinai, and shewed hys beames * from Seir vnto them, and Ex.19.a appeared frome mount Pharan, and he came with thousandes of sainctes, and in his right hande, a law of fyre for them. And he loued the people:

Dap.3.a * All his sainctes also are in thy handes. They were smytten to gre after thy feete, and to receaue of thy wordes. Moyses gaue vs a law to be an heritance of the congregation of Iacob. And he was in Israell kynge when the heades of the people, and the trybes of Israell were gathered together. Lette Ruben lyue, and not dye: and bee fewe in numbre. This same also happen to Iuda. And he sayd: Here Lorde the voyce of Iuda, and bryng hym vnto his people: hys handes shall be good ynough for him,

B yf thou helpe hym against hys ennemies. And vnto Leui he sayd: Thumin and Urim shalbe with thee, and with euery one that is godly in thee. Thou dyddest proue hym also in the temptation, and stryuedst with him at the waters of stryfe. He that hath sayde vnto hys father, and to his mother: I haue not seene hym. And he that knewe not hys brethern, nor knewe hys owne chyldern, thole are they that haue obserued thy woorde, and shall keepe thy couenaunt. They shall teache Iacob thy iudgementes, and Israell thy lawe. They shall put cense before thy nose, and the burnte sacrifyce vpon thyne altare. Bleste Lorde his fyrste fruites, and accepte the woorke of hys handes, smyte the loynes of them that ryse against him, and of them that hate hym, that they ryse not agayne. And of Ben Iamin he sayde: The Lordes dearlyng shall dwell in safetie vppon hym, and the Lord shall couer him all the day long, and he shal dwell betwene his shoulders. And of Ioseph he sayde: Blessed of the Lorde is hys lande for the fruites of heauen, therowe the dewe and fyrynges that lye beneathe, and for the sweete fruites of the increase of the sonne, and vpe fruites of the moone: for the fyrste frutes of the principall mountaynes, and for the fruites that the hylles bryngе forthe for euer, and for the fruites of the earthe and fulnesse therof: and for the good C will of him that dwelt in the bushe, shall the blessynge comme vppon the heade of Ioseph, and vpon the toppe of the heade of hym, that was seperated frome among hys brethren, his fyrst borne ore hathe beautie, and hys hornes are as the hornes of an Vnicorne. And with them he shall trouble the nations togyther, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. Thele are also the many thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousandes of Manasses. And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyce Zabulon in thy goyng out, and thou Isachar in thy tents. They shall call the people vnto the hyll, and there they shall offer offerynges of righteousnesse. For they shall suck of the abundaunce of the sea, and of treasure hydde in the sande. And vnto Gad he sayd: Blessed be the roume maker Gad: he dwelleth as a Lyon that catcheth the arme with the head. He sawe therefore hys begynnynge, and that there was a portion there to hide the law geuer, and he came with the heades of the people, and executed the ryghteousnesse of the Lorde, and hys iudgementes with Israell. And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a Lyons whelpe, he shall flowe from Basan. And vnto Nephthali, he said: Nephthali hath abundaunce of Gods good pleasure, and is fylled with the blessyng of the Lorde, and shall haue hys possessyons towarde the southwest. And to Aser he sayd: Aser shall bee blessed with chyldren: he shall be acceptable vnto his brethren, and shall dyppe hys foote in oyle. Thy dwellynge bee yron and brasse, and thyne age bee as thy youth. There is none lyke vnto the God of Israell: which though he sytte vppon the heauen, as vppon an horse, yet is he thy helper, whose glorye is in the celestiall places. The eternall God is thy refuge and vnder the armes of the Euerlastyng GOD shalte thou lyue. He shall cast out the ennemy before thee, and say: Destroye. Israel then shall dwelle in safetie, and alone. And the eye of Jacob shall bee vpon a lande of corne and wyne, and hys heauens shall droppe the dewe. Happye arte thou, O Israell, who is lyke vnto thee? O people, that art saued in the Lord, which is the shield of thy helpe and sworde of thy glory. Thyne enemyes haue lost theyr strength to thee warde, and thou shalte treade vpon the heyghte of theim.

The.xxxiij. Chapter.

AND * Moyses went from the playne of Moab vp into Mount Nebo, and vnto the toppe of † * hyll, that is ouer agaynst Jericho. And the Lord shewed hym all the lande of Gilead, euen vnto Dan, and all Nephthali, and the land of Ephraim, and Manasse, and all the land of Juda: euen vnto the vtmoste sea, and the southe, and the region of the playne of Jericho, the cytie of Palme trees, euen vnto Zoar. And the LORDE sayd vnto him. * This is the lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob, sayinge: I wylle geue it vnto thy seede, I haue caused thee also to see it with thyne eyes, * but thou shalte not goe ouer thyther. So Moyses, the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed there in the lande of Moab, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. And he buryed hym in a valeye, in the lande of Moab, ouer agaynste the howse of Peor, but no man knoweth of hys Sepulchre vnto thys daye. Moyses was an hundred and twentye yeare olde whenne he dyed: hys eye was not dymme, nor hys naturall coloure was abated. And the chyldern of Israell * wept for Moses in the plaine of Moab thirtie dayes. And the dayes of weppynge and mournyng for Moses wer ended. And Josua the sonne of Nun was fulle of the Spyritt of wysedome: * for Moyses hadde put his handes vppon hym. And the chyldren of Israell were obediente vnto hym, and dyd as the Lorde commanded Moyses. And there arose not a Prophete sens in Israell lyke vnto Moyses, whome the Lorde knewe face to face, accordynge vnto all the myracles and wonders, whyche the Lorde sente hym to doo in the lande of Egypt, vnto Pharao & all his seruauntes, and beefore all his land: and accordyng to al that myghtie hand, and all the great dyslons, whyche Moyses shewed in the syght of al Israell.

After the deathe of Moses, the seruant of the Lorde, it happened also, that the LORD spake vnto Iosua, the sonne of Nun, Moyses minister, saying: Moses my seruant is dead. Nowe therefore vp and goe De.11.c ouer Iordan, thou and all this people, vnto the land, the which I geue vnto the children of Israell. * All the places that the sooles of youre feete shall treade vpon, I haue geuen you as I said vnto Moses from the wildernes, and thys Libanon vnto the great ryuer Euphrates: all the lande of the Hethites, euen vnto the greate sea towarde the goyng downe of the sonne, shalbe your coast. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalte doo wisely. Haue not I commaunded thee, that thou shouldest be strong and hardye, and not feare, nor be faynt harted? For I the Lord thy God am with thee, whether so euer thou goest. Then Iosua commaunded thee officers of the people, saying: Go thorowe the middes of the hoste, and commaund the people saing: prepare you vitailes: for after thre dayes ye shal passe ouer this Iordan, to go in & enioy the land, which the Lord your GOD geuethe you to possesse it. And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe Tribe of Manasses spake Iosua: saing: * Remember the word D which Moses the seruāt of the Lord commaunded you, saying: The Lord your God hath geuen you reste, and hath geuen you this land: Your wiues, your children, and youre cattell shall remayne in the lande, whyche Moyses gaue you on thys syde Iordan: but ye shall goe before your brethern, armed all that be men of warre and helpe them vntyll the Lord haue geuen your brethren rest, as he hathe you, and vntill they also haue obtained the lande, which the Lorde your GOD geueth them. And then shall ye returne vnto the land of your possession, and enioye it, whyche lande Moses, the Lordes seruant gaue you on this syde Iordan towarde the sonne rysyng. And they aunswered Iosua J saynge: * All that thou haste commaunded vs, we wyll doo, and whether soeuer thou sendest vs, we wyll go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so wyll we obey thee, only the Lord thy God be with thee, as he was with Moses. And whosoeuer he bee, that doothe disobeye thy mouth, and will not herken vnto thy wordes, in all that thou commandest hym, let him dye: Only be strong and of good courage.

AND Iosua the sonne of Nun sent out of Settim two men to spye secretely, sayinge: Go and viewe the lande, and also Iericho. And they went, and came into a harlots house, named Rahab, & lodged there. And it was tolde the king of Iericho, and said: Behold ther cam men in hither to night, of the childrē of Israel to spy out the countrey.

Jon the kynge of Jericho sente vnto Rahab, sayinge: Bryng forth the men that are come to thee, and which are entred into thyne house: for they be come to search out all the land. And the womā toke the two men, • & hyd them. And said thus in dede ther cam men vnto me, but I wyst not whēce they wer. And about the tyme of the shutting of the gate whenne it was darke, the men went out, whether the men went, I wote not, folowe ye after them quickly, for ye shall ouertake them. But she brought theym vp to the roofe of the house, and • hid them with the stalkes of flaxe, whiche she had lying abrode vpon the roofe. And the menne of the Citie pursued after them, the way to Jordan, euen vnto the fery, and as soone as they whiche pursued after them, were gone oute, they shutte the gate. And or euer they were asleape, she came vp vnto them vpon the roofe, and sayd vnto the mē: I know that the Lord hath geuē you the lande: • For the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and the inhabiters of the land faynte at the presence of you. For we haue herde, how the Lorde • dryed vp the water of the Red sea before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you did vnto the two kynges of the Amorites, that were on the other syde Jordan, • Sehon and Og whom ye vtterly destroyed. And as soone as we had herd these thynges (we were sore afrayd, and) our hartes dyd faynt. And there remained no more courage in any man at the presence of you. For the Lord your God he is the god in heauen aboue, and in earth beneathe. Nowe therefore (I praye you) sweare vnto me • by the Lorde, That as I haue shewed you mercy, ye shall also shewe mercy vnto my fathers house, and geue me a true token. And that ye shall saue alyue both my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my systers, and all that they haue. And that ye shall deliuer our soules from deathe. And the men answered her: Our liues for you to dye, & ye vtter not thys ourc bulines. And when the Lorde hathe geuē vs the land, • we will deale mercifully and truly with the. And then she let them down by a coarde, • thorow a wyndow: For her house was by the towne wall. And she said vnto them, get you into the mountayn, lest the pursuers mete you, and hyde your selues there three dayes, vntyll the pursuers be returned, & then shall ye go your owne waye. And the men sayde vnto her: We will be blamelesse of this thy oth, which thou hast made vs sweare. Beholde, when we come into the land thou shalt bind this purple coard in the windowe, which thou letteste vs downe by. And thou shalt bryng thy father and thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers household euen into thy house. And then who so euer doothe go out at the doores of thy house into the streete, his bloude shall be vpon his own head, & we will be giltlesse. And who so euer shall be with thee in the house, his blood shal be on our head, if any mās hand touch him: And if thou vtter these our wordes, wee will bee quyte of thy othe, whiche thou haste made vs sweare. And she sayd: accordynge vnto youre wordes, so be it: and she sent them away to depart. And she bownd the purple coarde in the windowe. And they departed, and came into the mountain and there abode thre days, vntyll the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought them throughout all the waye, but founde them not. And the two men returned, and descended from the mountayne, and passed ouer, and came to Josua the sonne of Nun, and told him al that had chanced them. And they said vnto Josua: The Lord truly hath deliuered into our handes al the land, & all the inhabiters of the countrey, faynt at the presence of vs.

And Josua ſpake vnto the priests, saying: Take vp the Arke of the couenāt and go before the people. And they toke vp the Arke of the Testament, and went before the people. And the Lozde ſayd vnto Josua: This day wyll I begyn to magnifye thee in the ſyghte of all Iſraell, that they may know how that as I was with Moſes, ſo will I be with thee. And thou ſhalt commaunde the priestes that beare the Arke of the couenant, saying: when ye are come to the edge of the waters of Jozdan, ye ſhal ſtand ſtyll in it. ¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

AND it foztuned, that whā the people were all gone * ouer Jozdan, the Lozd ſpake vnto Josua, saying: Take you twelue men out of the people, out of euery tribe a man. And commaunde you them ſaying: Take you hence out of the myddes of Jozdane (euen out of the place where the priests ſtode in a redines) twelue of the moſte hardeſt) ſtones, which ye ſhal take away with you, & leaue theym in the place, where you ſhall lodge thys nyghte. And Josua called the twelue men, whiche he had prepared of the chyldren of Iſrael, out of euery tribe a man, and Josua ſayd vnto them: Get you before the Arke of the Lozd your God, euen thozow the myddes of Jozdan, * and take vp euery manne of you a ſtone vppon his ſhoulder, accozdinge vnto the number of the Tribes of the chyldren of Iſraell, that this may be a ſigne among you. waters of Jordan deuided at the pre sence of the arke of the appoyntment place where they lodged, and layde them downe there. And Josua set vp twelue stones also in the myddes of Jordan, in the place where the fete of the priests which bare the arke of the testament, stode. And there haue they continued vnto this day. For the prie stes whiche bare the arke stode in the middes of Jordan, vntill all was finished that the Lord cõmaunded Jo-to all that Moyses charged Josua.

And the people hasted and wẽt ouer:

Josu.3.b before the Lorde vnto battayle, tho-rought the playne of Jericho, that day the Lord magnified Josua in the sight of all Israel, & they feared him, as they feared Moses all the dayes of his lyfe. And the Lord spake vnto Jo sua, saying: Commaunde the priests that beare the Arke of wytnesse, to come vp out of Jordan. Josua therfore commanded the priestes, sayinge: D Come ye vp out of Jordan. And whẽ the priestes that bare the Arke of the appointemente of the Lorde were come vp out of the middes of Jordan and as soone as the footes of the priestes frete were set on the dry land, the waters of Jordane returned agayne vnto their place, and wente ouer all theyr bankes, as they did before. And the people came vp out of Jordan the tenthe daye of the fyrste moneth, and pitched in Gilgal, euen in the Easte border of the citie Jericho. And the twelue stones whyche they toke out of Jordan, dyd Josua pitche in Gilgal. And he spake vnto the childerne of Israel, saying: If your childrẽ Ex.12.d shall shew your chyldren, and say Is-vp the water of Jordane before you, vntill ye were gone ouer, as the Lord your God dyd the redde sea, which Ex.14.c gone ouer: that all the people of the worlde maye knowe the hande of the Lorde, how myghtie it is, and that ye myght feare the Lorde your God for

AND it fortuned, that when ¶ all the kynges of the Amorites, which are beyõd Jordane westewarde, and all the kynges of the Cananites which were by the sea, heard how the Lorde had dryed vp the waters of Jordane before the chyldren of Israell vntyll they were gone ouer, their heartes Josu.2.b fainted for feare. And there was no spirite in them any more for the presence of the chyldren of Israell. That same tyme the Lorde sayd vnto Jo- Exo.4.l sua: Make the sharpe knyues (of stone) and go to agayn, and circum-cise the chyldren of Israell the second tyme. And Josua made him sharpe ¶ knyues (of stone) and circumcysed the chyldren of Israell in the toppe of the foreskynnes. And thys is the cause why Josua circumcised all the people that came out of Egipt: Namely such as were males because that al the men of warre, died in the wildernesse by the way, after they came out of Egypte. For all the people that came out were circumcised. But all the people that were borne in the wyl-

wyldernesse by the waye after they came oute of Egypt, were not circumcised. For the children of Israel, walked fortye yeares in the wyldernesse, tyll all the people of the men of warre that came out of Egypte were consumed because they have harkened not vnto the voyce of the Lord: wherfore the Lorde sware, that he wouldе not shewe theym the lande • whiche the Nu.14.f Lorde sware vnto their fathers, that Nu.13 d he would geue vs, euen a lande • that C floweth with milke and honey. And their children whom he set vp in their steade: thē Josua circumcised: for they were vncircumcised, because they circumcised them not by the waye. And when they had circumcised all the people, they abode styll together in the hoost, tyll they were whole. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: this daye I have taken away the shame of Egypt from you: wherefore the name of the same place is called Gilgal vnto thys day. And the children of Israel abode Exo.12a in Gilgal • and held the feast of passeouer, the fourtene daye of the moneth at euen, in the playne of Jericho. And they dyd eate of the corne of the lande on the morowe after passeouer, swete cakes, and parched corne in the selfe same daye. For the • Manna ceased on Exo.17. the morowe after they had begon to D eate of the corne of the lande, neyther had the children of Israell Manna any more, but dydde eate of the corne of the lande of Canaan that yeare. And it fortuned that when Josua was nie to Jericho, he lift vp his eyes and looked, and beholde, there stode a man agaynst hym, having a sweard drawne in hys hande. And Josua wente vnto hym, and sayde vnto him: arte thou on our side, or on our aduersaries. And he said: Naye, but as a captaine of the hoste of the Lorde am I nowe come. And Josua fell on his face to ẏ earth, and dyd reuerence, and sayd vnto him, what saieth my Lorde vnto hys seruaunt. And the captayne of the Lordes hoost sayde vnto Josua, • vo thy shoo of thy fote, for the place wherein thou standest, is holy. And Josua dyd so.

The .vi. Chapter.

AND Jericho was shut vpe and locked because of the children of Israel neyther might anye man go out or in. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, beholde, I have geuen into thine hande Jericho and her kynge, and the stronge men of warre. And ye shall compasse the citie all ye that be menne of warre, and go rōd aboute it once and so shall yee doe syx dayes. And seuen prieستes shall beare before the Arke, seuen trompettes of rammes hornes (that be vsed in the Jubelie.) And the seuenth daye, ye shall compasse the Citie seuen tymes, and the prieستes shall blowe with the trompettes. And when they make a longe blaste wyth the rammes horne, and ye heare the sounde of the horne, all the people shall showte wyth a greate showte. And then shal the wal of the Citie fall downe, and the people shall assend vp euery man streight before hym. And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the prieستes and sayde vnto them, take vp the arke of the appointmente, and lette seuen prieستes beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde And he sayde vnto the people, go and compasse the Cytie: and let hym that is harnessed, goe before the Arke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seuen prieستes bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes, and wente forthe before the arke of the Lorde and blewe with the trompettes, and the arke of the couenaunt of the Lorde followed thē. And all the menne of Armes went before the prieستes, that blewe with the trompettes, and the common people came after the Arcke, and the prieستes that wente and blewe with trompettes. And Josua commaunded the people saying: Ye shall not showte, nor make any noyse wyth youre voyce, neyther shall anye woorde proceede out of your mouth, vntill the day ẏ I bydde you showte, then shall ye showte. And the Arke of the Lorde compassed the Citie, and wente aboute it once they returned into the hoost, and lodged there. And Josua rose earelye in the morning, and the Prieستes toke vp the arke of the Lorde, and seuen prieستes bare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes and wente before the arke of the Lorde, and blewe with the trompettes. And al the men of armes went before theym, but the common people came after the arke of the Lord, whyche went before with the blowynge of the trompettes. And the second day they compalled the citie once, and returned agayne into the hoost, and so they dyd sixe dayes. And when the seuenth daye came, they rose earely: euen with the dawnynge of the daye, and compalled the citie after the same maner seuen tymes: onely that daye they compalled the citie seuen times. And at the seuenth tyme, whan the prieستes blewe with the trompettes. Josua sayd vnto the people, shoute, for the Lorde hath geuen you the Citie. And ¶ the citie shalbe damned both it and all that are therein, vnto the Lord: onelye Rahab the harlotte shall lyue, and all that are with her in the house, because she hyd the messengers that we sent. And in any wise be ye ware of the excommunicate thynges, least ye make your selues excommunicate, and take of the excommunicate thinges, & make the hoost of Israell excommunicate and trouble it. But all the siluer, gold vessels of brasse, and yron, shalbe consecrate vnto the Lorde, and all shall come into his treasurie. And the people showted, and blewe with trompettes. And when the people hearde the sounde of the trompe, they shewted with a greate shoute, and the wal fell downe, soo that the people wente vp into the citie, euery man strayghte before hym, and toke the cytie. And they vtterlye destroyed all that was in the citie, both manne and woman, younge and olde, oxe, sheepe and asse, with the edge of the swearde. Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that had spyed out the countrey: goo into the harlottes house, and bringe oute thence the woman, and all that shee hath, as ye sware to her. And the younge men that were spes, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father and mother, and her brethren, and all that she had. And they broughte out all her kynred, and put them without the hoost of Israel. And they burnt the citie with fire, and all that was therein. Onely the siluer and the gold the vessels of brasse and yron they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Lorde. And Josua saued Rahab the harlotte, and her fathers housholde, and all that she had, and she dwelte in Israel, euen vnto this daye, because she hyd the messengers, whych Josua sente to spye out Jericho. And Josua sware at that tyme, sayinge: cursed be the man before the Lorde, that ryseth vp, and buyldeth this citie Jericho: he shall laye the foundation in hys eldest sonne, and in his yongest son shall he set vp the gates of it. And soo the Lorde was with Josua and his fame was noysed thorowe out all landes.

But yet the childzen of Israell trespalled in the excommunicate thinges: And Acan the sonne of Carmy, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareth of the tribe of Juda, tooke of the excommunicate thinges. And the wrath of the Lorde waxed whote againste the childzen of Israell And Josua sent men from Jericho to Hai, which is beside Bethauen, on the east syde of Bethel, & spake vnto them, sayinge: get you vppe, and beswe the countrey. And the men went vp, and spyed out Hai. And retourned to Josua, and sayde vnto hym, let not all the people goo vp, but let as it were two or three thousande men go vp, and smite Hai, and make not all the people to labour thyther, for they are but fewe. And so there wente vppe thether of the people, aboute a three thousande men, and they fledde before the men of Hai. And the men of Hai smote of them vpon a thirtie and sixe men: for they chased them from before the gate euen vnto Sabarim, and

Wherefore, the hartes of the people

And Josua rent his clothes, and fel to the earth, vpon his face before the ark of the Lorde: vntyll the euentyde, he and the elders of Israell, and put erth vpon their heddes. And Josua sayde: Deu. 9.d *Alas, O Lorde God wherfore haste thou brought this people ouer Jordā to delyuer vs into the hande of the A-morites, and to destroy vs: would god we had bene content, and dwelt on the shall I saye, when Israell turneth their backes before their enemies.

Surely the Cananites, and al the en-habytours of the lande, shall heare of it: and shall conspire agaynste vs, and destroy the name of vs out of ꝑ world.
And what wylte thou doe vnto thy myghtye name? And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua, get the vp, wherfore lyest thou thus vpon thy face? Israell hath synned, & they haue transgressed mine appoyntment, which I commaunded them, for they haue taken of the excom municate things, and haue stolen, and dissembled, and put theym vnto theyr children of Israell cannot stande bethey be excommunicate. Neither wyll the Lorde God of Israell. There is a damned thynge amonge you (O Israell) and therefore ye cannot stand a-gaynst youre enemies, vntyll ye haue put the damned thynge from amonge you. To morowe morning therfore ye shalbe brought accordynge to youre trybes. And the trybe which the Lord taketh, shall come accordynge to the kynredes thereof: And the kinredde he that is founde in the excommunica tion, shalbe burnt with fire, he and all that he hath, because he hath transgres sed the couenaunte of the Lorde, and wrought folye in Israel. And so Josua rose vp earely in the morning, and brought Israell by theyr trybes: and the trybe of Juda was caught, and he brought the kynredes of Juda, and toke the kynred of the zarehites, & he brought ꝑ kinred of the zarehites man by man, and zabdi was caught. And he brought his houshoulde, manne by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmy, the son of zabdi, the sonne of zareth, in Josua sayde vnto Acan: my sonne, I beseche thee, geue glorye to the Lorde God of Israell, and geue hym prayse, and shewe me what thou haste done, hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua, and sayde: of a truth I haue synned agaynste the Lorde God of Israell, and thus, and thus haue I done. I sawe amonge the spoyle, a goodlye Babyloniſhe garmente, and two hundred sicles of syluer, and a tonge of golde, of fiftie sicles weight, and I coueted them, and toke theym.

And beholde they lye hyd in the earth in my tenth, and the syluer is them vnder. And so Josua sent messengers: which whan they ranne vnto his tet, beholde they were hydde in hys tent, and the syluer there vnder. Therfor, they toke them oute of the myddest of hys tent, and brought them vnto Josua, and vnto all the children of Israell, and layd them out before the Lord.
And Josua toke Acan the sonne of Zereth and the siluer, and the garmente, and the tonge of gold, and his sonnes, and hys daughters, hys oxen, and hys asses, hys shepe, and hys tente, and all that he had: and all Israel with him, broghte them vnto the valey of Acor.
And Josua sayde: In as muche as thou haste troubled vs, the Lord shall trouble the thys daye. And al Israell stoned hym wyth stones, and burned theym with fyre, and ouerwhelmed them with stones. And they cast vpon hym a greate heape of stones vnto

thys daye. And soo the Lorde turned from the wrath of his indygnation. And the name of the place is called the valeye of Acor vnto this daye.

The.viii. Chapter.

m.7.c AND the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: feare not, neither be thou faint harted: Take al the men of warre with the, and vp, and get the to Hai. Beholde, I haue geuen into thy hande, the kynge of Hai, and hys people, his citie and his lande. And Iu.6, thou shalte do to Hai and her kynge,
.20.c as thou didest vnto Iericho and her kynge. Neuertheles, the spoyle and cattell thereof, shall ye take vnto youre selues. And laye a watche vnto the towne, on the backeside thereof. And so Iosua arose, and all the men of warre to go vp against Hai. And Iosua chose out thyrtie thousand strong men of warre, and sente theym awaye by nyght. And he commaunded them, saying: beholde, ye shall laye awayte
B vnto the towne on the backeside ther of. Go not verye farre from the citie, but be all ready. And I and al the people that are with me wil approch vnto the citie. And when they come out agaynste vs, as they dyd at the fyrste tyme, then will we flee before them. For they will come out after vs, and we will bryng them out of the citye. For they wil say: they flye before vs, as at the fyrst time, and we will flye before them. In the meane time shall ye ryse vp from lyinge awayt, and destroy the citie. For the Lorde your God will deliuer it into your hande. And when ye haue taken the citie, ye shall set it on fire. Accordynge to the commaundemente of the Lorde shal ye do, behold, I haue charged you. Iosua therefore sent theym forthe, and they went to ley awayte, and abode betwene Bethel and Hai, on the westside of the citie of Hai. But Iosua lodged that nyght among the people. And Iosua rose vp earely in the mornynge, and numbred the people, and went vp, he and the elders of Israell before the people agaynst Hai. And all the men of war that were with hym, went vp and drue nie, & came against the citie, and pytched on the northside of Hai, and there was a valey betwen them and Hai. And he toke vppon a fyue thousande men, and put theim to lye awayte, betwene Bethel and Hai on the westside of the citie. And they put the people (euen all the hoost that were on the northside) agaynst the citie, and the leyers awayte on the west. And Iosua walked the same nyght in the myddes of the valey. And it fortuned, that when the kyng of Hai sawe it, they hasted and rose vp earely, and the men of the cirie went out agaynst Israell to battell, he & al hys people at a tyme appoynted, euen before the playne, and wyst not that there were leyers awayt on the backeside of the citie. And Iosua and all Israell fained theym selues to be but the worse D before them, and fled towarde the wil dernesse. And all the people of the towne were called together, to folow after them. And they folowed after Iosua and were drawen away from the citie: And there was not a manne left in Hai, and in Bethell, that went not out after Israell. And they lefte the cytie open, and folowed after Israell. And the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua, stretche out the spere that is in thyne hande, toward Hai, for I will geue it into thy hande, and Iosua stretched out the spere that he had in his hand, towarde the citie. And the leyers awayte arose quyckelye oute of theyr place, and ranne assone as Iosua had stretched out hys hande, and they entred into the cytie and toke it, and hasted, to sette the citie on fire. And E when the men of Hai loked backe after theym, they sawe the smoke of the cytie ascende vp to heauen. And they had no leysure to flye, either this way or that, and the people that fled to the wyldernes, tourned backe againe vpon the folowers. And when Iosua and al Israell sawe that the leyers awayte had taken the citie, and that the smoke of it ascended, they turned agayne and layde on the menne of Hai.

And the other yssued out of the Citye agaynst them. And so were they in the myddest of Israell: for these were on the one syde of them, and the reste on the other syde. * And they layde vpon them so that they let none of them escape, nor remayne. And the kynge of Hai they toke alyue, and brought him to Iosua. And when Israel had made an ende of slayinge, all the inhabiters of Hay in the fielde of the wyldernes, where they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the swearde, vntyll they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto Hai, and smote it in the edge of the swearde. And al that fell that daye, both of men and women were twelue thousande, euen all the men of Hai. For Iosua plucked not hys hande backe agayne, whiche he stretched oute vppon the speare vntyll he had vtterly destroyed all the enhabitoures of Hai. * Onelye the catell and spoyle of the Citye, Israell toke vnto them selues, accordyng vnto the woordes of the Lorde, which he commaunded Iosua. And Iosua sette Hai on fire, and made it an heape for euer, and a wyldernesse, euen vnto thys daye. And the kynge of Hai he hanged on a tree, vntyll euen. And assone as the Sunne was downe, Iosua commaunded * that they shoulde take the carkasse downe of the tree, and caste it at the entrynge of the gate of the citye, and * laye thereon a greate heape of stones, that remaynith vnto thys daye. Then Iosua * buylte an aultare vnto the Lorde GOD of Israell, in mounte Eball, as Moyses the seruaunte of the Lorde commaunded the chyldren of Israell, and as it is wrytten in the * booke of the lawe of Moyses: an * aultare of whole stones, ouer which no man hath lyfte anye tole of yron. And they sacrifised theron burntsacrifyces vnto the Lord, and offered peaceofferynges. And he wrote there vpon the stones, a rehearsall of the lawe of Moyses, and wrote it in the presence of the chyldren of Israell. And all Israell and the elders thereof, and theyr offycers and Iudges stode, parte on thys syde the arke, and parte on that syde, before the priestes that were Leuites, whiche bare the arke of the appoyntemente of the Lorde: as well the straunger, as they that were borne amonge them, halfe of them on the forefront of the mount Garizim: and halfe of theym on the forefronte of mounte Eball: as Moyses the seruaunt of the Lord had commaunded before, that they shold bleste the people Israell. Afterward, he red all the woordes of the lawe, the blessinges and cursinges, accordyng to all that is writtē in the boke of the law: And there was not one woorde of all that Moyses commaunded, whiche Iosua red not before al the congregacion of Israell. The women and chyldren: (and the straungers that were come) standyng among them.

AND it fortuned that when all the kynges that dwell on this syde Iordan in the hylles and baleyes and alonge by all the coastes of the greate sea ouer agaynste Libanon (Namely the Hethites, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites, the Heuites and the Iebusites) harde thereof, they gathered them selues together to fyghte agaynste Iosua, and agaynste Israell with one accorde: * And the enhabytoures of Gibeon harde what Iosua had done vnto Iericho, and to Hai: And they dyd worke wylylye, and wente and made theym selues embassadoures, and toke (their vitayles, and) olde sackes vpon their Asses, and wyne botteles olde, and rente and worne, and olde clouted shoes vpon theyr fete and theyr rayment was olde, and all theyr prouision of breade was dryed vp, and hored. And they came vnto Iosua into the hoste, to Gilgal, and sayde vnto hym and vnto all the men of Israell: we be come from a farre country and nowe make ye agreemente with vs. And the men of Israell saide vnto the Heuite: peraduenture thou dwellest

AND it fortuned, that when A-donizedec kinge of Jerusalem had harde how Josua had taken Hai and had destroyed it, and how that • as he had done to Jericho and Josu.6.c her kynge, euen so he had done to Hai and.8.b and her kynge, and howe the enhabi-toures of Gibeon hadde made peace with Israell, and were among them, they feared exceadyngly, for Gibeon was a greate citye, as any citye of the kingdome, and was greater then Hai, and all the menne thereof were verye myghtye, wherfore Adonizedec kinge of Ierusalem sent vnto Hoham kyng of Hebron, and vnto Piria kynge of Iarmuth, and vnto Iaphia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kyng of Eglon, sayinge, Come vp vnto me, and helpe me, that we may smyte Gibeon: for they haue made peace with Iosua and with the chyldren of Israell.

B Therfore the fiue kinges of the Amorytes, the kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Iarmuth the kynge of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon gathered them selues together: they with all their hostes, and besyeged, Gibeon, and made war agaynst it. And the menne of Gibeon sente vnto Iosua, and to the hoolle of Gylgall, sayinge, withdrawe not thy hande from thy seruauntes, come vp to vs, to saue vs: and to helpe vs. For all the kinges of the Amozites which dwell in the mountaynes, are gathered together agaynste vs. And so Iosua ascended from Gilgall, he and all the people of warre with hym, and all the men of myght. And the Lord sayd

C vnto Iosua: feare them not, for I haue deliuered them into thyne hande. Nether shall any of them stande agaynste thee. Iosua therefore came vnto them sodenlye, and wente vp from Gilgall all nyghte. And the Lorde troubled them before Israell, and slewe them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth vp to Bethoron, and smote them to Esaka and Makeda. And it fortuned, that as they fled from Israell, & were in the goynge downe to Bethoron, the Lorde caste downe greate stones from heauen vpon them, vntyll Esaka. And there were moo deade with hayle stones, then they were, whom the childzen of Israell slewe with the swearde. Then spake Iosua before the Lorde, in the daye when the Lorde delyuered the Amozites before the chil dzenne of Israell, and he sayde in the

Eccl.46a syght of Israell: Sunne stande thou styll vpon Gibeon, and thou Moone in Ialon. And the sunne abode, and the Moone stode styll vntyll the people auenged them selues vpon their enemyes. Is not thys wrytten in the booke of the ryghteouse? The sunne (I saye) abode in the myddest of heauen, and hasted not to goo downe by the space of an hole daye. And there was no daye lyke that, before it or after it, that the Lorde hearde the voyce of a man. For the Lorde fought for Israell. And Iosua returned, and all D Israell with hym vnto the hoolle of Gilgall: but the fyue kynges fled, and were hydde in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Iosua of one, sayinge: The fyue kynges are founde hydde in a Caue whiche is at Makeda. And Iosua sayde roule greate stones vpon the mouth of the caue, and set men by it, for to kepe them. And stande ye not styll, but followe after your enemyes, and smyte al the hyndermoste: And suffer them not to enter into their cytyes, for the Lorde youre GOD hath delyuered them into your hande. And it fortuned when Iosua and the chylderen of Israell had made an ende of sleyinge them with an exceadynge greate slaughter tyll they were wasted, the reste that remayned of them, entred into waled Cities. And all the people returned to the hoolle, to Iosua at Makeda in peace, neyther dyd anye man moue hys tongue agaynste the chylderene of Israell. Then sayde Iosua: open the mouth of the caue and bringe oute these fyue kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto hym oute of the caue, euen the kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Iarmuth, the kynge of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon. And E it fortuned, that when they brought oute those kynges vnto Iosua: Iosua called for all the menne of Israell and sayde vnto the chiefe of the menne of warre, which wente with hym: come neare, and putte youre feete vppon the neckes of these kynges. And they came neare and putte theyr feete vppon the neckes of them. And Iosua sayde vnto them, Ye shal not feare nor be fayntt herted:

herted: But be stronge and plucke vp youre hertes, for thus shall the Lorde do to all your enemies agaynst whom ye fyght. And then Josua smot them, and slewe them, and hanged them on fyue trees. And they hanged styll vpon the trees vntyll the euenynge. And at the goynge downe of the sunne, it fortuned that Josua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of Josua. 8f the trees, and cast them into the caue, (wherin they had bene hid) and layed stones in the caues mouth whiche remayne vntyll thys daye. And that same daye Josua toke Makeda and smote it with the edge of the swearde, f 20.d and the kynge thereof also * destroyed he vtterlye, with all the soules that were therin, and let nought remayne. And he dyd to the kynge of Makeda Josua. 6,8 * as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho. Then Josua went from Makeda, and all Israell with him vnto Libna, and foughte agaynste Libna. And the Lorde delyuered it and the kyng therof into the hande of Israell: and he smote it with the edge of the swearde and all the soules that were therein. He let noughte remayne in it, but dyd vnto the kyng thereof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho. And Josua departed from Libna, and all Israell with hym vnto Lachis, and besieged it, and assaulted it. And the Lorde delyuered Lachis into the hande of Israell, whiche toke it the seconde daye, and smote it withe the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therin, doynge accordynge to all, as he had done to the cytye of Libna. Then Horam king of Geser came vp to helpe Lachis: And Josua smot him and his people, vntyll noughte remayned of hym. And from Lachis Josua departed vnto Eglon, and all Israell with hym, and they besieged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therin he vtterlye destroyed the same daye, accordinge to all that he had done to Lachis. And Josua departed vppe from Eglon and all Israel with hym, vnto Hebron. And they foughte agaynste it, and when they had taken it, they smot it with the edge of the swearde, and the kynge thereof, and all the townes that pertayned to it, and all the soules that were therein, and he leste nought remaynynge: but dyd accordyng to all as he had done to Eglon, and destroyed it vtterly, and all the soules that were therein. And Josua returned, G and all Israell with hym to Dabir, and foughte agaynste it. And when he had taken it, and the kyng therof, and all the townes that perteyned therto, they smote them with the edge of the swearde, and vtterly destroyed all the soules that were therein, neyther let he oughte remayne. Euen as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kynge thereof, as he had done also to Libna and her kynge. Josua therfore smote all the hyll countreys, and the southe countreys, and the valleys, and the hyll sydes, and all theyr kynges, and let noughte remayne of them, but vtterly destroyed al that * breathed, as De. 20.d the Lorde God of Israel comaunded, And Josua smote them from Cades barne vnto Asah, and all the countrey of Gosan, euē vnto Gibeon. All those kynges and their land dyd Josua take at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israell fought for Israel. And Josua and all Israell returned vnto the host that was in Gilgall.

AND it fortuned, that when A Jabin kynge of Hazor had hearde those thynges: he sente to Jobab kynge of Madon, and to the kynge of Simron, and to the kynge of Achsaph, and vnto the kinges that are by the northe in the mountaynes, and playnes toward the southside of Cineroth, & in the low coūtreys: and in the borders of Dor westwarde, and vnto the Cananites both by east and west, & vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, and Jebusites in the mountrynes: & vnto the Heuites that were vnder Hermon in the Land of Mizpa:

And they came out and al their hoſtes with them, a multitude of folke, euen as the ſand that is on the ſea ſhore in a greate numbre with horſes and cha-rettes exceedyng manye. And all theſe kynges mette together, and came and pitched together, at the waters of Me ron, for to fight agaynſt Iſrael. And the Lorde ſayd vnto Joſua: be not afrayde at the preſence of theym: for to morowe aboute this time will I de-liuer them all ſtayne before Iſraell: thou ſhalt hough their horſes, & burne him agaynſte them by the waters of Meron, and ſodenly fell vpon theym.

And the Lorde delyuered theym into the hande of Iſraell: and they ſmote them, and chaſed them vnto great Si don, and vnto the whote waters, and vnto the valey of Mizpa whiche is Eaſtward: and ſmote them vntil they had none remaynyng of them. And Joſua did vnto them, as the Lord bad hym: he houghed their horſes, & burnt their charettes with fire. And Joſua at that tyme turned backe, and toke Hazor, and ſmote the kynge thereof with the ſwearde. And Hazor before tyme was the head of all thoſe kyngedoms. And they ſmote all the ſoules that were therin with the edge of the ſwearde, vtterly deſtroyinge all: and nothynge that breathed, was lette re-

And all the cities of thoſe kynges, and all the kynges of theym dydde Joſua

And ſlewe them. Joſua made warre D ther was there anye citie that made peace with the children of Iſrael, ſaue with battayle, for it came of the Lord whyche dyd harden their hartes, that There was not one Enakite lefte in

And he that doth flee vnto one of those cities, shall stand at the entryng of the gate of the citie, and shall shewe hys cause in the eares of the elders of the Citie. And they shall take hym into the citie vnto theym, and gene hym a place, that he may dwell amõg theim.
B And if the auenger of blood folow after him, they shal not deliuer the slear into his hande: because he smote his frende ignorantly, and hated hym not before tyme. And he shall dwelle in the said citie vntill he stand before the

And when they came vnto the place of Geliloth, beside Iordã (that is in ỹ land of Canaã) ther the chyldren of Ruben the chyldren of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasses, buylt an aultar fast by Iordan, and that a great aultar to se to. And when the chyldren of Israell hearde of it, the whole congregation of the chyldren of Israel gathered them together to Silo, to make battayle against them. And the chyldren of Israell sent vnto the chyldren of Rubẽ, and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into the land of Gilead, Phinehes the son of Eleazar the Priest, and with hym tenne Lordes, of euery chief house a Lorde, throughout all the tribes of Israell, whiche were heades of their fathers housholdes among the thousandes of Israel. ¶ The .xxiii. Chapter.

AND it came to passe a long seatheym: I am olde and stricken in age.

And yee haue seene all that the Lozde your God hath doone (vnto all these

Go to therefore as strongely as ye maye, that ye take hede and doe all that is wryten in the booke of the lawe of Moyses, that ye bowe not a syde therefrom, to the ryghte hande or to the lefte: and least that whan ye come amonge these nations, (euen amonge these that are leste wyth you) yee make mencion or sweare by the names of their goddes: and that ye neyther serue them or bowe youre selues vnto them. But that yee stycke faste vnto the Lorde your God, as ye haue done vnto thys daye. Soe shall the Lorde caste oute before you great nations and myghtye, as no mā hath bene able to stād before youhither to. One man of you shall chase a thousande: for the Lorde your God he fighteth for you, as he hath promised you. Take good hede therefore vnto youre selues, that yee lone the Lorde youre God, els yf yee goe backe and cleaue vnto the rest of these nations that remayne wyth you and shall make mariages wyth theym, and goe in vnto them and they to you: be yee sure, that the Lorde youre GOD will nomore caste out all these nations from before you. But they shall bee snares and trappes vnto you and scurges in your sydes, and thornes in your eyes, vntill yee perysshe from of thys good lande, whyche the Lorde youre God hath geuen you. And beholde, thys daye. doe I entre into the waye of al the worlde, and ye knowe in all your heartes and in all your soules, that nothing hath fayled of all the good thynges which the Lorde your God promysed you. But all are come to passe, and nothing hath fayled thereof. Therefore as all good thynges are come vppon you, whyche the Lorde your God promysed you, so shall the Lorde brynge vppon you all euyll, vntyll hee haue destroyed you from of thys good lande, whyche the Lorde your God hath geuen you, when yee haue transgressed the appointmente of the Lorde youre God whyche hee commaunded you, and haue gonne and serued straunge Goddes and bowed youre selues to theym. Then shall the wrathe of the Lorde waxe whote vppon you, and yee shall perysshe quickelye from of the good lande, which he hath geuen you.

AND Iosua gathered all the tribes of Israell to Sichem, and called for the elders of Israell, and for the headdes, Iudges, and officers, and they presented theym selues before God, and Iosua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell: youre fathers dwelte on the other syde of the floude in olde time: euen Thareh the father of Abraham and of Nachor, and serued straunge Goddes. And I toke youre father, Abraham from the other side of the floudde, and broughte hym throughoute all the lande of Canaan, and multiplyed his sede, and gaue him Isahac. And I gaue vnto Isahac, Iacob and Esau. And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir, to possesse it. But Iacob and his children wente downe into Egypte, I sent Moyses also and Aaron. And I plagued Egypte, and when I had so doone amonge them, I brought you out, and I brought your fathers oute of Egypte. And as they came vnto the Sea, the Egiptians followed after youre fathers wyth charettes and horsemen vnto the red Sea. And whan they cryed vnto the Lord, the Lorde put darkenes betwene you, and the Egyptians, and broughte the sea vpon them and couered them. And your eies haue sene what I haue done to the Egyptians. And yee dwelte in the wilderneste a longe season. And I brought you into the lande of the Amorytes, which dwelte on the other syde Iordane. And they fought wyth you: and I gaue theym into youre hande, that ye might conquere theyr country. And I destroied them from out of your syghte. ¶ The fyrst Chapter.

1 AFter the deathe of Josua it came to passe, that the childzen of Israel asked the Lozd saying: who shal goe vp for vs agaynst the Cananites and who shall firste fyght agaynst them. And Iud.2.a the Lozde sayde: Juda shall goe vp, • beholde I haue delyuered the lande into his hands. And Juda sayd vnto Simeon hys bzother: come vp wyth me in my lotte, that we maye fyghte agaynst the Cananites: And I likewyse wyl go wyth thee into thy lot. And soo Simeon wente with hym. And Juda went vp, and the Lozd delyuered the Cananites and Pherezytes into theyr handes. And they slewe of theym in Bezek tenne thousande menne. And they found Adonibezek in Bezek. And they fought agaynst hym, and slewe the Cananites and Pherezytes. But Adonibezek fledde and they folowed after hym, & caught him, and cut of his thombes, and his great toes. And Adonibezek sayde: Threscore and tenne kynges hauyng their thombes and greate toes cut of, gathered theyr meat vnder my table: Leu.24.c • as I haue done, so God hathe done Jud.15.a to me agayne. And they brought him deu.20.c. to Jerusalem, and there he died. The childzen of Juda fought agaynst Jerusalem, and tooke it, • and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and set the Citie on fyre. Afterward, the childzen of Juda went to fyghte against the Cananites, that dwelte in the mountayne, and towarde the southe, and in the lowe countrey. And Juda wente agaynste the Cananites that dwelt in Hebzon, whych before tyme was called Kariath Arbe. And slewe Sesai, Ahiman, and Thalmai. And from thense they went to the inhabi- ¶ ters of Dabir, whose name in olde Jos.15.c time was called Kariathsepher (that is a Cytie of Letters.) And Caleb sayde: • He that smyteth Kariathsepher, and taketh it, to hym wyll I geue Achsah my daughter to wyfe. And Othoniel the son of Kenez Calebs yonger bzother toke it: to whom he gaue Achsah hys daughter to wyfe: & as they went her husbād counceled her to aske of her father a fyelde. And thē she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb said vnto her: what ayleth thee? She answered vnto him geue me a blessig for thou hast geuē me a Southward (oz dzye) land, geue me also spzynges of water. And Caleb gaue her spzynges bothe aboue and beneth. And the childzen of the Kenyte, Moyses father in lawe went vp • out of the citie of • palme trees wyth the childzen of Juda into the wylderues of Juda, ¶ that lyeth in the South of Arad, and they went and dwelt among the people. And Juda wente with Simeon his bzother, and they slewe the Cana- Nu.21.a nites that enhabited Zephath, & vtterly destroyed it, • and called the name of the citie Hozma. And at the last Juda toke Azah with the costes therof, and Askalon with the costes therof, & Akaron with the costes therof, and ỹ Lozd was with Juda, and he conquered the moūtains, but could not dzyue out the enhabiters of the valeys, be- Jos.14.d cause they had charettes of yzen. And

Jos.14.d Nu.13.c Jo.15.g E they gaue * Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayde: And he expelled thense the thre sonnes of * Enak. * And the childzen of Ben Jamin dyd not caste out the Jebusites, that enhabited Jerusalē, but the Jebusites dwell with Jos.15.a the childzen of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem vnto this day. * And in like maner they that were of the house of Joseph went vp to Bethel, & the Lozde was with them, and the house of Joseph serched out Bethel, which befoz tyme was called Lus. And the spies sawe a man come out of the cittie, and Josu.2.c they sayde vnto hym: Shewe vs the way into the cittie, * and we wil shew thee mercy. And when he had shewed them the way into ỹ citie, they smote it with the edge of the swerd, but let the man and all his houshold go free. And the man went into the lād of the Hethites, and buylt a citie, and called F the name thereof Lus, whiche is the Jos.17.c name therof vnto this day. * Neither dyd Manasses expel Bethsean with her townes, Thaanach with her townes, the enhabiters of Doz with her townes, the inhabiters of Jeblaam with her townes, neither the inhabiters of Magedo with her towns, but the Cananites were bold to dwell in the lande. But it came to passe, that as soone as Israel was waxed mighJos.16.d tie, they put the Cananites to tribute and expelled them not. * In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Cananites that dwelt in Gazer, but ỹ Ca- G nanites dwelt still in Gazer amonge them. Neyther dyd Zabulon expelle the inhabiters of Ketron, neither the inhabiters of Nahalol: But the Cananites dwelte among them, and became tributaries. Neither dyd Aser caste out the inhabiters of Acho, neither the inhabiters of Zidon, & of Ahalab, Aczib, and Halbah, Aphek, noz of Rahob, but the Aserites dwelt among the Cananites, the enhabiters of the lande, foz they might not dzyue them out. Neyther did Nephthalim dziue oute the inhabiters of Bethsames, noz the inhabiters of Bethanah but dwelt amongest the Canaanites, the inhabiters of the lade. Neuer the lesse the inhabiters of Bethsames, & of Bethanath became tributaries vn to them. And the Amozites troubled the childzen of Dan in the mountayn and suffered them not to come dowse to the valley. And ỹ Amozites were contente to dwelle in mounte Heres, (whiche is by interpzetation: a witnessyng) in Halon, and in Shalabim. And the hande of Joseph pzeuailed, so that they became tributaries: and the coast of the Amozites was frome the goyng vp to Acrabim, and frome the rocke vpwarde.

AND the angell of the Lozde came vp from Gilgal to Bochim. and sayd: I made you to go out of Egypt, and haue bzought you vnto the lande, whyche I swore vnto youre fathers. * And I sayde: Da I wylle not breake myne appoynte- and ment that I made wyth you. And ye also shall make no couenaunte wyth ỹ inhabitours of this lande, but shal breake downe theyz aultares: Neuertheleslle, ye haue not herkened vnto my voyce, why haue ye this done: Wherefoze, I haue lykewyse determyned, that I wyll not caste theym out befoze you: but they shall be thoznes vnto you, and theyz goddes shall bee a snare vnto you. And when the Angell of the Lozd spake these wozdes vnto all the chyldzen of Israell, the people cryed oute, and wepte. And called the name of the sayd place * Bochim, and offered sacrifices vnto the Lozde. And whenne Josua hadde sente the people awaye, the chylderne of Israell went euery man into hys inheritaunce to possesse the lande. And * the people serued the LORD all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders, that oute lyued Josua, and had seene all the greate woozkes of the Lozd that he dydde foz Israell: and Josua the soonne of Nun the seruaunte of the Lozde dyed, * when he was an hun-dyed and tenne yeares olde: whome they buryed in the coastes of his inheritaunce: euen in Thamnath Hares in mount Ephraim on the northside of the hylle Gaas. And euen so all that generation were putte vnto theyr fathers, and there arose an other generation after thē, whych neyther knew the LORD, nor yet the woorkes which he had doone for Israell. And when the chyldren of Israell + dyd wyckedly in the syghte of the Lord, and serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde god of theyr fathers, whych brought them out of the land of Egypt, and folowed strange goddes, euen of the goddes of the nations that were rounde aboute theym, and bowed them selues vnto theym, and angred the Lorde. They forsoke the Lorde, and serued Baal and Astaroth, and the wrathe of the Lord waxed whotte agaynste Israell, and hee deliuered them into the handes of rauencrs, that spoyled theym, and solde them into the handes of their ennemyes rounde aboute theym, so that they had no power any longer to stād before theyr ennemies. But whether soeuer they wente oute, the hand of the Lorde was agaynst them wyth euyll lucke, euen as the Lorde promysed them, and as he sware vnto them. And he punyshed theim sore. Neuertheles, the Lorde raised vp Iudges, whyche delyuered theym oute of the handes of theyr oppressours: and yet for all that they wolde not hearken vnto theyr iudges: But rather went a whoorying after straunge gods, and bowed them selues vnto theym, and tourned quickely oute of the waye, wherin theyr fathers walked in, obeying the commaundementes of the Lorde: But they dydde not so. And when the Lorde raised them vp Iudges, he was wyth the Iudge, and deliuered theym out of theyr handes of theyr ennemyes all the dayes of the Iudge, + for the Lorde had compassion ouer theyr sorowynges, whyche they had, by the reason of theym that oppressed them, and vexed theim: yet for all that + as soone as the Iudge was dead, they turned, and dyd worse thenne theyr Fathers, in folowynge strange gods, and in seruyng them, & ceassed not from their owne inuentions nor from theyr malicious waye. And the wrathe of the Lorde was moued agaynst Israell, and he sayd: Because this people hathe transgressed myne appoyntment, which I commaunded their fathers, and haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, I wyll henceforthe not caste out before theym one man of the nations, whyche Iosua left whē he dyed, that thorough them I maye + proue Israell, whether they wylle kepe the waye of the Lorde, & walke therin, as theyr fathers dydde or not. And so the Lorde left those nations, & droue thē not out immediatly, neither deliuered them into ỹ hand of Iosua.

¶ The. iij. Chapter. A

THese ar the nations which the Lord left, that he might proue Israell by them: euen as many of Israell as had not knowen all the warres of Canaan: Only for the lernyng of the generation of the children of Israell: that he also myghte teache them warre, in almuch as they that were before them, knew nothing therof. Of those whom he left, there were fiue lordes of the Philistines, and all the Cananites, and the Sodomites, and the Heuites that dwelt in mount Libanon: euen from mount Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. Those remayned to proue Israell by, and to wete, whether they would harken vnto the Commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded theyr fathers by the hande of Moses.

And the chyldren of Israell dwelte among the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites, and Iebusites, + & toke the daughters of thē to be their wiues, and gaue theyr owne daughters to theyr sons, & serued theyr goddes. And the children of Israell dydde wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and forgate the Lord theyr God, and serued Baalim and Asteroth. Therfore the Lord was angrye of a cubite length, and he dyd gyrd it

Eglon the kyng of Moab. And Esayde: I haue a secrete errande vncame vnto hym, & in a sommer parler his seate. And Ahud put foorthe hys lefte hand, and toke the dagger from his ryght thigh, and thrust it into his belly, and the hafte wente in after the blade. And the fatte closed the hafte, so that he myghte not drawe the dagger out of his bellye, but the dyrte came out. Ahud gate hym out at a posterne he was gone out, his seruants came, & whā they saw ẏ the dozes of the par-gone beyond, to the place of the grauē

And when he was come, he blewe a

AND the childzen of Israel began agayne to doo wyckedly in the syght of the LORD, when Ahud was dead. And the lord sold them into the hād of Jabin king of Canaan, that reygned in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was called Sisara, whyche dwelte in Haroseth of the Gentiles. And the childzen of Israell cryed vnto the Lozde: for he had nyne hundzed charettes of yzon, and twentye yeares he troubled the chylderne of Israell verye sore. And Deboza a Prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth, Judged Israell the same tyme, and the same Deboza dwelt vnder a paulme tree betweene Ramath and Bethel, in mount Ephzaim. And the childzen of Israel came vp to her for iudgement. And she sent & called Iud. 5.b • Barak the sonne of Abinoam, oute of Kedes Nephthalim, and sayd vnto hym: Hathe not the Lozde God of Israel cōmaunded thee, to leade with fayre wordes men to mount Thabor, and take ỽ the ten thousand men, of ỷ childzen of Nephthalim, & of ỷ childzē of Zabulon? And I wyl bzyng vnto thee, to the • riuer Kyson, Sisara, the Fol. 87.b captaine of warre vnto Jabin, wyth his charettes, and his people, and wil deliuer hym into thyne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her: If thou wylte go with me, I will goe. But and yf thou wylt not come with me, I will not goe: She saide, I wil surely go with thee, but this iourney that thou takest, shall not be for thine honor, for the Lord shall sell Sisara into ỷ hand of a womā. Deboza went with Barak to Kedes. And Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim to Kedes, & led after hym tenne thousande men: and Deboza went vp with him. But Fol. 10.b Haber the Kenite (which was of the childzen of • Hobab the father in law of Moyses) remoued from the other Kenites, and pytched his tent vntyll the playne of Zaanaim, which is by Kedes. And they shewed Sisara, that Barack, the sonne of Abinoam was gone vppe to Mount Thabor, And Sisara gathered togyther all hys Charettes, euen nyne hunderde charettes of yzon, and all the people that were wyth hym frome of Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer Kyson. And Deboza sayd vnto Barak: Up, for thys is the day, in whiche the LORDE hathe deliuer C red Sisara into thyne hande: Is not the Lozde gone oute before the? And so Barake went downe from mount Thabor, and tenne thousand menne after hym. But the LORDE destroyed Sisara, and all hys charettes, and all hys hooste with the edge of the swearde, before Barake: soo that Sisara lyghted downe of hys charette, and fledde awaye on hys feete. But Barak followed after the charettes, and after the hooste, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the sweard, and there was not a manne lefte. Howe be it Sisara fledde awaye on hys feete, to the Tente of Jaell, the wyfe of Haber the Kenite: for there was peace betweene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the householde of Haber the Kenyte. And Jaell wente oute to meete Sisara, and sayde vnto hym: Tourne in my Lozde, turne into me feare not. And when he hadde tourned in vnto her, into her tente, she couered hym with a mantell. And he sayde vnto her, Geue me a lytle water to drynke, for I am thirstie. And shee opened • a bottle of mylke, and Jud. 5.d. gaue hym drynke, and couered hym. D
And agayn he said vnto her: stand in the dooze of the tente, and when any manne dothe comme to enquire of thee, whether there be any man here, thou shalte saye, Naye. Then Jaell Habers wyfe tooke a nayle of the Tente, and an hammer in her hande, and wente softely vnto hym, and smote the Nayle into the Temples of hys heade, and fastened it into the grounde, for hee slombzed sooze, and was werye: And soo he dyed. And beholde, as Baracke followed after Sisara, Jaell came out to mete hym; and and sayd vnto hym: Come and I wil shewe thee the man, whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tēt: Beholde, Sisara laye deade, and the nayles was in his temples. And soo God brought Jaben the king of Canaan into subiection that daye before the children of Israel. And the hand of the chyldren of Israell prospered, and prevailed against Jabin the king of Canaan, vntyll they had brought hym to nought.

A THen Deboza and Barack the sonne of Abinoam sang the same day saying: Prayse ye the Lord for the auengynge of Israell, and for the people that became soo willyng. Heare O yee kynges, hearken O ye princes: I euen I wyll sing vnto the Lorde, I wyll prayse the Lord God of Israell. Lord when thou wentest oute of Seir, when thou departedst oute of the fyelde of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heuens rayned: the cloudes also dropped water. The mountaynes melted before the Lord, euen as dyd Sinai, before the Lorde God of Israel. In the dais of Sangar the sonne of Anath, in the days of Jael the hye ways were vnoccupyed: And the runners of the pathes walked through by ways. The inhabiters of the townes were gon, they were gone in Israell, vntil I Debora came vp, which cam vp a mother in Israel They chose new goddes, and then had they (the enemie) in the gates, though there wer shield & speare.

B There was not a shield or speare sene among fortie thousand of Israel. My hart loueth the gouerners of Israel, and them that are willing among the people. O prayse ye the Lord. Speke ye that ride on faire asses, and that syt vppermost in iudgement, and walke by the ways. At the crying of the archers among the drawers of water, there shall they speake of the righteousnes of the Lord, his righteousnes in the vnfenced places of Israel: then shall the people of the Lord go downe to the gates. Vp Deboza vp, get thee vp, and singe a song: Arise Barac, and leade the captiuitie captiue, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then shall they that remayne, haue dompnion of the proudest of the people of (Jabin:) The Lord shall for my sake haue dominion ouer the myghtie. Oute of Ephraim was there a rote of theim against Ameleck, and after thee Benjamin amōg thi people. Out of Machir came rulers, and out of Zabulon they that gouerne the pen of the writer. And of Issachar, there were princes with Deboza, Issachar also & Barac were sent on their fete into the valey, whan in the departyng awaye of Ruben there were great men, & wise of heart: Why abodest thou among shepe foldes, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes, and to separate thy self awaye with greate men, and wyse of hert. Gilead also abode beyond Jordan: and why dothe Dan remayne in ships: Aser continued on the sea shore and taried in his decayed places. But the people of Zabulon haue ieoparde theyr lyues euen vnto the death, lyke as dyd Nephthalim in the hye places of the fielde. The kynges camme and fought, then fought the kings of Canaan in Thannah, by the waters of Megiddo, and wan no money. They fought from heauen, euen the starres in their courses fought against Sisera. The riuer of Cyson remoued thē, that auncient ryuer, the riuer Cyson: My soule shall treade (hym) downe mightily. Then wer the horse hooles smitten a sunder, by the meanes of the praunsynges that their mightie men made. Curse ye the Citie of Meros, (sayd the aungell of the Lorde) curse the inhabitours thereof, because they came not to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde wyth the mighty. Jael the wyfe of Haber, the Kenite, shall be blessed aboue other womenne, blessed shal she be aboue other women in the tēt. He asked water, and she gaue hym mylke, she brought forth butter in a lordely dyshe. She put her hande to the nayle, and her ryght hande hande to the smythes hammer: wyth the hammer smote she Sisera, and smote his heade, wounded hym, and pearsed his temples. He bowed hym downe at her fete, he fell downe, and laye styll: At her feete he bowed hym downe, and fell. And when he hadde sonke down he lay still desolate. The mother of Sisera loked out at a windowe, and cried thorowe the latisse: why is his charet so long a cōming? why tary the wheles of his cartes? All the wise ladies answered her, ye and her owne wordes aunswered her selfe. Surely they haue founde, they deuide the spoiles: euery man hath a damsell or two: Sisera hath a praye of diuers coloured garmentes, euen a pray of raiment died with sondry colours, & that are made of nedle worke: raiment of diuers colors, and of nedle worke which is mete for hym that is chiefe in distributyng of the spoyles. So perish al thyne enemies: O lord, but they that loue hym, let them be as the son whan he ryseth in his myght. And the land had rest forty yeres.

The. vi. Chapter.

AND the chyldren of Israell + cōmitted wickednes in the syght of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered them into the hands of Madian seuen yeres. And the hand of Madian preuailed against Israel, and because of the Madianites, the chyldren of Israel made them dennes in the mountayns and caues & strong holdes. And when Israel had sowē, the Madianites, the Amalechites, & they of the east countrey came vp together against them: and pitched their tentes against them, and destroied the encrease of the earthe, euen tyll thou come vnto Azah: and left no substināce for Israell, neyther shepe, oxe or asse: for they went vp, they and their cattel and came with their tentes as a multitude of grashoppers: so that bothe they and also their camels were without nombre. And they entred into the land to destroy it. And so was Israel greatly impouerished in the sighte of the Madianites, and cried vnto the Lorde. And whenne the chylderne of Israell cryed vnto the Lorde because of the Madianites, the Lord sent vnto theim a Prophete, whyche sayde vnto theym: Thus saythe the Lorde God of Israell: I set you frome Egypte, and broughte you oute of the house of bondage, and I ryd you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and out of the hande of all that oppressed you, and caste theym oute before you, and gaue you theyr lande. And I said vnto you: I am the Lord your God, + feare not the gods of the Ammorites, in whose lande you dwell. But you haue not obeyed my voyce. And the Angell of the Lorde came, and sat vnder an Oke, whyche was in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Eserites. And hys son Gedeon pressed oute whcate oute of the eares in a presse, to hyde it frome the Madianites: and the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, and sayde: The Lorde is with thee, thou C wyghtie man of warre. And Gedeon answered hym: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde bee wyth vs, why is all thys comme vppon vs? & where bee all his myracles, whiche our fathers tolde vs of, and sayd? Dydde not the Lorde bryng vs out of Egypt? But nowe the Lord hath forsaken vs, and delyuered vs into the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde looked vppon hym, and sayde: Goe hence in this thy myghte, and thou shalt delyuer Israell oute of the handes of the Madianites: Haue not I sent thee? And he aunswered hym: Oh Lorde, wherewyth shall I saue Israell? Beholde, my kynredde is poore in Manasses, and I am lyttel in my fathers house. The Lorde sayde vnto hym: I wyll be with thee: and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he aunswered hym: Oh, yf I haue found grace in thy syght, than shewe me a signe, that it is thou that talkest wyth mee. Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayn vnto thee, and tyll I bryng myne offryng.

And the angell of God said vnto him: Take the flesh & the swete cakes, and lay theim vpon this rocke, and powre out the broth. And he did so. Jud.13. sayd: Alas, O Lord God, • haue I therfore sene an aungell of the Lorde face to face, that I should dye? And ỹ Lorde saide vnto hym: Peace be vnto E the, feare not; thou shalt not dye. Thã Gedeon made an aultare there vnto the Lorde, and called it: The Lord of peace. And vnto this day it is yet in Ephrath, that perteineth vnto the father of the Eserites. And it fortuned that the same nyght the Lord sayd vnto hym: take a ponge bullocke out of thy fathers drouc, and an other of vii. yeares old, and destroy the aultare of Baal, that thy father hath, and cutte downe the groue that is by it, & make an aultar vnto the Lord thy God vpon the top of this rocke in a conuenient place. And take the second bullocke, and offer burnt sacrifice vppon the wood of the groue, whiche thou shalt cut downe. Than Gedeon toke ten men of his seruantes, and dyd as the Lorde badde him. But because he F durst not doo it by day for feare of his fathers household & of the men of the citie, he dyd it by nyghte. And when the men of the citie were vp early in the morowyng: Beholde, the aultar of Baal was broken, and the groue cut downe that was by it, and the second bullocke offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayde one to an other: who hath done this thing: and when they enquered and asked, they sayd: Gedeon the sonne of Joas hath done this thyng. Then the menne of the citie sayd vnto Joas: Bryng out thy sonne, that he may dye, because he hath destroyd the aulter of Baal, and cut downe the groue that was by it. And Joas saide vnto all that stode by hym: Wyll ye pleade Baals cause? or will ye be his defenders? he that hath medled against him, let him die or the morning. If he be a God, let hym be auenged of hym that caste down his aulter. And from that daye was Ge-G deon called, Jerobaal: because his father had said: Let Baal be auenged of hym, that hath broken downe his alter. All the Madianites therfore, and the Amalekites, and they of the east, were gathered togyther, and wente and pytched in the valey of Jezrael: but the spirite of the Lord came vpon Iu.
Gedeon. • And he blewe a trompet, Iu. and called • Abiezer to folowe hym, and sent messengers thorowe out all Manasses, and called them, whyche also dyd followe hym. And he sente messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon, and Nephthalim, and they came to mete hym. And Gedeon sayde vnto God: Wylte thou saue Israell in my hand, as thou hast sayd: Beholde, I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threshyng place. And if the dewe comme on the fleece onely, and it be dry vppon all earthe beside, then shall I bee sure, that thou wylte saue Israell by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. For he rose vp earely on the morowe, and thrust the fleece together, and wrong the dewe therout, and filled a bolle of water: and Gedeon sayde agayne vnto God: Be not Ge. angrye with me, that I speake ones more. For I will proue ones agayne by the fleece. Let it be dry onely vppon the fleece, and dewe vppon all the grounde. And God dyde so that same nyght: For it was dry vppon the fleece onely, and there was dew on all the grounde.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

A Then • Jerobaal (otherwise Iud. 8. g called Gedeon, and all the people that were with him, rose vp early, and pitched be syde the welle of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were on the Northsyde of the Roek, that boweth towarde the valleye. And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon: The people that are with thee, are to manye for me to geue the Madianites into theyr han-des, leste Israell make theyr vaunte agaynst me and say: Myne owen hand hath saued me. Now therfore make en. 20. b proclamation in the eares of the peo-l. mac. 3. ple, and say: • If any man dreade or be afearde, let hym returne. And the people arose early. And there departed and returned of the people which B were at mount Gilead. xxii. thousand and there abode ten thousande. And Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon: the people are yet to many, bringe them downe vnto the water, and I will try them vnto thee there. And of whom I say vnto thee, This shall goe with thee, the same shall goe with thee. And of whom soeuer I say vnto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go. So he brought downe ỳ people vnto the water, & ỳ Lord said vnto Gedeon: As many as lappe the water with theyr tonges, as a dog dothe, them put by theym selues, and so doo them that kneele downe vppon theyr knees to drynke. And the numbre of theym that put theyr handes to theyr mouthes, and lapped, were. iii. hundred men. But all the remnant of the people kneled down vpō their knees to drinke water. And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: By these. iii. hundred men that lapped water, will I saue you: and deliuer the Madianites in-C to thyne hande. And let all the other people go euery man vnto his place.
They therfore of the people tooke vi-tayles with them, & their trompets.
And he sent all the rest of Israel, euery mā vnto his tent, & comforted those three hundred with hym. And ỳ hoste of Madian was benethe hym in a valey. And it fortuned ỳ the same night the Lord sayde vnto hym: Aryse, get thee downe vnto the host, for I haue deliuered it into thine hand. But and if thou feare to goe downe, then goe thou and Pharah thy ladde down to the host, and thou shalt hearken what they say, and so shall thine handes be stronge, to go downe vnto the hoste.
Then went he down, & Pharah his lad, euen hard vnto the mē of armes, that were in the host. And the Madi-nites, the Amalekites, and all they of the East, lay along in the valey, lyke a multitude of grashoppers, & their camels were without numbre, euen as ỳ sand by the sea side in multitude.
And whan Gedeon was come: Be-holde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto hys neyghbor, and said: D Beholde, I dreamed a dreame, & me thought ỳ a lofe of barly bread tōbled into the host of Madian, and cam vnto a tent, and smote it that it fell, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alōg.
And his felowe answered and sayde:
This is nothing els saue the sweard of Gedeon, ỳ son of Joas, a mā of Is rael: for into his hand hath god delue red Madian, and all the hoste. When Gedeon heard ỳ telling of ỳ dreame, and the interpretation of the same, he worshipped, & retourned vnto ỳ host, of Israel: and said: Vp, for the Lorde E hath deliuered into your hād, the host of Madian. And he deuided the three hūdred mē into three cōpanies, & gaue euery man a trōpet in his hand, with an empty pitcher, and lampes therin, and said vnto them: Loke on me, & do likewise, that when I come to ỳ syde of the host, euen as I doo, so do you: when I blowe with a trompet, and all that are with me, blowe ye with trōpets also on euery syde of the host, and saye: here is the sweard of the Lorde & of Gedeon. And so Gedeon, and the three hundred men that were with him, came vnto the syde of the host in the beginnyng of the myddle watch, & reised vp the watchmē. And

they blew with theyr trompets, and brake the pitchers that were in their handes. And all the thre companyes blewe with trompettes, and brake the pitchers, and helde the lampes in theyr left handes, and the trompettes in theyr ryghte, to blowe withall.
And they cryed: The swearde of the Lord, and of Gedeon. And they stode styll, euery man in hys place rounde aboute the hoste. And they within the hoste, ranne, and cryed, and fled.
And the three hundreth blewe with trompettes, and the Lorde set * euethe hoste fledde to Bethsitah, to Zererath, and to the edge of the playne of Meholah vnto Tabath.

G And the menne of Israell beynge gathered together oute of the trybe of Nephtalym, of Aser, and of all Manasses followed after the Madia-nites. And Gedeon sente messengers vnto all mounte Ephraim, sayinge: Come downe agaynst the Madianites, and take before them the waters vnto Bethbarath, and to Jordane.
Then all the men of Ephraim gathe red together, and tooke the waters vnto Bethbarath, and to Jordane.
And they toke .ii. captanes of ꝑ Ma-dianites, Oreb and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb, and followed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and Zeb, to Gedeon, on the other syde Jordan.

¶ The .viij. Chapter.

A AND the men of Ephraim sayd vnto hym: why haste thou serued vs thus, that thou cal ledst vs not, whenne thou wentest to fyght with the Madianites: & they chyde with hym a good, (and had almoste doone hym violence.) And he sayde vnto them: what dede haue I doone lyke vnto yours? Is not a cluster of Ephraim better, than the wyne harueste of Abiezer? God hath delyuered into your handes the Lordes of Madiã, Oreb and Zeb. And what was I able to doo lyke as you haue done? And then their spirites abated from of hym, when he had sayde that.
And Gedeon came to Jordan to passe ouer, he and the thre hundred menne that were with hym, verye fainte and yet followed the chace. And he sayd B vnto the menne of Socoth geeue I praye you kakes of bread vnto the people that followe me: for they be faintye that I may followe after Zebah and Zalmona kinges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: are the han-des of Zebah and, Zalmona nowe in thyne handes, that wee shoulde geue breade vnto thyne armye? Gedeon sayde, therefore when the Lorde hath delyuered Zebah, and Zalmona into myne hande, I will teare the flesshe of you with the thornes of the wildernes and with byers. And he wente vp thence to Phanuel, and spake vnto them lykewyse. And the men of Phanuel answered him as did ꝑ mẽ of So coth. And he said also vnto ꝑ mẽ of pha C nuel: when I come agayne in peace, I will breake downe thys towre. Ze-bah and Zalmona were in Carkar, and their hostes with theym, vppon a xv. thousaunde men, whiche were all that were lefte of all the hostes of thẽ of the Easte: For there was slayne a hundred and twentie thousande men that drewe swordes. And Gedeon wente throughout theim that dwelte in tabernacles on the East syde of No-bah and Jehabah, and smote the hoste: for the hoste dyd cast no perylles. And when Zebah and Zalmona fledde, he followed after them, and toke the two kynges of Madian, Zebah and Zal-mona, and discomforted all the hoste. D And Gedeon the sonne of Joas retourned from battell, afore the sonne was downe, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, and enquyred of him And he wrote him of the Lordes and Elders of Socoth .lxxvii. men. And he came vnto the menne of Socoth, and sayde: Beholde here I haue Ze-bah and Salmona, with whyche ye dydde cast me in the teeth, sayinge: are the handes of Zebath and Zalmona already in thyne hand, that we shoulde geue heed vnto thy faynty men? And he toke the elders of the Cytye, and thornes of the wildernesse and breers, and made the men of Secoth to feie them. And he brake downe the towre of Phanuell, and slewe the men of the citye. And then sayde he vnto Zebath and Zalmona, what maner of menne were they whom ye slewe at Thabor? and they answered: the likenesse of thee and them is all one, euen after the fashion of the chyldren of a kyng. And he sayde: they were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren. As truly as the Lorde liueth yf ye had saued their liues, I woulde not slaye you. And he sayde vnto Jether hys eldest sonne: vp and slaye them. But the lad drue not his sweard, for he feared, because he was yet yonge. Then zebath and zalmona sayde: Ryse thou, and fall vpon vs: for as the man is, so is hys strēgth. And Gedeon arose and slewe zebath and zalmona, and toke away the ornaments, ẏ were on their camels neckes. Then the men of Israell sayd vnto Gedeon: Raigne thou ouer vs, both thou, thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne, for thou haste deliuered vs oute of the hande of Madian. And Gedeon sayde vnto them: I wyll not raygne ouer you, nether shal my chyld raygne ouer you, but the Lorde shall raigne ouer you. And agayne Gedeon sayde vnto them: I wold desyre a certayne requeste of you, euen that you woulde geue me euerye man the eare ringes of hys praye. For they had golden earynges, because they were Ismaelites. And they answered: we wyll geue them. And they spredde a mantell, and dyd caste there in euerye man the earynges of hys praye: and the wayghte of the golden earynges that he required, was a thousand and seuen hundred sicles of gold, beside cheynes, pommaunders and purple rayment that was on the kynges of Madian, and beside the chaynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, and put it in hys citye Ephrah. And all Israell went a whorynge after it, in the same place, whiche thynge became a ruyne vnto Gedeon and to his house. Thus was Madian brought low before the chyldren of Israel, so that they lyft vp their heades no more. And the country was in quietnes foretye yeares in the dayes of Gedeon. And Ierobaall the sonne of Joas went, and dwelt in his owne house. And Gedeon had lxx. sonnes of hys bodye begotten, for he had many wyues. And hys concubine that was in Sichem, bare hym a sone also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, in a good age, and was buryed in the sepulcher of Joas hys father, euen in Ephrath, that pertaineth vnto the father of the Ezrites. But it fortuned, that as sone as Gedeon was dead, the chyldren of Israell turned away and went a whorynge after Baalim, and made a couenaunte with Baal to be their God, and the chyldren of Israell thoughte not on the Lorde their God whiche had deliuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euerye side. Neyther shewed they mercye on ẏ house of Ierobaal, otherwyse called Gedeon, accordyng to all the goodnes which he had shewed vnto Israell.

The. ix. Chapter.

Abimelech the sonne of Ierobaall wente to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethrē, and communed with them, and with all hys mothers fathers kynred, saying: saye I pray you, in the eares of all the enhabitours of Sichem: whether is better for you, that all the sonnes of Ierobaall (which are lxx. persons) raygne ouer you, eyther that one raygne ouer you? Remember, that I am of youre bone, and of your flesshe. And hys mothers brethren spake of him in the audience of the men of Sichem all these wordes, and their hartes were moued to folowe Abimelech. For they sayde: he is our brother. And they gaue hym lxx. peces of syluer out of the temple of Baal Berith, wherwith Abimelech hyred vayne and lyght persons which went with hym. And he wente vnto 2par.21a hys fathers house at Ephzah & slewe all hys bzethzen, the sonnes of Jerobaal, euen .lxx. persõs with one stone.

Notwithstandyng, yet Joathan the yongest sonne of Jerobaal escaped, for he hyd hym selfe. And all the men of Sichem gathered together, and al the house of Mello, and came and made Abimelech kyng in the playne, where the great stone was by Sichem. And when they told it to Joathan, he wẽt and stode in the toppe of mount Garizim, and lyfte vp his voyce, and cryed, and sayde vnto them: Herken vnto me B you men of Sechim, that God maye forth to anoynt a kyng ouer them, and sayd vnto the Olyue tree: raigne thou ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayd vnto them: shoulde I leaue my fattenes, which both gods & men prayse in me,

and go to be promoted ouer the trees?
And the trees sayde to the fygge tree:
come thou and be kynge ouer vs. The fygge tree answered them: shoulde I forsake my swetnes, & my good fruite,
and go to be promoted ouer the trees?
Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne:
come thou and be kynge ouer vs. The vyne sayde vnto them: should I leaue my wyne wherby I cheare both gods and men, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayd all the trees vnto the firre bushe: come thou & raygne ouer vs. And the firre bushe sayd vnto the trees: if it be true that ye wyll anoynt me kynge ouer you, then come, and put your trust vnder my shadow.
If no, the fire come out of the fir bush, and waste tht Ceder trees of Libanon.
C Nowe therfore, if ye do truly and vn-corruptlye, to make Abimelech kynge: and if ye haue dealte well with Jero-baall and his house, and haue done vnto hym, accordynge to the deserynge of hys handes, iudge ye. For euen he (my father) fought for you, and aduen tured hys lyfe, and rydde you oute of the hande of Madian. And ye are ry-sen vp agaynst my fathers house thys daye, and haue slayne hys childzen, euen .lxx. persons with one stone, and haue made Abimelech the sonne of his mayde seruaunte, kynge ouer the men of Sichem, because he is your bzother. if ye then haue dealt truely and purely with Jerobaall and with hys house thys daye then reioyce ye with Abimelech, and let hym reioyce with you.
But if you haue not dealt truely, then I praye God a fire maye come out of Abimelech, and consume the men of Sichem and the house of Mello. And that ther may come a fire from among the men of Sichem, and oute of the house of Mello, and consume Abime-lech. And Joathan ranne awaye and fledde, and went to Beor and dwelt there, for feare of Abimelech hys bzo-ther. When Abimelech had raygned three yere, God sent a spzet of hate be-twene Abimelech, and the men of Si-chem. And the Cittizens of Sichem rayled vpon Abimelech; and wyshed that the wickednesse done to the .lxx. sonnes of Jerobaall myght come on him, and that God wold lay the blood of them vnto Abimelech their bzother which slewe them, and vpon the other men of Sichem which ayded hym in the kyllynge of hys bzethzen. And the citizens of Sichem set men to laye awayte for him in the top of the mon-taynes, which men (whyle they lyed for hys commynge) robbed all that came a longe the way by them. And it was tolde Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Abed came with hys bzethzen, and they gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put their confidence in hym. And they went oute into the fieldes, and gathered in theyz grapes, and trode them, and made merye: and wente into the house of theyz goddes, and dyd eate and dzynke, and curssed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of A-bed sayde: what is Abimelech? & what is Sichem? that we shoulde serue hym? Is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is hys officer? Serue suche as come of Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shoulde serue hym? Would God thys people were vnder my hand then wold I take Abimelech oute of the

And he spake against Abimelech: make thine hoost greater, and go out. And whē Zebul the ruler of the citye hard the wordes of Gaal the sonne of Ebed, he was wroth, & sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuely, saying: Beholde, Gaal the sonne of Ebed and hys brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde: they set the citie agaynst thee. Nowe therfore vp by nyght, thou and all the people that is with the, & lye in waite in the field. And rise early in the morninge as soone as the sunne is vp, and fall vpon the citie. And if he & the people that is with him, come out agaynst the, do to him what thine handes shall be able. And Abimelech rose vp, and all the people ỹ were with him by night. And they layde a wayte agaynst Sichem in foure companyes. And Gaal the sonne of Ebed went out, and stode in the entrynge of the gate of the citie. And Abimelech rose vp, and the folke that were with him, frō laying awaite. And whē Gaal saw the people he said to Zebul: beholde there come people downe frō the top of the mountaynes. And Zebul said vnto him: the shadowe of the hyls seme men vnto the (and by that errour arte thou deceaued.) And Gaal answered agayne, and sayde: see, ther come folke downe by the myddle of the land, & another company come alonge by the playne of the charmars. Then sayde Zebul vnto him: where is now thy mouth that sayd: what felow is Abimelech that we shoulde serue him? Is not this the people that thou hast despised? Go out nowe and fight with them. And Gaal went out before the citizens of Sichem, & fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased hym, that he fledde before him (and he drove him vnto the Citye) and many were ouerthrowē and wounded, euen vnto the entring of the gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah. And Zebul thrust out Gaal and hys brethren that they should not dwel in Sichem (and stirred them not to tarye therin.) And on the morowe it happened that the people went onte into the fielde. And they tolde Abimelech. And he toke the people, and deuided them into three cōpanyes, and layd awayt in the fieldes, and loked, and behold, the people were come out of the Citie, and he ran vpon them, and smot them. And Abimelech, and the companyes that were wyth him reached further, and stode in the entring of the gate of the city. And the two other companyes ran vpon al the people that were in the feldes, & slew thē. And when Abimelech had fought agaynst the citye all that daye, he toke it, and slew the people that was therin, and destroyed the citye and sowed salt thorowout it. And when all the men of the towre of Sichem hearde that, they entred into a strong holde of the house of their God Baali berith, (where they made a bonde with hym, and therof did the place take his name, which place was exceadyng stronge.) And it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towre of Sichem were gathered together, and Abimelech gat him to mounte zelmon, both he and all the people that were with him, & toke axes with him and cut downe bowes of trees, and toke them and bare them on his shoulder, & sayd vnto the folcke that were with hym. What ye haue Judi. 7. g seene me do, spede youre selues, and do G lykewyse as I haue done. And al the men that were amonge the people, cut downe bowes, and folowed Abimelech, and put them into the holde, and sette the holde a fier by them: so that (with smoke and fire) all the men of the Towre of Sichem were slayne, vpon a thousande men and women. Then wente Abimelech to Thebez, & beseged it, and toke it. But there was a stronge towre within the citie, and thyther ranne al the men and women, and all the chefe that were in the citie, and shutte it to them, and got them vp by the bulwarkes, to the toppe of the towre. And Abimelech came vnto the towre and fought against it, and went harde vnto the doore of the towre to set it on fyre. And a certayne woman caste a pece of a mylstone vpon hys 2 reg. 11 b head, and all to brake hys brayne pan. Then Abimelech called hastely vnto the yonge man that bare hys harnesse, 1reg.31b and sayd vnto him: *drawe thy sweard 1par.10a and slee me, that men saye not of me: a woman slew hym. And his lad thrust hym thorowe and he dyed. And when the men of Israell sawe that Abime-lech was deade, they departed euerye man vnto hys owne house. And thus Judi.9.c *the wickednes of Abimelech which he did vnto his father, in sleyinge hys seuenty brethrē and therto all the wickednesse of the men of Sichem, dyd God bringe vpon their heades. And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Jerobaall.

A After Abimelech there arose, to defend Israell, one Thola (the sonne of Phuah) his vn-dwelt in Samir in mount Ephraim.

And he iudged Israell. xxiii. yere and after hym arose Jair a Gileadite, and the chyldren of Israell: did not the E-Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Abi-nites oppresse you? And ye cryed to me fore I will helpe you nomore. Go and crie vnto the gods which ye haue che-sen, and *let them saue you in the time of your tribulation. And the chyldren of Israel sayd vnto the Lord: we haue synned, do thou vnto vs what soeuer please thee, deliuer vs onely this day.

And they put away the straunge gods from them, and serued the Lorde. And hys soule had pitye on the misery of Israell. Then the chyldren of Ammon gathered together, and pitched in Gilead: And the chyldren of Israel gathered thē together, and pitched in Mis-pa. And the Lordes of Gilead sayde eche to other: whosoeuer wyll begyn the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, the same shalbe head ouer all the enhabitoures of Gilead.

A And there was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a stronge man the sonne of an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah. And Gileades wyfe bare hym sonnes, whiche when they were come to age thrulde bitte Jephthah, and sayde vnto hym, thou shalt not enherite in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Jephthah fledde from hys brethrene, and dwelte in the lande of Tob. And there gathered vile and theuyshe men to Jephthah, and went out with hym. And it chaunced in processe of tyme that the chyldren of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel. And when the chyldren of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israel, the elders of Gilead went to fet Jephthah out of the lande of Tob (to helpe them) and sayd vnto hym: come and be our capitayne, that we may fyght with the chyldren of Ammon. Jephthah answered the elders of Gilead: dyd not ye hate mee and expell me out of my fathers house: how happeneth it then, that ye come vnto me now in tyme of your tribulacion? And the Elders of Gilead sayde vnto Jephthah: Therefore we turne agayne to thee now, that thou mayest go with vs, and fight against the chyldren of Ammon and be our head ouer all the inhabitoures of Gilead. And B Jephthah sayd vnto the elders of Gilead: If ye bringe me home agayne to fyghte with the chyldren of Ammon, then if the Lord deliuer thē before me, shall I be your heade? And the elders of Gilead sayd to Jephthah: the Lorde be witnesse betwene vs, yf we do not accordyng to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead. And the people made him head and ruler ouer them. And Jephthah rehearsed all his wordes before the Lorde in Mizpa. And Jephthah sente messengers vnto the kynge of the children of Ammon saying: What haste thou to do with me, that thou arte come agaynst me, to fight in my land? The kynge of the children of Ammō answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah: Because Israel toke away my land, when they came out of Egipt: euen from Arnon vnto Jabok, and vnto Jordan. Now therefore restore those landes agayne with fayre meanes. And Jephthah sent messengers againe vnto the king of the children of Ammon: & said vnto

A.2.b hym: thus sayeth Jephthah: • Israell C toke not away the lande of Moab, nor the lande of the chyldren of Ammon. But when Israel came out of Egypt and walked thorowe the wildernesse, euen vnto the red sea they came to Ca-

And in lyke maner they sente vnto the kynge of Moab, but he wold not consent. And so Israell abode styll in Cades. And then they went alonge thorowe the wildernesse, and compassed the lande of Edom, and the lande of Moab, and came along by the east syde of the land of Moab, and pytched on the other syde of Arnon, and would not come within the coaste of Moab: • for Arnon was the vtmost border of Moab. And then Israel • sent messengers vnto Sehon, kyng of the Amorites, and kynge of Hesbon, and sayde vnto hym: Let vs passe thorowe thy lande vnto oure owne countrey. But Sehon consented not to Israell, that he shoulde go thorowe hys coaste: but gathered all hys people together, and pytched in Jezah and foughte with Israell. And the Lord God of Israel deliuered Sehon and al his folke into the handes of Israell. And so Israell smote them and conquered al the land of the Ammorites, the enhabiters of the sayde countrey. And they cōquered all the coastes of the Ammorites, from Arnon vnto Jabok, & frō the wildernesse vnto Jordā. So now, seyng the Lord God of Israel hath caste out the Amorites before hys people Israell, shouldest thou possesse the land? May but what people Camos thy god dryueth out that lande possesse thou. Euē so whatsoeuer nacion the Lorde oure God expelleth, that land ought we to enioye. • And arte thou better then Num. 22.a Wherfore, I haue not sinned agaynst the. But thou doest me wrong to warre agaynst me. The Lord therfore whiche is A Judge, be Judge this daye betwene the chyldren of Israell and the chyldren of Ammon.

E Howbeit, the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon, harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, which he sent hym. Then the spyrete of the Lord came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer to Gilead and to Manasses, and came to Mazphah that lyeth in Gilead, & from thence vnto the chyldren of Ammon.

And Iephthah vowed a vow vnto the the children of Ammon into my hands then that thynge that commeth out of the dores of my house against me, whē I come home in peace, from the chyldren of Ammon, shalbe the Lords, and I will offer it vp for a burntofferyng.

And so Iephthah went vnto the children of Ammon to fyghte with them.
And the Lord delyuered them into his handes. And he smote them from Arovineyardes with an exceadyng greate slaughter. And thus the chyldrene of Ammon were brought vnder before the chyldren of Israell. When Iphthah came to Mazphah vnto his house, se, his daughter came out against him, with tymbrelles and daunses, whiche was his only child: so that beside her, G he had nether sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes and sayd: Alas my daughter, thou hast brought me lowe, and art one of them that troubleth me. For I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde and can not go backe, and she sayde vnto hym: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lorde, then doo with me accordynge to it that proceded oute of thy mouth, for as much as the Lord hath auenged the (and geuen the vic-torye (of thyne enemies the children of Ammon. And she said vnto her father: do this much for me: let me alone two monethes, that I may go down to the mountaines, & bewayle my virginitie I and my felowes. And he said go and he sent her away two monethes. And so she went with her companions, and lamented her maydenheade vppon the mountaynes. And after the end of two monethes she turned agayne vnto her father which dyd with her accordyng to his vowe which he had vowed, and she had knowen no man. And it grew to a custome in Israell. The daughters of Israell came yeare by yeare to lament the daughter of Iephthah the Gileadite, foure dayes in a yere.

¶ The .xii. Chapter

AND the men of Ephraim gathered them selues together, and went northward, and said vnto Iephthah: * wherfore wentest thou to fyghte with the chyldrenne of Ammon, and dyddest not call vs to go thah sayd vnto them: I and my people were at great stryfe with the children of Ammon. And when I called you, ye delyuered me not out of their han-des. And when I sawe that ye delyue-des, and went vppon the chyldren of Ammon. And the Lorde delyuered the into my handes. wherfore then are ye come vpon me nowe, to fyghte with me? Iephthah therfore gathered toge ther all the men of Gilead, and fought with the Ephraites. And the men of Gilead smote the Ephraites because they sayd: Ye Gileadites are but runneagates of Ephraim amonge the Ephraites & the Manassites. Moreo-uer, the men of Gilead toke the passages of Iordan before the Ephraites.

And when those Ephraites that were escaped, sayde: let vs go ouer, then the men of Gilead sayde vnto them: Art thou an Ephraite? they sayd nay. Then sayde they vnto him: then say: Schibboleth (which is by interpretacion: an eare of corne.) And he sayde Sibbo-leth: for he couldē not so pronounce.
And then they toke hym, & slewe him at the passeges of Iordan. And there were ouerthrowen at that tyme of the iudged Israell .vi. yeare, and dyed, and was buried in one of the cities of Gi-one Abezan of Bethlehem, and he had xxx sonnes and .xxx. daughters, whom he sent out, and toke .xxx. other in, for his sonnes. And when Abezan had iudged Israell .vii. yeare he dyed, and was buryed at Bethlehem. After him Elon a Zabulonite iudged Israell .x. yere, and Elon the Zabulonite dyed, and was buried in Ialon, in the coun trye of Zabulon. After him, Abdon the sonne of Hellel a Pharatonite iudged Israel. And he had xl. sons, and thirty neueus, that rode on .lxx. Asse coltes. And when Abdon the sonne of Hellel the Pharatonite had iudged Israell eyght yere he dyed, and was buried in Pharthon in the lande of Ephzaim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

AND the chyldzen of Israel began agayne to committe wickednes in thy syght of ỹ Lozd. And the Lozd delyuered them into the hands of the Philistines .xl. yere. And there was a man in Zaraah of the kynred of Dan, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barren, and bare not. And the Aungell of the Lozd appeared vnto the woman, and sayde vnto her: Behold, thou art barren, and beareſt not: But thou shalt conceaue, and beare a sonne. And nowe beware * that thou dzynke no wyne, noz stronge dzynke, neyther eate any vncleane thynge: foz se, thou shalt conceaue and beare a son. And there may no * rasoz come on hys hrad. Foz the lad shalbe an * abstayner vnto god, euen from his (infancie and from his) birth, And he shall begyn to deliuer Israel out of the handes of the Philistines. Then the wife came, and told her husband saying: a man of God came vnto me, and the fassion of hym was lyke the fassion of an Aungell of God, exceadyng fearful. But I asked him not whence he was, neyther tolde he me his name, but sayd vnto me * behold thou shalt be with chylde & beare a sonne, and nowe dzynke no wyne noz stronge dzynke, neyther eate anye vncleane thynge: foz the lad shalbe an abstayner to God, euen from hys (infancie and from hys) birth, to the daye of hys death. Then Manoah made intercession to the Lozde, and sayde: I pzay the my Lozd, let the men of God whiche thou sendeſt, come once mozе vnto vs, and teache vs what we shall do vnto the ladde when he is bozne. and God hearde the boyce of Manoah, and the Aungell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the feelde. But Manoah her husbande was not with her. And the wife made haste and ranne, and shewed her husbande, and sayde vnto hym. Behoide, the man appeared vnto me that came vnto me to daye. And Manoah aroſe and wente after hys wyfe, and came to the man, and sayde vnto hym: arte thou the manne that spakeſt vnto my wife? And he sayde: I am. Manoah sayde: nowe when thy sayinge is come to passe: what shalbe the maner of the chylde, and what shall he doo? And the Aungell of the Lozde sayde vnto Manoah: Thy wyfe muste abstayne from all that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of nothyng that cometh of the vyne tree, noz dzynke wyne oz stronge dzynke, noz eate any vncleane thynge. But muste obserue all that I bad her. Manoah sayde vnto the Aungell of the Lozde: we wyll kepe thee styll, vntyll * we haue made readye a kyd, and haue set it befoze the. And the Aungell of the Lozde sayde vnto Manoah: though thou make me abide. * I wyll not eate of thy bzeade. And yf thou wylte offer a burnte offerynge, thou muſt offer it vnto the Lozd. Foz Manoah wyſt not that it was an angell of the Lozde, And Manoah sayde agayne vnto the aungell of the Lozde: What is thy name, that when thy sayinge is come to passe, we maye do thee some wozshyppe? And the aungell of the Lozde sayd vnto hym: * why askeſt thou after my name, whiche is secrete. And so Manaoh toke a kydde with a meatofferyng & offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Lozde. And the aungell dyd wonderously. Manoah and his wyfe lokynge vppon. And when the flame came vp toward heauen from the aulter, the angell of the Lozd ascended vp in the flame of the aulter. And Manoah and his wyfe loked vpon it, and fell flat on their faces vnto the grounde. But the angel of the Lozd did nomozе apeare vnto Manoah and hys wyfe. And then Manoah knew that it was an angell of the Lozde, and sayde vnto hys wife * we shall surely dye, because we haue sene god. But his wyfe sayd vnto him: If the Lozd would kyll vs,

¶ The xiiii. Chapter.

A Samson went downe to Thānath and sawe a woman in Thānath of ꝑ daughters of ꝑ Philistines, and he come vp, and tolde his father & his mother: and sayde: I haue sene a woman in Thannath of the daughters of ꝑ Philistines. And nowe gene me her to wyfe. Then his father and mother sayde vnto him: * Is there neuer a woman amonge the daughters of thy brethren, and among all my people, but that thou must goo, and take a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philystines? And Samson sayde vnto hys father: geue me this woman, for shee pleaseth me wel. But his father and mother wist not that it was the Lordes doynge, and that he sought an occasion agaynste the Philistines, for at that tyme the Philistines raygned ouer Israell. Then wet Samson and hys father and his mother downe to

And he tare hym, as he woulde haue rente a kydde, and yet had nothyng in his hande, neither tolde his father and mother what he hadde done. And he went downe, & talked with the woman, which semed well fauoured in the eyght of Samson. And within a shorte space after, as he went thyther agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned

C oute of the way, to see the carkasse of the Lyon. And behold, there was a swarme of bees and honey, in the carkasse of the Lyon. And he toke of the honey in his handes, and went eating and came to his father and mother, and gaue theym also. And they dyde eate. But he tolde not theim, that he had taken the honey out of the carkasse of the Lyon. And soo his father came vnto the woman and Samson made there a feast, for so vsed the yong men to do. And when they (the cytezens of that place) sawe hym, they brought .xxx. companions to be with hym. And Samson sayd vnto them: I will nowe putte forthe a ryddle vnto you. And if you can declare it me within .vii. dayes of the feast, & fynde it out. I will geue you .xxx. shirtes, & xxx. chaunge of garmentes: But and yf you can not declare it me, then shal ye geue me .xxx. shertes, & xxx. chaūge of garmentes. And they answered hym put forth thy ryddle that we may heare it. And he sayde vnto theym: Oute of the eater came meate: and oute of the stronge came swetenes. And they cold not in three dayes expounde the ryddle. And when the seuenth day was come they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe: flatter thyne husbande, (and perswade hym) that he may declare vs the ryddle least we burne thee and thy fathers house with fire. Haue ye called vs hether, to make vs beggers? And Samsons wife wept before him (complayned) and sayde: Surely thou hatest me and louedst me not: for thou hast put forth a riddle vnto the children of my folcke, and hast not told it me. And he sayde vnto her: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father and my mother, and shall I tell it thee? And Samsons wife wepte before hym .vii. dayes, while the feast lasted. And the seuenth day he tolde her, because she lay so sore vpon hym. And she tolde it the children of her folke. And the men of the citie sayde vnto hym the seuenth day, before the sonne went downe. What is sweter then honey, and what is stronger then a Lyon? Then sayde he vnto them: If ye had not plowed in my cauke, ye had not found out my riddle. And the spyrit of the Lord came vpon hym. And he went down to Ashelon, and slewe thirtie men of theim, & spoyled them, & gaue chaunge of garmentes vnto the which expounded the riddle. And he was wroth, and went vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of his companyons, that he had taken vnto him.

AND it chanced within a whyle after, euen in the tyme of wheate haruest, that Samson visited his wyfe with a kyd, sayinge: I wyll go into my wife into the chamber: but her father wold not suffer him to goo in. And her father sayde: I thought that thou haddest hated her, and therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy companions. Is not her yonger sister fayrer then she? Take her in steade of the other. Samson said vnto them: Nowe am I more blameles then the Philistines, & therefore wyll I do them displeasure. And Samson went out and caughte three hundred foxes, and toke firebrandes, and fastened tayle to tayle, and put a firebrande in the myddes betwene two tayles. And whan he had set the brandes of fire, he sent them out (that they might runne abroade, which went immedyately) into the standyngt corne of the Philistines, and burnt vp both the reped corne, and also the standing, wyth the vyneyardes and oliues. Then the Philistines sayd: Who hath done this? And it was told them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnite, because he had taken his wyfe, and geuen her to his companion. And the Philystines came vp and burnte her and her father with fire. And Samson said vnto them: Though ye haue done this yet will I be auenged of you, & then I will cease. And he smote them legge and thigh with a mightie plague. And then he went and dwelt in the cane of the rocke Etam. Then the Philistynes came vp, & pitched in Juda, and lay in a place, that was afterward called Lehi (that is a Jawbone, wher their host was scatered abroade.) And the men of Juda said, why are ye come vp vnto vs? They answered: to binde Samson are we come vp, and to do to hym as he hath done to vs. Then three thousande men of Juda went downe to the caue of the rocke Etam, and said to Samson: wottest thou not that the Philistenes are rulers euer vs. wher fore then hast thou done thus vnto vs? He answered them: as they dyd vnto me so haue I done vnto theym. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: we are come downe to bynde the, and to deliuer thee into the hande of the Philistines. And Samson sayd vnto them: sweare vnto me (and promes me) that ye shall not fall vpon me your selues. They answered him, saying: No, but we wyll bynde thee, and deliuer thee vnto their hands: But we will not kil thee. And they bounde hym with two newe cordes, and broughte hym from the rocke. And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines showted against him. And the spryte of the Lorde came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vppon hys armes, became as flaxe that was burnt with fier, for the bandes lowsed from of hys handes. And he founde a rottenne Jawe bone of an asse, and put fourth hys hande, and caught it, and slewe a thousande men therwith. And Samson sayde: with the Jawe of an asse, haue I made heapes of them: with the Jawe of an asse haue I slaine a thousand mē And whē he had lefte speakynge, he cast awaye the Jawe bone oute of hys hande, and called the place: Ramath Lehi (That is by interpretacion, the lyftyng vp of the Jawe bone.) And he was sore athirste, and called on the Lorde, and sayde: Thou haste geuen thys greate victorye, in the hande of thy seruaunt. And nowe I muste dye for thirst, and fall vnto the hands of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth that was in the Jawe, and ther came water therout. And when he had dronke, his spryte came againe and he was refreshed, wherfore the name therof is called vnto this daye, the well of the caller on, which came of the Jawe. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines, twentye yeres.

THen went Samsō to Azath, and sawe there an harlotte and went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Azathites, saynge: Samson is come hyther. And they went about, and layde wayte for hym ther, al night in ỹ gate of the citie and were still all the nyght, sayinge: in the morgnyng whan it is daye, we shal kyll hym. And Samson toke his rest tyll mydnyght, and arose at mydnight and toke the dores of the gate of the citie, and the two side postes, and rente them of, with the barre and al, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the top of an hill, that is before Hebron. And after this, it fortuned that by the ryuer of Sorek, he loued a womā, called Dalila, vnto whō came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayd vnto her: perswade hym, and se wherin his greate strength lyeth, and by what meane we maye ouercōe hym that we may bynde hym, to bring hym vnder, and euery one of vs shall geue the eleuen hundred siluerlinges. And Dalila sayde to Samson: Oh, tell me where thy great strenth lyeth, and how thou mightest be bound, and brought vnder. Samson answered vnto her: If they bynde me with seuē grene withes that were neuer dryed, I shalbe weake as other menne. And then the LORDE of the Philystynes brought her seuen wythes that were yet greane and neuer dryed, and shee bound hym therewith. Notwithstandyng she had men lynge in wayte with her in the chamber. And shee sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And immediately he brake the withes as a strynge of towe (that is twined) breaketh, when it fealeth fyre. And so hys strengthe was not knowen. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: Se, thou hast mocked me, and tolde me lyes. Nowe therfore tell me, wherwith thou mightest be bound. He answered her: yf thou bind me with newe ropes that neuer were occuppyed, I shall be weake, and as another manne. Dalila therefore toke newe ropes, and bounde hym therewith and sayde vnto him: the Philystines be vpon the Samson. And ther were lyers of wayte in the chamber, and he broke them from of his armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson, hitherto thou hast begyled me, and tolde me lyes: yet tell me, howe thou mightest be bounde. He sayde vnto her: If thou plantedst the.vii. lockes of my heade with an heare lace. And she fastened them with a nayle, and said vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson And he awaked out of his slepe, & pluckes awaye the nayle, that was in the plattynge with the heare lace. AND she sayde vnto him agayn: Howe canst thou saye that thou louest me when thyne hart is not with me? behold, thou hast mocked me this three tymes, and hast not tolde me, wherein thy greate strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon hym with her wordes continually vexynge of hym, his soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her all his harte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer cam raser vpō mine headde, for I haue bene an abstayner (that is to say consecrate) vnto God, euen from my mothers wombe: therfore whan I am shauen, my strength will goo from me, and I shall wax weake, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalila sawe that he had tolde her all hys heart, she sent and called for the Lordes of the Philistines, saying: come vp yet this once, for he hath shewed me all his hart. Then the Lords of the Philistines came vp vnto her, and brought the money in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her knees, (and to lay hys head downe in her lappe) and she sent for a man, and he dyd shaue of the seuen lockes of his head, and beganne to vexe him, and his strength was gone frō hym. And ther sayde: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke oute of hys slepe, and sayde: I will go outs nowe as at other tymes before, and shake my selfe, and he wist not that the Lord was departed frō hym. But the Philistines

Then the Lordes of the Philiſtines gathered them together, for to offer a ſolempne offeryng vnto Dagō their God, and to reioyce: for they ſaid oure God hath deliuered Samſon our enemie into our hands. And whē the people ſawe hym, they prayſed their God: for they ſayde: our GOD hath deliuered into our hāds, our enemie, & deſtroyer of our coūtrey, which ſlue many of vs. And whē their harts were mery, it fortuned, that they ſaid ſend for Samſon that he maye make vs laughe. And they fet Samſon out of the priſon house, and he played before them, and they ſet hym betwene the pillers. And Samſon ſayde vnto the lad that led hym by the hand: ſette me that I may touche the pillers, that the houſe ſtand vpon, and that I may leane to them. And the houſe was full of men and women. And there were all the Lordes of the Philiſtines. And there were vpon the roofe a thre thouſand men and women, y beheld while Samſon played And Samſon called vnto the Lorde, and ſayde: O Lorde God, thinke vppon me, and ſtrenthen me, at this time onely. O God that I may be auenged of the Philiſtines for my two eies. And Samſon caught the two middle pillers, on whiche the houſe ſtode, & on which it was borne vp, the one in his ryghthande, and the other in his lefte, and ſayde: my ſoule ſhall dye with the Philiſtines, and bowed them with all his myght. And the houſe fel vpon the Lordes, and vpon all the people, that were therein. And ſo the deade whych he ſlewe at hys death were more then they which he ſlewe in his lyfe. And then his brethren and all the houſe of hys father came downe, and toke hym vppe, and broughte hym & buryed him betwene Zarath and Eſtahol, in the buryinge place of Manoah hys father. And he iudged Iſraell twenty yeares.

THere was a man in mount Ephraim named Micah, and he ſayd vnto his mother: the leuen hundred ſyluerlynges that were taken from thee, about which thou curſedſt, and ſpakeſt it in myne eares. Beholde, the ſyluer is with me, I toke it away. And his mother ſayd: bleſſed be thou my ſonne, in the Lord. And when he had reſtored the leuen hundred ſyluerlynges to hys mother agayne, hys mother ſayde: I vowed the ſyluer vnto the Lord of myne hande for thee my ſonne: that thou ſhouldeſt make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Nowe therefore, I wyll geue it thee agayne. And when he reſtored the money agayne vnto hys mother, hys mother toke two hundred ſiluerlynges, and gaue them to a goldſmyth, which made thereof a grauen ymage, and a ymage of metall, & it was in the houſe of Micah. And the man Micah had a temple of goddes, and made an Ephod and Theraphim, (That is to ſaye, a garment for the Prieſte, and Idoles.) And filled the hand of one of hys ſons which became hys prieſte. In thoſe dayes there was no kynge in Iſraell, but euery man dyd that whiche was good in his owne eyes. And ther was a ponge man out of Bethlehem Juda of the kynred of Juda: whiche ponge manne was a Leuite, and ſotourned there. And the man departed oute of the citie of Bethlehem Juda, to goo dwell where he coulde finde a conuenient place. And he came to mount Ephraim, to the houſe of Micah as he iourneied. And Micah ſayd vnto him. whence commeſt thou? The Leuyte anſwered hym. I am of Bethlehem Juda, and go to dwell where I maye fynde a place (and where I maye eſpye it to be for my profyt.) And Micah ſayde agayne vnto hym: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a prieſte. And I wyll geue the ten ſiluerlynges by yeare, two garmentes, and thy meate and drinke. And the Leuite was content to dwell with the man and was vnto him as one of his owne sonnes. And Micah consecrated the hand of the Leuite, and the yong man became hys prieste, and was in the house of Micah. Then sayde Micah: nowe I am sure, that the Lord wyl be good vnto me, seynge I haue a Leuite to my prieste.

A Jud.17b

IN those dayes there was no kynge in Israell. And in those dayes the trybe of Dan sought them an enherytaunce to dwel in, for vnto that tyme there fell none enherytaunce vnto them amonge the trybe of Israell. And the chyldren of Dan sent of their kynred fyue actyue men in feates of warre oute of theyr coastes, euen out of Zaraah and Estahol, to bewe the land and search it out, and sayd vnto them: go and search out the lande. Whiche when they came to mounte Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah, they lodged there. And when they were in the house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of the yonge man the Leuite: and when they turned in thyther, they said vnto him: who brought thee hyther? what makest thou in this place? and what haste thou here? And he answered them: thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath hyred me, and I am become hys priest. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: Aske counsell nowe of God, that we maye knowe, whether the waye which we go, shall be prosperous, or no. And the prieste sayde vnto them: go in peace, for the Lord gydeth your way which ye go. Then the fyue men departed, and came to Lais, and sawe the people that were therein, howe they dwelte careles, after the maner of the Sydons, styll, and without casting of parels: and that no man made any trouble in the lande, or vsurped any dominion, but were farre fromme the Sydons, and had no busynes with other men. And they came vnto theyr brethren, to Zaraah and Estaholl. And their brethren sayde vnto them: what haue ye done? And they answered: Arise, that we may go vp against them, for we haue sene the lande surely a very good one. And do ye syt styll: be not slouthfull to departe. But come to conquere the lande (it shalbe no labourre.) If ye wyll go, ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no parelles, and it is a very large countrie: whiche God hath geuen into your handes. It is also a place, whiche doeth lacke nothing that is in the worlde. And there departed thence of the kynred of the Dannites, euen out of Zaraah & Estahol, sixe hundred men appoynted with instrumentes of warr. And they wente vp, & pitched in kariath Jarim which is in Juda. Wherfore they called the place, the hoost of Dan, vnto this day: and it is on the backesyde of kariath Jarim. And they wente thence vnto moūt Ephraim, and came to the house of Micah. Then answered the .v. men that went to spye out the countrye of Lais, and sayd vnto their brethre: wot ye not that there is in these houses an Ephod, Theraphim, a grauen ymage, and an ymage of metall? Nowe therfore consider what ye haue to do. And they tourned thyther warde and came to the house of the yonge man the Leuite, euen vnto the house of Micah, and saluted hym peasably e. And the syxe hundred men gyrded with weapons of warre, which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode by the entrynge of the gate. And the fyue men that went to spye out the lande, went in thyther and toke the kerued Image, and the Ephod, Theraphim, and the Image of metall. And the prieste stode in the entrynge of the gate with the syxe hundred men that were armed vnto batel, whyle the other went into Micahs house, and fet the kerued Image the Ephod, Theraphim: and the Image of metall. Then sayd the prieste vnto theym: what do ye? They answered hym: houlde thy peace, laye thyne hande vppon thy mouthe, and come with vs, to be our father & priest. Is it better for thee to be a prieste vnto the house of one man, then to bee a priest vnto a tribe or kinred of Israel?

And the Preist was glad and toke the Ephod, and Theraphim, and the grauen ymage, and went with the people And they turned and departed, and put F the chyldren, the cattell and their other substaunce before theym. And when they were a good way from the house of Micah, the men that were in the houses, and in Michas house, made an oute crye, and followed after the chyldren of Dan, and called vnto the. And they turned theyr faces, and sayde vnto Micah: what ayleth thee that thou maketh an outcrye? And he sayde ye haue taken away my goddes whyche I made, and also the Preist, and goo your wayes with them. And what haue I more? how the say ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the chyldren of Dan sayde vnto him, let not thy voice be harde amonge vs, least angrye fellowes runne vpon thee, and thou lose thy lyfe, & the lyues of all thine housholde. And soo the chyldren of Danne went theyr wayes. And when Micah sawe that they were to strong for him he turned and went backe vnto hys G house agayne. And they toke the thinges which Micah had made, and the preist which he hadde, and came vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mystrust, and smote them with the edge of the swearde, & burnt the citie & fire. And there was no man to helpe because Lais was far from Sidon, and they hadde no medelynge with any other mā. And the citie stode in the valey that lieth by Beth rob. And they buylt therin there a citie, and dwelt therein. And called it Iud. 19. Dan, after the name of Dan theyr father, whyche was borne vnto Israel. Howbeit, in very dede the name of ỹ citie was Lais at the beginning. And the chyldren of Dan set them vppe the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and hys sonnes, were the preistes

I

IT chaunced in those dayes, when there was no kynge in Israell, that a certayne Leuite, soiourning on the side of mounte Ephraim, toke to wife a concubin out of Bethlehem Juda: and hys concubin played the whore by him, & went away frō hym, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there contynued foure monethes. And her husbande arose, and wente after her, to speake frendely vnto her, and to bring her home againe, hauing his lad with hym, and a couple of asses. And shee brought hym vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe hym, he reioyced of hys comyng. And his father in lawe, the damosels father kepte hym. And the Leuite abode with him three dayes, and soo they did eate and drynke, and lodged B there. The fourth daye when they arose early in the morynge, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damo- Gen. 18. sels father said vnto his sonne in lawe: comforte thine hart with a morsel of breade, and then go your waye. And they satte down, and did eate & drinke, both of them together. And the damosels father sayd vnto the man: Be content I pray the, and tary al night, and lette thine harte be merye. And when the man stode redy to departe, hys father in lawe compelled hym to turne agayne, and to tary all night ther. And he rose vp earely the fifth daye to departe, and the damosels father sayde, comforte thine harte: and they taryed C vntill after midday. And they did eate both of them together. And when the man arose to departe with his concubine and his lad, his father in law, the damsels father sayd vnto him: behold the day goeth fast away, and drawe to warde euen, tary all nyght: se the least way tary this day here, that thin hart may be merye. And to morowe get you earelye vppon youre waye, that thou mayest get the to thy tente. Nevertheles the man would not tarye but arose and departed, and came as far as Jebus, (which is Jerusalem) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his ladde with hym. And when they were faste by Jebus the day was sore spent, and the yong man sayd vnto the master: come I pray the and let vs turne in, into thys citie of the Jebusites, and lodge all nyghte there. His master answered him: we will not turne into a straunge cytye that are not of the chyldren of Israell: we will go forth to Gibea. And he D sayd vnto his lad, go forward, and we shall come to one of these places to lodge al nyghte either in Gibea or in Rama. And they went forward vpon theyr way, and the sonne went down vpon them, when they were faste by Gibia, whiche belongeth to them of Ben Jamin. And they turned thither warde to go in, and lodge all nyght in Gibea. And when he came, he satte hym downe in a streate of the citie, for there was no man that tooke them to lodgynge. And beholde, there came an olde man from his worke, oute of the fielde at euen, which was also of mount E Ephraim, & dwelte as a straunger in Gibea. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Ben Jamin. And when he had lyft vp his eyes, he saw a wayfaryng man in the streate of the cytie. And the olde man sayde: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? He answered hym: we come from Bethlehem Juda, toward the side of mount Ephraim: from thence am I, and I went to Bethlehem Juda, and goo nowe to the house of the Lorde. And there is no man that receyueth me to house, we haue strawe and prouender for our asses, and breade and wyne for me and thy handmayd, and for the lad that is with thy seruaunt, & we lacke nothyng. The olde man sayd: peace be F with thee, all that thou lackest shalte thou finde with me: onely abyde not in the streate all nyght, and so he broughte him into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his Asses. And they washed theyr feete, and did eate and drinke. And as they were makyng their hartes mery, beholde, the men of the citye whych were wicked, beset the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the dore, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: bryng forth the man that came into thyne house, that Ge. we may knowe hym. And the man of the house, the olde men went oute, & sayde vnto them, Oh nay my brethren do not so wickedly, seynge that thys man is come into myne house: doo not so vnmete a thynge. Beholde, here is my daughter a mayden, and this mans concubine, them I wyll bryng oute nowe vnto you, and humble them, and do with them what semeth you good: but vnto this man, do not so abhominable a thynge. But the men would not harken to hym. And the man toke his concubine, and brought her oute vnto them, whyche knewe her, and abused her, all the nyght, euen vnto the morninge. And when the daye began to spryng, they let her go. And then came G the woman in the dawning of the day and fell down at the dore of the mans house, where her Lorde was, tyll it was daye. And her Lorde arose vp in the morninge, and opened the doores of the house, and went out to goo hys waye. And beholde, the woman, euen his concubine laye a longe before the dore of the house, and her handes stretched oute vpon the threshoulde. And (he thinking her to haue bene a slepe) sayde vnto her: vp and let vs be going But she answered not. Than the man (perceyuing that she was deade) toke her vp vpon an Asse, and stode vp, and gat him vnto his owne home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a knife, and caught his concubin, and deuided her with the bones into twelue peces, and sente her into all quarters of Israell. And all that saw it sayde: there was no suche dede done or sene sence the chyldren of Israell came oute of Egypt vnto thys daye, consyder the matter, take aduisement and say your myndes.

The .xx. Chapter. I

Then all the chyldren of Israell went oute: and the congregation was gathered together as it had bene but one manne, euen from Dan to Beerseba, and vnto the lande of Gilead, vnto the LORDE in Mizpa, and there stode folke out of all quarters, and of all the trybes of Israell, in the congregation of the people of God, foure hundred thousande fote men, that drewe swoordes. And when the chyldren of Ben Jamin harde that the childzen of Israel were gone vp to Mizpa, and had sayde. O ye chyldzen of Israell, tell vs howe this wickednes happened. And the Leuite, the womans husbande that was slayne, answered and sayd, I cãe into Gibea, that is in Ben Jamin, & my concubine to lodge all nyght. And the men of Gibea rose agaynst me, and beset the house rounde about vpon me by nyght, and thought to haue slayne me: and my concubine haue they so forced, that she is deade. And I take my concubine, and cutte her in peces: and sente her thorowout all the landes of the enheritaunce of Israell. For they haue committed abhomination & folly in Israell. Beholde ye are all childzen of Israell. Ponder thys matter, and geue your aduise in the case. And all the people arose, as it hadde bene one man, sayinge, there shall not a man of vs go to his tent, neyther turne into hys house. But this shalbe it that we will do to Gibea: we will go vp by lotte agaynste it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thorowe oute all the trybes of Israell, and an hundred of the thousand, and a thousande out of ten thousande, to fet vitayle for the people, to make that they maye go agaynste Gibea Ben Jamin, because of all the abhomination, ỳ they haue wrought in Israell. And soo all the men of Israell gathered together agaynste the citie, knitte together, as it had bene but one man. And the tribes Iudi. 20 of Israell sente men thorowe all the trybe of Ben Jamin sayinge, what wyckednesse is this, that is happened amonge you? Nowe therefore deliuer vs the men, those chyldzen of Belial wh̄ch are in Gibea, that we may slay them, and put away euil from Israel. Neuertheles, the childzen of Ben Jamin, wolde not harden vnto the voice of theyr brethren, the childzen of Israell: but gathered them selues together oute of the cities vnto Gibea, to come out and fight against the childzen of Israell. And the childzen of Ben Jamin were numbred at that tyme, out of the cities .xxvi. thousand men that drewe swoordes, beside the enhabyters of Gibea, whyche were numbred seuen hundred chosen men. And amonge all these folke were seuẽ hundred lefte handed men, whiche euery one coulde slynge stones at an heare breadth and not mysse. And the chyldzen of Israell beside Ben Jamin, were numbred foure hundred thousande men that drewe swoordes, and were all men of warre. And the chyldzen of Israell arose, and wente vp to Bethell, and asked councell of God, who should begyn the battell agaynste the chyldzen of Ben Jamin: And the Lorde sayde Juda shal begin. And the childzen of Israell stode vp earely and beseged Gibea. And the men of Israell wente out to battayle agaynst Ben Jamin, and the men of Israell putte them selues in araye to fight against them, beside Gibea. And the chyldzen of Ben Jamin came out of Gibea, and destroyed of the Israelites that day .xxii. thousande men, and broughte theym to the earth. And the folke of the childzen of Israel plucked vp theyr hartes, and went to agayne, & made battel in the same place where they did the first daye. And the chyldzen of Israel went vp, and wept before the Lord vnto euen, and asked of the Lord, sayinge: shal we go agayn to battell agaynste the chyldzen of Ben Jamin our brethren? And the Lorde sayde: go vp agaynst them. And ỳ childzen of Israell came out agaynste the childzen of Ben Jamin the seconde daye. And the childzen of Ben Jamin wẽt against thẽ out of Gibea, the secõd day & destroied to the earth of the childzẽ of Israel once again .xviii. M men ỳ drewe swoordes euerye man of thẽ. Then the childzẽ of Israel & all ỳ people went vp & came vnto Bethel,

and wept and sat there before the lord and fasted the same day vnto euen, and offered burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges before the Lord. And the chyldren of Israell asked the Lorde: for there was the arke of the appoyntemente of God, in those dayes. And Phinehes the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron waiting vpon it at that time sayd: shall I get me vp to go out anye more to battayle agaynst the childzen of Ben Jamin my brethren, or shal I cease? The Lorde sayde: go for to morowe I wyll delyuer them into your handes. And Israell set lyers awaite rounde aboute Gibea. And the chyldren of Israell went vp agaynste the childzē of Ben Jamin the third time, and put themselues in aray agaynste Gibea, as twyse before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out agaynst the people, and were drawen awaye from ỹ cytie. And they began to smite of the people deade (as twise before,) by two hie wayes of which one goeth vp to Bethel, and the other to Gibea, thorowe the fielde) vppon a thirtene men of Israell. And the childzen of Ben Jamin sayde. They are fallen before vs, as at the first. But the childzē of Israell sayde: let vs flye and pluckе them away from the citie, vnto the hie wayes. And all the men of Israel rose vp out of theyr place, and put thē selues in araye at Baal Thamar. And lykewyse the lyers in awayt of Israell, came forth out of theyr places, euē out of the medowes that were aboute Gibea, and came agaynst Gibea: ten thousande chosen men, out of all Israell, and there was a sore battell. But the other wist not that so greate euyll was so nie them. And the Lord plaged Ben Jamin before Israell, and the chyldren of Israell destroyed of the Beniamites the same day. xxv. thousande, and an hundred men, that drue sweardes euerypone of thē. And whā the chyldren of Ben Jamin saw that they were put to the worst, the men of Israell gaue rome to the Beniamites because they trusted vnto the laiers in wayte, which they hadde layd beside Gibea. And the liers in wayte hasted, and ranne vpon Gibea, and went and smote all the citie with the edge of the swearde. And an appoyntment hadde the men of Israell from the lyers in wayte, that they shoulde make a great smoke ryse vppe oute of the citie. And when the men of Israell fledde in the battell: Ben Jamen began to smyte deade of the chyldren of Israell, about a thirtye persones, and sayd: the other are put to the worse before vs, as in the fyrst battell. But whan there began to aryse out of the citie a pyller of smoke, the Beniamites loked backe: and beholde, the waste pynge of the hole cytie, beganne to ascende vppe to heauen. When the men of Israel also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamen, were abasshed, for they sawe that euil approched theim. And therefore they turned their backes before the men of Israell, vnto the way that leadeth to the wylderneße, but the men of warre ourtoke them. And beside that, they whyche came oute of the citie, destroyed them in the myddle of theym. And thus they compaſſed the Beniamites aboute, and chaſed them to Menuha, and ouer ranne them to Gibea, on the eastside: and there were slayn of Ben Jamin. xviii. thousande, whych were all men of warre. And they turned & fled to the wylderneße warde, and vnto the rocke of Rymmon. And the other slewe by the waye of the rest of them, fiue thousande men, and stucked vnto them, vntyll they came to Gideō and slewe two thousande men of thē. So that al that were slaine that same day of Ben Jamen. were. xxv. thousand men that drewe sweardes, whyche were all men of war: onelye. vi. hundred men turned and fled to the wylderneße, vnto the Rocke of Rymmon, and abode there. iiii. monethes. And the men of Israell turned backe again vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin, and smote thē with the edge of ỹ swearde in the cyties, both man and beast, and all that came to hande, and set on fire all the cities that they could come by.

The. xxi. Chapter.

AND every manne of Israell sware in Mizpa, sayinge: There shall none of oure doughters vnto wyues of Ben Iamin to dwelle. And the people came to Bethel, and abode there vnto euen, before God, and lift vp their voyces and wept sore, and sayd: O Lorde God of Israell, why is this chaunced in Israel, that there should be this day one tribe lacking in Israell? And on the morowe the people rose vp betyme, & made there an altar, and offered burnt offrynges and peace offrynges. And the children of Israel sayd, who is there amonge all the tribes of Israell, that came not vp with the congregation vnto the Lorde? For they had made a great othe concernynge hym that came not vp to the Lorde in Mizpa, sayinge: He shall surely die. And the children of Israel had pitie on Ben Iamin their brother, and sayde: There is one tribe cut of from Israell this daye: what shall we do vnto the remnant of them that they may haue wyues? We haue sworne by the Lorde, that we wyl not geue the of our doughters to wyues.
And they sayde: Is there any of the tribes of Israell, that came not vp to Mizpa to the Lorde? And behold, there came none of the inhabiters of Iabes Gilead vnto the hoste and congregation.
For the people were numbred: and be-holde, there were none of the inhabiters of Iabes Gilead there. And they sent thyther a multitude, eight thousand men of the stoutest of them, and comanded them, sayinge: Go and smyte the inhabiters of Iabes Gilead with the edge of the swerde, both the women and children. And this is it that ye shall do: Destroye all the males and all those vnto whom lyen by mankynde they fynde among the inhabiters of Iabes Gilead. And they founde among the inhabiters of Iabes Gilead foure hun-dreth maydens, yet vndefiled, that had no-lyen by mankynde lyenge with any male and brought them vnto the hoste to Silo, which is in the lande of Canaan. And the whole congregation sent thyther, and spake vnto the children of Ben Iamin, that were in the Rocke of Rymmon, and called peaceably vnto them: and Ben Iamin came againe at that tyme, and they gaue them wiues, which they had saued alyue of the women of Iabes Gilead. But they sufficed them not. And the people had cõpassion on Beniamin, because that the LORDE had made a gap in the tribes of Israell. And then the elders of the congregation, sayd: what shall we do to the remnant of them, to get them wyues, seeyng all the wiues of Ben Iamin are destroyed? And they sayd: There must be an enheritaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Ia-min, that a tribe be not destroyd out of Israell: do we so it, we maye not geue them wiues of our doughters.
For the children of Israel had sworne saying: Cursed bee he that geueth a wife to Ben Iamin. Then they sayde: Beholde, there is a feaste of the Lorde yerely in Silo, which is on the north syde of Bethel, and on the east syde of the way that goeth frome Bethel to Sichem, and south frome Libanon.
Therfore they commaunded the children of Ben Iamin, saying: Go and lye in wayte in the vineyardes, And when ye se that the doughters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the vineyardes, & catche you euery man a wyfe of the daughters of Ben Iamin. And when their fathers or brethren come to vs to cõplayn, we will say vnto them: Haue pytie on vs for their sakes, because we reserued not to eche man his wife in time of warre. Ye haue not geuen vnto them, that ye should synne in the same. And the children of Ben Iamin did euen so: and toke them wiues accordynge to the nombre of them that daunced, whom they caught. And they went, and returned vnto their inheritaunce, and repayred the cities, and dwelte in them. And the children of Israell departed thence at that tyme, euery man to his tribe and to his kynred, and went out frõ thence euery man to his enheritaunce. For in those dayes there was no kynge in Israel: but every man did that which semed right in his owne eyes.

¶ The ende of the Booke of Iudges, called in the Hebrue Sophtim.

IT fortuned that (in the dayes of a certain Iudge, whenne the iudges iudged,) there fell a dearthe in the lande, and a certayne manne of Bethleem Iuda went for to sogorne in the countrey of Moab: he and his wyfe, and his two sonnes. The name of the manne was Elimelech, and the name of his wyfe, Naomi, and the names of his two sonnes were, Mahlon and Chilion, and they were Ephrattes out of Bethlehem Iuda. And when they came into the land of Moab, they continued there. And Elimelech Naomies husband died, and she remained with her two sonnes, which toke the wyues of the nations, of the Moabites, the one's name was Orpha, and the other's Ruth. And they dwelled B there about a ten yere. And Mahlon and Chylion dyed also, euen both of them, and the woman was left vnto the C children of her two sonnes, and of her husband. Then rose she vp with her daughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she heard say in the countrey of Moab, how that the Lorde had visited his people, and geuen them breade. Wherfore she departed out of the place where she was and her two daughters with her. And they went on their waye to returne vnto the lande of Iuda. And Naomi said vnto her two daughters in lawe: Go and returne eche of you vnto your mothers house: the lorde dealeth kyndly with you, as ye haue dealte with the deade, and with me. And the Lord geue you, that you may fynd rest, either of you in the house of her husband. And when she kyssed them, they lyfte vp their voyce, and wept, and said vnto her: Surely we will go with thee vnto thy people. And Naomi said: Turne again my daughters, for what cause will you go with me? Are there any mo children in my wombe to be your husbandes? Turne again my daughters, and goe: for I am to old to haue an husbande. And if I sayd, I haue hope, yf I toke a husband also this night, and shulde also already beare sonnes; wolde ye tary after them till they were of age? wolde ye for them so long refraine from mariyng of husbands? Not so my daughters: for it greeueth me much for your sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone out against me. And they lyfte vp their voyces, and wept again. Then Orpha kyssed her mother in law, but Ruth abode styl by her. And Naomi said: Se, thy sister in law is gone D again vnto her people, and vnto her goddes: returne thou after her. And Ruth answered, Entreat me not to leaue thee, and to returne from after thee: for whether thou goest, I will go also, and where thou dwellest, there I will dwell: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou dyest, there will I dye, and there will I be buried. The Lord do so to me, if ought but death only depart thee and me asunder. When she E sawe that she was stedfastly minded to go with her, she left speaking vnto her. And so they went both, vntil they came to Bethleem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it happened of them there as they went all the citie, and the women sayde: Is not this Naomi? And she answered them: Call me not Naomi, (that is to say, beautifull) but call me Mara, (that is to saye, bytter.) For the almighty hath made me very bitter. I went full, and the Lorde hath brought me home againe emptie. Why then call ye me Naomi, seyng the Lorde humbled me, and the almyghty hathe brought me vnto aduersitie? And so Naomi with Ruthe the Moabitesse her daughter in lawe, returned out of the countreye of Moab, and came to Bethlehem, in the beginnyng of barly harueste.

AND Naomies husband had a kynsman of strengthe might (which was of the kinred of Elimelech) named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitesse sayd vnto Naomi: let me go to the field, and gather eares of corne (suche as the reapers leaue) after any man, in whose syght I fynde grace. And she sayd vnto her: Go my daughter. And she wente and came to the fielde, and gathered after the reapers, and her chaunce was, that the same field pertained vnto Booz, which was of the kinred of Elimelech. And behold, Booz came from Bethlehem, and sayd vnto the reapers: the Lord be with you. And they answered hym: the Lorde blesse thee. Then sayd Booz vnto his yonge man that stode by the reapers, whose damosell is this? And the yong man that stode by the reapers, answered, and said: It is the Moabitisse damosel, that came with Naomi out of the countreye of Moab, and she sayd vnto vs: Oh let me lease and gather after the reapers, the eares that remayn: and so she came and hath continued euen fro the mornyng vnto nowe, saue that she taried a litle in the house. Then said Booz vnto Ruth: Hearest thou my daughter, Go to none other field to gather, neither go from hens, but abyde here by my maidens. Let thyne eyes be on the fielde that they reape, and goo thou after the maidens: haue I not charged the yong men, that they shall not hurte thee? Moreouer, when thou art a thurst, go vnto the vessels, and drynke of that whiche the laddes haue drawen. Then she fell on her face, & bowed herself to the grounde, and sayd vnto hym, how is it that I haue found grace in thyne eyes, & ye knowe me, seyng I am an alient? And Booz answered and sayd vnto her, All is told and shewed me, that thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe sence the death of thine husband, how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and the lande where thou wast borne, and art come vnto a nation, whiche thou knewest not in tyme paste. The LORDE quite thy woorke, and a full reward be geuen thee of the Lorde GOD of Israell, vnder whose wynges thou arte come to abyde. Then she sayde: Let me fynde fauour in thy syght my Lorde, thou that haste comforted me, and spoken hartely vnto thy mayde, whiche yet am not lyke vnto one of thy maydens. Booz sayd vnto her agayne, In tyme of refection, come thou hyther, and eate of the bread, and dyppe thy soppe in the vynegar. And she satte downe by the reapers, and he reached her parched corne: of the whych she dydde eate, and was sufficed, and lefte parte. And when she was rysen vp to gather, Booz commaunded hys yong men, saying: lette her gather euen amonge the heapes, and forbydde her not. And leane her some of the sheues for the nonce, and lette it lye, that she may gather it vp, (without shame) and rebuke her not. And so she gathered in the fielde, vntyll euen, and threshed, that she hadde gathered, and it was in measure vpon an Ephe (that is three bushels) of barley. And she tooke it vp, and went into the Citie: and when her mother in lawe hadde seene what she had gathered, she plucked oute also, and gaue to her that she had reserued when she had eaten ynough. And her mother in lawe sayd vnto her: Where hast thou gathered to day, and where wroughtest thou? Blessed be he, that knewe thee. And she shewed her mother in lawe howe she had wrought with hym, and sayde: The mannes name with whom I wrought to day is Booz. And Naomi sayd vnto her daughter in lawe: Blessed be he of the Lord, for he ceaseth not doo good to the lyuynge, and to the dede.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

THē Naomi her mother in law saide vnto her: my daughter, shall I not seke reste for thee, that thou mayest prosper? And is not Booz our kynsman, with whose may-dens thou spakest? Behold, he wyn-neweth barley to nyght in the threshing floore: washe thy selfe therefore, and anoynt thee, and put thy rayment vp-on thee, and gette thee downe to the barne, But lette not a man knowe of thee, vntil he haue left eating & drinmarke the place where he layeth him clothes that are on his feete, and laye thee downe there, and so shall he tell thee what thou shalte do. And she answered her: all that thou biddest mee, I will do. And so she went downe vnto the barne, and dyd accordinge to all that her mother in lawe bad her.

And when Booz had eaten and dronken, and made him merye, and was gone in, to ly downe beside the heape of corne, she came softly, and lift vppe the clothes of his feete, and laide her downe. And at mydnyght the manne was afrayde and groped. And beheld a woman lye at his feete. And he said, what art thou? she answered: I am Ruth thine handmayde, spreade thy wynge ouer thyne handmayd, for thou arte the nexte of the kinne. He sayde:

gynning, in as muche as thou folowethou requirest, for all the ryng of my people doth know, that thou arte a ver-tuous woman. And it is true that I am of thy next kin, howbeit, there is one nyer than I. Tarye thys nyght.

And whē morning is come, yf he will marye thee, it is good, let him doe.
But & yf he will not haue thee, as sure lay at his feete vntyl ye morning. And she arose vp before one could knowe another. And he said: let no mā know that there came any woman into the barne. And he said againe vnto ye mā tel that thou hast vpon thee, & how it lyeth vp. And when she herde it vp, he mete in fyue measures of barley, and layde it on her. And she gat her into the ci-tie: and when she came in to her mother in law, she said, how is it with my daughter? And she told her all that the mā had don to her. And said also: these vi. mesures of barly gaue he me & said: thou shalt not come empty vnto thy mother in law. Then saide she my daughter, sit stil, vntil thou know how the matter will chaūce. For the man will not be in rest, vntil he haue finished the thing this same day.

THen went Booz vnto the gate and sat hym downe there: and behold, the kynsman of whiche Booz spake, came by. Vnto whome he sayde: come and sit downe here, and called him by hys name.
And he tourned in, and satte downe.
And her toke ten men of the elders of the citie, and sayde: sit ye downe here.
And they sat downe. And he sayde vnto the kynsman: Naomi that is come agayne out of the countrey of Moab will sell a parcell of lande, whyche was oure brother Elimelechs. And I thought to do the to wete and lay day thou byest the fielde of the hande of Naomi, thou must take also Ruth Deu.25.b the Moabite, the * wyfe of the dead, to stere vp the name of the dead vpon his enheritance. The kinsman answered: I can not purchase it, for marryng of myne owne enheritance: take thou my righte to thee, for I can not purchase it. Now this was the maner of old tyme in Israell concerning purchase and changing, for to stablish all thing: that a man muste plucke of his shoe, and geue it his neighbour, & this was a sure wytnesse in Israell.

C Therfore the kinsman said to Booz: Bye it thou: and so drue of his shooe. And Booz sayde vnto the elders, and vnto all the people: Ye are witnesses this day, that I haue bought all that was Elimelecs, & all that was Chilions, and Mahlons, of the hande of Naomi. And moreouer, Ruth, the Moabite, the wyfe of Mahlon, haue I purchased to bee my wyfe, to stere vp the name of the dead vpon his enheritance, and that his name bee not put out frome among his brethrē, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses this daye. For thy daughter in law whiche loueth thee, hath borne vnto hym: and she is better to thee than seuen sonnes. And Naomi toke the chyld, and layde it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. The end of the boke of Ruth.

The fyrst boke of Samuel, called the fyrst booke of the Kynges.

The first Chapter.

THere was a man of A one of the two Ramaths (of the kinred of Zophim, of mount Ephraim) named 1.pa.6.a Elkana, the sonne of Ex.23.c Jeroham, the sonne of Elihu, the son of Thohu, the sonne of Zuph, an Ephrathite: whiche had two wiues, the one called Hanna, & the other Phenenna. And Phenenna had children, but Hanna had none.
* And the said man went vp out of his citie euerye feastfull day, to pray and to offer vnto the Lorde of hostes in Silo, wher were the two sons of Eli (Hophni and Phinches) the Lordes priestes. And it fell on a solemne day, that Elkana offred, and gaue to Phenenna, his wyfe, and to al her sonnes and daughters portions. But vnto Hanna he gaue a portion with a heuy cheere: For he loued Hanna, and the Lorde had made her bareyn. And her enemye (Phenenna) vexed her sore continually to moue her, because the B Lord had made her barein. And so did the yeare by yere as oft as she went vp to the house of the Lorde. And so chafed her, which wepte, and did not eate. Then said Elkana her husband to her: Hanna, why wepest thou? and why eatest thou not? & why is thyne hert troubled? am not I better to the, then ten sons? So Hanna rose vp after ỳ they had eaten & dronk in Silo.

And Eli the priest sate vpon a stoole by one of the side postes of the temple of the Lord. And she was troubled in her mynd, and prayed vnto the Lorde, and wept sore, and bowed a vow, and said: O Lord of hostes, if thou wylte loke on the trouble of thyn handmaid and remembre me, & not forget thyne handmaid, but geue vnto thyn handmayd a man childe: I will geue hym Judi. 13 vnto the Lord all the days of his life, Nu. 6. b. and there shal no rasor come vpon his heade. And as she continued prayinge before the Lorde, it fortuned that Eli marked her mouth. For Hanna spake in her hert, and her lyps did but moue only, but her voice was not herd: and therfore Eli thought she had ben drōken, and Eli said vnto her: How lōge wilt thou be dronken? put away frō thee the wyne that thou hast. Hanna C answered and said: Not so my Lord, I am a woman of a sorowful hert: I Psa. 42 a haue dronke neither wyne nor strong drynke, but haue * powred oute my soule before ỳ Lord. Count not thine handmayde to bee lyke a daughter of Belial, for out of the abundāce of my heuynes and greke haue I spoken hitherto. Eli answered her againe: and said, Go in peace: the God of Israel grant the thy petition, that thou hast asked of him. She saide: Lette thyne handmayd fynde grace in thy syghte.
And so the woman went her waye, and did eate, and loked no more so sad.
And they rose vp early, and worshipped before the Lorde, and then returned, and camme to their house to Ra-math. And whan Elkanah knewe Hanna his wife, the Lord remembred her: for in processe of tyme it came to passe, that she conceiued, & bare a son, & called his name Samuel (saying:) because I haue asked hym of ỳ Lord.
D And Elkana and al his house went vp to offer vnto the Lord, the offryng due for the feaste, and also his bowe: Neuertheles, Hanna wēt not vp, but said vnto her husband: I wyll tarye vntill the ladde be weyned, and then I will bryngе hym, that he maye appere before the Lorde, and there abyde for euer. Elkana her husband answered her: Doo what seemeth the beste: tary at home, vntill thou haste weyned hym, and I beseech the LORD to make good his sayinge. And so the woman abode, and gaue her son sucke vntyl she weyned him. And when she had weyned him, she toke hym with her, with thre bullockes, & an Epha of floure, and a bottle of wyne, and brought him vnto the house of ỳ Lord in Silo, & the childe was yet but tender of age. And they slue a bullocke, and brought in the lad to Eli, and she sayd: Oh my Lorde, as truely as thy soule lyueth my Lord, I am the wo-mā that stode before the here prayeng vnto the Lord. For this lad I praied and the Lord hath geuē me my desire, which I asked of him: and therfore I haue geuen hym vnto the Lorde, as long as he is mete for the Lord. And they worshipped the Lord there.

1 AND Hanna praied and said:
My hert reioyceth in the Lorde, and myne horne is exalted in the Lord. My mouth is wide open ouer myne ennemies, for I re-ioyce in thy saluation. There is none so holy as the Lord, for without thee is nothyng. Neither is there anye so strongthe as is oure GOD. Talke not to muche proudely, let olde thyn-ges depart out of your mouthes: for the Lorde is a God of knowledge, and hys purposes come to passe. The to Ramath to his house, and the lad dyde ministre vnto the Lord before were chyldren of Belial, and knewe not the Lorde. And the priestes made a lawe for the people, that whenso-

Priestes ladde came whyle the flesshe was a sething, and a fleshehoke with three tethe in his hande, and thruste it

And all that the fleshe hoke brought they dyd vnto all the Israelites, that came thyther to Silo. Yea, and ther-to, before they burnt the fatt, the pries-tes ladde came and said to the manne that offered: Geue flesshe that I maye dresse it for the Priest, for he will not haue sodden flesshe of thee, but rawe.

D And yf any man sayde vnto hym: Let them burne the fat accordyng to the heart desyreth. The ladde would an-swere hym, yea, thou shalte geue it wyll take it with violence. And the synne of yonge men was verye great before the Lorde. For menne abhorred the offerynge of the LORDE.

But the chylde Samuell mynistred before the Lorde, gyrded aboute wyth a lynnen Ephod. Moreouer hys mother made hym a lyttle coate, and broughte it to hym from yere to yere, when shee came vppe wyth her hus-

Elkana and hys wyfe, and sayde: the

The. iii. Chapter.

AND the child Samuell miniſtred vnto the Lorde before Eli and the worde of the Lord was precious in thoſe dayes, neither was ther anye open viſion. And it chaunſed at that time, that Eli lay in his place, and his eyes began to ware dymme that he couldē not ſe. And yer the lampe of God went out, Samuell laide him downe to ſleepe in the temple of the Lorde, where the Arke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel, and he ſayd, here I am, and he ranne vnto Eli, and ſaide: here am I, for thou calleſt me. And he ſaid I called thee not: go agayn, and ſleepe. And he went and layd him downe to ſlepe. And the Lord called once again: Samuell, and Samuell aroſe, and went to Eli, and ſayd: I am here, for thou diddeſt cal me. And he aunſwered: I called the not my ſonne, Go again and take thy reſt: Samuel knew not yet the Lorde, neyther was the worde of the LORDE yet opened vnto him. And the Lorde went ta and called Samuell the thirde tyme. And hee aroſe, and wente to Eli. and ſaid: I am here for thou haſt called me And Eli perceued that the LORD had called the childe. Therefore, Eli ſaid vnto Samuel: go, and ly downe and if he call the agayne, then ſaye: ſpeake on Lorde, for thy ſeruaunt heareth. So Samuel wente, & layde him downe in his place. And the Lord came, and ſtoode, and called as before, Samuel Samuell. Samuel anſwered: ſpeake on for thy ſeruant hereth. And the Lorde ſaide to Samuell: behold, I wil do a thing in Iſrael, that both the eares of as many as heareth it, ſhal tingle. In that day I wil raiſe vp againſt Eli, al thinges whiche I haue ſpoken concerning his houſe tō the beginning to the endinge, I haue told him · ỳ I will iudge his houſe for euer. For ỳ wickednes which he knoweth. For whē the people curſed his ſons for the ſame wickednes, he hath not corrected thē. And therfor, I haue ſworn vnto the houſe of Eli, that the wickednes of Elies houſe, ſhall not be purged with ſacrifice nor offringe for euer. Samuel lay til the morning and opened the dores of the houſe of the Lorde. And Samuell feared to ſhewe Eli the viſion. Then Eli called Samuell, and ſayde: Samuel my ſon. And he anſwered: here I am. He ſayd: what is that the Lord hath ſaid vnto the? I praye the hide it not frō me. · God do ſo and ſo to thee, if thou hide any thing from me, of al that he ſaid vnto the. And Samuel told him euery whit, & hyd nothing from him. And he said: It is the Lorde, let hym do what semeth him best. And Samuell grew, & the Lord was wyth him, and left none of his wordes vnperformed. And all Israel frō Dan to Berlabe wist that faithful Samuel was made the Lords prophet. And ỹ lorde appered again in Silo: for the Lorde opened himself to Samuel in Silo, thorow the word of the Lord.

1 AND Samuel spake vnto al Israell. (And it fortuned, ỹ in those dais the Philistins cam together to fight.) And Israell wente out against the Philistins to battaile, and pitched beside ỹ 1.k.7.d •helpestone. And the Philistins pitched in Aphek. And put theim selues in aray agaynst Israel. And whenne they ioyned the battaile, Israel was put to the worse before ỹ Philistins. And the Philistines slue in aray alōg by the fieldes, about a foure thousand men. And when the people wer come into their tentes, the elders of Israel saith: Wherfore hath the Lorde cast vs downe this day before ỹ Philistins & let vs fetche the arke of the appointment of the lord out of Silo vnto vs, that whan it cometh amōg vs, it may saue vs, out of the hande of oure enemie. And so the people sent to Silo, 3 and fet from thens the arke of the appointment of the Lord of hostes, whiche dwelleth betwene ỹ Cherubins. And there were the twoo sonnes of Eli, Hophi, and Phinehes with the arke of the appointment of God. And it fortuned, that when the arke of the appointment of the Lorde came into the host, all Israel: shouted a mighty shoute, so that the earth rang agayne. And when the Philistins hearde the noyse of the shoute, they saide: What meaneth the sounde of this myghtye shoute in the hoste of the Hebrues? And they vnderstode how that ỹ arke of the Lord was come into the hoste. 4 And the Philistins were afrayd, and sayd: God is come into the host. And they sayde agayne: Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this: wo vnto vs who shall deliuer vs out of the hande of these mighty Gods? These are the gods ỹ smote the Egyptians with so many plagnes in the wildernes. Bee strong, & quite your selues lyke men, O ye Philistins, that ye be no seruātes vnto the Hebrues, as thei haue bē to you. Be of a manly corage therfore & fight. And the Philistins fought, & Israel was put to the worse, & fledde euery mā into his tent. And ther was an exceding great slaughter. for there wer ouerthrowen of Israel. xxx. M. footemen. And ỹ arke of God was ta 1.re.2.g kē, and the two sons of Eli, • Hophni & Phinches were dead. And ther ran a man of Ben Jamin out of ỹ aray, & came to Silo the same daye with hys clothes rente, & earth vpon his head. And whē he came, Eli sat vpon a stole & loked toward the way: for his heart feared for the arke of God. And when the man came into ỹ citie, & told it, all the citie cried. And whē Eli herd the noyse of the crying, he said: What meaneth this noise of the rumor? And the mā came in hastily, and told Eli. Eli 1.re.3.a was. xcviii. yere old, & • his sight failed him ỹ he could not se. And the man said vnto Eli: I am he that came out of the aray, and fled this day out of the D hoste. And he said: What thing is fortuned my son? The messenger answered, & said, Israel is fled before ỹ Philistins, & ther is a great slaughter chāsed among the people, & thy two sons Hophni & Phinehes ar dead, and the arke of God is taken. And it fortuned that whē he made mētion of the arke of God, Eli fel frō of his stoole backward vpon ỹ threshold of the gate, & his necke brake, & he died: for he was an old man and heuy, & iudged Israel forty yeres. And his daughter in law Phinehes wife was with child, & ny the birth. And whē she herd the tidinges ỹ the Arke of God was taken, & that her father in law, & her husband were dead, she bowed her selfe, & trauailed, for her paines came vpon her. And about the time of her deathe, the women that stode about her, said vn-

to her: feare not, for thou hast borne a sonne, but she answered not, nor regarded it. And she named the childe The glo- Ichabod, saying: The glorye is de-ry is gon parted from Israel. Because the Ark of God was taken, and because of her father in law and her husbande. And she saide agayne: The glorie is gone frō Israel, for the arke of god is takē.

A And the Philistines toke the Arcke of God, and caryed it from the helpestone vnto Asdod, againe the Philistines toke the arke of God, and broughte it into the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagō.
And when they of Asdod were vp in the nexte day in the morning, behold, Dagon lay vpon the earth before the Arke of the Lord. And they toke Da gon, and set him in his place agayne.
And when they were vp early in the next morning, behold, Dagon lay vpon the grounde before the Arcke of the Lord, and his head, and hys twoe handes cut vpon the thresholde, that only the shape of a fishe was lefte on B him. And therfore is it, that the priestes of Dagon (neither any man that commeth into Dagons house) treade not on the threshold of Dagon in As dod vnto this day. But ẏ hand of the Lord was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and he destroyed them, and smote thē with emerodes, both Asdod and in al the costes therof. (The villages also and ẏ feldes in the middes of the con-try wer ful, & ther came vp mice, and ther was a confusion of gret death in the citie.) And whē the men of Asdod saw that tt was so, they said: the arke of the God of Israell shall not abide C here with vs, for his hand is sore vpō vs and vpon Dagon our God. They sent therfore and gathered all ẏ Lor-des of the Philistines vnto them and said: what shal we do with the Arke of the God of Israel? They answered: let the arke of the God of Israell be caried about vnto Gath. And they caried the arke of the God of Israell about. And it fortuned, that when they had caried it about, ther was by the hand of the Lord a myghty great noise in the citie, and he smot the men of the citie both smal and greate and they had secret dyseases. (And the Ge thites toke councell, and made thē sel ues pryuy seates of skinnes.) Therefore they sente the arke of God to Akaron, And assoone as the Arcke of God came to Akaron, the Akaronyt-es cried out saying: they haue broght the Arke of the God of Israell to vs to slea vs and our people. And so they D sente, and gathered together all the Lordes of the Philistines and saide: sende awaye the Arcke of the God of Israel, to go agayn to his own place that it sle vs not and our people. For ther was great lamentation ouer the dead throughout all the citie, and the hand of God was exceding sore ther.
And the menne that dyed not, were smiten with the Emerodes: and the cry of the citie went vp to heauen.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

The Arke of the Lorde was in the country of the Philistines seuen monethes: and the Philistines called for the priestes and the 3 southsayers, saiynge: what shall wee do with the arke of the Lorde? tell vs wherewith we shal sende it home a-gayne? They said. If thou sende the arke of the god of Israel home again sende it not emptie. But rewarde it with a trespalle offringe: and then ye shal bee whole, and it shalbe knowen to you, why his hande departeth not from you. Then sayd they: And what shalbe the trespalle offrynge, wheche wee shall reworde him with? They answered: fiue golden arses and fiue golden myce, according to the number of the Lordes of the Philistines. For it is one maner of plague on you all, and on youre Lordes. Wherefore ye shal make Images like vnto your ar ses, and ymakes lyke your myce that corrupt the land, and ye shal geue glo rye vnto the God of Israell, that he may take his hāde frō of you, and frō of your goddes and from of your lād.
Wherfore doo ye harden your hertes as the Egyptians and Pharao hard ned

B ned their herts, which when he toke agaynste theim, dyd they not let the people go, and they departed: Now therfore, make a newe carte, and take ii. mylche kyne: on whose necke there hath come no yocke. And tye the kyne to the carte, & bring the calues home frō them. And take the arke of the Lord, and lay it vpon the carte, and put the iewels of golde (whiche ye reward hym with for a synofferyng) in a cofer by the syde therof: and send it awaye, that it may goe. And if ye see that he go vp by the way of his owne coaste to Bethsames: then it is he that dyd this great euyl. If no, we shal know then, þ it is not his hande that smote vs: but it was a chaunce hapned vs. And the mē did euen so: and toke two kyne that gaue mylke, and tyed them
C to the carte, & kept the calues at home, and they layd the arke of the Lord vpon the carte, and the coffer with the myce of gold, and with the ymages of their arses. And the kyne tooke the streyght way to Bethsames, & went on the streight way: & as they went, lowed, & turned neither to the right hand nor to the lefte. And the lordes of the Philistines wente after them, vntyll the borders of Bethsames.

And thei of Bethsames wer reaping their wheat haruest in the valey. And they lift vp their eyes, and spied the arke. And reioyced when they saw it. And the cart cam into the field of one Iehosua a Bethsamite, and stode still there. There was also a great stone. And they clave the wood of the cart and offred the kyne a burntofferynge vnto the Lord. And the Leuites toke downe the Arke of the Lord, and the coffer that was wyth it, wherein the Iewels of golde were: and put them on the greate stone. And the men of Bethsames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, D and offered offerynges that same daye vnto the Lord. And whenne the fyue lordes of the Philistins had seene it, they returned to Akaron the same day And these ar the golden arses which the Philistins gaue to amendes for a trespasse offryng to the Lorde: for Is-dod one: for • Gaza one: for Askalon one, for Gath one, and for Akaron one. And golden myce, accordyng to the nūbre of all the cities of the Philistines, euen accordynge to the fyue Lordes, bothe of walled Townes, and of townes vnwalled: euen vnto the great stone of lamentation, wher on they sette downe the Arke of the Lorde: whyche stone remayneth vnto this day in the fielde of Iehosua the Bethsamite. And he plagued the men of Bethsames, because they had sene the Arke of the Lord. And he slue among the people fyfty thousand and threscore and ten men. And the other people lamēted, because the Lord had slayn the people with so great a slaughter. Wherfore the men of Bethsames sayd, Who is able to stand before the Lord so holy a God: and to whom shall he go frome vs? And they sente messengers to the inhabiters of Kariathiarim, saying: The Philistines haue brought agayne the Arke of the Lorde: Come ye downe therfore, and fetche it vp to you. Oz aza.

AND so the men of Kiriathiarim cam and fet vp the Arke of the Lorde: and • brought it A into the house of Aminadab in Gibea, and sanctified Eleazar hys sonne to 2 Re. 16a kepe the arke of the Lord, and while the arke abode in Kariathiarim, the dayes multiplied, and there passed ouer xx. yeres, & all the house of Israel lamented after the Lord. And Samuel spake vnto al the house of Israell, saying: yf ye be come againe vnto the Lorde with all your heartes, then • put away the straunge goddes and Astaroth from amonge you: and prepare your heartes vnto the Lord, and serue hym • onelye: for hee shall rydde you oute of the hande of the Philistines. Then the childrenne of Israell didde putte away Baalim and Astaroth, & serued the Lord only. And Samuel sayd: gather al Israell to Mizpa, and I will pray for you vnto the Lorde. And they gathered together to Mizpa, and drewe water & powred Ios. 24c. Deu. 6. c Mat. 4. b B it out before the Lord, and fasted the same day, and said there: We haue sinned agaynst the Lorde. And Samuel iudged the childrē of Israel in Mizpa. When the Philistins hearde that the childzen of Israel were gathered together to Mizpa, the Lordes of the Philistines went vp against Israel. And when the childrē of Israel heard that, they were afrayd of the Philistines, and the childzen of Israel said to Samuel: Cesse not to cry vnto the lord our God for vs, that he may saue vs out of the hand of the Philistins.

C Exo. 46 d • And Samuel toke a sucking lambe and offered it altogether for a burnte offring vnto the Lord: and cryed vnto the Lord for Israell, & the Lord herd hym. And as Samuel offred ẏ burnt offering, the Philistins cam to fight against Israel. But the Lord thondzed a great thonder that same day, among the Philistins, & scatered them that they felle before Israell. And the men of Israel went out of Mizpa, & pursued the Philistins, and followed vppon theym, vnto the place that is vnder Bethear. And when Samuel

D Ios. 24. f 1 Re. 4. c • toke a stone, and pitched it betweene Mizpa, and the marke of the rocke, & called the name thereof, the • stone of helpe, saying: Hitherto hath the Lord helped vs. And so the Philistins wer brought vnder, & they came no more into the coastes of Israel: and the hād of the Lord was agaynst the Philistines al the days of Samuel. Therto, the cities whiche that the Philistins had taken from Israel, wer restored agayne to Israell, euen frome Ekaron to Gath, with the coastes of the same, and Israell plucked theym out of the handes of the Philistines. And there was peace betwene Israel and the Amorites. Samuel iudged Israell all the dayes of his lyfe, and went aboute yeare by yeare to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpa, and iudged Israell in all those places, and came agayne to Rama: for there was hys house, and there he iudged Israel also, and there he buylte an aulter vnto the Lord.

The. viii. Chapter.

When Samuell was olde, he made his sonnes Iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the second Abia: and they were iudges in Beersleba. And hys sonnes walked not in his wayes: but turned aside after lucre, and • toke reward, & peruerted the right. Then al the elders of Israel gathered them together, & came to Samuel vnto Rama, & said vnto him: Behold, thou art old, and thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes. Nowe therefore • make vs a king to iudge vs as al other nations haue. But the thing displeased Samuel whē they said: geue vs a kynge to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lorde said vnto Samuel: here the voice of the people in al ẏ they sai vnto the. For thei han not caste the away: but mee that I should not raigne ouer thē. And as thei haue euer done (sence I brought thē out of Egipt vnto this day, and haue forsaken me, and serued other gods) euē so do thei vnto the. Now therfore herken vnto theyr voice. howbeit, yet testify vnto theym and shewe theym • the auctority of ẏ king ẏ shal raigne ouer thē. And Samuel told all ẏ wordes of the Lorde vnto the people that asked a king of him & he said: this shal be the auctority of the king that shall raigne ouer you: • he will take youre sōs and put thē to his charets, & make his horsemē of them to run, before his charet: & wil make him of them captaines ouer thousands and ouer fifties, and wil set thē to eare his ground & to gather in his haruest, & to make instruments of war, and apparell for his charets. And wil take your daughters and make thē apoticaries cookes and bakers. And he shal take the best of your feldes, & of your vineyardes & of youre Olive trees, and geue thē to his seruantes. And hee shall take the tenth of your seede, and of your vineyards, and geue it to his chāberlains and to his seruants. And he shal take the best of your men seruants & mayde seruauntes, and yonge men, and of your asses, and putte them to his worke.

And he shall take the tenth of youre shepe, and ye shalbe his seruauntes.
And ye shall crie out at that tyme by-cause youre kyng, whiche ye haue chosen you, and the Lorde will not heare you at that day. Neuertheless, the people would not heare the voyce of Samuel, but sayde: Naye, not so. But there shal be a kyng ouer us, that we may be lyke other nations, and that our kyng may iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fyghte our battayles (for vs.) Therfore when Samuel heard all the wordes of the people, he rehersed them in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lord sayd to Samuel: Harken vnto their voyce, & 15 make them a kyng. And Samuel sayd vnto the men of Israel: Go eue-ry man vnto his citie.

The. ix. Chapter.

¶ There was a man of Ben Ja 1.Re.14.g min named Cis, the sonne 15.8.d of Abiel, the sonne of Zeroz, the sonne of Bechorath, the sonne of Aphiah, the sonne of a man that was a Gesmite, a man of strength and myght: and the same had a sonne, called Saul, a goodly yonge man, and a lusty: so that among the children of Israel there was none goodlyer than he. For from the shoulders vpward he was hyer then all the other people.
And the asses of this Cis Sauls father were lost: and Cis sayd to Saule his sonne: Take one of the laddes with the, and go vp, and seke the asses. And he went through mount Ephraim, and through the land of Sa-lisa, but they founde them not. When they went through the land of Salim, and there they were not: when they went also through the land of Jemini, they founde them not. ¶ The last when they were come to the lande of Zuph, Saule sayde to his ladde that was with him: Come, let vs return that we father leaue not carynge for the asses, and take thought for vs. He sayde vnto him: Beholde, there is in this Citie a man of God, and he is a worshipfull man: all that he sayeth cometh surely to passe. Nowe then lette vs go thyther: peraduenture he shall shewe vs what waye we shall go. Then sayde Saul to his ladde: Lo, we go, what shall we bringe the man? For our breade is all spent out of our vessels, and there is none other present to bringe the man of God: what haue we? And the lad answered Saule a-gayne, and sayde: I haue founde about me the iiii. part of a sicle, that will I geue the man of God, to tell vs our way. Before tyme in Israel when a man went to aske an answere of God thus spake he, come and let vs go to the seare: For he that is now cal led a prophet, was in the old time cal led a seare. Then sayd Saul to his lad wel sayd of the: come let vs go. And so they went vnto the citie where the man of God was. And as they were going vp into the city, they met with damoseles that came out to drawe wa ter, and sayd vnto them: Is the here a seare? And the maydens answered them, yes, (here is one) behold, he is before you. Make haste nowe, for he came this day to the citie for there is an offring of the people this day in the hil. when ye be com into the citie, ye shal finde him straight wayes, yer he go vp to the hil to eate: for the people will not eate vntill ye come, because he doeth bielde the offring. And then eat they be bidden to the feast. Nowe therfore get you vp, for this day shall ye fynde him. And they went vp to the citye. C And when they were come into the 1.Re.15 myddes of the citie: behold Samuel came out against them, for to go vp to the hyll. But the Lord had told Samuel in his eare (a day before Saul came) sayinge: To morowe this tyme I will send thee a man out of the lad of Ben Jamin, him shalte thou an-noynt to be Captain ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people out of the handes of the Philistines: for I haue looked vpon my people, and their cry is come vnto me. When Samuel therefore sawe Saule, the Lord

Lorde answered hymselfe, thus is the mynde of hym whom I spake to the of.
Thys same shall reygne ouer my people Then came Samuell to Saul in the myddle of the gate, and sayde I praye the, where the seare house is.
Samuell answered Saul and sayde I am the seare, goo vp before me vnto the hyl, for ye shal eat with me to day.
And to morowe I will let the go and will tell the all that is in thyne heart.
And as for thyne asses that were lost thre dayes ago, care not for them for they are found. And to whome shall the beautifull thynges of Israel be, belonge they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers house? But Saule answered and sayde, am not I the sone of a Jemynite, of the smallest tribe of Israell, and myne kynred is the leaste of all the kynredes of the tribe of Ben Jamin, wherfore then speakest thou so to me? And Samuell toke Saule and his lad, and broughte theym into the parler, and made theym syt in the chefest place amonge them that were bidden: which were vppon a thirtye persons: And Samuel sayde vnto the cooke, bryng forth the portion which I gaue the, and of which I sayde vnto the: keepe it wyth the. And the cooke toke vp the shoulder, and that which was vpon it, and set it before Saul. And Samuell sayde: beholde that which is lefte: put it before the and eate, for hytherto hath it bene kept for the, of purpose, when I called the people. And so Saul dyd eate with Samuell that daye. And when they were come downe from the hill into the cite, Samuell communed wyth Saul vpon the toppe of the house: and when they arose early abroute the spryngе of the daye, Samuell called Saul vpon the top of the house, sayinge: vp that I may sende the away.
And Saul arose. And they went out at the doores, both he and Samuell.
And when they were come almooste oute of the towne, Samuell sayde to Saul, bid the lad go before vs (& hee went before) but stande thou styll a whyle, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

AND the Samuell [illegible] dyotte, & poured it [illegible] hede and kyssed hym, [illegible] hath not the Lorde anoynted the to be captayne ouer his inheritaunce? thou shalt deliuer his people out of the handes of their enemyes which are rounde about them. And this shalt thou haue, that the Lorde hath anoynted the to be prynce. When thou arte departed from me this daye, thou shalt finde .ii. men by Rachels sepulchre in the border of Ben Jamin, at at Zulzah. And they will say vnto thee: the asses which thou wentest for are founde. And lo thy father hath left the care of the asses, and is in pensyue for you saying: what shal I do for my sonne? Then shalt thou go forth thence, and shalt come to the plaine of Thabor. And there shall meete the thre men going vp to God to Bethel: one carying .iii. kydes: another carying .iii. loues of breade: and another carying a bottle of wyne. And they will salute thee & geue the .ii. loues of bread which thou shalt receaue of their handes. After that thou shalt come to the hyl of God where the Philistines are set. And when thou arte come thether to the cite, thou shalte meete a company of prophetes comyng downe fro the hye with a psalter, a tymbrel, a pype and harpe before the, & they shal prophesy.
And the spyrit of the Lorde will come vpon the also & thou shalt prophesy with and shalbe turned into another man.
Therfore whē these signes are come ced thee, doe what thou hast to do God is with the. And thou shalte go before me to Gilgal. And I also will cōe downe vnto the, to sacrifice burnt sacrifices, & to offer peaceoffrynges.
Tary for me seuen dayes, til I come to the, and shewe the, what thou shalt doe. And assone as he had turned his shoulder to go from Samuell, God gaue hym another maner of hert: and all those tokens came to passe the same day. And whē they came to the hyl beheld, the companye of prophetes met him and the spyrit of God came people. See ye not hym, whom the Lorde hath chosen, that there is none lyke hym among all the people?

And all the people shouted and sayde: God save the kyng lyfe. Then Samuel told the people the duetie of kingdome, and wrote it in a boke, and layd it up before the Lorde, and sent all the people awaye, every man to his house. And Saul also went home to Gibea. And there followed hym cer-tayne, whose hertes God had touched.
But the children of Belial sayde: How shall he save vs? and they despised hym, and brought hym no presentes.
And he held his tonge.

Then Nahas the Ammonite came,

I make a couenaunt with you, yf I may thrust out all your right eyes, & bring that shame vpon all Israel. To whom the elders of Jabes sayde: gene vs seuen dayes respite, that we maye of Israell. And then, yf there be no man to helpe vs, we will come oute to thee. Then came the messengers to Gibea vnto Saul, and told this ty-all the people lyfte vp their voyces, and wept. And beholde, Saul came folowyng the cattell out of the field, and Saul sayde: what ayleth thys people, that they wepe? And they told hym the tydynges of the men of Japon Saul, when he hoerd those tydin-ges, and he was exceedyng angry, and toke a yoke of oxen, and hewed them in pieces, and sente them thorowoute all the coastes of Israel by the hands of messengers, saying: whosoeuer cometh

And I am old and graye headed: and beholde, my sonnes are with you, and I haue walked before you from my chyldhod vnto this day. Beholde, here I am: beare recorde of me before the Lord, and before his anoynted: whose oxe haue I taken? or whose asse haue I taken? whom haue I done wronge to? whom haue I hurte? done in the sight of the Lord, in askīg vnto the Lord, and the Lord sent thunder and rayne the same day. And all the people feared the Lorde and Samuell exceadyngly. And all the people sayde vnto Samuell: pray for thy seruantes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we dye not, for we haue synned in askyng vs we dyd. And Samuell sayde vnto the people, feare not. Ye haue in dede done all thys wickednes, yet depart not frō folowynge the Lorde. But serue hym turne ye after vayne thinges which are not able to profite you, for they are but vanitye. For the * Lorde wyll not forsake hys people, because of hys greate names sake: because it hath pleased the Lorde to make you hys people. Moreo-uer, God forbyd that I should synne agaynst the LORDE, and ceasse prayinge for you, but to shewe you the good and ryght waye. Therfore feare you the Lorde, and serue hym in the trueth and with all youre hartes: and consyder howe great thynges he hath done for you. But and yf ye do wyckedlye, then shall ye perysshe, both ye

The.xiij. Chapter.

SAuil had bene kynge one yeare, (when these thynges came to passe) and he raygned two yeres ouer Israell. And Saull chose hym three thousand men of Israell. Two thousand were with Saull in Mich-mas, and in mount Bethel, and a.M. with Jonathas in Gibea Ben Ja-euery man to his owne house agayne.

And Jonathas smote the holde of the Philistines, that was in the hill, and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul blewe the trompet throughout all the lande, sayinge: let the Ebrues heare. And all Israell hard saye, howe that Saull had destroyed an holde of the Philistynes, wherefore Israell stanke before the Philistines. And the people gathered together after Saull to Gilgal. The Philistines also ga- B thered them selues together to fyghte with Israel, thirtie thousand charets, and sixe thousande horsemen, with other people lyke the * sand by the seas Esa.10.f syde in multitude, and came vppe, and pitched in Mychmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israell sawe it they were in a streite, and feare came vpon the people, and they hyd them selues in caues, and in preuy holes, and in rockes, and in hie waies, and in pyts. And some of the Ebrues went ouer Jordan to go vnto the land of Gad and Gilead. And Saull was yet in Gilgal, and all the people that folowed hym were astonyed. And he taryed seuen daies, euen vnto the time that Samuell * had appoynted. But 1re.10bb Samuell came not to Gylgal, and the people were therefore skattered from him. And Saul sayd: bryng a burntsacrifyce to me and peaceofferinges. And he offered burntsacrifyce. And as sone as he had made an ende of offeryng the burntsacrifyce, behold Samuel came.
And Saul went agoinst him, to biesse him. And Samuel sayde, what haste thou done? Saul sayd: because I sawe that the people skatered from me, and that thou camest not within the dayes appoynted, and that the Philistines gathered thē selues together to Mich mas: therfore sayde I: the Philistines shall come downe nowe vppon me to Gilgall, and I haue not made supplī-cation vnto the Lord. And whē I had C ouercome my selfe at the last I offered a burntofferynge. And Samuell sayde to Saul: * Thou art become a foole, Gen.31d thou haste not kepte the commaunde- 2dar.16c ment of the Lorde thy God which he commaunded thee. For at thys tyme wolde the Lorde haue stablyshed thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But nowe, thy kyngdome shall not conti-2Re.16c nue. The Lorde hath sought hym a man after his owne hart, and the Lord hath commaunded him to be captayne ouer hys people because thou hast not kepte that which the Lord commaunded thee. And Samuell arose and gat hym vp from Gylgall to Gibea Ben Jamin (and the remnaunt of the folke went vp after Saul, to mete the people, whiche fought agaynste them, as they were commynge from Gylgal to Gibea in the hyll of Ben Jamin.)

D And Saull numbred the people that were founde with him, and they were about a syxe hundred men. And Saul and Jonathas hys sonne and the people that were founde with them had their abydinge in the hyll of Ben Jamin. But the Philistines pytched in Michmas. And there came out of the hoste of the Philistines three companyes, to destroy, one companye turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ophra vnto the lande of Saul. And another companie turned the waye to Bethoron. And the thirde companye turned to the waye of the coaste that is sene aboue the valey of Zeboim towarde the wylderneste. There was no smith found throughout all the lande of Israell. For the Philistines sayd: Leste happely the Ebrues make them swerdes or speres. But al the Israelites went downe to the Philistines, to mende euery man hys share, hys mattocke, hys axe and hys necessarye toles: And then the edges of the shares, mattocks donge forkes, and axes were blunte, and also the forkes were to be set in. And so in time of batell there was nether swearde nor spere founde in the handes of any of the people that were with Saul and Jonathas. But with Saul and Jonathas hys sonne was there somwhat found. And the watch of the Philistines came out, to go ouer vnto Michmas.

The .xiiij. Chapter.

AND it fortuned the same time, that Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayde vnto hys yonge man that bare hys harnes: come, and let vs go ouer to the philistines watch that are yonder on the other syde, and he tolde not hys father. And Saul taryed in the vttermoste parte of Gibea vnder Rimmon, which is in Migron, and the people that were with hym were vpon a syxe hundred men. And Ahia the sonne of Ahitab, Jehabods brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Ely, was the Lords Priest in Silo and ware an Ephod. And the people wyste not that Jonathas was gone. And in the myddes of the passage (by whiche Jonathas sought to go ouer vnto the Philistines watch) were there two sharpe rockes, euen one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde: the one called Bozez, and the other Senne. The forefront of the one, leaned northward towarde Michmas, and the other was southward towarde Gibea: And Jonathas 5 sayde to the yonge man that bare hys harnesse: come and let vs go ouer vnto the watch of these vncircumcised, paraduenture the Lord wyll worke with vs: for it is no hardenesse with the Lorde to saue eyther in manye or in 12 fewe. And hys harnesbearer sayd vnto him. do all that is in thyne hart: Go where it pleaseth thee: Behold, I am with the as thine harte lusteth. Then sayde Jonathas: beholde, we go ouer vnto these men, and shall shewe our selues vnto them: if they saye on thys wyse to vs: tarye, vntyll we come to you, then we wyll stande styll in our place and not go vp vnto them. But and yf they saye: come vppe vnto vs, then wyl we go vp, for the Lord hath 15 deliuered them into our handes. And this shalbe a sygne vnto vs. And they bothe shewed them selues vnto the watche of the Philistines. And the Philistines said: se, the Hebrues come out of the holes where they had hyd them selues in. And the menne of the watche answered Jonathas and hys harnesbearer, and saide: come vp to vs,

and we wyll wewe you a thynge. And Jonathas sayde vnto hys harnesbearer, come vp after me, for the Lorde hath delyuered them into the hande of Israel. And Jonathas clame vp vpon handes and fete, and his harnesbearer after him. And (so when they had sene Jonathas face) they fell before Jonathas: and his harnesbearer slewe them after hym. And that fyrst slaughter whithe Jonathas and hys harnesbearer made, was vpō a twentie men, within the compasse as it were about an halfe aker of land. And there was a feare in the hoste in the fielde, and amonge al people: in so much that they that were gone out of the watch to rob were afrayed also: and the earth trembled, for the feare that was sene of God. And the watch men of Saul in Gibea Ben Jamin, sawe. And beholde, the people (of the Philistines) were scatered and were smytten as they went. Then sayd Saul vnto the people that was with him. Searche and see, who is gone awaye from vs. And when they had numbred, beholde Jonathas and his harnesbearer were not there. And Saul sayd vnto Ahia: bringe hyther the arke of God. For the arke of God was at that tyme with the chyldren of Israell. And it fortuned that whyle Saul talked vnto the Priest, the noyse that was in the hoste of the Philistines spred farther abrode and encreased (by lytle and lytle, and gaue a more cleare sounde.) And Saul sayd vnto the priest: withdrawe thyne handes. And Saul toyned hym selfe vnto all the people that were with hym, and they came to the battell. And beholde * euery mannes sweard was agaynst hys felowe, and there was a very great rumor. Moreouer, the Ebrues that were with the philistines before that time, and were come with them into all partes of the host, turned to be with the Israelites that were with Saul and Jonathas. And all the men of Israell also, which had hyd themselues in mount Ephraim, as sone as they harde how that the Philistines were fled, they folowed after thē in the batel. And so god holpe Israell that day. And the batell continued vnto Bethauen. And when the men of Israell were kept down with honger that day. Saul charged ỹ people with an oth saying: Cursed be the man that eateth any foode vntyl night tyl I be auenged of myne enemyes. And so, none of the people tasted anye sustinaunce. And all the inhabiters of the lande came to a wood where hony lay vpon the grounde. And the people came into ỹ wood: And behold, the hony dropped, & no man moued his hand to his mouth, for the people feared the oth. But Jonathas hard not whē his father charged the people with ỹ oth, wherfore he put forth the ende of the rod that was in his hand & dypte it in an hony combe, & put hys hand to hys mouth, & his eyes receyued sight. Thē answered one of the people & sayd: thy father adiured the people, saying: Cursed be the man that eateth anye sustinaunce this daye: and the people were faynty. Thē sayd Jonathas my father hath troubled the land: se howe myne eyes hath receiued sight, because I tasted a litle of this hony: how much more then to day if the people had eatē of the spoyle of their enemyes whiche they found. And had there not bene then a much greater slaughter among ỹ philistines? & they layed on the philistins that day, frō Michmas to Aialon. And the people were exceding faynty. And the people gat them to the spoyle, and toke shepe, oxen, & calues, & slue them on the ground & the people did eate thē * with the blood. Thē men told Saul saying: Behold, the people sin against the Lorde, in ỹ they eat with the blood. And he said: ye haue trespaced. Rowle a great stone vnto me thys daye, & saul sayd agayn: Go abrod among ỹ people and byd them bryng me euery man his oxe & euery man his shepe, & slay them here, & syn not against ỹ lord in eating with the blood. And ỹ people brought euery mā his oxe in his hand by night & slewe them ther. And Saul made an aulter vnto the Lorde. And that was ỹ first alter that he made vnto the Lorde.

Leu. 7. c. and. 19. d

And Saul sayde: let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght & spoyle them, vntyll it be day in the morynyng, and let vs not leaue on man of them. And they sayde: do whatsoeuer thou thynkest best. Then sayde the preste: F let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul asked of God, shall I go downe after the Philistines? Wylt thou deliuer them into the handes of Israell? But he answered him not at ỳ time. And Saul sayde: let the people come hither out of all quarters, and knowe and see by whom this synne is chaunced thys day: for as truely as the Lord lyueth which saueth Israell. thoughe it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye the death. But there was no man amonge all the people that answered hym. Then he sayde vnto all Israell: be ye on one side, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyll bee on the other syde. And the people sayde vnto Saull: what thou thynkest beste, that doo. Therfore Saul sayde vnto the Lorde God of Israell: geue a perfecte lotte (Lord God, geue thou the iudgement. Howe happeneth it, that thou geuest thy seruaunte no answere to daye? If thys synne be in me or in Jonathas my sonne, shewe it, or yf thys iniquitye be in thy people.) And Saull and Jonathas were caughte, but the people scape fre. And Saul sayd cast lotte betwene me and Jonathas my sonne. And Jonathas was caughte. Then Saul sayd to Jonathas: tell me what thou haste done. And Jonathas tolde hym, and sayde: I tasted a lytle honye with the ende of the rod that was in myne hande: and lo, I must dye. Saul Auth. 1 c answered: • God do so and so to me, G thou shalte dye the death Jonathas. And the people sayd vnto Saul: shall Jonathas dye whiche hath so myghtely helped Israell? God forbyd. As 2 Re. 14 e truely as the Lorde lyueth • there shal not one heere of hys heade fall to the grounde, for he hath wrought with God thys daye. And so the people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul departed vp from folowyng the Philistines. And the Philistes went to their owne place. And so Saull helde the kyngdome ouer Israell, and fought agaynst all hys enemyes on euerye syde agaynst Moab: agaynste the chyldren of Ammon: agaynste the kynges of Zoba, and agaynst the Philistines And whether soeuer he turned hym selfe, there he wanne: and he gathered hys hoste together, and smote the • Amalekites, Da. and ryd Israell oute of the handes of them that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul were: Jonathas, Jesui, and Melchisua. And hys two daughters were thus named: the elder was called Merob, and the ponger: Michol. And the name of Saulles wyfe, was Ahinoa the daughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of hys chefe captayne was Abner the sonne of Ner, Saulis vncle. And • Cis was sauls father. And 35 Ner the father of Abner was the son 1 Pa of Abiel. And there was soze warre agaynste the Philistines, all the dayes of Saul. And whosoeuer Saul sawe to be a stronge man, and mete for the warre, he tobe hym vnto hym.

SAmuell sayde vnto Saul: • the J Lorde sente me to anoynt thee, to 15 be kynge ouer hys people Israel. Nowe therfore herken thou vnto the voice of the wordes of the Lord. Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: I remember that whiche Amalecke dyd to Israell • howe they layed wayte Ex for them in the way, as they came out of Egypte. Nowe therefore go, and smyte Amalecke, and destroye ye all that perteineth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassion on them • (and Ex couete nothynge that they haue) slaye both manne and woman, infante and suckelyng, oxe, and sheepe, camell and Asse. And Saul gathered the people together and • numbred them in Te- 1 laim, two hundred thousand fote men, and tenne Thousande men of Juda. And Saul came vnto a citye of Amalecke, and set watch in the valey. And 6 Saul sayde vnto the Kenites: go, and depart, and get you downe from among the

the Amelekites, leste I destroye you with them: for ye shewed mercy to all the children of Israell, whō they came out of Egypt. And so the Kenites departed from amonge the Amalekites. And Saul smote the Amalekites frō Hevila, as thou comnest to Sur, that lyeth before Egypte, and toke Agag the kynge of the Amalekites alyue, and vtterlye destroyed all the people with the edge of the swearde. • But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the better shepe, and the fatter oxē, and the lambes and all that was good, and would not destroye them. But al that was foule and naughte woorth, that they destroyed vtterly. Then came the worde of the Lord vnto Samuel, saying: • it repēteth me, that I have made Saul kyng. For he is turned frō me, and hath not perfourmed my cōmaundementes. And Samuell was euyll apayed, and cryed vnto the Lorde all night. And when Samuel rose earlye to mete Saul in the mornyng, it was told Samuel, that Saul was come to Carmel, and behold, he hath made him there a place, and is turned, and departed and gone downe to Gylgal. And Samuell came to Saull, and (Saull offred burntsacrifyce vnto the Lord, of the firste of the spoyles whiche he had brought from Amelec. And when Samuell was come vnto Saul.) Saul sayd vnto hym: Blessed be thou in the Lord. I haue fulfylled the commaundement of the Lorde. Samuell sayde: what meaneth then the bleatynge of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyce of the oxen which I heare? Saul answered: they haue brought them from the Amalekites. For the people spared the beste of the sheepe and of the oxen, to sacrifye them vnto the Lorde thy God. And the remnaunt haue we destroyed vtterlye. Samuell sayde to Saul: let me tell thee what the Lorde hath said to me this night. And he said vnto him: say on. Samuel said • when thou was lytle in thyne owne syghte waste thou not made the heade of the trybes of Israel? And the Lord anoynted the kynge ouer Israell. And the Lord sent thee on a iourney, and sayd: Go, and vtterly destroy those sinners the Amalekites, & fight against them, vntyl thou vtterly destroy them. And wherfore hast thou not herkened vnto the voyce of the Lord, but hast turned to the pray, and haste done that which is wicked in ỹ sight of the Lord? And Saul sayd vnto Samuel: yee, I haue harkened vnto the voyce of the Lord, and haue gone the way which ỹ Lord sent me vnto, & haue brought Agag the kyng of Amalecke, and haue vtterlye destroyed the Amalekites. But the people toke of the spoyle shepe, oxen, & the chefest of the things, which sholde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lord thy god in Gylgal. And Samuel sayd: hath the Lord as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices and offerynges, as when the voice of the Lord is obeyed? Behold to obey is better thē sacrifice, and to herken is better then the fat of rammes. For rebellion is as the sinne of • witchcraft, and stoburnes is as the wyckednesse of Idolatrye. Because thou haste caste away the word of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde caste away thee also, from beyng kyng. And Saul sayd vnto Samuel: I haue sinned, for I haue gone farther then the sayinge of the Lorde and thy wordes, because I feared the people, & obeyed their voyce. Nowe therefore take away my synne, and turne againe with me, that I may worshyppe the Lorde. And Samuel sayd vnto Saul: I will not returne with the: for thou hast cast away the word of the Lord, & the Lord hath cast away the, that thou shalt not be kyng ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned himselfe to go away, he caught the lappe of his coate, and it rent. And Samuel sayd vnto him the Lord hath rente the kyngdome of Israell from thee thys daye, and hath geuen it to a neyghbour of thine, that is better then thou. The strength of Israel will not begyle nor repent: for he is not a man, that can repente. He sayd I haue synned. But nowe honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne agayne with me, that I may worshipp the Lord thy God.

And so Samuel turned agayn, and folowed Saul. And Saul worshipped the Lord. Then sayd Samuel: bringe ye hyther to me Agag, the kyng of the Amalekits. And Agag came vnto him delicately. And Agag sayde: truely the bitter death cometh on. And Samuell said: As thy sweard hath made wemen childlesse, so shal thy mother be childlesse aboue other womenne. And Samuell hewed Agag in peces before the 1.Re.7d Lorde in Gylgal. And then • Samuell departed to Rama. And Saul went home to his house to Gibea saul And Samuell came no more to see Saul, vntill the day of his death. Ne-uertheles Samuel morned for Saul: & the Lorde repented that he had made Saul kyng ouer Israell.

1 THe Lorde sayd vnto Samuell: Howe long wylt thou mourne for Saul seing I haue cast him away from raygnynge ouer Israell?
Fyll thine horne with oyntment, and come, that I may sende the to Isai the Bethlemite, for I haue prouided me a kyng amonge his sons. And Samuell sayde: howe can I goo? For yf Saul heare it, he wyll kyll me. The Lorde answered: Take an Heifer with thee, & say: I am come to offer vnto the lord.
And call Isai to the offeringe, and I wyl shew the what thou shalt do. And thou shalt anoynt hym whom I name vnto the. And so Samuel dyd as the Lord bad hym, and came to Bethleem, and the elders of the towne were asto-3Reg.2c nied at his comming, and sayd: • Com B meste thou peaceably? He answered: Ye, I am come to offer vnto the Lord.
Nu.11d • Sanctifye your selues, & come with Iosu.3d me vnto the offering. And he sanctified and.7.c Isai and hys sonnes, and bad them to the offerynge. And when they were come, he loked on Eliab, and sayde: Surely the Lordes anointed is before him. But the Lord sayd vnto Samuell: loke not on hys fashion, or on the heigth of hys stature, because I haue refused hym: for God seeth not as man seeth. For man loketh on the outward aperaunce, but god beholdeth the hert.
Then Isai called Abinadab, and made hym come before Samuell. And he sayde: neyther hath the Lorde chosen this. Then Isai made Samma come, and he sayd: neyther yet hath the Lord chosen hym. Agayne Isai made seuen of hys sonnes to come before Samuell. And Samuell sayde vnto Isai: the Lorde hath chosen none of these. And Samuell sayde vnto Isai: are here all C thy children? he sayde: there is yet a litle one behind, that kepeth the shepe.
And Samuell sayde vnto Isai: sende & fet hym, for we wyll not syt down, tyll he be come hyther. And he sente, and brought hym in. And he was browne, and of an excellente bewtye, • and well fauoured in syght. And the Lorde sayde: Aryse, and anoynte hym, & for thys is he. Therefore Samuell toke the horne with the ointment, and annoynted hym in the myddes of hys brethren. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon Dauid, from that daye forwarde. And Samuell rose vppe, and wente to Rama. But the spirite of the Lorde departed from Saull, and an euyll spirite sente of the Lorde vexed hym. And Saulles seruauntes sayde vnto hym: Beholde, an euyll spirit sent of God vexeth thee, let our Lorde therefore commaunde hys seruauntes (that are before thee) to seke a man, that is a connynge player with an harpe: that when the euyll spirite sente of God commeth vppon thee, he maye playe with hys hande, and thou shalt be eased. Saule sayde vnto hys seruauntes: prouyde me a man then, that can playe well, and bringe hym to me.
Then answered one of his seruaunts, and sayd: Behold, I haue sene a sonne D of Isai a Bethleemite, that can playe vppon instrumentes, and is an actyue felowe, and a man of warre, and prudente in doynge of feates, and well made, and the Lorde is with hym.
Wherefore Saule sente messengers vnto Isai, and sayd: send me Dauid thy sonne, whyche is with the shepe.
And Isai tooke an Asse laden with bread, and a flacket of wine, and a kyd, and sent them by Dauid hys sonne vnto Saul. And Dauid came to Saul and stode before him, and he loued him very well, and he was made his harnesbearer. And Saule sente to Jsai, sayinge: let Dauid remayne with me, for he hath found fauoure in my sight. And so it fortuned, that when the euill spyrite sente of God came vpon Saul, Dauid toke an harpe, and plaied with his hand, and so Saul was refreshed, and dyd amende, and the euyll spyrete departed from hym.

The. xvii. Chapter.

THe Philistines gathered their hoste to battell, and came together to Socoth which is in Juda, and pytched betwene Socoth and Azekah, in the coste of Dammin. And Saul and the men of Jsrael came together, and pitched in the Oke valley, and put them selues in araye, to fyght agaynst the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one syde, and Jsrael stode on an hyll on the other syde, and there was a valley betwene them. And there came a man betwene them both, oute of the tentes of the Philistines, named Goliath of Gath, fyue cubites and an handbredth longe, and had an helmet of brasse vpon hys heade, and a coate of mayle aboute hym. And the weyghte of hys coate of mayle was fyue thousande sicles of brasse. And he had bootes of brasse vpon hys legges, and a sheilde of brasse vpon hys shoulders. And the shafte of hys speare was lyke a weauers beame. And his speare head weyed, fyue hundred sickles of yron. And one bearynge a shielde went before hym. And he stode and cryed agaynste the hooste of Jsraell, and sayde vnto them: Why are ye come out in aray to battell? am not I a Philistine, & you seruaunts to Saul? Chose you a man from amonge you, and lette hym come downe to me. And if he be able to fight with me, and to beate me, then wil we be your seruauntes. But if I can ouercome hym and beate him, then shal ye be our seruauntes, and serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I defye the hoste of Jsraell thys daye: geue me a man, that we maye fyghte together. When Saul and all Jsraell hard those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, and greately afrayd. Dauid was the soonne of an Ephrahite (of whom mẽtion is made afore) of Bethlehem Juda, named Jsai, whiche had eyghte sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, and came to age amonge men. And the three eldest sons of Jsai wente and folowed Saul to the battell. And the names of hys three sonnes that wente to batell, were: Eliab the eldest, and the next, Abinadab, and the thirde Samma, and Dauyd was the leaste. And the three eldeste wente after Saul. Dauyd also went, and departed from Saul, to fede hys fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philystine came foorthe in the mornynge and euenynge, and continued fortye dayes. And Jsai sayde vnto Dauyd hys sonne: Take for thy brethren an Epha of thys partched corne and these ten loaues, and bringe it vnto the hooste to thy brethren. And carye these ten freshe cheses vnto the captayne, and loke howe thy brethren fare, and fet oute their pledges. And Saul and they, and all the men of Jsraell were in the oke valey, fyghtyng with the Philistines. And Dauyd rose vp early in the mornynge, and left the sheepe with a keper, and toke and went as Jsai had commaunded hym, and came within the compasse of the hoste. And the hoste went out in aray, and shouted in the battell: for Jsraell and the Philistines hadde put them selues in araye, the one agaynste the other. And Dauid toke downe the gere from him and put them vnder the handes of the keper of the vessels, and ran into the host, and came, and saluted his brethren. And as he talked with them. Behold, there stode a man in the middes (Goliath the Philistine by name) of Gath out of the aray of the Philistines, and spake of the maner aboue rehearsed, that Dauyd harde it. And all the men of Jsraell, when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from him, and were soze afrayde. And euerye man of Israell sayde: Sawe ye this manne come forth? euen to reuile Israell, is he come. ✠ And to hym that beateth Josu. 15 hym wil the kynge geue great riches, and will geue him his daughter ther-to ye, and make his fathers house free in Israell. And Dauid spake to the D men that stode by and sayd: what shal be done to the man that beateth thys Philistine, & taketh awaye the shame from Israell? And what is thys vncircumcised Philistine, that he should reuile the hoste of the liuing God? And the people answered him (after thys maner,) sayinge: so shall it be done to the man, that beateth him. And Eliab hys eldest brother hard whē he spake vnto the men, and Eliab was angrye with Dauid, and sayde: why camest thou downe hether? and with whom hast thou lefte those fewe shepe in the wylderne? I knowe thy pride and the malyce of thyne hart, that thou art come downe to se the battel. And Dauid sayde. And what haue I nowe done? is there not a worde? And he departed from hym into the presence of another, and spake of the same maner, and the people answered hym agayne, as before. And they that harde the wordes whych Dauid spake, rehearsed them before Saul, which caused hym to be set. And Dauid sayde to Saul: Let no mans hart fayle him because of him. Thy seruant wil go and fyght with yonder Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid again: thou art not able to go agaynst yonder Philistine, to fight with him. For thou art but a chyld, but he is a man of warre euen from his youth. Dauid answered vnto Saul. Thy seruaunt kepte his father shepe, and there came a ly-

Heb. 11. out of the flocke. And I went oute af-E ter hym, and smote him, and tooke it out of hys mouth. And when he arose against me, I caught him by the beard and smote him, and slewe him. And so thy seruaunt slue the Lyon, and the Beare (also) hath thy seruaunt slaine. And truely this vncircumcised Philistine shalbe as one of them. (Nowe will I go, and take awaye the rebuke of the people, for what is this vncircumcised Philistine) seynge he hathe rayled on the hoste of the liuyng God. And Dauid spake moreouer: the Lord that deliuered me out of the hand of ✠ Lyon, & out of the hande of the Beare, he shal deliuer me also out of the hand of the Philistine. And Saul sayd vnto Dauid: Go, and the Lorde shalbe with the. And Saul put his rayment vpon Dauid, & put an helmet of brasse vpon his head, and put a coate of maile vpon hym, and girded Dauid wyth hys owne sweard vpon hys raiment. And he assayed to go. And because he neuer proued it, Dauid sayde vnto Saul: I cannot go wyth these: for I haue not vsed my selfe therto: and Dauid put them of hym, and tooke hys staffe in hys hande, & chose him fiue smothe stones out of a broke, and put them in a sheaperdes bagge, which he had, and a slynge poke: and his slinge was in 4 hys hand. and he went to the Philystine. And the Philistine cam & drew nere against Dauid, and the man that bare the shylde, went before him. And when the Philistine loked about, and sawe Dauid, he disdayned him, for he was but ponge, and well coloured, & goodly to loke vpon. And the Philystine sayd vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou commest to me with a staffe, and the Philistine cursed Dauid in 1.14 the name of hys goddes. And the Philistine sayd to Dauid: come to me, & I wyll geue thy flesh vnto the foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of the field: Then sayde Dauid to the Philistine: thou comest to me ✠ a sweard a speare, and a shylde: But I come to the in the name of the Lord of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israell, whom thou hast rayled vpon. This day shall the Lord deliuer the into my hande, & I shal smite the, and take thyne heade from the, & will geue the karkases of the hoste of ✠ Philistins this day vnto the foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of the earth, that all they whiche be in the worlde, may knowe, that there is a God in Israell. And al this congregation shall knowe, that the Lord, saueth, not with sweard and speare. For the battayle is the Lordes, and he shal geue you into our handes. And when the Philistine arose to come & drawe nye vnto Dauid. Dauid hasted, and ran into the battayle euen against the Philistine. And Dauid put his hand xvii.14. in hys bagge, and toke out a stone, and slange it, and smote the Philistine in G his forehead, that the stone suncke into his forehead. and he fell groueling to the earth, and soo Dauid ouercame the Philistine, with a slynge & a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slewe hym, euen whan Dauid had no sweard in his hande. But Dauid ranne and stode vpon the Philistyne, & toke hys sweard, and drewe it oute of hys sheathe, and slewe hym, and cut of his xvii.51. heade therewith. And when the Philistine saw, that their champion was deade, they fled. And the men of Israell and of Juda arose, and showted, and followed after the Philistines, vntyll they came to the valey, and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe wounded by the way to Saaraym, euen vnto Gath and Akaron. And the children of Israel returned from chasyng after the Philistines, and spoyled their tents. And Dauid toke the heade of the Philystyne, and brought it to Jerusalem: But hr put his armour in hys tente.

xvii.14 When Saul sawe Dauid goo forthe agaynst the Philistine, he sayde vnto Abner the captayne of his host: Abner, whose sonne is this ponge man? Abner answered: as truly as thy soul lyueth (O kyng) I cannot tell. And the kynge sayd: Enquire thou whose sonne the yongelynge is. And when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistins, Abner toke him and brought hym before Saul, wyth the heade of the Philistine in his hād. And Saul sayde to hym: whose sonne arte thou, thou ponge man? Dauyd answered: I am the sonne of thy seruaunt Jsai the Bethlehemite.

AND when he hadde made an A ende of speakyng vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathas was knytte with the soule of Dauid, and Jonathas loued hym as hys owne soule. And Saul toke hym that daye, and would let hym go no more home to his fathers house. And Jonathas made a couenaunte with Dauyd, because he loued hym as his owen soule. And Jonathas put of his owen coate that was vpon him, and gaue it Dauid, & therto his cloke, his sweard, his bowe and his girdle. And Dauid went oute B whether soeuer Saul sente him, and behaued hym selfe wisely. And Saul set hym ouer his men of warre, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and in the sight of Sauls seruantes. And it happened as they wente, when Dauyd was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, the wome came out of all cities of Jsraell syngynge and daunsynge, against kynge Saul, and with timbreiles, with ioye and with iustrumentes of musycke. And the women answered one another in their plays, and sayde: Saul his ten thousande. And Saul was exceedyng wroth, and the saying displeased hym, and he sayd: they haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, and what can he more haue, saue the kyngdome? Wher fore Saul loked on side of Dauid frō that day forwarde. And it happened on the morowe. that the euil spyrit sent of God, came vpon Saul, and he prophecied in the middes of the house.

C And Dauyd played with hys hande lyke as at other tymes, and there was a iauelin in Sauls hande. And Saul toke the iauelin, and said I wyl nayle Dauid to the wall with it. And Dauyd auoyded out of his presence two tymes. And Saul was afeard of Dauid, because the Lorde was with him and was departed frō Saul. Therefore Saul put him frō him, and made him a captaine ouer a thousande, & he went out & in before the people. And Dauid behaued hym selfe wisely in al his wates, and the Lord was with him.

D Wherfore when Saul sawe that he was so exceding wise, he was afrayde of hym. But all Israel & Juda loued Dauid, because he went oute & in before them. And Saul sayd to Dauyd. Behold, my eldest daughter Merob, her I will geue the to wyfe. Onely play the man with me, and fyghte the Lordes battels. For Saul thought: myne hande shall not be vppon hym, but the hande of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: what am I? and what is my lyfe, or the kynred of my father in Israell, that I should be sonne in lawe to the kynge? Howebeit, when the tyme was come that Merob Sauls daughter should haue ben geuen to Dauid, she was geuen vnto Adriell a Meholochite, to wife. Howbeit, Michol Saules daughter loued Dauid. And they shewed Saul: and the thyng displeased him not. And Saul sayde: I wil geue him her that she may be a snare to hym, and that the hand of ỹ Philistines may be against him. Wherfore Saul sayd to Dauid: thou shalt thys day be my son in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul commaunded his seruauntes, to commen with Dauid secretly, and to say: Beholde, the kyng hath a fauour to the, & all hys seruauntes loue thee, be nowe therefore the kynges sonne in lawe.
And Saules seruauntes spake those E wordes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid said: Semeth it to you a lyght thyng to be a kynges sonne in lawe? I am a poore man, and of smale reputation. And the seruauntes broughte Saul word agayn, saying: of thys maner spake Dauid: And Saul said: this wise shal ye say to Dauid, the king careth for no nother dowrye, but for an hundred foreskyns of the Philistins, to be auenged of the kynges enemies. But Saul thoughte to make Dauyd fall into the hands of the Philistines. And when his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordes, it pleased Dauyd F well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And or the dayes were expyred, Dauyd arose with his men, and swente & slewe of the Philistines, two hundred men, and Dauid broughte their foreskynnes and satisfied the kyng therof, to be hys sonne in lawe. Wherefore Saul gaue him Michol his daughter to wyfe. And Saul sawe and vnderstode, howe that the Lorde was with Dauid, and that Michol his daughter loued him, and he was the more afraid of Dauid, and Saul became alwaye Dauids enemie. The Lordes of the Philistins vsed to go forth. And it fortuned ỹ when they wẽt forth, Dauyd behaued him selfe wiselyer then al the seruauntes of Saul: so that hys name was much set by.

The.xix. Chapter.

SAul spake to Jonathas his son, and to all his seruauntes, ỹ they should kyll Dauid. But Jonathas Sauls sonne had a great fauour to Dauid, and Jonathas told Dauid saying: Saul my father goeth about to slee the. Nowe therfore take hede to thy selfe vntyll the morynge, and abyde in some secret place and hide thy selfe. And I wyll go out, and stand by my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll common with my father of thee, and whatsoeuer I see, I wyl tel the. And Jonathas spake good of Dauyd vnto Saule hys father, and sayde vnto him: let not the kyng syn against his seruaunte Dauid, for he hath not sinned agaynste thee, and hys workes haue bene to thee warde verye good. Ja For he dyd - put his lyfe in his hand, pu and slewe the Philistine: and the Lord broughte to passe a great health for all Israell. Thou sawest it, and thou reioysedst, wherfore then wylt thou syn agaynst innocent blood, and slay Dauyd without a cause? And Saul harkened vnto the voice of Jonathas, and sware: as truely as the Lorde lyueth he shall not dye. And Jonathas called Dauid, and shewed him al those wordes, and brought Dauid vnto Saul. And he was in his presẽce as in times paste. And the war began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought with the Philistins, and slu them with a great slaughter, and they fled from him. And the euell spyrite sente of the Lorde was vpon

vpon Saul, as he sat in his house, hauyng a Iauelin in his hand, & Dauyd played with his hand. And Saul entended to nayle Dauid to ẏ wal with the Iauelin. But he rid hymselfe out of Sauls presence, as he smote the speare (with a vayne stroke) into the wall. And Dauid fled and was saued the same night. Saul also sent messengers vnto Dauides house, to watch hym, and to slay him in the mornyng. And Michol Dauids wife told it him saying: If thou saue not thy selfe thys nyght, to morow thou wilt be slayne. And so Michol let Dauid down thorow a windowe, & he went & fled, and was saued. And then shee toke an Image and layed it in the bed, and put a pillow stuffed with goates heare vnder the heade of it, and couered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to fetche Dauid, she sayde, he is sick. And Saule sent ẏ messengers agayne to see Dauid, saying: bryng him to me, bed and al, that I may slay him. And when the messengers were come in: Beholde, there lay an ymage in the bed, with a pillow of goates heare vnder the head of it. And Saul sayd vnto Michol: why hast thou mocked me so, and sent away myne enemy that he is escaped. Michol answered Saul. For he saide vnto me, let me go, or elles I will kyl thee. And so Dauid fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel to Rama, & tolde him al that Saul had done to him. And he & Samuel wente and dwelt in Naioth. And one told Saul saying: Behold, Dauid is at Naioth in Rama. And Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid. And when they sawe a company of Prophetes prophesying, and Samuel standynge faste by them the spyete of God fel vpon the messengers of Saul, and they prophesied to. And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied lykewise. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thirde tyme, and they prophesyed also. Then went he hym selfe to Rama, and came to a great wel that is in Sichu, and he asked and sayd: where are Samuel and Dauid? And one sayd: Behold, they be at Naioth in Rama, and he went thyther euen to Naioth in Rama, and the spyete of God came vpon him also, and he went prophesying, vntyll he came to Naioth in Rama. And he strypt of hys clothes & prophesyed before Samuell in like maner, and fell naked all that day and all that night. And therof is it, that they saye: is Saul also among the Prophetes?

C. 1. Sam. 18. 11. 19. D

AND Dauid fled from Naioth which is in Rama, and came & said before Jonathas: What haue I done? wherin am I faulty? what is the synne that I haue cõmitted before thy father, that he seketh my lyfe? He sayde vnto him, God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. Behold, my father wyl do nothing eyther great or small, but that he will shew it me. And how should my father hide this thing from me? He wyll not do it. And Dauid sware agayne, and sayde: Thy father knoweth, that I haue found grace in thyn eyes, and therfore he sayth: Jonathas shal not knowe it, lest he be sory. And in very dede, euen as truly as the Lorde liueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a step betwene me and death. Then sayd Jonathas vnto Dauid whatsoeuer thy soule desireth, that I will do vnto thee. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Behold, to morowe is the beginnyng of the moneth, and I should sytte with the kynge at meat. But let me go, that I may hyde my selfe in the feldes vnto the thirde day at euen. If thy father speak of me, then saye: Dauid asked leaue of me, that he might go to Bethlehem to his owne citie, for there is holden a yerely feaste for all the kynredde. And yf he say, it is wel done, then thy seruaunte shall haue peace. But and yf he be angrye, then be sure that wyckednesse is vtterlye concluded of him. And then thou shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruaunt, for thou haste made with me thy seruaunte a bonde in the Lorde. Notwithstandynge, yf there be in me anye trespace, then slaye me thy selfe, and bryngе me not to thy father. And Jonathas answered: God kepe that from the (neither is it possible to come to passe.) for if I knewe that wickednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon thee, thynkest thou, that I should not tell it the? Then sayd Dauid: who shall tell me, if thy father answere cruelly? And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: come and let vs go oute into the field. And they went out both of them into the fielde. And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauyd: The Lorde God of Israell loke on it, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme or other within thys three dayes, that it stande well with Dauid. If I then sende not vnto thee and shewe it thee. the Lord do so and so vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue any pleasure to do the euill. I wyll shewe the also, and sende thee away that thou mayest go in peace. And the Lorde be with thee, as he hath bene with my father. And thou shalte perfourme vnto me the mercy of the Lord, not only whyle I lyue, but euen when I am deade, and pluckе not thy mercy awaye from my house for euer: No not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauyd, euery one from the face of the earth. And so Jonathas made a bonde with the house of Dauyd, desyryng that the Lorde shoulde seke it out by the handes of Dauyds enemyes (yf it were broken.) And with other wordes dyd Jonathas sweare vnto Dauyd, because he loued hym. For he loued him as his owne soule. Then sayd Jonathas to Dauyd: to morowe is the first day of the mone. And thou shalte be myssed, because the place wher thou waste wonte to sytte, shal be emptye. Therfore thys daye three dayes come downe in anye wyse vnto the place where thou dyddest hyde thy self, whē the busynes was in hande: euen by the stone Esell. And I wyll shote three arowes by the one syde thereof, as thoughe I shot them at a marke, and wyll sende a lad, & bid him go seke the arowes. And if I saye vnto the lad: se, the arowes are on this syde the, bryng them: then come thou: for it is peace and no hurte, as sure as the Lorde lyueth. But & if I say vnto the lad: behold, the arowes are beyond thee, then go (in peace) for the Lord hath sent the away. And as touchyng this whiche thou and I haue spoken: beholde, the Lord be betwene thee and me for euer. And so Dauyd hydde hym selfe in the field. And when the newe mone was come, the king sate him downe to eate meate. And the kynge sate him downe after the olde maner, in his seat by the wall. And Jonathas arose and Abner sate by Sauls syde, and Dauids place was empty. Neuertheles, Saul sayd nothyng at al ẏ daye. For he thought: some thing hath chaunced him that he is not cleane. But on ẏ morow which was the second day of the newe mone, it happened that Dauyds place was empty agayne. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his son. Wherfore commeth not that sonne of Jsai to meat, neither yesterday not to daye? And Jonathas answered vnto Saule. Dauyd asked lycence of me, to go to Bethleem, for he sayde: let me go I praye the for our kynred doeth holde an offeryng in the citie, and my brother hath sent for me. And therfore if I haue found fauour in thyne eyes, let me go. and se my brethren. Thys is the cause that he commeth not vnto the kinges table. Then was Saul angry with Jonathas and sayd vnto him: Thou wicked rebel, do not I know, that thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thine owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother? for as long as the son of Jsai liueth vpon the earth, thou shalte not be stablished, nor yet the kyngdome, wherfore nowe send and fet him vnto me, for he is the childe of death. And Jonathas answered vnto Saul hys father, and sayde to hym: Wherfore shoulde he dye? what hath he done? And Saule lyfte vp a speare to hyt hym, whereby Jonathas wyste well that it was vtterly determined of hys father, to slaye Dauid. And so Jonathas arose frō the table in a gret anger and dyd eate no meate the second day of the moneth, for he was sory for Dauid because his father hadde done hym shame. On the next morynge, Jonathas wente oute into the fielde, at the tyme appoynted with Dauyd, and a litle ladde with him. And he sayde vnto his boye: runne and seeke oute myne arrowes which I shotte. And as the boy ran he shotte an arowe beyonde hym. And when the ladde was come to the place, whether Jonathas had shot the arrowe, Jonathas cryed after the lad agayne: make spede, and stand not styll. And Jonathas lad gathered vp the arrowes, and came to hys mayster. But the ladde wist nothynge of the matter. Oneiye Jonathas and Dauid wist it. And Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the lad that was with him, and said vnto him go and cary them to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauyd arose out of a place that was towarde the South, and fell on his face to the grounde, and worshypped thre times. And they kyssed either other, & wepte together so long, till Dauid exceading in weppynge. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace. And the thynges whyche we haue sworne both of vs in the name of the Lorde sayinge: the Lorde be betwene thee and me, & betwene thy sede and myne, lette theym stande for euer. And he arose, and departed. And Jonathas went into the towne.

Then came Dauid to Nob to Ahimelech the preist: And Ahimelech was astonied at the sodain commyng of Dauid, and sayde vnto hym. Why art thou alone, and no man with thee? And Dauid sayde to Ahymelech the Preist: the kynge hath commaunded me to do a certayne thynge, and hath sayde vnto me, let no manne knowe where aboute I sende thee, and what I haue commaunded the to do: And I haue appoynted my seruauntes, to suche and suche places. Nowe therfore if thou haste oughte vnder thine hande, gene me fiue loaues of breade, or what commeth to hande. And the preist aunswered Dauid, and sayde: there is noo common breade vnder myne hande, but here is holowed breade, if the yonge me haue kepte them selues from vncleane thinges, especially women. Dauid answered the preist, and sayde vnto hym: of a truth wemen hath bene locked vp fro vs about a three dayes, when I came out and the vessels of the younge men were holye. Howebeit this waye is vnpure, and howe muche more shall there be holynes in the vessell. * And so the preist gaue him halowed bread, for there was no nother breade there saue the shewebreades, that were take from before the Lorde, to putte freshe breade there, the day that it was taken awaye. And there was there the same daye, a certayne man, of the seruantes of Saul, abydynge before the Lord, named Doeg and Edomite the chefeste of Sauls hearde men. And Dauid sayde vnto Ahimelech: is not here vnder thyne hand, either speare or swerd for I haue neither brought my swerd nor my harneste with me, because the kynges busynesse required haste. And the preist sayde: the swearde of Goliath the Philistine whom thou slewest in the Oche, valley, beholde, it is here wrapt in a cloth behinde the Ephod. If thou wilt take that: take it for there is no nother saue that here. And Dauid said, ther is none to ỹ gene it me. And Dauid arose & fled ỹ same day from the presence of Saul, and went to Achis the kyng of Geth. And the seruaunts of Achis sayde of hym: is not this Dauyd the kynge of the lande? dyd they not synge vnto hym, in daunses, sayinge: * Saul hath slain his thousande, and Dauid hys ten thousande? And Dauid putte those wordes into his harte, and was sooze afrayde of Achis the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged his speache before them, and fayned him selfe mad in ther hands, and scrabled on the dores of the gate, and let his spyttel fall down vpon his beard. Then sayde Achis vnto hys seruauntes: Loo ye see that thys man is beside him selfe, wherfore the haue haue ye brought hym to me? Haue I nede of mad men that ye haue broght this felow to play the mad man in my presence? Shall he come into my house?

A Dauid therfore departed thence, and escaped, and came vnto ỹ caue Odollam. when his bre thren also and all his fathers house harde it, they went downe thither to hym. And there gathered vnto hym all men that were in combrance, and in dette, and troubled in their myndes, and he became a captayne ouer them. And there were with hym vpon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Mizpa in the land of Moab: and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and my mother (I pray thee) come forth vnto you, tyll I knowe what God wyll do for me. And he broughte them before the kyng of Moab. And they dwelt with hym all the while that Dauid kepte hymselfe in holde. And the Prophete Gad sayde vnto Dauid, abyde not in holde, but departe and go into ỹ lande of Juda. Then Dauid departed and B came into the forest Hareth. ¶ And Saul herd that Dauid was come abrode, and also the men ỹ were with hym. And Saul sat in Gibea vnder a tree in Rama, hauing his spere in his hande, and all hys men stode aboute hym. And Saul sayde vnto hys seruauntes that stode about hym. Heare I pray you, ye sonnes of Jemini: Wil the son of Jsai geue euery one of you fieldes and vyneyardes, and make you all captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes? that ye haue also conspired agaynst me, and there is none that 1.Re.18 and.20.d telleth it me in care? And where as my sonne hath made a bonde with the sonne of Jsai, there is none of you that mourneth for me, or sheweth it in myne eare: beholde, my sonne hath stered vp my seruaunte to ley awayte agaynst me thys same day. Then answered Doeg the Edomite which also stode by the seruauntes of Saul, & sayde, I sawe the sonne of Jsai when he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the son of Ahitob, whyche asked counsell of the Lorde for hym and gaue hym vytayle, and the swearde of Goliah the Philistine also. Then the kyng sente and called for Ahimelech the preist the sonne of Ahitob, and all hys fathers house, that is to saye, the preistes that were in Nob. And they came al to the kynge. And Saul sayde: heare nowe thou sonne of Ahitob. He answered: Here am I my Lorde. And Saul sayd vnto hym: why haue ye conspired agaynst me, thou and the sonne of Jsai, in that thou hast geuen hym vytayle, and a swearde, and hast asked counsel of God for hym: that he shoulde aryse agaynst me, & lye awayte for me thys daye? Ahimelech answered the kynge and sayde, who is so faythfull amonge all thy seruauntes as Dauid, & thereto the kynges sonne in lawe, and geteth at thy byddyng, and is had in honour in thyne house? haue I this day begon first to aske counsel of GOD for hym? That be farre from me (yf I had knowen it) let not the kynge put suche a thyng vpon his seruaunte, in all the house of my father. For thy seruaunte, knewe nothynge of all thys, eyther lesse or more. The kyng sayde: thou shalt surely die Ahimelech, thou and all thy fathers house. ¶ And the kynge sayde vnto the footemen that stode aboute hym, turne, and slee the preistes of the Lord, both because ther hande is with Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fledde, and shewed it not to me. But the seruantes of the kyng would not moue their handes, to fall vppon the preistes of the Lorde. And the kynge sayd to Doeg: turne thou, and fall vpon the preistes, and Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the preistes, and slue that same daye foure skore and fyue persones, that dyd weare a linnen Ephod. And Nob that citie of the preistes smote he with the edge of the swearde, both men and women, chyldren, and suckelynges, oxen, and asses, and shepe. And one of the sons of Ahimelech himelech, the sonne of Ahitob (named Abiathar) escaped and fled to Dauid. And Abiathar shewed Dauid, howe that Saul had slayne the Lordes preistes. And Dauid sayd vnto Abiathar: I wist it the same day, whan Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wold tell Saul. AM I am cause of the death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde thou with me, and feare not. For yf any man seke my soule, he shall seke thyne also, with me thou shalte be in safegarde.

Then they tolde Dauid saying: Behold the Philistines fyght agaynst Keilah, and spoyle the the barnes. Therefore Dauid asked the Lordes aduyse saying: shall I goo and smite these Philistines? And the Lorde answered vnto Dauid: go, and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. And Dauids men that were with hym, sayde vnto him: se, we be afraide here in Iuda: howe muche more then yf we come to Keilah agaynst ỹ hoste of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. And the Lorde answered hym and sayde: Aryse, and go downe to Keila, for I will deliuer the Philistines into thine hand. And so Dauid and his men went to Keila and fought with the Philistines, and droue awaye theyr catteil, and smote them with a great slaughter. And soo Dauid saued the inhabiters of Keila. And it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keila, ỹ he broughte an Ephod wyth hym in hys hande. And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keila. And Saul sayd: God hath deliuered hym into myne hande. For he is shut in nowe that he is come into a towne, that hath gates and barres. And Saul called all the people together to warre, for to go downe to Keila, & to beseige Dauyd and hys men. And Dauid hauynge knowlege, that Saule imagined myscheife (agaynste hym, sayde to Abiathar the preist: Brynge the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid: O LORDE GOD of Israell, thy seruaunte hath heard, that Saul is aboute to come agaynste Keila to destroy the citie for my sake: wyll the men of Keila delyuer me into his hande? And wil Saul come downe, as thy seruaunte hath harde saye? O LORD God of Israell, tell thy seruaunt. And the Lord sayd: he wyll come downe. Then sayd Dauid: wyll the men of Keila deliuer me and the men that are with me into the hande of Saul? and the Lorde sayde, they wyll betraye you. Then Dauid and his men whych were vpon a syxe hundred, arose and departed oute of Keila, and went whether they could. And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled from Keila, and he lette the iourney alone. Dauyd abode in the wyldernesse in strouge holdes, and remayned in a mountayne in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul soughte hym euery daye, but GOD deliuered him not into hys hande. AND Dauid sawe that Saul was come oute, to seke hys lyfe. AND Dauid was in the wyldernesse of Ziph, in a thycket. And Ionathas Sauls sonne arose and wente to Dauyd into the thicket, and comforted hys hande in God, and sayd vnto him: feare not, for the hande of Saul my father shall not finde thee, and thou shalt be kynge ouer Israell, and I must be nexte vnto the. And that doth Saul my father knowe. And they made a bonde both of them together before the Lord. And Dauid taried styll in the thycket, and Ionathas went to his house.

Then came the Ziphites to Saul, to Gibea, saying: Doth not Dauid hide hym selfe fast by vs in stronge holdes, in a thycket that is by the hyll of Hachila, on the ryght syde of the wildernesse? Nowe therefore kynge, thou mayest come downe accordynge to all the lust of thy soule: come downe, and our parte shalbe to deliuer hym into the kynges hand. And Saul sayd, blessed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue compassiõ on me. Go I pray you, & order

Se therefore, and knowe all the lurkyng places: where he hydeth hym selfe, and come yee agayne to me with the certentie, and I wyll goo wt you. And yf he be in the land, I wyll searche hym thorowe out all the thousandes of Juda. And they arose, and went to Ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his mē were in ỹ wildernesse of Maon, in the playne that is, on the ryght hande of Jesimon. Saul also and hys men went to seke: and they tolde Dauid. Wherefore he went vnto a rocke, and abode in the wildernes of Maon. And when Saul herd that he folowed after Dauid in the wildernesse of Maon. And Saul and hys men went one the one side of the mōtayne, and Dauyd and hys men on the other syde. And Dauid toke thoughte howe to get from Saul. For Saul & hys menne compassed Dauid and his men, rounde about, to take them. But there came a messenger to Saul, sayinge: haste thee and come for the Philistines are come into the land. Wherfore, Saul retourned from persecutynge Dauid, and went agaynste the Philistines. And therefore is it, that they called the place: The rocke of separation. And Dauid went thence, and dwelt in stronge holdes at Engadi.

The. xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ When Saul was come agayne from folowyng after the Philistines, it fortuned that, there were, which tolde hym sayinge, beholde, Dauid is in the wyldernesse of Engadi. Then Saul toke three thousand chosen men oute of all Israell, & went to seke Dauyd, and hys men in the hyghte of the rockes, where wylde goates remayne. And he came to the flockes of shepe in the waye. And Saul went into a caue to couer his fete. And Dauid and hys men remayned in the inwarde partes of the caue. And the men of Dauyd sayde vnto hym: se, the day is come, of which the Lord sayd vnto the: behold, I wil deliuer thine enemies into thyn hand, & thou shalt do to hym as it shall seme good in thy sight. Then Dauid arose & cut of a lap of Sauls garment priuelye. And immediatelye Dauyds hert smote him because he had cut of a lap of Sauls garment. And he said vnto his men, the Lord kepe me from doynge that thinge vnto my master the Lords anoynted to lay mine hand vpō him, seing he is the anoynted of ỹ lord (For as truly as the Lorde liueth except the Lord smyte him, or except his day come or if he go not downe to warre & perish, the Lord be merciful vnto me that I lay not my hand vpō the Lords anoynted.) And so Dauid kept of hys seruantes with these wordes, & suffred them not to ryse agaynst Saul. But Saul rose vp oute of the caue & went away, Dauid also arose & went out of the caue, and cried after Saul, sayinge: My Lord kyng. And when Saul loked behind him. Dauid stowped to ỹ earth, and bowed himselfe and sayd to Saul: wherfore geuest thou an eare to mens wordes that saye: Dauid seketh euyll agaynst thee? Behold, thys day thine eyes haue sene, how that the Lord hath deliuered the thys day into mine hande in the caue. And some bad me kyll thee, but I had compassion on the, and sayd: I wyl not lay my hands on my master, for he is the Lordes annoynted. And moreouer, my father, beholde, and see yet the lap of thy garment in my hād, in asmuch as I killed the not, when I cut of the lap of thy garment. And Naball answered Dauids ser-and what is the sonne of Isai? there saying: Beholde, Dauid sente mes-

Nowe therfore take hede, and see what thou hast to doo: for there is an occasion of euyll geuen agaynste our maister, and all his houshold, seyng, he is a sonne of Belial, vngracious to speake to. Thenne Abigail made haste, and toke two hundred loaues, and two bottels of wine, and fiue sheepe ready dressed, and fiue measures of parched corne, and an hundred frayes of raysyns, and two hundred topnettes of fygges, and laded theim on asses, and sayd vnto her yong men: Go ye before me: Behold, I come after you. But she tolde her husbande Nabal nothyng thereof. And as she roade on her asse, she camme prively downe the syde of the hyll, and behold, Dauid & his men came downe against her, and she mette them. And Dauid said: In vain haue I kept al that this felow hath in the wyderneſſe, so that nought was missed of all that pertained vnto him. And he hath quite me euill for good. So and so doo GOD vnto the enemies of Dauid, if I leaue of al ꝑ pertaine to him, by ꝑ dawnyng of the day, any thyng that pysseth against the wall. And when Abigail sawe Dauid, she hasted and lyghted of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, & bowed her self to the grounde and fell at his fete, and said: Let thys vnhappy deede be counted myne, my Lord, and let thyne handmayd speake in thyne audience, and here the wordes of thy handmayde. Let not my Lorde (the kynge) regarde this vnthryftye mā Nabal: for as his name is, so is he Nabal is his name, and folly is with hym. But I thyne handmayd sawe not the yong men of my Lord whome thou sentest. Nowe therfore my lord, as sure as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soule liueth, the Lord hath withholde thee from comyng to shede blood, and withdrawe thou thyne hande from bloodshed. Nowe, I pray God that thyne enemyes and they that entende to do my Lord euil, may be as Nabal. And now this is the blessyng which thyne handmayd hathe brought vnto my Lorde: and let it be geuen vnto the yong men that folow my Lorde. Forgeue the trespasse of thyn handmayd, for the Lorde wyll make my Lorde a sure house, because my Lord fyghteth the battayles of the Lorde, and there coulde none euyll be founde in thee in all thy dayes. And if any man rise to persecute thee, and to seeke thy soule, the soule of my lord shall be bounde in the bundell of the lyuyng with the Lorde thy GOD. And the soules of thy enemies shal God cast out, out of the mydle of a syng. And when the Lord shall haue done to my lorde al the good that he hath promysed the and shall haue made thee ruler ouer Israell: then shall it be no decay vnto thee, nor discourage of heart vnto my Lorde, that thou hast not shedde bloode causelesse, nor auenged thy selfe. But when the Lorde shall haue dealt well with my lord, then thynke on thyne handmayd. And Dauid said to Abigail: blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which sent the this day to mete me: Blessed is thy sayinge, and blessed art thou, which hast kepte me this day from comming to shed blood, and frome auengyng my selfe with myne owne hand. For in very deede, as sure as the Lord God of Israel liueth, which hath kept me back from hurting thee, except thou hadst hasted and met me, thynkest thou, there had been lefte vnto Nabail, by the dawnyng of the daye, a pysser agaynst the wall? And so Dauid receiued of her hand, that whych she hadde brought hym, & sayd to her: Goe vp in peace to thyne house. Behold, I haue herd thy voyce, and haue accepted thy persone. And Abigail came to Nabail: and beholde, he helde a feaste in his house, lyke the feaste of a kynge, and Naballs hearte was merye within hym, for he was very dronken. wherfore she tolde hym nothynge, neyther lesse nor more, vntylle the morowe daye. But in the mornynge, when the wyne was gone oute of Nabail, his wyfe tolde hym these wordes, and his heart dyed within hym, and he became as a stone. And when dayes after, the Lorde smote Nabal, that he dyed. And when Dauid herd that Nabal was dead, he sayd: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hand of Nabal, and hath kept his seruant from euyll, and hath recompenced the wyckednes of Nabal, vppon his owne head. And Dauid sent to cōmon with Abigail: to the intente to take her to his wyfe. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were comme to Abigail to Carmell, they spake vnto her, saying: Dauid sent vs vnto thee, to take thee to hys wyfe. And she arose, and bowed her selfe on her face to the earth, and sayd: Beholde, let thy handmayd be a seruaunt, to washe the fete of the seruantes of my Lord. And Abigail hasted, and arose, and gat her vp vpon an Asse, wyth fiue damoselles of hers, that wente at her feete, and she went after the messengers of Dauid, and became his wife. Dauid also toke Ahinoam of Jezraell, and they were bothe his wyues. But Saul gaue * Michol his daughter Dauids wyfe, to Phalti, the sonne of Lais, whyche was of Gallim.

THe Ziphites came vnto Saul to Gibea, saying: Doothe not Dauid hyde hym selfe in the hyll of Hachilla, which is before Jesymon? Saul arose, and went downe to the wyldernesse of Ziph, hauynge thre thousande chosen men of Israell with hym, for to seeke Dauid in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul pitched in the hylle of Hachilla, whych lyeth beefore Jesymon, by the waye side. But Dauid dwelt in the wylderneſſe. And he sawe that Saule came after hym into the wyldernesse. Dauid therfore sent out spies, and vnderstode, that Saule was come in verye deede. And Dauid arose, and came to the place where Saul hadde pitched, and Dauid beheilde the place where Saule laye, and Abner the sonne of Ner, whych was his chiefe captayne Saul lay within, and the people and the hoste round about hym. Then answered Dauid, and spake to Ahimelech the Hethyte, and to Abisai the sonne of Saruia, and brother to Joab sayinge: whoe will goe downe wyth me to Saul to the hooste? And Abisai said: I wyl go down wyth thee. And so Dauyd and Abisai came down to the people by nyghte. And beholde, Saule laye sleping wythin the hoste, and hys speare stacke in the grounde at hys head. But Abner and the people laye round about hym. Then sayd Abisai to Dauyd: God hath deliuered thyne enemye into thyne hande thys daye. Nowe therefore, lette me smyte hym once wyth my speare to the earth, and I wyll not smyte hym the seconde tyme. And Dauyd sayde to Abisai: destroye him not. For who canne laye hys hande on the Lordes anoynted, and be giltelesse. And Dauyd sayde furthermore: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, the Lorde shall smyte hym or hys daye shall come to dye, or he shall descende into battel, and ther perysshe. The Lord kepe me from laiynge myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted: But take thou nowe the speare that is at hys heade, and the crewse of water, and lette vs go. And sooe Dauyd tooke the speare and the crewse of water from Sauls heade, and they gat them away, and no man sawe it or marked it, or awaked. For they were all aslepe, because the Lord had sent a deade sleepe vppon theym. Then Dauid went ouer to the other syde, and stode on the toppe of an hyll afarre off (a gret space being betweene them) and Dauyd cryed to the people and to Abner the sonne of Ner, saying: Heerest thou not Abner? Abner answered and saide: What arte thou that cryest to the kynge? and Dauid sayde to Abner, art not thou a manne: and who is lyke the in Israel? wherfore then haste thou not kepte thy Lorde the kynge? For there cam one of the folke in, to destroye the kynge thy Lorde. It is not good that thou haste doone. But and if they bee the chyldren of men, cursed ar they before the Lord. For they haue cast me out thys day from abidynge in the inheritance of the Lorde, saying: Hence, and goe serue other gods. Nowe therfore, let not my blood fal to the erth before the face of the Lord. For the king of Israell is comme out to hunte a flye, as when one doothe huut a partrige in the mountaynes. Then sayde Saul: I haue sinned, come agayn my sonne Dauid, for I wyll doo thee no more harme, because my soule was precious in thyne eies this day. Beholde, I haue playd the fole, and haue erred exceedyngly. And Dauid answered & sayde: Beholde, the kynges speare, let one of the yong men come ouer and fet it. The Lord reward euery man accordynge to his righteousnesse and faith: For the Lord deliuered thee into my hande this daye, but I would not lay myne hande vpon the Lordes annoynted. And beholde, lyke as thy lyfe was muche sette by this daye in myne eies: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lord, that he deliuer me out of all tribulation. Then Achis gaue hym Zikleg that same day: for whiche cause Zikleg pertaineth vnto the kings of Juda vnto this daye. And the tyme that Dauid dwelte in the countrey of the Philistins, was foure monethes, and certayne days. And Dauid and hys

And the Lordes of the Philistines were wroth with hym, and sayde vnto hym: Make thys felowe returne, that he may go agayne to hys place whych thou hast apoynted hym: and let hym not goe downe with vs to battel, least in the battell, he be an aduersarye to vs. For wherwyth coulde he better obtayne the fauoure of hys mayster, then with the heades of these men? Is not this Dauid, to whom they sange in daunces: Saule slue hys thousande, and Dauyd hys ten thousande? Then Achis called Dauyd, and sayde vnto hym. As sure as the Lord lyueth, thou hast beene honeste, and good in my syght, whan thou wentest out and in with me in the host: neyther haue I found euyll with thee sence thou camest to me vnto thys daye. Neuertheles the Lordes of the Philystynes fauoure thee not: Wherefore nowe returne, and goe in peace, that thou displease not the Lordes of the Philistins. And Dauyd sayde vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruaunt, as longe as I haue bene with thee vnto thys daye, that I may not go fyght agaynst the enemyes of my Lorde the kyng? Achis aunswered and sayde to Dauyd: I knowe that thou art good, and art in my syght, as an aungell of God. Not withstanding the Lordes of the Philistines haue sayd: Let hym not go vp with vs to battell. Wherefore nowe ryse vp earlye in the morninge with thy maysters seruauntes that are come to thee: and when ye be vp earlye (as sone as ye haue lyght) departe. And so Dauid, and his men rose vp earlye to depart in the morninge, and to returne into the land of the Philistins. And the Philistins went vp to Iesrael.

BUt whan Dauid and hys menne were come to Zikleg the third day, the Amalechytes had russhed in vppon the southe, and vpon Zikleg, and had smytten Zyckleg, and burnt it with fyre, and had taken the wemen (that were therin) prisoners, both smal and gret: but slue not a man, saue caryed them with thē, and went their wayes. And Dauid sente to comforte him by the hande of hys seruantes ouer (the death of) his father. And Dauids seruantes came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, and the Lordes of the children of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon their Lord: thinkest thou that Dauid doth honour thy father, that he hath sent comfortours to thee? Hath not Dauid rather sent his seruauntes vnto thee, to search the cite, and to spye it oute, and to ouerthrow it? Wherfore, Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes: and shaued of the one half of euery mans beard, and cut of theyr garmentes in the myddle, euen harde to the buttockes of them, and sent them away. And Joab proceded forth, and the people that was with hym, to fight with the Sirians. But they fled before hym. And when the chyldzen of Ammon ſawe that the Sirians were fled, then fled they alſo before Abiſai, and entred into the citye. And ſo Joab returned from the chyldzen of Ammon, and came to Jeruſalem. And when the Sirians ſaw that they were put to the woꝛſe before Iſraell, they gathered the togeth. And Hadarezer ſent, and bzought out the Sirians that wer beyond the ryuer. And ſo the Sirians feared to helpe the chyldzen of Ammon any moze.

And Dauid ſayde to Urias: Go downe to thyne houſe and waſhe thy feete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed hym a ſeruyce frome the kynges table. Dauyd sayde vnto Urias: Camest thou not from thy iorney? why diddest thou not go downe then vnto thine house? Urias aunswered Dauid: The arke and Israell and Juda dwell in pauilyons: and my lorde Joab and the seruauntes of my Lorde lye vppon the flatte earth, and shall I then go into myne house to eate, and to drynke, and lye with my wyfe: ✠ By thy lyfe, and by the lyfe of thy soule, I will not do thys thyng. And when Dauyd had called hym, he dyd eate and drynke before hym, and he made hym dronke. And he wrote thus in the letter, saying: Put Urias in the forefront of the sharper battell, and come ye backe from hym, that he maye be smytten and dye. So when Joab besieged the Citie, he assygned Urias vnto a place, where he wyste that strong men were. And the men of the citye came out, and fought with Joab. And there were certayne ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid. And Urias the Hethite dyed also. Then Joab sente, and tolde Dauid all the thynges concernynge the warre, and charged the messenger, sayinge: when thou haste made an ende of tellyng the matters of the warre vnto the kyng, yf he begyn to fume, and saye vnto thee, wherfore approched ye so nye vnto the Citye, when ye dyd fyght, wyste ye not that they woulde hurle and shote from the wall? who smote Abimelech sonne of Jereboseth? ✠ dyd not a woman caste a perr of a mylstone vppon hym from of the wall, and he dyed in Thebes? why went ye nye the wall? then saye thou: Thy seruaunte Urias the Hethite is deade also. So the messenger went, and came, and shewed Dauid all that Joab had sent him for, and the messenger saide vnto Dauid: the men preuayled agaynst vs, and came oute vnto vs into the fielde, and we (with violence) stacke vnto them, euen vnto the enterynge of the gate. And Dauid sayde vnto the messenger: Thus shalte thou saye vnto Joab: let not that thyng trouble the. For (the chaunce of warre is dyuerse, and) the sweard deuoureth one as well as another: Make thy battell more stronge agaynste the Citie to ouerthrowe it, and se that thou corage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias heard that her husbande was deade, she mourned for hym. And when the mournynge was paste, Dauid sente and fette her to hys house, and she became his wyfe, and bare him a sonne. But this thyng that Dauid did, displeased the Lorde.

And the Lorde stroke the child that Urias wife bare vnto Dauid, and it sickened sore. Dauyd therefore besoughte God for the childe and fasted and went in, and lay all nyght vpon the earth. But Dauid seyng his seruauntes whysperynge, perceaued that the chylde was deade, and Dauid sayde vnto hys seruauntes: Is the chylde deade? They sayde: yee. And Dauid arose from the earth: and washed and anoynted hym selfe, and chaunged hys apparell, and came into the house of the Lord, and worshipped, and afterward came to his owne house, and bad that they shoulde set breade before hym, and he dyd eate.
Then sayd his seruauntes vnto him: what thynge is thys, that thou haste done? Thou dyddest faste and wepe for the chyld whyle it was alyue, and as sone as it was deade, thou dyddest ryse vppe, and eate meate. He sayde: I

1 After thys it chaunced, that Absalom the sonne of Dauid hadde a fayre syster, named Thamar, whome Ammō the sonne of Dauid loued. And he was so sore ver ed, that he fell sycke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for she was a virgin, and he thoughte it harde for hym, to haue hys purpose of her. But Ammon had a frend, called Jonadab, the sonne of Simeah Dauides brother, and Jonadab was a very wyse man.
And he sayde vnto hym: howe commeth it, that thou beyng the kynges sonne, art thus consumed euerye day? wylt thou not tell me? Ammon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absaloms syster. Jonadab sayde vnto hym: Laye thee downe on thy bedde, and make thy selfe sycke. And when thy father is come to see thee, saye vnto hym: Oh, lette my syster Thamar come, and geue me meate, and dresse it in my syght, that I may B see it, and eate of her hande. And so Ammon lay downe, and made hym selfe sycke. And when the kyng was come to see hym, Ammon sayde vnto him: Oh let Thamar my sister come, and make me a couple of frytters in my syghte, that I maye eate of her hande. Then Dauyd sente home to Thamar, sayinge: Goo nowe to thy brother Ammons house, and dresse him meate. So Thamar went to her brother Ammons house, and he was laid downe. And she toke floure, and made past, and dressed frytters in his syght, and did bake them, and toke a platter, and powred them out before hym, but he would not eate. And Amnon said: Haue oute all men from me. And they went al out from hym. And Ammon sayd vnto Thamar: Bryng the meat into the chāber, that I may eat of thin hande. And Thamar toke the fritters which she had made, & brought them into the chamber to Ammon her bro ther. And when she had set them be- C fore him to eate, he toke her, and sayde vnto her: come lye with me my syster.
And she answered him: naye my brother, do not force me, for there hath no such thing bene done in Israel: do not thou this abhominaciō. For whither shall I be able to go with my shame.
And thou shalt be as one of the foles in Israell. O speake vnto the kyng, and he shall not denye me vnto thee.
Howbeit he wouldе not herken vnto her voyce, but toke her, & forced her, Gen.34a and laye with her. And then Ammon Leui.18a hated her exceedyngly, so that the hate wherewith he hated her, was greater then the loue, with which he before loued her. And Ammōsaid vnto her, vp and get the hence. She answered him: thou haste no cause. This euyll that thou puttest me away is greater then the other that thou dyddest vnto me. Neuertheles he would not heare her, but called his boy that serued him and said: put away this woman from me, and bolte the doze after her. And she had a kyrtle of diuers colours vp- D on her, for with such wer the kings daughters (that were virgins) appareled. Then hys seruaunte brought her out, and locked the doze after her.
And Thamar toke and put asshes on her heade, and rent her gay kirtle that was on her, and layed her hande on her heade, and so wente: and as shee wente, cryed. And Absalom her brother sayd vnto her: hath Ammon thy brother bene with thee? Now yet be styll my syster: he is thy brother. Let not this thyng greue thyne hert. And so Thamar remayned desolate in her brother Absaloms house. But when kyng Dauid herd of all these thinges, he was very wroth. (And he would not vexe ỹ spirite of Ammon his son: for he loued him, because he was hys fyrst borne.) And Absalom sayd vnto his brother Ammon neither good nor bad. Howbeit Absalom hated Ammon because he had forced hys syster Thamar. And it happened after two

The kynge answered Absalom: nay my sonne, we will not go al, nor be chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye sore vpon him: howbeit he wold not go, but blessed him. Thē sayd Absalom: if thou wilt not come, then let my brother Ammon go with vs. And ỹ kyng answered him: what needeth it, that he go with thee? But Absalom made such instāce that he let Ammon, and al the kyngs children go with him. Now had Absalom commaūded his yong men, saying: marke when Ammons herte is merye with wyne, and when I bid you smite Ammon, then kyl him and feare not, haue not I bydden you? be bold therfore, & playe the men. And the yonge men of Absalō did vnto Ammon euen as Absalom had commaunded. And all the

And Jonadab the sonne of Shimeah Dauids brother, answered and sayde: Let not my Lord suppose that they haue slayne al the yong men the kyngs sonnes, saue Ammon onely is dead. For that hath bene determined in Absaloms mynd, sence he forced hys syster Thamar. Now therfore let not my Lorde the kyng take the thyng so greuously, to thynke that all the kinges sonnes are dead, saue Ammon only is dead. But Absalom fled. And the yong man that 6 kept the watch, lyft vp hys eyes, and loked: and beholde, there came much people by a way, alonge by the hinder part on an hylles syde. And Jonadab sayd vnto the king: behold, the kinges sonnes come: as thy seruaunt sayd, so it is. And as sone as he had left speakynge: Beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lyft vp theyr voyces, and wepte. The kynge also and all hys seruauntes wepte exceedynglye. But Absalom escaped, and went to Thalmai the sonne of Amihur kynge of Gesur. And Dauyd mourned for his sonne euery day. And so Absalom escaped and wente to Gesur, and was there thre yeares. And kynge Dauid desired to go forthe vnto Absalom. For where as Ammon was dead, he was comforted ouer hym.

Joab the sonne of Zaruia perceaued, that the kynges herte was towarde Absalom, and he sente to Thekoa, and fette thence a wyse woman, and sayd vnto her: fayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mournynge apparell. And Absalom sayde vnto him, See thy matter is good and righteous, but there is no man deputed of the king to heare thee. Absalom sayde moreouer: Oh, that I were made Judge in the land, that euery manne whiche hathe any plea and matter in the lawe, myght come to me, and that I might do hym iustice. And when any man came nie to him, & did him obeisance, he put forth his hand, & toke him to hym, and kyssed hym. Huſai anſwered vnto Abſalom: nay not ſo, but whom the lord & this people & all the men of Iſraell choſe, his will I be, & with him will I dwell. Moreouer, vnto whom ſhal I do ſeruice, but eue to his ſon? And as I was ſeruāt before with thy father, euen ſo ſhal I be with thee. Then ſpake Abſalō to Ahithophel: geue coūcell what is beſt for vs to do. And Ahithophell ſayd vnto 2.Kin.

And ſo they pitched Abſalom a tent vppon the top of the houſe. And he went in vnto his fathers concubines in the ſyght of all Iſraell. And the councell of Ahitophell, whych he counſailed in thoſe dais, was as a mā hadde aſked councell of God: euen ſo was all the councell of Ahithophell, bothe with Dauid and Abſalom.

lom, lette me choſe out nowe twelue thouſande men. And I wyll go vp, and folow after Dauid this nyght. And I wyll come vpon him, whyle he is wery & weake handed, and will feare hym. And all the people that are wyth hym, ſhall flee. And ſoo wyll I ſmyte the kyng oncly, and wylle bryngе agayne all the people vnto thee, euen as easelye as if I would bring any other thing. And whan I haue slayne the manne whom thou seekest, all the people shall haue rest. And the saying pleased Absalom well: and all the elders of Israell. Then said Absalom, cal also Husai the Arachite, and let vs heare hys counсell. When Husai was come to Absalom. Absalom spake vnto hym, sayinge, Ahitophell hath geuen suche counсel, Shal we do after his saying or no? tell thou. Husai answered vnto Absalom, the counсel that Ahitophel hath geuen, is not good at this tyme. For (saide Husai) thou knowest thy father, and his men, how that they be stronge. And they bee chafed in theyr mindes, and are euen as a Bear robbed of her whelpes in the felde. Thy father is a man also practysed in war: and maketh no tariyng wyth the people. Behold he lurketh nowe in some caue, or in some other (stronge) place. And though some of his men be ouer throwē at the fyrst brunt, yet thei that heare it wil saye, The people that folowed Absalom, be put to the worse. And the best menne thou hast, whose herts are as the hertes of Lions shall shrinke therat. For al Israell knoweth, that thy father is a myghty man, and they which be with him, are all men of war. Therfore my counсel is that all Israell be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Beer Sheba, which are as the sande of the sea in nombre, and that thou go to battell in thine owne person. For so shal we com vpon him in one place or other, where we shall find him, and we wil fal vpon him euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the ground. And of al the men that ar with him, we shal not leue him one. Moreouer if he be gotte into a towne, then shal al the men of of Israel bring ropes to that citie, and we wil drawe it into the riuer, vntil there be not one stone found there. And Absalom and al the men of Israel said, the counсel of Husai the Arachite is better, then the counсel of Ahitophel. For it was euen the Lordes determination to destroye the good counсell of Ahithophell, that the Lorde myght bryng euell vpon Absalom. Then sayde Husai vnto Sadocke and Abiathar the priestes, of thys and that manner dyd Ahithophell and the elders of Israell counсel Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counceled. Nowe therefore sende quickely, and shew Dauid, saiynge, tarye not all nyght in the feldes of the wyldernesse, but get thee ouer, least the kyng be deuoured, and all the people that are wyth hym. Nowe Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the well Rogell: (for they myght not be seene to come into the Citie.) And a wench went and told them. And they went and shewed kynge Dauid. Neuertheles, a lad saw them, and told it to Absalō. But they went both of thē away quickly, and cam to a mās house in Bahurim, which had a wel in hys yard into the which they went down. And a woman toke and spred a couerlet ouer the welles mouth, and strawed firmenti corne therō, and the thing was not spyed. And when Absaloms seruants cam to the wife to the house, they sayd, Wher is Ahimaaz and Jonathas? The woman aunswered thē: they bee gone ouer the lyttle brooke of water. And when they had sought theym, and couldе not fynde theym, they retourned to Jerusalem. And as soone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and wente and tolde Kynge Dauyd, and sayde vnto hym: Up, and gette you quickelye ouer the water, for suche counсell hathe Ahithophell geuen agaynste you. Then Dauyd arose, and all the people that were with hym, and they wer com ouer Jordan bythat it was daye: soe that there lacked not one of theym, that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Ahythophell sawe that hys counсell was not folowed, hee saddelled an Asse, and arose, and gat him home to his owne house, and to his owne city, and put hys household in order, and hanged himselfe: dyed:

The.xviii. Chapter.

A And Dauid nombred the people that were wyth him, and set captaines of thousandes & of hundredes ouer them. And Dauid sent forth the thyrd part of the people vnder the hand of Joab, and another part vnder the hand of Abisai the son of Zeruia Joabs brother, and the other thirde part vnder the hand of Ithai the Gethit. And the king said vnto the people, I will go with you also. And the people answered: Thou shalt not go forth: for yf we flee, oure aduersaries will not care for vs, neyther shal they regard vs, though half of vs were slaine: but thou art worth ten thousande of vs: wherefore it is
B better that thou succour vs out of the citie. And the king said vnto theym: what semeth you best that wyl I do. And the kinge stode by the gate syde, and all the people came oute by hundredes, and by thousandes. And the kyng commaunded Joab and Abisai, and Ithai saying: intreate the pong

And so ỳ people wēt out into the felde against Israel, and the battel was in ỳ wod of Ephraim wher the people of Israel wer put to the worse before the seruaunts of Dauid, and ther was a great slaughter ỳ day, euen of.xx. thousand mē. For the feld was fought ther in diuers places al abrode vpon the erth. And the wod deuoured mo peple that day than did the swearde. And Absalom came before the seruants of Dauid riding vpon a Mule, which caried him vnder the thick bowes of a gret Oke, & his head was caught of the Oke. And he was lift vp betwene heauen & earth, and ỳ mule that was vnder him wēt C his way. And one that sawe it, tolde Joab saying, Behold, I sawe Absalom hang in an Oke: and Joab saide vnto the mā that told him, if thou did dest se him, why diddest not thou ther smite him to the ground, and I wold haue geuē the ten sicles of siluer, and a gyrdle? The man sayd vnto Joab: thoughe thou wouldest laye a thousande sicles of siluer in my hande, yet woulde I not stretch out myne hand against the kinges son. For we heard wyth our eares when the king charged thee, and Abisai, and Ithai, saynge: Beware, that none touche the yong man Absalom. Moreouer, if I hadde done it, I should haue done against mine owne lyfe, for ther is no matter hid from the king: ye and thou thy self woldest haue ben against me. D Then saide Joab: I maye not stande thus tarying wyth the. And he tooke thre speares in his hande, and thrust them throgh Absalom, while he was yet aliue on the body of the tree. And x. seruants ỳ bare Joabs wepōs, turned, & smote Absalō, & slue him. And when Joab blewe the trompette, the people retourned from folowynge Israel, for Joab spared the people. And they tooke Absalom, and cast hym into a greate pytte in the wood, and layed a myghtye greate heape of stones vppon hym. And all Israell fledde to theyr tentes.

Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: Let shalt beare none, because the kynges sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadocke Joab sayd: Wherfore wylte thou run hath shut vp the men that lift vp ther the kinge saide: is the man Absalom

I wot not what it was. And ỹ king the king was moued: and went vp to

And as he went, thus he said: O my Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

AND it was tolde Joab: Be- A holde, the kynge wepeth and mourneth for Absalom. And the victorye of that daye was tourn-ed into mourning vnto all the people. For the people hearde saye that daye howe the kynge sorowed for his sonne. And the people stale awaye that daye from going into the Cytye, as people confounded, steale awaye when they flee in battayle. But the kynge hyd his face, and cryed with a lowde voyce. O my sonne Absalom, O Absalom my sonne, my sonne. And Joab came into the house to the king and said: Thou hast shamed this daye the faces of all thy seruantes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes, and of thy daughters, and the lyues of thy wyues, and of thy concubines, in that thou louest thyne enemies, and hatest thy frends.
For thou hast declared this daye, that B thou regardest neyther thy lordes, nor seruauntes. And thys daye I do per-ceiue,

ceyue, that yf Absalom hadde lyued, and all we hadde dyed this daye, that hadde pleased thee well. Nowe ther fore vp, and come out, & speake kindely vnto thy seruantes. For I sweare by the lord, excepte thou comme oute, there will not tary one mā with thee this nyght. And that will be woorse vnto thee, then all the euill that fel on thee from thy youth vnto this houre. Then the kyng arose, and sat downe in the gate. And they told vnto all the people, sayinge: Beholde, the kynge dooth syt in the gate. And all the people came before the king. But Israel fled euery man to his tent. And it fortuned, that all the people wer at strife throrow out all the tribes of Israell, saying: The king saued vs out of the hande of our enemyes, he deliuered vs out of the hand of the Philistins, and nowe he is fled oute of the lande for Absalom. But Absalom whome we anoynted ouer vs, is dead in battaill. Therefore, why are ye so styll, that ye bring not ỳ king agayn? And king Dauid sēt to Sadok & Abiathar the priests, saying: Speke vnto the elders of Juda, and say: Why are ye behynd to bryng the kyng agayn to his house, seyng that such tidings is com from all Israel vnto the kyng, euē to his house? For ỳ king had said: Thus shal ye say vnto the people of Juda: Ye are my bretherne, my bones, & my flesshe. wherfore then are ye the last ỳ bryng the kyng home agayn? And say ye to Amasa, Art thou not of my bone and of my flesshe? God do so and so to me, if thou be not captain of the host to me for euer in the roome of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of al the mē of Juda, euen as the herts of one mā. so that they sent this word to ỳ kyng: Returne thou with all thy seruants. So the kyng returned, and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete the king, and to conuey him ouer Jordan. And Simei the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, whyche was of Bahurim, hasted, and came with the men of Juda, to mete king Dauid, & there were a thousand mē of Beniamin wt hym, and Siba the seruant of the hous of Saul, and his xv. sonnes, and twenty seruants with him. And they went quickly ouer Jordan before the king. And there went ouer a boate that caried ouer the kynges householde, and they did him pleasure. And Semei ỳ sonne of Gera fell before the king (as he was come ouer Jordan) and sayde vnto hym, Lette not my lorde impute wyckednesse vnto me, nor remember the things (that thy seruant did wickedly when my Lord the kyng departed out of Jerusalem) that the kyng should take it to hearte. For thy seruant dothe knowe, howe that I haue doone amysse. And therfore behold, I am the fyrst this daye of all the house of Joseph, that am come to go downe to mete my lord the kynge. But Abisai the sonne of Zeruia answered and sayd: Shall not Semei dye for this, because he cursed the lords anointed? And Dauid said: What matter is betwene you and me ye sonnes of Zeruia? For this daye ye bee aduersaries vnto me. Shall there any manne dye this day in Israel? Do not I know that I am this day king ouer Israel? And therfore the king said vnto Semei: Thou shalt not die, & the kynge sware vnto him. And Miphiboseth ỳ sonne of Saule came also to mete the king, & had neither washed his feete, nor shauen his beard, nor washed hys clothes, from the time the king departed, vntil he came again in peace. And it fortuned that when he was come to Jerusalē, and met the kyng, the kyng said vnto him: Wherfore wentest not thou with me Miphiboseth? He answered: My lord, O kyng, my seruāt deceiued me. For thy seruant said, I would haue myne asse sadeled to ryde theron, for to go to the king, because thy seruant is lame. And Siba hathe falsly reported of thy seruant vnto my lord the king. And my lorde the kyng is as an angell of God: doo therfore what semeth good in thyne eies. For all my fathers house were but deade men before my lord the kyng: and yet diddest thou put thy seruaunt among them that did eate at thine owne table. what right therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto the kinge? And the king sayd vnto him: Why speakest thou yet in thine owne cause: It is determined, that I haue saide, thou and Siba deuide the landes betwene you: And Miphiboseth said vnto the king ye, let him take al: for so muche as my Lord the king is come again in peace f vnto his owne house. And Berselai the Gileadite came downe from Rogelim, and went ouer Iordan with the king, to conuey him ouer Iordan: Berselai was a very aged man, euen foure score yere olde, and prouided the kinge of sustenaunce, while he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verye great substance. And the king said vnto Berselai: come thou with mee, Ke.17. and I will fede the with me in Ierusalem. And • Berselai saide vnto the king. I am thus old, and howe am I able to go vp with the king vnto Ierusalem? I am thys daye foure score yeare olde: and can I decerne betwen good and euil? Hath thy seruaunt anie tast in that he eateth or drinketh? Can I heare anye more the voyce of syngynge men and women? Wherefore then should thy seruaunt be yet a burthen vnto my Lorde the kinge? Thy seruaunt will go a litle way ouer Iordan with the king: and why will the kinge recompence it me with suche a reward? O let thy seruaunte tourne backe agayne, that I may die in mine owne city, and be buried in the graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy seruaunt Chimeam let hym go with my Lord the king, & doo to hym, what shal please the. And the kinge answered: Chimeam shall G go with me. And I will do to hym, that thou shalt be content with. And whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same will I doe for thee. And all the people went ouer Iordan. And when the king was come ouer Iordan, hee kyssed Berselai, and blessed hym, and he went backe againe vnto his owne place. And then the kynge went to Gilgall, & Chimeam went with him, and so did all the people of Iuda, and brought ouer the king and ther wer but half the men of Israell. And behold, al the men of Israell cam to the king & said vnto him, why haue our brethrē the mē of Iuda stolē thee away, & haue brought the king & his houshold, and all Dauids men with him ouer Iorden? And al the men of Iuda answered the mē of Israel: the king is nere of kin to vs: wherfore be ye angrye for that matter? thinke ye ỳ we eat of the kinges cost, or that wee take vs any giftes? And the mē of Israel answered the mē of Iuda & said: we haue .x. partes in the king, & haue therto more right to Dauid, then ye. Why then did ye despise vs, ỳ our aduise shuld not be first had in restoring our king again? And the woordes of the men of Iuda wer fearcer then the woordes of the men of Israel.

The .xx. Chapter.

Whan ther came thither a certayne man of Belial (named Seba, the sonne of Bichri, a manne of Genun:) he blewe a trompet and sayde, we haue no part in Dauyd, neyther haue wee inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai: lette the men of Israell depart vnto their tentes. And so euerye manne of Israell went from Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Iuda claue faste vnto their kynge from Iordan to Ierusalem. And so Amasa went to gather the mē of Iuda together: but tarried longer than the tyme which he hadde appoynted hym. And Dauyd saide to Abisai: nowe shall Seba the sonne of Bychri doo vs more harme,

Take thou therefore thy lordes seruantes, and folowe after hym: lest he get hym walled cities, and escape vs. And there wente out after him Joabs men, & the Crethites, and the Phelethites, and al the myghtiest menne. And they departed out of Jerusalem to folow after Seba, the sonne of Bichri. And whenne they were at the great stone in Gibeon, Amasa wente before theim. And

And Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahiud was Recorder. Seua was Scribe. And Sadock and Abiathar were the priestes. And Ira the Jairite was Dauids priest.

¶ The. xxi. Chapter.

THen there fell an hunger in 3 the days of Dauid, thre yeares together. And Dauid enquired of the Lord. And the Lord answered: It is for Saule, and the house of blood, bicause he slew the * Gibaonites. And the kynge called the Gibaonites, and sayd vnto them: (Now the Gibaonites were, not al
the

the chyldren of Israel, but a remnant of the Amorites, and the chyldren of Israell sware vnto them: And Saul sought to slay them, for a zele that he had to the chyldren of Israel, and of Juda.) Wherfore Dauid sayde vnto them, what shall I do for you, and wherwith shall I make the attonement that ye maye bleſſe the enherytaunce of the Lord? The Gibaonites answered him: we will haue no syluer nor golde, of Saul nor of hys house: neyther is it oure mynde, that thou shouldest kyll any man in Israel. He sayd: what say ye then that I shal do for you? They answered the kynge: B the man that consumed vs, and ymagined to bryng vs to naught, him will we destroye, that naught of him continue in any of the coastes of Israell. Let seuen men of hys sonnes be deliuered vnto vs, and we wyll hange them vp vnto the Lord, in Gibeah of Saul, whom the Lord dyd chose. And the kyng sayd: I wyl geue them you. But the kyng hadde compassion on Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the son of Saul, because of the Lords othe, that was betwene them: euen betwene Dauyd and Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rizpa the daughter of Aia (whom she bare vnto Saule) euen Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the fyue sonnes of Michol (the daughter of Saul) whom she bare to Adriell the sonne of Berselai, the Meholathite. And he deliuered them vnto the hands of the Gibeonites, which hanged them in the hyll before the Lorde. And they fell all seuen together, and were slayne in the dayes of haruest: euen in the fyrst dayes: and in the beginning of Barly haruest. And Rizpa the daughter of Aia toke sackecloth and hanged it vp for them vppon the Rocke, euen from the beginnynge of haruest, vntyll rayne dropped vppon them out of heauen: and suffered neyther the brydes of the ayre to fall on C them by daye, nor beastes of the fielde by nyghte. And it was tolde Dauid what Rizpa the daughter of Aia, the concubine of Saul had done: and Dauid went, and toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathas hys sonne, from the men of Jabes in Gilead (whiche had stollen them from the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them, when the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa. And he brought thence the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathas his sonne, & they toke vp the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and Jonathas hys son buryed they in the countreye of Ben Jamin, in Zela: in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And whē they had perfourmed al that the kyng commaunded, God was then at one with the lande. It fortuned, that the Philistines had yet war agayne with Israell. And Dauid wēt down & his seruauntes with him, & fought agaynst the Philistines. And Dauid waxed faynty, and Jesbi of Nob one of the sons of the gyauntes (the yron of whose speare wayed thre hundred sicles, & he being gyrded with a newe D sword) thought to haue slayne Dauid. 2 Re. 22c But Abisai the sōne of Zaruia succoured him, and smote the Philistine and kylled hym. Then the seruauntes of Dauid sware vnto hym: saying: Thou shalt go no more oute with vs to battell, that thou quenche not the light of Israel. And yet after this, ther was a battell with the Philistines at Nob, and then Sibbechai the Husathit slew Saph, which was one of the sonnes of the Gyants. And 1 Pa. 21a ther was yet another battel in Nob with ỹ Philistines, wher Elhanam the son of Jaere Orgim, a Bethlehemite slue one Goliah a Gethite: The staffe of whose speare was as gret as a weuers cloth beame. And ther was yet another batel in Geth, wher was a man of a gret stature, & had on euery hand. vi. fingers, and on euery fote. vi toes. xxiiij. in all. And was borne also of the kynredde of the gyauntes in Geth. And when he defyed Israell, Jonathas the sōn of Simea the brother of Dauid slewe him. These four gyauntes were borne in Geth, and fell into the hande of Dauid, and into the handes of hys seruauntes.

A AND Dauid spake the wordes of thys songe vnto the Lord, what tyme the Lord had deliuered hym oute of the hande of all hys enemyes, and oute of the hande of Saul. And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, and my castell, and my deliuerer. God is my strengthe, in hym wyll I truste: he is my shyld, and the horne of my saluacion: my worshyp and my refuge: my sauiour, thou shalt Psa. 18 a saue me from wronge. • I wyll call on the Lorde whiche is prayse worthy, and so shall I be saued from mine enemyes. For the corrupcions of death closed me about: the floudes of Belial put me in feare. The sorowes of hell compassed me about: the snares of death ouertoke me. In my tribulacion wyll I call vppon the Lorde, and crye to my GOD. And he shall heare my voyce oute of hys temple, and my crye shal enter into his eares. The earthe trembled and quaked: the foundacions of heauen moued and shoke, when he was angrye. Smoke went vp in hys wrathe, and consuming fire out of his mouth: coles were kyndled thereof. And he bowed heauen, and came downe, and there was darkenes vnder hys fete. And he satte B vppon Cherub and dyd flye: he was sene carryed vpon the wynges of the winde. He made darkenes a tabernacle rounde aboute hym, with waters gathered together in thicke cloudes. Through the bryghtnes of hys presence were the fire coles kyndled. God thundred from heauen, and he that is moste hye, doeth put oute hys voyce. He shot arowes, and scattered them: he hurled lightnyng, and ouerthrewe them. The flowynges of the sea appeared, and the foundacions of the world were sene, by the reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and through the blastynge of the breath of hys nostrelles. He shall sende frome heauen, and fet me: he shall plucke me oute of manye waters. He shall deliuer me from my myghty aduersarye, and fro myne enemyes, for they are to strong for me. When they had ouertaken me, in the day of my calamytie, the Lorde stayed me vp. For he brought me out into roumth: he deliuered me, because he had a loue vnto me. • The Lorde
Ps. 18 C will reward me accordynge to my righteousnes: accordyng to the pureness of my handes will he recompence me. For I haue kepte the wayes of the Lorde, and done no wyckednes agaynste my God. For all hys lawes are in my syght, and his statutes wyl not I put away fro me. In his sighte also haue I bene vndefyled, and haue kepte me fro myne owne iniquitye. And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghteousnes, euen after my pureness in hys eye syghte. With the godly, thou shalte be godly, and with the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalte be vncorrupte. With the pure, thou shalt be pure, and with the frowarde, thou shalte be frowarde. And the poore people that are in aduersitye, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalt thou caste thyne eyes. Thou arte my lyghte O Lorde: the Lord shall lyght my darkenesse. For with thy helpe I wyl runne thorow an hoste of men, and in my God wyll I skyppng ouer a wall. God is vncorrupte in hys waye: the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defendour of al them that truste in him. For who is a god, saue the Lord? and D who is myghty, saue our God? and tourne not agayne vntill I haue consumed them. I wyll waste theym and smyte them, that they shal not bee able to aryse: yea, they shall fall vnder my feete. Thou hast girded me about wyth myght to battell, and them that arose agaynst me, haste thou subdued vnder me. And thou madest myne enemyes (and them that hated me) to tourne theyr backes to me, that I might destroye them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to saue them: ye, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not. I wyll beat them as small as the dust of the earth: I wyll stampe theym as the dyrte of the streate, and wyll spreade them abrode. Thou shalte delyuer me from the discentiō of my people: thou shalt kepe me to be an heade ouer nacions: the people which I knewe not, shall serue me. Straunge childzen dissemble wyth mee. At the hearinge of the eare they obeye mee. Straunge chyldzen wyll shrynke awaye, and they shall bee smytten wyth feare in theyr pryuy chāber. God is alyue, and blessed be my maker: magnified bee God, my most strong saluation. It is God that auēgeth me, and bringeth down the people vnder me. Hee delyuereth mee from myne enemyes, thou also shalte lyfte me vp on hye from theym that ryse agaynst me, thou shalt delyuer me from the wycked menne. And therfore I wyl prayse thee (O Lord) amonge the nations, and wyll synge vnto thy name, which sheweth great saluacion for hys kynge, and dealeth mercyfullye wyth hys anoynted: cuē wyth Dauid, and wyth hys seede for euermore.

The .xxiij. Chapter.

¶ These be the last sayinges of Dauid. Dauid the sonne of Jsaye sayde: And the manne (whyche was made the anoynted of the God of Jacob, and the noble Psalmist of Jsraell) sayde: the spirite of the Lorde spake by me, and hys woorde was in my tongue. The God of Jsraell spake of me, euen the most myghty of Jsraell, saide: he that beareth rule ouer men, oughte to rule iustelye in the feare of God. And as the morning light when the sonne is vp, a morynyng in which are no cloudes to lette the bryghtnes, and as the grasse of the earth is by the vertue of the rayne. Shall not my house bee so with God? For he hath made with me an euerlasting couenaunte, perfect and sure in all poyntes: and thys is truelye all my health and all my desyre that it growe, but not as grasse. But the vngodlye manne of Beliall shall be as a thorne cleane pluckt vp, which can not be taken with handes: But the man that shall touch theym, must haue yron, or a long helue. * Or els must they be burnte wyth fyre in the same place. These be the names of the myghtye menne, whom Dauyd had: one that sat in the feate of wysedome, beyng chefest amonge thre, pleasaunte was he and stronge: hee slewe eyght hundred at one tyme. After him was Eliazar the sonne of Dodi, the sonne of Ahohi, one of the thre worthyes wyth Dauid, whyche defyed the Philistines that were there gathered together to battell: whan the men of Jsraell were gone vp. Hee arose, and layed on the Philistines vntill hys hande was werye, and clane vnto the sweard. And the Lorde gaue great victorye the same daye. And the people which had fled, retourned, and went after hym to run to the spoile. After him was Shamma the sonne of Agge the Hararyte: and the Philistines gathered together beside a town. (Where was a parcell of lande ful of ryce) and the people fledde from the Philistins. But he stode in the middes of the grounde, and defended it, and slewe the Philistynes. And the Lorde gaue greate victorye. * These thre (which were of the thirty chefe captaines) went downe to Dauid in the harueste tyme vnto the caue Adullam, and the hooste of the Philistynes abode in the valley of Gyaunte. And Dauid was then in an holde. And the souldiours of the Phylystynes were in Bethlehem.

And Dauid longed and sayd: Oh that I had of the water that is in the well by the gate of Bethlehē, for to drinke. And the three myghty brake thorowe the hoolte of the Philistines, and fet water out of the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid. Neuertheles he would not drynke therof, but offered it vnto the Lorde, and sayde: the Lord forbyd that I shoulde do so. Is not this the blood of the men that wente in ieopardy of their lyues? and therefore he would not drinke it. And these thynges dyd these three myghty men.

2.Re.22g Abisai the brother of Joab, the sonne of Saruiah, was cheefe amonge the three, and he lyft vp his speare agaynst three hundred, and slue them, and had the name amonge the three. For he was nobler man then the three, and was theyr captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto (the first three. And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada (the sonne of a myghty man (valyaunte in actes, of Kabzeel, slue two strong lyons, euen lyons of Moab. He wente downe also, and slue a lyon in a pytte, in tyme of snowe. And he slue an Egyptian a goodly bygge man, whiche had a speare in his hande. But he

D went downe to him with a staffe, and plucked the speare out of the Egyptians hande, and slue hym with hys owne speare. These thinges did Banaiahu the sōne of Jehoiada, and had the name among the three worthyes. He was honorable among thirty, but he attayned not to the (fyrste) three. And Dauid made him of his councel. Asahell the brother of Joab also was one of the thirty. Then Elhanan the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem: Samma the Haronite: Elica the Harodite: Helez the Paltite: Ira the sonne of Akes the Thekoite: Abiezer of Anathoth: Mebonnai the Husothite: Zelmon an Ahohite: Maharia the Netophatite: Heleb the sonne of Baanah an Netophatite: Ithai the sonne of Ribai oute of an hyll of the chyldren of Ben Jamin: Banaiahu the Phiratonite: Hedai of the ryuer of Gaas:

Abialbon the Arbathite, Asmaueth a Barhumite: Elthaba a Saalbonite and the sonnes of Jasen, Jonathas, Samma the Hararite, Ahiam the son of Sarar an Hararite: Eliphelet the sonne of Ahasbai the sonne of a Maachathite: Eliam the sonne of Ahithophel the Gilonite: Hezrai the Carmelite: Paarai the Arbite: Igall the sonne of Nathan of Zoba: Bani the Gadite: Zelec an Amonite: Naharai a Berothite, which was ỹ harnelbearer of Joab the sonne of Zarui. Ira the Jethrite: Gareb the Jethrite: Uria the Hethite, thirtye and seuen in all.

The. xxiiij. Chapter.

AND agayne, the Lorde was wroth agaynste Israell, and he moued Dauyd agaynste them, in that he sayd: ✱ go and number Ex. Israel and Juda. For the kyng sayd to Joab the captayne of hys hoste: go thou abrode nowe, thorowoute al the trybes of Israell, euen from Dan to Beer Seba, & number ye the people, that I maye knowe the number of them. And Joab saide vnto the kyng: I beseche the Lord thy God, to make thy people as many mo as they be: ye and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lord the king may see them. And what is the cause that my Lorde the kynge hath a luste to thys thynge? Notwithstandyng the kynges worde preuayled agaynst Joab, and agaynste the captaynes of the hoste. And Joab and the captaynes of the hoste wente out from the presence of the kynge, to nnmber the people of Israell. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pytched in Aroer, on the ryght syde of the citye, that lyeth in the middes of the valey of Gad, ouer agaynste Jazer. And then they came to Gilead, and to the nether land, where was a newe habitation, and from thence they came to Dan Jaan aboute to Sidon, and came to

B the stronge holde of Tyre, and to all the cities of the Heuites, and of the Cananites, and then went out to the South of Juda, euen to Beer Seba.

Iud.

And so, when they had bene abrode throughout all the lande, they returned to Jerusalem agayne, after the ende of nyne monethes and twentye dayes. And Joab delyuered vp the number and summe of the people vnto the kynge. And there were in Israell eyght hundred thousand men of myght that drewe swerdes. And the men of Juda were fiue hũdred thousande men. And Dauids herte smote him, after that he had numbred the people. And Dauid sayde vnto the Lorde: I haue synned exceadyngly, in that I haue done. And nowe Lorde take away the trespace of thy seruant for I haue done verye folyshely. And when Dauid was vp in a mornyng, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete Gad Dauyds sear, sayinge: Go and saye vnto Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde: I offer thee three thynges, Chose thee which of them I shall do C vnto thee. So Gad came to Dauid, and shewed hym, and sayd vnto hym: wylte thou haue seuen yeres hunger to come in thy land, or wylt thou flee three monethes before thine enemies, they folowynge thee, or that there be three dayes pestilence in thy lande? Nowe therefore aduyse thee, and see, what answere I shall geue to hym that sente me. And Dauid sayde vnto Exod. 20 c Gad: I am in extreme trouble. • we wyll fall nowe into the hande of the Lord, for muche is hys mercy, and let me not fall into the hand of man. And so the Lorde sente a pestilence in Israel, from the mornyng vnto the time appoynted. And ther dyed of the people from Dan to Beersebe seuentye thousande men. And when the Aungell stretched oute hys hande vppon Jerusalem to destroye it, the Lorde had compassion to do that cuyll, and sayde to the Aungell that destroyed the people: It is nowe sufficient: hold thine hande. And the Aungell of the Lorde was by the threshyng place of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauyd spake vnto the Lorde (when he sawe the aungel that smote the people) and sayde: lo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wickedlye. But these sheepe, what haue they done? let thyne hande (I pray thee) be agaynst me, and agaynste my fathers house. And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: Go vp and reare an auiter vnto the Lorde in the threshynge flooze of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid (accordyng to the saying of Gad) went vp, as the Lord D commaunded. And Arefna loked, and sawe the kynge and his seruauntes commynge towarde hym. And Arefna went out, and bowed hymselfe before the kynge flat on hys face vppon the ground, and Arefna sayd: wherefore is my Lorde the kynge come to hys seruaunt? Dauid answered: To bye the threshynge flooze of thee, and to make an auiter vnto the Lord, that the plague maye cease from the people. And Arefna sayde vnto Dauid: Let my Lord the kynge take and offer what semeth him good in hys eyes: Beholde, here be oxen for burnte sacrifyce, and sleades, and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. All these thynges dyd Arefna geue vnto the kynge, and sayde moreouer vnto the kynge: The Lorde thy God accepte thee. And the kynge sayde vnto Arefna: Not so, but I wyll bye it of thee at a pryce, and wyll not offer sacrifyce vnto the Lorde my God of that which doeth coste me nothynge. And so Dauid bought the threshing flooze, and the Oxen for fyftye Sycles of syluer. And Dauid buylt there an auiter vnto the Lorde, and offered burnt sacrifyces and peace offerynges. And so the Lorde was intreated for the land. And the plage ceased from Jsrael.

¶ The end of the second boke of Samuel: otherwyse called the seconde booke of the kynges.

The third boke of the kynges, after the rekenyng of the Latinistes: which third boke and the fourth also, is but one with the Hebrues.

The first Chapter.

AND kynge Dauyd was olde and stricken in yeres: so that when they couered hym with clothes, he caught no heate: wherefore hys seruauntes sayde vnto hym: Let there be sought for my lorde the kynge, a yong mayden, to stand before the kinge, and to cherysshe him. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my lorde the kynge may get heate. And so they soughte for a fayre damosell throughoute all the coastes of Israel, and founde one Abisag a Sunamite, and broughte her to the kynge. And the damosell was exceading fayre, and cherished the kyng, and ministred to hym. But the kyng knew her not. And Adonia the sonne of Hagith exalted hym selfe, sayinge: I wyll be kyng. And he gat him charettes and horsemen, and fyfty men to runne before hym. And hys father wolde not displease hym at any tyme, nor sayde so muche to hym as: why doest thou so? And he was a goodlye man, and hys mother bare hym nexte after Absalom. And he toke councell at Joab the sonne of Zaruia, and at Abiathar the prieste. And they helped Adonia. But Sadocke the priest, Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, Nathan the prophete, Semei and Rei, and all the men of myght which were with Dauid, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia sacrificed shepe and oxē, and fat cattell, by the stone of Zoheleth, whiche is faste by the well of Rogel, and called all his brethren the kinges sonnes, & the men of Juda the kinges seruauntes. But Nathan the prophet and Banaiahu, and the other myghty men, & Salomon his brother he called not. Wherfore, Nathā spake vnto Bethsabe, the mother of Salomon, saying: Hast thou not hard how that Adonia the sonne of Hagith doth reygne, and Dauid our lorde knoweth it not? Nowe therefore come, and I wyll geue thee councell, howe to sane thyne owne lyfe, and the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Go and get thee in vnto kyng Dauid, and say vnto hym: Dyddest not thou (my lord O kyng) sweare vnto thy handmayde, saying: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, and he shall syt vpon my seate, why is then Adonia kyng? Beholde, while thou yet talkest there with the kyng, I wyll come in after thee, and confyrme thy wordes. And Bethsabe went in vnto the kynge into the chamber. And the king was very old, and Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto the kynge. And Bethsabe stouped, and made obeysaunce vnto the kynge. And the kynge sayde: what is the matter? She answered hym: my lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmaid: Salomō thy sonne shal raygne after me, and he shall syt vpon my seate. And beholde, nowe is Adonia kynge, and my lorde the king woteth not of it. And he hath offered oxen, fat catel, and many shepe, and hath called all the sonnes of the kynge, and Abiathar the prieste, and Joab the captayne of the hoste. But Salomon thy seruaunte hath he not bydden. And nowe my lord (O kyng) the eies of al Israel wayt on the, that thou shuldest tel them, who ought to syt on the seat of my lord the kyng after him. For elles when my lorde the kyng shall slepe with hys fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shalbe synners. And whyle she yet talked with the kyng, Nathā the prophet came also. And they told the kyng saying: behold, here commeth Nathan the prophet. And when he was come into the kynge, he made obeysaunce before the kynge vpon hys face on the grounde, and Nathan said: My lord (O king) hast thou said: Adonia shal raygne after me, and he shal syt vpon my seate?

for he is gone downe this day, and hath sloine many oxen, and fat sheepe, and hath called all the kinges sonnes and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest. And behold, they eate and drinke before hym, and say: God saue kinge Adonia. But me thy seruant, and Sadock the priest, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, & thy seruant Salomon hath he not called. Is this thyng doone of my lorde the king, and hast not shewed it vnto thy seruaunt, who should syt on the seate of my lord the kyng after him? Then kyng Dauid answered and said: Call me Bethsabe. And she came into the Kynges presence, and stoode before him. And the king sware, saying: As truely as the Lorde liueth (that hath ydde my soule out of all aduersitie) euen as I sware vnto the by the lord God of Israell, sayinge: Salomon thy sonne shall reygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate for me, so will I doo this day. Then Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earthe, and did reuerence vnto the king, and said: I pray God that my Lord kyng Dauid may lyue euer. And kyng Dauid sayde: Call me Sadocke the priestе, and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiahu, the sonne of Jehoiada. And they came before the king. The kyng also said vnto them: Take with you the seruantes of your lorde, and sette Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule, and cary him down to Gihō. And let Sadoch the priest, and Nathan the prophete anoynt hym there, kynge ouer Israell. And blowe ye with trumpetts, and saye: God saue kynge Salomon. And then come vp after hym that he may come and sytte vpon my seate. For he shalbe kyng in my stede. And I will command hym to be captain ouer Israell and Juda. And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kyng, and said: Amē. I pray God that the Lord God of my lorde the kyng say so to. And as God hath ben wyth my lorde the kyng, euen so be he wyth Salomon also, and make his seate greatter, than the seat of my Lord kyng Dauids hath bene. And so Sadoch the priestе, and Nathan the prophete, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Crethits, and Phiethites wente downe, & set Salomon vpon king Dauids mule, and brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the priestе toke an horne of oyle out of the tabernacle, & anoynted Salomō. And al they of the people blewe trompettes, and said: God saue kyng Salomon. And al the people came vp after him, piping with pipes & reioysing gretly, so that the erth rang with the sound of them. And Adonia and al the gestes that he had called vnto him hard it, euen as they had made an ende of eatyng. And when Joab harde the sound of the trompet, he sayd: Howe happeneth it that ther is such a noyse in the citye? And as he yet spake: behold, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the priest came. And Adonia said vnto him: Come in, for thou art a valyant man, and bryngest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered & said to Adonia: Verily oure lorde king Dauid hath made Salomon kyng. And the king hath sent with him Sadock the priest, & Nathan the prophet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada and the Crethits, and the Phelethites, & thei haue set him vpon the kinges Mule. And Sadock the priest, and Nathan the prophet, haue anointed him kyng in Gihon. And they came vp agayn, & reioyced, that the citie did sound again. And that is the noyse ỳ ye haue herd. And Salomon sytteth on the seate of the kyngdome. And moreouer the kinges seruantes came to bielle our lorde kyng Dauid, saying: Thy God make the name of Salomon more honorable then thy name, & make his seat greter than thy seate. And the kynge bowed hymselfe vpon the bed. And thus said the kyng: Blessed be the lord god of Israel: which hath made one to sit on my seate this daye, myne eie seyng it. And all the gestes that were with Adonia were afrayd, and rose vp, and went euery man his way. And Adonia fearyng the presence of Salomon arose, and wente (into the tabernacle of the Lorde) and caught holde of the hornes of the altar. And one told Salomon, saying: Behold, Adonia doth

And Salomon sayd, yf he wyll be a child of vertue, there shal not an here of hym fall to the earthe. But and yf wickednes be founde in him, he shall dye. And so kyng Salomon sent, and they brought him from the altar. And he came, and dyd obeysance vnto king Salomon. And Salomon sayde vnto hym, Get thee to thyne house.

to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon And she sayd: Comest thou peaceably? And he sayd peaceably. He sayd, Moreouer, I haue somewhat to saye vnto thee. She said: Say on. And he said: Thou knowest that the kyngdom was myne, and that all Israell set their faces on me, that I shoulde raigne, howbeit, the kyngdom is turned away, and geuen to my brother: for it is appointed him of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a petition of thee, deny me not. And she sayd vnto him. Saye on. And he sayed: Speake, I pray the, vnto Salomon the kynge, for he wyll not saye thee nay, that he geue me Abisag, the Sunamyte to wyfe. And Bethsabe sayde: well, I D wyll speake for thee vnto the kynge. Bethsabe therfore went vnto kynge Salomon, to speake vnto hym for Adonia. And the kynge rose vppe to mete her, and bowed hym selfe vnto her, and sate hym downe on his seate.

And

And there was a seate set for the kinges mother, and she sat on hys righte syde. Then she sayde: I desyre a little petition of thee, I praye thee saye me not naye. And the king said vnto her: Aske on my mother, for I wil not say the nay. She sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And Kynge Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag the Sunamyte for Adonia? aske for hym the kyngedome also, for he is myne elder brother, & hath for him Abiathar the priest, and Joab the sonne of Saruia. Then kyng Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: God doe so, and so to me: yf Adonia haue not spoken thys word agaynst his owne lyfe. Nowe therefore, as truely as the Lord liueth whiche hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and made me an house, as he promised, Adonia shall dye this daye. And kynge Salomon sente by the hande of Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote him that he dyed. And vnto Abiathar the preest sayde the kyng: get the to Anatoth vnto thyne owne fieldes: for thou art worthy of death: but I wyll not at this time kill thee, because thou bareste the arke of the Lord God before Dauid my father, and because thou haste suffred wyth my father in all his afflictions. And so Salamon put awaye Abiathar from beynge Priest vnto the Lorde: that he myght fulfyl the wordes of the Lord: whiche hee spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then tidings came also to Joab: for Joab had tourned after Adonia, though he tourned not after Absalom. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lord, and caught hold on the hornes of the altar. And it was tolde kyng Salomon, how that Joab fledde vnto the Tabernacle of the Lorde and stode by the altare. Then Salomon sente Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, sayinge: go and fal vpon hym. And Banaiahu came to the Tabernacle of the Lorde, and saide vnto hym: Thus sayeth the king: come out. And he sayd, nay, but I wyl dye euen here. And Banaiahu brought the kyng worde agayne, saying: thus saide Joab, and thus he answered me. And the kynge sayde. Doe euen as he hath sayd: smyte him, and burye hym, that thou mayeste take awaye the bloudde which Joab shed causelesse, from me, and from the house of my father. And the Lorde shal bryng hys bloud vpon hys owne head, for he smote two men ryghteowser and better then hee, and slue them with the sweard, my father Dauyd not knowyng thereof, euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captaine of the hoste of Israel, and Amasa the son of Jether captayne of the hoste of Juda. Their bloud shal therfore returne vppon the heade of Joab, and on the heade of his seede for euer. But vpon Dauid, and vpon his seede, and vpon his house, and vpon hys seat shal there be peace for euer of the Lord. So Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada wēt vp and smote him, and slue him, and buried hym in hys owne house in the wildernes. And the kynge putte Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada in his roome ouer the hoste, and putte Sadocke the Priest in the roome of Abiathar. And the kynge sent and called Semei, and sayd vnto him: build the an house in Jerusalem, and dwel there: and see that thou go not foorthe thence any whether. For be thou sure that the daye that thou goest oute, and passest ouer the riuer of Cedron, thou shalte dye that daye, and thy bloudde shalbe vppon thyne owne head. And Semei sayde vnto the kyng. This is a good thynge: as my Lord the King hath sayde: so wyll hys seruaunte do. And Semei dwelte in Jerusalem manye a daye. And it chaunced after thre yeares, that two of the seruauntes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis, son of Maacha kinge of Geth. And they told Semei, saying: behold thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp, and sadled hys Asse, and gat him to Geth to Achis, to seke his seruauntes, and returned, and brought hys seruauntes agayne from Geth.

And

¶ And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semei had gone from Ierusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kynge sente and called Semei, and saide vnto him: Dyd not I charge thee by the Lord wyth an oth, and testifyed vnto the, saying: be sure, that whensoeuer thou goest out, and walkest abroade anye whether, thou shalt dye the death? And thou saydest vnto mee, it is good tydynges that I haue hearde. Why then hast thou not kept the oth of the Lord, and the commaundemente that I charged thee withal? The kyng sayd moreouer to

The Lorde also shall brynge thy wickednes vpō thine owne head: and kinge Salomon shalbee blessed, and the seate of Dauid stablished before the Lorde for euer. So the kynge commaunded Banaiahu the sonne of Iehoiada: which went out, and smot him that he died. And the kyngdome was stablished in the hand of Salomon.

And a thousand burntofferings did Salomon offer vpon that aultare: and in Gibeon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God said: aske what thou wilte, that I maye geue it thee. And Salomon sayd, thou hast shewed vnto thy seruant Dauid my father great mercy, when he walked before the in trueth & ryghteousnes, and in plainnes of heart with thee. And thou hast kept for him thys greate mercye, that thou hast geuen him a sonne, to sit on hys seate: as it is comme to passe thys 2 Pa. 11 B day. • And now, O Lord my God, it is thou that hast made thy seruaunte kynge in steade of Dauid my father. And this wiues childe died in the nighte, for she smothered it. And she rose at midnight, and toke my sonne from my side, while thine handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosome, and put her deade childe in my bosome. And when I rose vp to geue my childe sucke, behold, it was deade. But whan I had loked vppon it in the morning, beholde, it was not my sonne, which I did beare. The other woman said: it is not so: but my sonne liueth, and thy sonne is dead. And she said again: No, but thy sonne is dead, and my sonne is a liue. And thus they pleated before the kinge. Then saide the king: the one saithe, this that is a liue is my sone, and the dead is thine. And the other sayeth, naye: but thy sonne is the dead, and the liuing child is mine. And the king said: bringe me a sweard. And they broughte oute a sweard before the king. And the king said: Deuide the liuing child in two, and geue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other. Thē spake the woman, whose the liuing child was, vnto the king, for her bowels yerned vpon her sonne, and saide: I beseeche thee my Lorde, geue her the liuynge childe, and in no wise slay it. But the other saide: let it be neyther mine nor thine, but deuide it. Then the kinge answered and saide, geue her the liuing childe, and slaye it not, for she is the mother therof. And all they of Israel hard of the iudgement, which the king had iudged, and feared the king: for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him to do iustice.

AND Hiram king of Tire sent sent to Hiram, saying: Thou knowest • howe that Dauid my father coulde not buyld an house vnto the name of the Lorde hys God, for the warres which were about him on euery side, vntyll the Lorde put them vnder the my God hath geuen me rest on euery

• I am determined to buyld an house vnto the name of the Lord my God, as the Lorde spake vnto Dauid my father, saying: Thy sonne whom I wyll set vpon thy seat for the, he shall buyld an house vnto my name. Now therefore, commaunde thou that they hewe me Cedar trees oute of Liba-thyne, and vnto thee wyll I geue the hyre for thy seruauntes, accordyng to all suche thynges as thou shalte ap-not amonge vs, that canne skyll to

When Hiram hearde the wordes of Salomon, he reioyced greately, and sayde: Blessed be the Lorde this daye, whyche hath geuen vnto Dauid a wyse sonne, ouer thys myghtye peo-saying: I haue considred the thynges which thou sentest to me for, and wyl accomplyth all thy desyre, concerning seruauntes shal bryng them from Li-

And the Lorde gaue Salomon wysedome as he promised hym. And there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon and they two were confederate together. And kynge Salomon reysed a 3.Re.5.a And Salomon had three score and ten thousand that bare burdens, and foure score thousande masons in the mountains: besides the Lordes, whom Salomon appointed to ouersee the worke euen three thousand and three hundred, which ruled the people (and theym) that wroughte in the worke. And the kyng cōmanded them to bryng greate stones, fre stones, and hewed stones for the foundation of the house. And Salomons masons, and the masons of Hiram dyd hewe theim, with the workmen of the corners. And so they prepared bothe timbre and stones, for the buyldyng of the house.

And in the house he made windowes broade without, and narowe within. And in the wall of the house, he made chambers roūd about (euē in the walles of the hous) round about the temple and the quier, and made sydes rounde aboute. The nethermoost chaumber was fiue cubites broade, and the myddle was sixe cubites broade, and the third was seuen cubites broade. For without in the walles of the house, he layde beames rounde aboute, that the beames of the chambers shoulde not be fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylte of stone, made perfect alredy, before it was brought thither, soo that there was neyther hammer nor axe, eyther any toole of

The doore of the middle chamber was in the ryght syde of the house: and men went vp with wyndyng staires into the myddle chambre and out of the myddle, into the third. And so he buylte the house, and fynished it, and rooffte it with beames of Cedar tymber. And thenne he buylt chambres to all the temple of fiue cubites height, and they were ioyned to the house, wyth beames of Cedar.
And the woorde of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: Concernyng the house whyche thou art in buyldyng, if thou wylt walke in myne ordinances, and execute my lawes: and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyll I make good vnto thee, my promyse, • whiche I pro-

And the quier that was within the Temple, he prepared, to set there the Ark of the appointment of the Lorde. And the quiere before, was twenty cubites long, and twentie cubites in bredth, & twentie cubits in heigth. And he sieled it with pure golde, and boorded the aultare with Cedar. And Salomon also sieled the the house within with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne along the quiere, whiche he had couered with gold. And the whole house he ouerlayd with gold, vntyll he had ended it. And the aultar that was in the quier, he ouerlayde with gold also. And within ỹ quier he made two

And he put the Cherubs within the inner house. And

And the other two wynges of theym touched one an other in the middes of the house. And he ouerlayd the Cherubs with gold. And in all the walles of the house round about, he made figures of carued and sieled woorke: As namely pictures of Cherubs and Paulme trees, and grauen flowres, both within in the quiere, & without in the Temple. And the flooze of the house, he couered with golde, bothe within in the quier, and also without in the temple. And in the entryng of the quiere, he made two doores of olyue tree: And bothe the vpper, & two side postes, were fiue square. The two doores also were of olyue tree, and he graued them with graupnge of Cherubs and paulme trees: and grauen floures, and couered them with gold, and laid thynne plates of golde vpon the Cherubs and palme trees. And in like maner did he in the doore of ỹ temple, sauynge that the postes were of olyue tree foure square. The two doores were of fyrre tree, and eyther doore with two foldyng leaues, he graued theron Cherubs, palme trees and flowres, and couered them with golde, which was laide thynne vpon the carued woorke. And he buylt the inner court with three rowes of hewed stoone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde. In the fourth yeare was the foundacion of the house of the Lorde layde: euen in the moneth Zif: And in the leuenthe yeare, in the moneth Bull (whych is the eyght moneth) was the house full fynyshed, throwe out all the partes therof, accordyng to all the fashyon of it. Then he made a porche to syt & iudge in, sieled with Cedar thorow out all the pauementes. And a stringe of thirty cubites dyd compase it aboute, and vnder the brym of it, there were knoppes rounde aboute, ten in one cubite: and they compassed the lauatorye rounde aboute. And the knoppes were caste with it, in two rowes, when it was cast. And it stode on twelue oxen: of whiche, three loked towarde the north, three towarde the weste, three toward the South, and three toward the Easte, and the lauatorye stode vpon them, and all their hinder partes were inward. It was an hande breadth thicke, and the brim wrought like the brym of a cup with flowres of lyyes. And it contayned two thousande Bates. And he made tenne sokettes of brasse, foure cubites longe, and foure cubites brode a piece, & three cubites hye. And the worke of the sokets was on this maner: They had sides, and the sides were betwene E the ledges. And on the sydes that wer betwene the ledges, were lions, oxen and

and Cherubs. And likewise vpon the ledges that were aboue: and beneth the lyons and oxen, were certaine additions made of thin worke. And vnder euerye sockette were foure brasen wheles, and bordres of brasse. And in the foure corners therof, were vndersetters (vnder the Lauatory) cast ech ouer against his felow. And the stalk of the Lauatorye was in the myddle of it (where it is sene on the outsyde) one cubit hye, and a cubite and an half round, and in the heigth of it wer graue worckes, whose sides were made foure square, and not round. And vnder the sydes were foure wheles, and ẏ axel trees ioyned fast to the bottom. And the heigth of euery wheele was a cubite and an halfe. And the workmanshyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, spokes and shaftes were all moulten. And ther were foure vndersetters in the four corners of one sockette: and the vndersetters wer of the very bottom it self. And in the heyght of the bottom was there a rounde compasse of halfe a cubite hye: and in the heyght of the bottome, ther proceded both ledges and sydes out of the same. For in the borders of the ledges and on the sydes hee had grauen pictures of Cherubins, lions and palme trees, one by another round aboute. Thus made he the ten sockets after thys maner: And they had al one fashion of casting, one measure & one syse. Then made he ten lauers of bras one lauer containing fourtie Bates: and one lauer was foure cubites, and vpon euer i one of the tenne sockettes, he put one lauer. And he putte fyue of F those sokettes on the ryght side of the house, and other fyue on the left. And he set the lauatorye on the ryght syde of the house. Eastward and towarde the South. And Hiram made pottes, & shouels and basens, and so finished all the woorke that hee made kinge Salomon for the house of the Lorde: that is to saye, two pillers and two round head peces that were to be sette on the tops of the two pillers. Two net workes to couer the two rounde hedpeces, set vpon ẏ top of ẏ pillers, foure hundred pomegranates for the two net workes, euen two rowes of pomgranates in one net worke, to couer the twoe headpeces that were to bee sette on the toppes of the pyllers: And the ten sockettes, and ten lauers on the sockettes. The lauatorye, and twelue oxen vnder it, and pottes, shouelles and basens. And all these vesselles whiche Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the house of the Lorde, were of bryght brasse. In the plaine 6 of Jordan did the kinge cast theym, euen in the thicke claye betwene Socoth and Zarthā. And Salomon left all the vessels vnwayed, because they were soe exceadinge manye, neyther founde they oute the weyghte of the brasse. And so Salomon made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Lorde: the golden auitare, and the golden table, whereon the shewbreade was: And fiue candlestickes, for the ryghte syde, and fyue for the the left before the queer, of pure gold wyth floweres, lampes, and snoffers of golde: and bolles, flat pieces, basins spones and masoures of pure golde: and hinges made he of golde both for the dores of the queer (the place most holy) and for the doores of the temple also. And so was ended al the worke that kynge Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. And • Salomon brought in the thynges whiche Dauid hys father had dedicated: euen the syluer, golde and vesselles, and layed them vp amonge the treasures of the g house of the Lord.

Then • Salomon gathered toge ther the elders of Israell, al the heddes of the trybes, (and the that were captaynes amonge the fathers of the children of Israell) vnto him in Jerusalem, that they myght bryng vppe the arke of the appointement of the Lorde • out of the citie of Dauid, whiche is Sion. And all the men of Israell assembled vnto kinge Salomon to the feaste that fallyth in the the moneth of Ethanim, which is the seuenth moneth. And all the elders of Israell were come, and the Priestes toke vp the Arke. They bare ỹ Arke of the Lord, into ỹ tabernacle of witnesse, and all the holy vessels that wer in the tabernacle: those did the priests and the Leuites beare. And king Salomon and all the cõgregation of Israell that were assembled vnto hym, (and went with him before the arke) did offer sheepe and Oxen, that could not be told nor noumbred for multitude. And so the Priestes brought the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lord vnto his place: euen into the quier of the Temple and the place most holy, vnder the winges of the Cherubs.

For the Cherubs stretched out theyr winges ouer the place of the Arke, and couered bothe it, and also ỹ staues therof a hie vppon it. And they drewe out the staues, that the endes of them might appeare out of the holye place within the queer, but they were not seene without. And there they haue

And it fortuned, that when the priestes were come out of the holy place, the cloude filled the house of the lord, that the Priestes could not stand and minister, because of the cloude: for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lorde. Then spake Salomon:

And the Lorde saide vnto Dauid my father: Wheras it was in thine hearte to build an house vnto my name, thou diddest well, that thou waste so minded. Neuertheless ỹ shalt not builde the house, but thy sonne that shal come oute of thy loynes, he shall builde the house vnto my name. And the Lorde C

And I am risen vp in the roum of Dauid my father, and sit on the seat of Israell, as the Lord promised, and haue builte an house for the name of ỹ Lorde God of Israell. And the king and all Israel with him, offered offerings before the Lord. • And Salomon offered a sacrifice of peaceoffringes vnto the Lord, and hee offered vnto the Lorde .xxii. thousande Oxen, and an hundred and twentye thousand sheepe: And so the kinge and all the children of Israell dedicated the house of the Lorde. The same day did the king halow the middle of the courte, that was before the house of the Lorde: for there he offered burntofferinges, meatofferynges, and the fat of the peace offringes: because the brasen altare that was before the Lord, was to litle to receiue the burnt offringes, meatofferinges, and the fat of the peaceoffringes. And Salomon held that same time an hie feaste, and all Israell with him, a verye greate congregation, euen from the entringe in of Hemath vnto the riuer of Egipt, before the Lord our God, • seuen daies, and seuen dais, euen .xiiii. dais. And this is the sum whiche kynge Salomon raysed for a tribute, when he builded the house of the Lorde, and hys owne house, and Mello, & the wall of Jerusalem, and Hazoer, & Megeddo, and Gazar. For Pharao kyng of Egypt went vp, and toke Gazer, and burnt it with fire, & slue the Cananites that dwelt in the citie, and gaue it for a present vnto his daughter. Salomons wife. And Pharaos daughter came vp out of the cyty of Dauid vnto the house, which Salomon had buylt for her. And then dyd he also buylde Mello. And thryse a yeare dyd Salomon offer burnt offerynges and peaceofferynges vpon the aultare, which he buylte vnto the Lorde. And he burnt incense vpon the altare that was before the Lorde, and so hee finyshed the house. And Kynge Salomon made a nauie of shippes in Ezion Gaber, which is beside Eloth, on the brinke of the red sea in the land of Edom. And Hiram sente by shyppe also of hys seruauntes, that wer shipmenne, and had knowledge of the sea, with the seruauntes of Salomon.

And they came to Ophir and fet from thence one and twentie score hundred weyghte of golde, and broughte it to kynge Salomon.

1 Mat.12.b Luc.11.a AND the Quene of Saba hearing the fame of Salomō (concerninge the name of the Lorde) came to proue hym with hard questions. And shee came to Ierusalem with a verye great traine: with Camelles that bare sweete odoures, and golde exceadinge much, and precyouse stones. And shee came to Salomon, and communed with him of all that was in her heart. And Salomon declared vnto her all her questions, so that there was not one thynge hydde from the kyng, whyche he expounded not vnto her. And the Quene of Saba consydered all Salomons wysedome, and the house that he had builded, and the meat of hys table, and the syttynge of hys seruauntes, the order of hys mynysters, and their apparell, hys drynke, and hys burnt sacrifyces that he offred in the house of the Lord and she was astonied. And shee sayde vnto the kyng: It was a true worde g that I heard in mine owen land of thy sayings, and of thy wysdome. Howbeit I beleued it not tyll I came, and sawe it with mine eyes. And behold, the one halfe was not told me: for thy wysedome and prosperitie exceadeth the fame which I heard of the. Happye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruāts, which stand euer before thee, and heare thy wysedome. Blessed be the Lorde thy God, whiche loued thee, to sette thee on the seate of Israell, because the Lorde loued Israell for euer, and made thee kynge to do equitie and ryghtwysenesse. And shee gaue the kynge syxe score hundreth weyghte of golde, and of sweete odoures exceadynge muche, and precyouse stones. There camme no more suche aboundance of sweete odours, as the Quene of Saba gaue vnto kyng Salomon. The naupe also of the 3 Re.9.c. shyppes of Hyram, that carted golde from Ophir, brought lykewise great plentye of Almuge tree and precyous stones. And the kynge made of the Almuge trees, pyllers for the house of the LORDE, and for the kinges palace, and made harpes and psalteryes for syngers. There came no more suche Almuge trees, nor were anye more seene vnto thys day. And kynge Salomon gaue vnto the Quene of Saba, accordynge to all her desyre whatsoeuer she asked: besydes that he gaue her of a free wil with hys owen hande. And so she returned vnto her owne countrey: both shee and her seruauntes. The weyghte of golde that ¶

And the seate hadde syxe steppes. And the toppe of the seate was rounde behynde, and there were pomelles on eyther syde on the place of the seate, and two Lyons stoode besyde the pomelles. And there stoode twelue Lyons on the steppes syxe on a syde.
There was none lyke (worke) seene in anye kyngedome. And all Kynge deu.17.d Salomons drynkynge vessellles wer of golde, and lykewyse all the vesselles of the house of the woodde of Lybanon,

For the kynges nauye of shyppes went on the sea vnto Tharsis with the nauie of Hirams shyppes: euen once in thre yere went the nauy to Tharsis, & brought golde and syluer, Elephantes teethe, apes, and Peocockes. And brought him euery man his presente, vessels of syluer, and vesselles of gold, rayment, harnesse, and swete odours, and horses, and Mules, yere by yeare. A charette came by oute of Egypte for .vi. hundred sicles of syluer: that is, one horse for an hundred and fiftye. Howbeit, I will not take away all the kyngdome: but will geue one tribe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruant, and because of Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen. And the Lorde steered vp an aduersarie vnto Salomon: euen one Hadad an Edomite, of the kynges seede, whyche was in Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, & Joab the captayne of the hoste was gonne vppe to burye them that were slayn: hee smote all the men chyldren in Edome. For syxe Monethes did Joab remayne there, and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren of Edom. And this Hadad fled, and certayne other Edomites of his fathers seruaunts with him, to come into Egipt: Hadad being yet a little chylde.

And they arose oute of Madian, and D came to Paran, and tooke men with them oute of Paran, and came to Egipt, vnto Pharao kinge of Egypte, which gaue him an house, and apoynted him vitailes, and gaue hym lande. And Hadad gat greate fauoure in the sight of Pharao, so that hee gaue hym to wife the sister of his owne wife, euen the syster of Thahpenes, the quene. And the syster of Thahpenes bare him Genubath his sonne, whom Thahpenes nourished in Pharaos house. And Genubath was at Pharaos housholde amonge the sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad harde in Egipt, that Dauid was laid to sleepe with his fathers, and that Joab the captaine of the hooste was deade also, he said to Pharao: let me depart, that I may go to mine owne countrye.
Pharao saide vnto him: what haste thou lacked here with me, that thou wouldest thus go to thine owne cõtrey? He answered: nothing: howe be it, let me go. And God stirred him vp another aduersarye, one Rezon, the sonne of Eliada, whiche fledde from his Lord Hodazerer king of Zoba.
And he gathered men vnto hym, and became captaine ouer the companye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelte there, and raigned in Damasco. Therefore was he an aduersary to Israell all the daies of Salomon. And this was the mischiefe, in that Hadad did abhorre Israel, and raigned ouer Siria. And E Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephrathite of Zareda (whose mother was called Zeruah, whiche was a widow, and he Salomons seruaunt) lifte vp his hande againste the kynge. But thys was the cause, that he lifte vp hys hand against the king, Salomon builte Mello, and mended the broken places of the Citye of Dauid hys father. And this fellow Jeroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon sawe the yong man, that he was able to doo the worke: he made hym ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph. And it chaunced at that season, that Jeroboam went oute of Jerusalem, and the prophet Ahiah the Silonite mette him by the waye, hauing a newe mantel on him, and they two were alone in ỹ field. And Ahiah caught the newe mantel that was on him, and rent it in twelue pieces, and said to Jeroboam: take thee ten peces.
F For this sayeth the Lord God of Israel: beholde, I will rente the kyngedome out of the handes of Salomon, and will geue ten tribes to thee. and 2.par.7.c he shall haue one, for my seruant Dauids sake, and for Jerusalem the citye whiche I haue chosen oute of all the Tribes of Israell: because they haue forsakẽ me, and haue worshipped vnto Astharoth the god of the Zidons, and Chamos ỹ god of the Moabites, and Milcom the god of the children of Ammon, & haue not walked in my waies (to fulfyll my pleasure, my statutes and my lawes,) as dyd Dauid hys father. I wil not take the whole kingdome out of his hand: but I wil make him chiefe all hys life longe, for Dauyd my seruauntes sake, whome I chose: because he kept my commaũdements & my statutes. But I wil 3.re.12.c

hand, and wil geue it vnto thee, euen ten tribes of it, & vnto his son wil I geue one tribe, that Dauid my seruãt may haue a light alwaye before me in Jerusalem, the citye whiche I haue chosen me, to put my name ther. And I wil take thee, and thou shalt raign accordynge to all that thy soule desireth, and shalte be kynge ouer Israel.
And if thou harken vnto all that I G commaunde thee, and wilte walke in my waies, and do that is right in my sight, that thou kepe my statutes and my commaundements (as Dauid my seruaunte did) then wyll I bee with thee, and buylde thee a sure house that shall contynue, as I buylde for my seruant Dauid, and wyl geue Israel vnto thee. And I wil for this offence (which Salomon hathe committed) vexe the sede of Dauid, but not for euer. Salomon sought therfore to kil Jeroboam, and Jeroboam arose, and fled into Egypt vnto Sisak kyng of Egypt, and cõtinued there in Egypt vntyll the death of Salomon. The rest of the wordes that concern Salomon, and al that he dyd, and his wisdome: are they not writen in the boke of the wordes of Salomon? The time that Salomon reigned in Jerusalem vpon al Israel, was forty yeres. And Salomon slept, and he laid him with his fathers, and was buried in the citie of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne reigned in his stede.

A AND • Rehoboam went to Sichem: for all Israel were com to Sichem, to make him kyng. And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which was yet in Egypte) heard of it, • for he fled to Egypt frõ the presence of kynge Salomon, and dwelte in Egypte. Soo they sente and called him: and Jeroboam and all the congregation of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayinge: Thy father made our yoke greuous, nowe therefore, make thou the greeuous seruice of thy Father, and hys sooze yoake, whyche he putte vppon vs, lyghter, and wee wyll serue thee. And he sayde vnto theym: Departe yet for the space of thze dayes, and then come againe vnto me. And the people departed. And kyng Rehoboam toke B counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, while he yet liued, and said: What counsel geue ye, that I may haue matter to answer this people? And they said vnto him: If thou be a seruant vnto this people this daye, and followe theyr myndes, and answere them, and speake kynde woordes vnto them: they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he forsooke the counsell that the old men had geuẽ him, and called vnto his counsel yong men, that were growen vp with him and watted on him. And he said vnto them: What counsell geue ye, that we may answere this people? for they haue commoned with mee, sayinge: Make the yoke which thy father dyd put vpon vs, lighter. And the yonge men that were growen vp with him, spake vnto hym, saying: Thus shalte C thou speake vnto thys people (that haue said vnto thee: Thy father made our yoake heauy, but make thou it vs lyghter. (Euen thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My lyttle fynger shall be waightier, than my father was in the loynes. And nowe where as my father dyd lade you, and put a greuous yocke vpon you, I will make it heauyer. My father also corrected you with scourges, but I wyll chastyse you with scorpions. And so Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrd day, as the kynge had appointed, saying: come to me agayne thirde daye. And the kinge answered the people churlyshly, and left the old mens counsell (that they gaue hym) and spake to them after the counsel of the yong mẽ, saying: My father made your yoke greuous, and I will make it greuouser. My father also chastised you with whyppes, but I will chaD stise you with Scorpions. And the kyng hearkened not vnto the people: for it was the ordinance of God, that he might • performe his saying, which 3.re.xij the Lord spake by Ahia the Silonite vnto Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat. And so, when all Israell sawe, that the king regarded thẽ not, the people answered the kyng with these wordes, saying: • what portion haue we 2.re.xx in Dauid? we haue no enheritaunce 2.pa.x in the sonne of Jsai. • To youre Tentes, O Israelite, nowe see to thyne house Dauyd. And so Israell departed vnto theyr tentes. How be E it, ouer the chyldren of Israell whyche dwelte in the Cytie of Juda, rydde Rehoboam reygne styll. The kynge Rehoboam sente Aduram,

And they of Israell rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid, vnto thys day. And when all Israell harde that Jeroboam was come agayn, they sent and called hym vnto the multitude, and made hym kyng ouer all Israell: and there was no tribe that folowed the house of Dauid, but Juda onely.

Ps.118 • And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered all the house of Juda, with the tribe of Ben Jamin an hundred and foure score thousand of chosen men (which were good warriours) to fight against the house of Israell, and to bringe the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon. And the worde of God came vnto Semaia the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda and Ben Jamin, and to the remnaunte of

And this thyng turned to synne, for the people went (because of the one) as farre as Dan. And he made an house of hyl aulters, • and made Priestes of the lowest of the people, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Jeroboam made a feast the .xv. daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto the feaste that is in Juda, and offered on the aulter. And so dyd he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calues that he had made. And he put in Bethel the Priestes of the hyl aulters, whiche he had made. And he offered burnt offerynges vpon the aulter, which he had made in Bethel, the fyftenth daye of the eyght moneth, euen in the moneth which he had ymagyned of hys owne herte: and made a solempne feaste vnto the chyldren of Israell, and offered vpon the aulter, and burnt incense.

A And behold, there came a man of God oute of Juda (by the worde of the Lord) vnto Bethel, and Jeroboam stode by the aulter to putte incense. And he cryed agaynst the aulter in the worde of the Lord and sayd: O aulter, aulter, thus sayth the Lord: Behold a chyld shalbe borne vnto the house of Dauid, (Josia by name) and vpon thee shall he offer the priestes of the hyl alters, that burnt incense vpon thee, and mennes bones shalbe brent vpon thee And he gaue a token the same tyme, sayinge: This is the token, that the Lord hath spoken it: Behold, the aulter shal rent and the ashes that are vpon it, shal fal out. And when the kynge herde the

B saying of the man of God (which had cryed agaynste the aulter in Bethell) he stretched oute hys hande from the aulter, sayinge: holde hym. And hys hande whyche he put foorth agaynste hym, dryed vp, and he coulde not pull it in agayne to hym: the aulter also clane a sunder, and the ashes fell out from the aulter, accordynge to the token, whyche the man of God hadde geuen by the worde of the Lord. And the kynge answered, and sayde vnto the man of God. Pray vnto the Lord thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hande may be restored me agayne. And the man of God besought the Lord, and the kinges hand was restored agayne, and became as it was afore. And the kynge sayde vnto the man of God: Come home with me, that thou mayest dyne, and I wyl geue thee a reward. And the man of God sayde vnto the kynge: If thou wouldest geue me halfe thyne house, I wyll not go in with thee, neyther wyll I eate breade or drynke water in thys place. For so was it charged me, through the worde of the Lorde, saying: eate no breade nor drynke water, nor turne againe by the same way that thou camest. And so he wente another way, and returned not by the waye that he came to Bethell. And there dwelte an olde prophete in Bethell, and hys sonnes came, and tolde hym all the workes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethell, and the wordes which he had spoken vnto the kyng, tolde they their father also. And their father sayd vnto them: What way went he? And his sonnes shewed hym what waye the man of God wente, whiche came from Juda. And he sayde vnto hys sonnes: Sadle me the asse. which when they had sadled, he gat him vp thereon, and went after the man of God, and found hym syttynge vnder a tree. And he sayde vnto hym: Arte thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde: I am. He sayde vnto hym: come home with me, and eate bread. He answered: I may not returne with the, to goo in with thee, neyther wyll I eate bread, or drinke water with thee in thys place. For it was sayde to me in the worde of the Lord: Thou shalt eate no bread, nor drynke water ther, nor turne agayne to go by the waye that thou camest. He sayde vnto him: I am a prophete also as wel as thou, and an Angell spake vnto me in the name of the Lorde, sayinge: Brynge him agayn with the into thyne house, that he maye eate breade, and drynke water. And he lyed vnto hym. And so he wente agayne with hym, and did eate bread in hys house, and drank water. And it fortuned, that as they E satte at the table, the woorde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete, that brought hym agayne. And he cryed vnto the man of God that came from Juda, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lord: Because thou haste dysobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde, and haste not kepte the commaundemente whyche the Lord thy God commaunded thee: but cameste backe agayne, and haste eaten breade, and dronke water, in the place (concernynge the whych the Lorde dyd saye vnto thee: Thou shalt eate no breade, nor drynke no water) thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers. And so it came to passe, that when he had eaten bread and dronke, the prophete which broughte hym agayne, sadled hym an Asse. And, when he was gone, a Ly- 3 Re. 20 hym, and hys carkasse was caste in the waye, and the asse stode thereby, and the Lyon stode by the corse also. And men that passed by, sawe the carkasse caste in the waye, and the Lyon standynge thereby: and they came and tolde it in the towne, where the olde prophete dwelte. And when the prophete that brought hym backe agayne from the waye, harde thereof, he sayd: It is the man of God: He was dysobedyente vnto the worde of the Lord, and therfore the Lorde hath deliuered hym vnto the Lyon, which hath rent hym, and slayne hym, accordynge to the woorde of the Lorde, whiche he spake vnto hym. And he spake to hys sonnes, saying: Sadle me an asse: and so they dyd. And he wente and founde hys bodye caste in the waye, and the Asse and the Lyon stode by the coarse. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse, nor hurte the asse. And the pro- G phete toke vp the bodye of the man of God, and layed it vpon the Asse, and broughte it agayne: and the olde prophet came to the citye to lamente, and to burye hym. And he layde hys body in his owne graue, and they lamented ouer hym. (Alas my brother.) And when he had buried hym, he spake to hys sonnes, saying. When I am dead, see that ye burye me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buryed: 4Re.23d laye my bones beside his bones. • For the sayinge whiche he cryed at the worde of the Lord agaynst the aulter in Bethel (and agaynst all the houses of hyll aulters whiche are in the cities of Samarye) shall come to passe. Howbeit, for all that, Jeroboam conuerted not from hys wycked waye: but turned backe, and made of the lewest of the people Priestes of the hyl aulters. And who so pleased hym, he fylled hys hande, and became Priest of the hyll aulters. And thys thynge turned to synne vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye hym, and to bringe hym to naught from of the face of the earth.

I AT that tyme Abia the sonne of Jeroboam fell sicke. And Jeroboam sayde vnto hys wyfe: vp (I praye thee) and disguyse thy selfe, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and gette 3Re.11f the to Silo. For there is Ahia the prophet which told me • that I sholde be kynge ouer thys people. And take with thee ten loues, and crakncelles, and a cruse of honey, and go to hym that he maye tell thee what shall become of the chylde. And Jeroboams wyfe did so: and arose, and went to Silo, and came to the house of Ahia. But Ahia couldе not see, for his eyes were waxen dymme for age. And the Lorde sayde vnto Ahia: Beholde, the wyfe of Jeroboam cometh, to aske a thynge of thee for her sonne, for he is B sycke. But thus shalte thou saye vnto her. And when she came in, she fayned her selfe to be another woman. But when Ahia hearde the sounde of her fete as she came in at the doore, he sayd: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why faynest thou thy selfe, to bee another? I am sente to thee to shewe thee heauy thynges. Go tell Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell. (It repenteth me) forasmuche 3Re.12c as • I exalted thee from amonge the people, and made thee prynce ouer my people Israell, I dyd rente the kingdome away from the house of Dauid and gaue it thee: Neuertheless, thou haste not bene as my seruaunte Dauid, whiche kepte my commaundementes, and folowed me with all his herte, to do that whiche is ryghte in myne eyes: but haste done euill, aboue all that were before thee: for thou hast gone, and made thee other goddes, and molten ymages, to prouoke mee, and haste caste mee behynde thy backe: therfore beholde, I wyll bringe euill vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wil C roote out from Jeroboam, euen hym 1Re.15d that • pysseth agaynste the wall, and hym that is in prison, and forsaken in Israell, and wyll take awaye the remnaunte of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh awaye donge, tyll he 3.Re.16. hath caryed oute all. • Whosoeuer (of Jeroboams house) dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the fielde, shall the foules of the ayre eate: for the Lorde hath sayde it. Up therefore and get thee to thyne owne house. Behold, when thy foote D entreth into the city, the chylde shall dye. And all they of Israell shall mourne for hym, and burye hym: for he onely of Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lorde God of Israell in the house of Jeroboam. Moreouer, the Lord shal sterre hym vp a kynge ouer Israel, whiche shall destroye the house of Jeroboam in that day. But what is it now? For the Lorde shall smyte Israell, as when a rede is shaken in the water, and he shall wede Israell out of thys good land (which he gaue to their fathers) and shall scatter them beyonde the ryuer, because they haue made them groues, and angred the Lorde.

And he shall geue Israell vp, because of the sinnes of Ieroboam, which did sinne, and made Israell to sinne. And E Ieroboams wife arose, and departed, and came to Thirzah, and whan she came to the threshold of the doore, the childe was dead. And all Israell buried him, and lamented him, according to the worde of the Lorde, whiche he spake by the hand of his seruaũt Ahia the prophet. And the rest of the wordes that concerne Ieroboam, how he warred, and howe he raigned: Behold, they are wrytten in the booke of the chronicles of the kings of Israel. And the dais which Ieroboam raigned, were .xxii. yere. And whē he was layed a slepe with his fathers, Nadab his sonne raigned in his stead. Reho-

His mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Iuda wrought wickednesse in the sighte of the Lord, and angred him in mo thinges then their Fathers did, in theyr sinnes, whiche they sinned. For they also made them hill aultars, images & Idol groues on euery hie hil, and vn der euery thicke tree. And there was a stewes of male childzen in the land, and they did according to al the abhominations of the nations, whiche the Lorde caste oute before the childzen of Israell. And it fortuned, that in the fifte yere of king Rehoboam: Sisack G king of Egipte came vp againste Ierusalem, and tooke away the tresures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kinges house, and spoiled all that was to be had. And he toke away the shieldes of gold, which Sa-

In whose steade king Rehoboam made brasen shields, and committed them vnto the handes of the keepinge of the captaines of the garde, whiche waited at the doore of the kynges house. And whan ỹ king went into the house of the Lord, they of the garde bare theim, and brought them againe into the Garde chambre. The rest of the wordes that concerne Rehoboam, and all that hee did, are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kinges of Iuda? And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Ieroboam al their liues. And Rehoboam slepte with hys fathers, and was buried beside hys fathers in the citye of Dauid. Hys mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Abiam his sonne raygned in his stead.

Lord, walking in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his sinne, whiche made Israell to sinne.

Then

A When the worde of the Lorde came to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baasa, saying: forasmuch as I exalted thee oute of the duste, and made thee captayne ouer my people Israell, and thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and haste made my people Israell to synne, to anger me with their syns: Behold, I wyl root outthe posteritie of Baasa, and the posteritie of his house, & wil make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of 2 Re. 14c and. 21. f. Nabat. • That man of Baasa which dyeth in the citie, him shal the dogges eate: and that man of hym which dyeth in the fieldes, shall the foules of B the ayre eate. The reste of the wordes that concerne Baasa, and what he dyd, and his power, are they not wrytten in the booke of chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And so Baasa slept with his fathers, and was buryed in Thirza. And Ela his sonne raygned in hys steade. And by the hande of the prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, came the worde of the Lorde agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house, and agaynste all the wickednesse that he dyd in the syghte of the Lorde (in angrynge hym with the worke of hys owne handes) that he shoulde be like the house of Jeroboam, and because he kylled hym, (that is to saye Jehu the sonne of Hanani the prophete.) The. xxvi. yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, beganne Ela the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israell in Thirza, two yeare. And hys seruaunte Zimri (whiche was captayne of halfe hys charettes conspired agaynste hym, as he was in Thirza drinking: and was dronken in the house of Arza steward of hys house in Thirza. And Zimri came and smote him, and kylled hym in the. xxvii. yeare of Asa kyng of Ju-C da, and raygned in hys steade. And it Exo. 21b foretuned that whē he was kyng • and
1. Re. 2 d sat on his seate, he slue all the house of Baasa, not leauynge thereof, one to pysse agaynste the wall: Yee, he slue hys kynsfolkes and frendes also. And thus dyd Zimri destroy all the house of Baasa, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, whiche he spake agaynste Baasa by the hand of Jehu, the prophete, for all the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Ela hys sonne, which they synned, and made Israell to synne, and angred the Lorde God of Israell with theyr vanityes. The reste of the woordes that concerne Ela, and all that he dyd, are they not wryten in all the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israell? In the seuen and twentye yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, dyd Zimri raygne seuen dayes in Thirza, and the people was then in the hoofte besiegynge Gibbethon, a cytye of the Philistines. And the D people in the hoofte hearde one saye: Zimri hath conspired, and slayne the kynge: wherefore, all they of Israell made Amri (the captayne of the host) kynge ouer Israell, that same daye euen in the hoofte. And Amri departed by from Gibbethon, and all Israell with hym, and they besieged Thirza. And when Zimri sawe that the Cytye muste nedes be taken, he wente into the palace of the kynges house, and brente hym selfe and the kinges house with fire, & so dyed, for his sinnes which he sinned, in doyng that which is euill in the sight of the Lorde, and in walking in the way of Jeroboam, and in his syns which he did, and in that he made Israel to syn. The rest of the wordes that concerne Zimri & the treason that he wrought, are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israell? Then were the people of Is- E raell deuyded into two partes, for halfe the people folowed Thibni the sonne of Ginath, makyng hym king: and the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuayled agaynst the people that folowed Thibni the sonne of Ginath. And so Thibni dyed, and Amri raygned. In the. xxxi. yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, began Amri to raygne ouer Israell. xii. yeare. Syxe yeare raygned he in Thirza. He bought the hyll Schomron of one Schemar for two talentes talentes of syluer, and buylte in the hyll, and called the name of the Cytie whiche hee buylte, after the name of Schemar, whiche had bene owner of F the hil Schōron. But Amri wrought that whiche is euyll in the eyes of the Lorde, and dydde worsse then all that were before hym. For hee walked in all the waye of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat, and in hys syns, that made Israell synne, to anger the Lord God of Israell wyth theyr vanityes. The rest of the wordes that concerne Am-ri, and all that he dyd, and hys strēgth that he shewed, are they not written in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israell? And so Amri slept with hys fathers, and was buried in Schomron, and Ahab hys son raygned in hys steade. In the thirtie and eyght yeare of Asa kyng of Juda began Ahab the sonne of Amri to reygn ouer Israell, and the same Ahab the sonne of Amri raygned ouer Israell in Samaria twenty and two yeare.

And Ahab the sonne of Amri dyd e-G uyll in the syghte of the Lorde, aboue all that were before hym. For it semed vnto hym but a lyghte thynge to walke in the sinnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. He toke Jezabel also the daughter of Ethbaall kynge of 4m. 10.d the Sidonytes to wyfe, and wente and serued Baall, and worshypped hym. And he reared vp an aultare for Baall in the temple of Baall, which he hadde builded in Schomron. And Ahab made groues, and proceaded fur ther in angringe the Lord God of Israell, then all the kynges of Israell that were before hym. In hys dayes, Jos 6.d. did Hiel of Bethell builde Jericho.
And it coste hym Abyram hys eldest sonne when he layde the foundation, and hys youngest sonne Segub, whē Jos.6.d. he set vp the gates, according vnto the word of the Lorde, which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

¶ The.xvii. Chapter.

1 AND Elias ✠ Thesbite (which 3Re.18c was of the inhabiters of Gilead) sayde vnto Ahab: As truely as the Lord God of Israell lyueth, before whom I stande, ther shall deu.11.b but according to my worde. And the Jaco.5.b woorde of the Lorde came vnto hym, sayinge: get thee hence, and turne the eastwarde, and hide thy selfe in the brooke Cherith, that is it that lyeth before Jordan: Thou shalte drynke of the ryuer, and I haue commaunded the rauens to fede thee there. And so he wente and dydde according vnto the woorde of the Lord: For he went and dwelt by the broke Cherith, that is before Jordane. And the rauens broughte him breade and flesshe in the mornynge, and lykewyse breade and flesshe in the euenynge, and hee dranke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a while, that the broke dried vp, because B there fell no rayne vpon the earth. ✠ Luke.4.c And the woorde of the Lorde cam vnto hym, sayinge: Vp and get thee to Zarphath, whiche is in Sidon, and dwell there. Beholde I haue commaunded a wydowe there to sustaine thee. So hee arose and went to Zarphath. And when he came to the gate of the Citie, the wydowe was there gatheryng stickes. And hee called to her, and sayde: Fet me I praye thee a Judi.4.c lyttle water in a vessell, that I maye drynke. And as she was going to fet it, he cryed after her, and sayde: bryng me I praye thee, a morsell of bread also in thyne hande. She sayd: As trulye as the Lorde thy God lyueth, I haue noo breade readye, but euen an handfull of meale in a barell, and a litle oyle in a cruse. And beholde I am gatheryng of stickes for to go in, and C dresse it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate it, and dye. And Elia sayde vnto her, feare not, come and doo as thou hast sayde: but make me therof a litle cake first of all, and, bryng it vnto me: and afterward make for the and thy sonne. For thus saieth the Lorde God of Israel: the meale in the barell shal not be wasted nether shal the oile in the cruyse be mynyshed, vntyll the LORD haue sente rayne vpon the earth. And she went, and did as Elia sayde, And hee and shee and her house did

dyd eate a good ſpace, and the meale waſted not out of the barrell, nether was the oyle ſpent oute of the cruſe, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, which he ſpake by the hande of Elia.
And after theſe thinges, it happened, that the ſõne of the wyfe of the houſe fell ſicke. And his ſickeneſſe was ſo ſore, that there was no breath lefte in hym. And ſhe ſayde vnto Elia: what haue I to do with thee, O thou man of God? art thou come vnto me, to cal my ſynne agayne to remẽbraunce, and to ſlaye my ſonne? He ſayde vnto her: D geue me thy ſonne. And he toke hym out of her lappe, and caryed hym vp into a loft, where he abode, and layde him vpon his owne bed, and called vnto the Lorde, and ſayd: O Lorde my God, haſte thou punyſhed alſo thys widowe (with whom I dwell as a ſtranger) and haſte ſlayne her ſonne?
4 Reg. 4 f * And he ſtretched him ſelfe vpon the Acts. 23 c chyld three tymes, and called vnto the Lorde, and ſayd: O Lorde my God, let thys chyldes ſoule come into hym a-gayne. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Elia, and the ſoule of the chyld cam into him agayne, and he reuiued. And Elia toke the boye, and brought hym downe oute of the chamber into the houſe, and deliuered him vnto his mo ther, and Elia ſayd: behold, thy ſonne liueth. And the woman ſayd vnto Elia: now I know that thou art a man of God, and that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouth is true.

¶ The. xviii. Chapter.

A After proceſſe of manye dayes the worde of the Lorde came to Elia in the third yere, ſaying: Go ſhewe thy ſelfe vnto Ahab, De. 22. b and * I will ſende rayne vppon the Iames. 5 f earth. And Elia went to ſhewe hym ſelfe vnto Ahab, and there was a gret famyſhmente in Schomron. And Ahab called Obadia, whiche was the gouernour of his houſe: and Obadia feared God greatly: For when Jeza-bell deſtroyed the Prophetes of the Lorde, he toke an hundred Prophetes and hyd them, fyftye men in one caue, and fyftye in another, and prouyded breade and water for them. And Ahab ſayd vnto Obadia: Go into the lande, vnto al ẏ fountains of water, and vnto all ẏ brokes, if haply we may fynd graſſe, to ſaue the horſes & the mules, and that we deſtroye not ſome of the beaſtes. And ſo they deuyded the lande betwene them, to walke thorowe it.
Ahab went one way by hym ſelfe, and Obadia went another waye by hym ſelfe. And it chaunced that as Obadia B was in the waye, Elia met him. And Obadia knewe him, and fell on hys face, and ſayd: arte not thou my Lorde Elia? And he anſwered him: I am he.
Go and tell thy Lorde: behold, Elia is here. He ſayde: what haue I ſynned, that thou wouldeſt delyuer thy ſer-uaunt into the hande of Ahab, to ſlay me? As truely as the Lorde thy God liueth, ther is no nacion or kingdome, whether my Lorde hath not ſente, to ſeke thee. And when they ſayd: he is not there, he toke an oth of the kyngdome and nacion, when he found thee not. And nowe thou ſayeſt: go and tel thy lorde, that Elias is here. And as ſone as I am gone from the, the ſpyrit of the Lorde ſhall cary thee into ſome place that I do not knowe, & ſo when C I come and tell Ahab, and he can not fynde thee, he ſhall ſlaye me. But I thy ſeruaunt feare the Lorde from my youth vp. Was it not tolde my Lord, what I dyd, when Jezabell ſlue the prophetes of the Lorde, howe I hydde an hundred men of the Lordes prophetes, fyfty men in one caue, and fyftye in another, and prouided them of breade and water? And nowe thou ſayeſt: Go thou nowe and ſhewe thy Lorde, Beholde, Elia is here, that he may ſlay me? And Elia ſayd, as truly as the Lorde of hoſtes liueth, before whom I ſtande, I wyll ſhewe my ſelfe vnto him this daye. So Obadia wente to mete Ahab, and tolde hym.
And Ahab went to mete Elia. And it fortuned, that when Ahab ſawe Elia he ſayde vnto him: Arte thou he that troubleth Iſraell? He anſwered: It is not I that haue troubled Iſraell,

but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lorde, and thou haste folowed Baal. Nowe therefore sende and gather to me al Israel vnto mount Carmell, and the prophetes of Baall • fourr hundred and fifty, and the prophetes of the Idols groues four hundred, whiche eate of Iezabels table. So Ahab sent vnto al the children of Israell, and gathered the prophetes together vnto mounte Carmell. And Elia came vnto al the people and said: how long haite ye betwene two opinions? If the Lorde be God, folowe hym: but if Baall be he, then go after hym. And the people answered him not one worde. Then sayd Elia vnto the people againe, I onely remaine a prophete of the Lorde: but Baalles prophetes are four hundred and fifty. Let them therfore geue vs two oxen, and let theym chose the one and cutte him in peces, and laye hym on wood, and putte noo fyer vnder: and I wyll dresse the other oxe, and laye hym on woodde, and wyll put no fyer vnder. And call ye on the name of your God, and I wyll call on the name of the Lorde: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let him be God. • And all the people answered and sayde: it is well spoken. And Elia sayde vnto the prophetes of Baall: chose you an oxe, and dresse hym fyrst (for ye are many) and call on the name of your Goddes, but put no fyer vnder. And they toke the one oxe that he vydde geue theym, and they dressed it • and called on the name of Baal from morning to noon, sayinge, O Baall heare vs. But ther was noo voyce nor one to answere. And they lepte vpon the aulter that they had made. And at noone, it fortuned that Elia mocked theym, and sayde: crye loude, for he is a God: peraduenture he is talkynge or occupied (in folowynge vpon hys enemyes) or is in hys iourney, or happelye hee sleepeth, and muste bee awaked wyth youre cry. And they cryed lowde, and cut them selues, as theyr maner was, wyth knyues and launcers, tyll the blood folowed on them. And it chanced, that when mydday was paste, they prophesyed vntil the tyme of the euenyng sacrifyce, But ther was neyther voyce nor one to answere, nor anye that regarded theym. And Elia sayde vnto all the folke: come to mee. And all the people came to hym. And • he repaired the aultar of the Lorde, that was broken. • And Elia tooke twelue stones accordyng to the number of the twelue Tribes of the sons of Jacob (vnto whom the woorde of the Lorde came, saying. • Israell shal be thy name. And wyth the stones he made an aultere in the name of the Lorde. And he made a ditch round aboute the aulter, as broade as two forowes of the corne sylde. And he put the wood in order, and hewed the oxe in peces, and layed him on the wood, and sayde: fyll foure barels with water, and powre it on the burnte sacrifice and on the wood. And he saide: do so agayne. And they dyd so the second tyme. And he sayde agayne: doo it the thyrd tyme. And they dyd it the third time. And the water ran round about the aultar, and he fylled the pyt wyth water also. And it fortuned when the tyme came (wherin the burnte sacrifyce of the euening vsed to be offred) Elia the prophet cam and sayd: Lorde God of Abraham, Isahac, and of Israell, it shalbe knowen thys day, that thou art the God of Israell, and that I am thy seruaunte, and that I haue done all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me (O Lorde) hear me that this people may know, that thou art the Lorde God, and ỳ thou haste turned theyr hert again now at the laste. • And the fyre of the Lorde fel, and consumed the burntsacrifice, the wodde, the stones and the dust, and licked vp the water that was in the pyt. And when all the people sawe it, they fell on theyr faces, & said: The Lorde he is god, The Lorde he is God. And Elia said vnto them: Take the prophetes of Baal, and lette not one of them escape. And they tooke theym, and Elia brought them vnto the broke Kison, and slue the there. And Elia said vnto Ahab: get thee vp, eate and drynke, for there is a sounde of muche rayne. And so Ahab went vp to eate, and to drynke, and Elia went vp to the top of Carmell. And he layde hymself flat vppon the earth, and put hys face betwene hys knees, and sayd to his seruaunt: go vp (I praye thee) and looke towarde the waye of the sea. And hee went vp and loked, and sayde: there is nothyng. And he sayd: goo again. vii. tymes. And it fortuned, that at the seuenth tyme he said: beholde, there ariseth a lyttle cloude of the Sea, lyke a mannes hand. He sayde: goo, and saye vnto Ahab. Make fast thy charet, and gette thee downe, that the rain stoppe thee not. And it came to passe, that in the meane whyle, the heauen was blacke wyth cloudes and wynde, and there was a greate rayne. And Ahab gate vp and came to Iezrael. And the hand of the Lord was on Elia, and he gyrded vp hys loynes, and ran before Ahab, til he came to Iezreel.

A And Ahab told Iezabell, all that Elia had doone, and how he had slayn all the Prophets wyth the sweard. Then Iezabel sent a messenger vnto Elia, sayinge: * so 3.re.2.b. and so lette the Goddes do to me, if I make not thy soule like one of theirs, by to morowe thys tyme. when hee sawe that, he arose and went for hys lyfe, and came to Beersleba in Juda, & lefte hys seruaunt there. But he hym selfe went a dayes iourney into the wylderneslle, and came and sate vnder a Juniper tree, and desyred for hys soule, that he myght dye, & sayd, * it is Jon.4.c. now inough (O Lord) take my soule, for I am not better then my fathers. And as he lay & slept vnder † Juniper tree: beholde, an angel touched him and sayde vnto hym: vp, and eate. And B whan he loked aboute hym: beholde, there was a loafle of bryoled breade, and a vessell of water at hys heade. And he dyd eat and drincke, and layde hym downe agayne to slepe. And the angell of the Lord came againe the seconde tyme, and touched hym, & sayde: vp, and eate, for thou haste yet a great iourneye. And hee arose, and dyde eate and drincke, and walcked in the strengthe of that meate * foxty dayes Ex.34.b and foxtye nyghtes, euen vnto Horeb Mat.4.d the mounte of God. Whan hee came thyther into a caue, he lodged therin, all nyghte. And beholde, the woorde of the Lorde came to hym, and sayde vnto hym: what doest thou here Elia? And he aunswered. I haue bene Ielous for the Lord god of Hoostes sake. For the chyldren of Israell haue forsaken thy couenaunt, * broken downe thy aultares, and slayne thy prophets Ro.11.d wyth the swearde, and I am onlye lefte, and they seeke my lyfe to take it awaye. And hee sayde: come oute and stande vppon the mounte, before the Lord. And beholde * the Lorde went by, and a mighty stronge wynde that rente the mountaynes, and brake the rockes before the Lord. But the Lord was not in the wynde. And after the wynde, came an earthquake. But the Lorde was not in the earthquake. And after the earthquake, came fyre: but the Lord was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small still voyce. And when Elia hearde it, hee couered hys face wyth hys mantle, and went out, and stoode in the enterynge in of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayed, what doest thou here Elia? And he answeared: I haue beene gelous for the Lorde God of Hoostes sake, because the childrē of Israell haue forsaken thy couenaunt, cast downe thyne aultares, and slaine thy Prophets wyth the swearde, and I only am lefte, and they seke my lyfe to take it awaye. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: goo and turne thy waye vnto the wylderneslle vnto Damasco, † thou mayest annoynt * Hazael, kinge ouer Syria. And * Jehu the sonne of Nimsi, shalte thou annoynte kynge ouer Israell. And Eliśa the sonne of 4.re.ij. Saphat of Abel Mytholah shalt thou 4.re.3.d. annoynt to be Prophet in thy rowme. And it shal come to passe, that who so eschapeth the sweard of Hazaell, hym shall shal Jehu slaye: and it anye skape the sweard of Jehu, hym shall Elisa put to death. And therto • I haue left me seuen thousande in Israell, of which fo. 11. 8 neuer manne bowed hys knees vnto Baall, nor kysled him w his mouthe.

So he departed thence, and found Elisa the sonne of Saphat ploweynge, and hauynge twelue yocke of Oxen before hym, and he wyth the twelue. And Elia went by him, and caste hys mantell vppon hym. And he lefte the oxen, and ranne after Elia, and sayde:
• let me I praye thee, kysse my father Luk. 9. 8 and my mother, and then I will folowe thee. He sayde vnto hym: goo backe againe, for what is it, that I haue doone to thee? And whan hee went backe agayn from him, he toke a couple of Oxen, and slew them, and dressed the flesh wyth the instrumēts of the Oxen, and gaue vnto the people, and they dyd eat. And then hee arose, and went after Elia, and ministred vnto hym.

A And Benhadad the kynge of Syria gathered all hys hoste together, hauing .xxii. kinges wyth him, and horses and charettes: and went vp and besieged Samaria, and warred agaynste it. And he sente messengers to Ahab kynge of Israell into the Citye, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayeth Benhadad: Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and the fayrest of thy wyues, and of thy chyldren bee myne. And the kynge of Israel aunswered and sayde: My Lorde kynge accordinge to thy sayinge, I am thine and all that I haue. And whan the messengers came agayne, they sayde: thus sayeth Benhadad. For as much as I haue sent vnto thee, saying: thou shalte delyuer me thy syluer and thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy chyldren: I wyll therefore sende my seruauntes vnto thee to morowe thys B tyme: and they shall serch thine house, and the houses of thy seruaunts. And what so euer is pleasaunte in thyne eyes: they shal take it in theyr hands, and bryng it away. Then the kyng of Israell sente for all the elders of the lande, and sayde: take heede, I praye you and se, how this felowe goeth about mischefe. For he sente vnto me, for my wiues, for my children, for my syluer & for my gold: and I denied him not. And all the elders & al the people said, harken not vnto hym, nor consēt. Wherfore he saide vnto the messēgers of Benhadad: tel my Lord the kynge, al that thou diddest send for to thy seruaunt at the fyrst time, that I wil do, but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed, and broughtan swere agayne. And Benhadad sente vnto him agayne, and sayde: thus and thus do the Gods vnto me, if the dust of Samaria be inough for all the people that folow me, to take euerye man an handfull. And the kynge of Israel aunswered, and sayd: tell hym, let not him that putteth on hys harnesse bost hym self, as he that putteth it of. And it fortuned, that whan Bēhadad hard that tidynges, as hee was wyth the kinges drinking wythin the pauilyons, he sayde vnto his seruaunts, put on your harnesse. And they sette them selues in aray againste the citye. And C behold, there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kyng of Israel, saying: thus saith the Lorde, hast thou sene al this great multytude? Beholde, I wyll delyuer it into thine hand thys daye, and thou shalt know, that I am the Lord. And Ahab sayde: By whome? hee sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde: Euen by the seruauntes of the gouernoures of the shyres. He saide againe: who shal order the battayle? And hee answeared: Thou. Then hee noumbred the seruants of the gouerners of the shires: and they wer two hundred and .xxii. And after them also, he noumbred all the people, all the children of Israell, euen seuen thousand. And they went out at noon: but Benhadad did drink tyll he was droncken in the Pauilyons, bothe hee and the kynges: euen xxii. kynges, that holpe him. And the seruauntes of the gouernoures of the shires went out first. And Bēhadad sent out, and they shewed him, saying: There are men come out of Samaria. He said, whether they become out for peace, take them alive: or whether they be come oute to fight, take them yet a live. And so those younge men of the gouernoures of the shires came oute of the citye, and the hoste after them, and they slew euery one his enemye that came in his waye. And the Sirians fledde, and they of Israell followed after them. And Benhadad the kinge of Syria scaped on a horsse, with his horsemenne. And the king of Israell went oute, and smote the horsses and charettes, and wyth a greate slaughter slue he the Sirians. And there came a Prophette to the kinge of Israell, and saide vnto hym: goo forthe and play the man, be wyse and take heede what thou doest: for when the yeare is gonne aboute, the king of Syria will come vp againste thee. And the seruauntes of the kinge of Syria sayde vnto him. The Gods of the hilles are their Goddes, and therfore they had the better of vs: but lette vs fyghte againste them in the plain, & for what ye wil, we shal haue the better of them. And this doo: take the kinges away euerye man oute of his place, and putte Dukes in theyr rowmes. And do thou noumbre thee an hoste, like the host that thou hast loste, suche horses and suche charets, and we wil fight against them in the plaine, and thou shalt see vs gette the better of them. And he harkned vnto their voice, and did euen so: and it fortuned, that after the yere was goone aboute, Benhadad numbred the Sirians, and went vp to Ephek to fight againste Israell. And the chyldren of Israel wer numbred, and with theyr whole noumbre wente they agaynste them, and the children of Israell pytched before them, lyke two little flockes of kiddes: but the Sirians fylled the country. And there came a manne of God, and said vnto the king of Israell: thus sayeth the Lorde: Because the Sirians haue sayed: the Lorde is but God of the hilles, and not God of the valeis: therefore wyll I deliuer this great multitude into thyne hād, and ye shall knowe, that I am the Lorde. And they pitched one ouer against the other. vii. days, and it came to passe, that in the seuenthe daye, the battaile was ioyned. And the children of Israell slewe of the Sirians an hundred thousande foote men in one daye. But the rest fled to Ephek into the city. And there fell a wall vppon xxvii. thousande of the men that were left. And Benhadad fledde, and came into the citye, from chambre to chambre. And his seruauntes sayde vnto him: Beholde, we haue hard say, that the kinges of the house of Israell are mercifull kinges. We wyll therefore putte sacke cloth aboute oure loynes, and ropes aboute oure neckes, and go out to the kynge of Israel, if happely he will saue thy life. And so they girded sacke clothe aboute theyr loynes, and put roopes aboute theyr heades, and came to the kynge of Israell and said: Thy seruaunt Benhadad saith, I pray thee let me liue. He saide: is he yet a liue? he is my brother. And they tooke that worde for good lucke, and hastely caughte it out of hys mouth, and saide, yea thy brother Benhadad. He said, go, & bringe him hyther. And Benhadad came out vnto him, and he caused him to come vp into the charret. And he saide vnto him: the cityes which my father toke from thy father I will restore againe. And thou shalt make streates for thee in Damasco, as my father did in Samaria. And I wyll make an appoyntmente with thee, and sende thee awaye. And soo he made an appoyntemente wyth hym, and sent him awaye. And there was a certaine man of the children of the Prophettes, whyche sayde vnto his neighboure in the worde of the Lorde: smite me I praye thee. And the man would not smite him: Then said he vnto hym. Because thou haste not harkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde: beholde as soone as thou arte departed from me, a Lion shall slay thee. And it came to passe, that assone as he was

G found him, and slewe hym. Then hee founde a nother man and sayde: smyte me I praye thee. And the man smote hym, so that in smiting hee wounded hym. So the prophet went forth, and wayted for the kinge by the way, and put him selfe out of knowledge wyth ashes, wherby he layed vpon hys face.
And when the kyng came by, he cryed vnto the kynge, and sayde: thy ser-uaunt went out in the myddes of the battell. And beholde, there went away a man, whom another man brought vnto me, and saide: kepe thys manne.
And yf hee be missed or lost, thy lyfe shall go for hys: or elsse, thou shalt pay a talente of syluer. And as thy seruant had here and there to do, he was gon.
And the king of Israel said vnto him: euen so shal thy iudgement be as thou hast defined it thy selfe. And he hasted and tooke the ashes awaye from hys face: and the kynge of Israell knewe hym, that hee was of the Prophetes.
And he said vnto him: thus saieth the Lorde: because thou hast let go a man that is in my curse, thy lyfe shall goe for hys lyfe, and thy people for hys people. And the kyng of Israel went to hys house, wayward, and in dyspleasure, and came to Samaria.

Jezabel, saying: Naboth is stoned to deathe. And it fortuned, when Jedeade. And when Ahab hearde that Naboth was dead, he stode vp to goe downe to the vyneyearde of Naboth the Iezraelyte, and to take possession of it. And the worde of the Lord came vnto Elia the Thesbyte, sayinge: vp and go downe to mete Ahab kynge of Israell, which is in Samaria. For lo, he is gone downe to the vyneyard of Naboth: to take possession of it. And therefore shalte thou saye vnto hym, thus sayth the Lorde: hast thou killed, and gotten possessiō? E And ſo the king of Iſraell and Iehoſaphat the kynge of Juda wente vp to Ramoth in Gilead. And the kyng of Iſraelle ſayde to Iehoſaphat: chaunge the, when thou goeſt to war, and put on thyne apparell. And the kynge of Iſrael chaunged him ſelfe, and wente to battell. But the kynge of Syria commaunded the two and thirtye captaynes (that had rule ouer his charettes) ſayinge: fight neyther with ſmall nor greate, ſaue onely agaynſte the kynge of Iſrael. And when the captaynes of the charettes ſawe Iehoſaphat, they ſayd: Surely it is the kynge of Iſrael, and they turned to fight agaynſt him. And Iehoſaphat cried. And ſo it came to paſſe, that when the captaynes of the charettes ſawe that he was not the kyng of Iſrael, they turned backe frō him. And the blood ranne oute of the wounde into the middes of the charet. And there went a proclamation thorowe out the hoste aboute the goyng downe of the sonne saying: Euery manne to hys Citie, and to hys owne countreye. And Iehosaphat made tenne shyppes in the sea, to come out thorow Tharsis to Ophir for golde, but they went not, for the shyppes brake at Ezion Gaber. Then sayd Ahazia, the sonne of Ahab vnto Iehosaphat, Lette my seruauntes goe with thy seruauntes in the shyps. But Iehosaphat wold not. And Iehosaphat dyd slepe with his fathers, and was buried with his father, in the Citie of Dauid hys father. And Iehoram his soonne reigned in his stede. Ahazia the sonne of Ahab, beganne to reygne ouer Israell in Samaria, the seuententh yeare of Iehosaphat king of Iuda, and reigned two yeares ouer Israell. But he dyd euyll in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the way of hys father, and in the waye of his mother, and in the way of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabath, whiche made Israel to syn. For he serued Baal, and worshipped hym, and prouoked the Lorde God of Israel vnto wrath accordyng vnto all that his father hadde doone. 2.Reg.1.

And whyle he was in hys sickenesse, he sent messengers and sayd vnto them: Go and enquire of Beelzebub the God of Ekrom whether I shall recouer of thys my disease. But the Aungell of the Lorde spake vnto Elia the Thesbite: Aryse, and go vp agaynst the messengers of the kynge of Samaria, and say vnto them: Is there not a God in Israell, that ye go to aske councell at Beelzebub the god of Ekrom? Wherfore, thus sayth the Lorde: thou shalte not com downe from the bed on which thou art gone vp, but shalte dye the B death. And Elia departed. And when the messengers turned backe agayne vnto hym, he sayde vnto them: Why are ye nowe come agayne? They answered hym: there came a man vp agaynst vs, and sayde vnto vs: go and turne agayne vnto the kyng that sent you, and say vnto him: Thus saith the Lord: Is there not a God in Israell, that thou sendest to enquire of Beelzebub the God of Ekrom? Therfore thou shalt not come downe from the bed, on whiche thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And he sayd vnto them: what maner of man was that which came vp in your way, and told you these wordes? And they answe-

Then the kynge sente vnto him a captayne ouer fyfty (with hys fifty men) whiche came to him, & behold, he sate on the toppe of an hill. And he spake vnto him: Thou man of God, the kynge hath sayde: come downe. Elia answered and sayde to the captayne ouer the fifty: If I be a C man of God, fire come downe from heauen, and consume thee and thy fifty. And there came fire of God, and Luke.39 consumed him and his fyfty. And the kyng went agayne, and sent him another captayne ouer fyfty with his fifty. And he aunswered and sayde vnto him: O man of God, thus hath the king sayd: make hast, and come down. Elia answered and sayde vnto them: if I be a man of God, fire come down from heauen, and consume thee and thy fyfty. And there came fire of God downe from heauen, and consumed him and his fifty. And the king went agayn, and sente the thirde captayne ouer fyftye with his fyfty men. And the third captaine ouer fifty went vp, and camme and fell on his knees before Elia, & besoughte him, and saide vnto him: O man of God, let my lyfe and the lyfe of the fyfty thy seruauntes be precious in thy sight. Behold, D there came fire downe from heauen, and burnt vp the two fore captaynes ouer fyfty with their fifties: therfore let my lyfe nowe be precious in thy syghte. And the Aungell of the Lorde sayd vnto Elia: go downe with him, and be not afrayde of him. And he arose and went downe with him vnto the kyng. And he sayd vnto him, thus sayth the Lorde: for as much as thou hast sent messengers to aske councell at Beelzebub the God of Ekrom, as though there had bene no God in Israell, whose worde thou myghteste seke after: therefore thou shalte not come down of the bed, on whichthou art gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And so he dyed according to the worde of the Lorde, which Elia had spoken. And Iehoram (his brother) beganne to raygne in hys steade, in the seconde yeare of Iehoram the sonne of Iehosaphat kinge of Iuda, because he had no sonne. The rest of the wordes that cõcern Ahazia, what things he did, ar they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kinges of Israell?

The.ii. Chapter.

A Gen.5.c. And it chaunced, that when the * Lord would take vp Elia into heauen by a whyrle winde, Elia went with Elisa from Gilgall. And Elia sayde vnto Elisa, tarye here I praye thee, for the Lorde hathe sente me to Bethel. Elisa sayde x.re.28 d vnto him: * as surely as the Lorde liueth, and as thy soule liueth, I will not leaue thee. And they came downe to Bethel, and the children of the prophets that were at Bethel, came vnto Elisa, and sayd vnto him: knowest thou not, howe that the Lorde will take away thy master from thy heade this daye? He sayde: I know it also, holde ye your peace. And Elia sayde vnto him: Elisa tarye here, I praye thee, for the Lord hath sent me to Jericho. He said: as surely as the Lorde B liueth, and as sure as thy soul liueth, I wil not leaue thee, and so they cam to Jericho. And the children of the Prophets that were at Jericho came to Elisa, and sayd vnto him: knowest thou not, that the Lorde will take away thy master from thy heade thys day? He aunswered: I knowe it also, hold ye your peace. And Elia said vnto him: tary I praye thee here, for the Lord hath sent me to Jordan. And he said as surely as the Lord liueth, & as thy soule liueth, I wil not leue thee. And so they two went together.

And fiftye menne of the sonnes of the prophets came and stode on the other syde a farre of, and they two stode by Jordan. And Elia toke hys mantell and wrapte it together, and smote the waters, and they were deuyded, parte the one waye, and parte the other, so that they two went ouer thorowe the dry land. And it fortuned, ℔ as sone as they wer ouer, Elia said vnto Elisa: aske what I shall doo for thee, per I be taken away from thee. And Elisa sayde: I praye thee let thy spirite bee doubled vpon me. And he saide: thou hast asked an hard thyng. Neuerthelesse, if thou see me whan I am taken away from thee, thou shalt haue it so: if thou doo not, it shall not be. And it fortuned, that as they went walking and talkinge: beholde, there appeared a charet of fyre, and horses of fire, and parted them both a sondre. * And Elia went vp thorow the whyrlewind into heauen. And Elisa saw, and cried: O my Father, O my Father: the charet of Israell, and the horsmenne therof, and he sawe him no more: and he tooke hys owne clothes, and rente them in two peeces. He tooke vp also the mantel of Elia that fell from him, and went backe agayne, and stode by Jordans side, and tooke the mantel of Elia (that fell from hym,) and smote the waters, (and they parted not a sunder,) and he sayde: where is the Lorde God of Elia, and he hym selfe? And when he hadde smitten the waters, they parted this waye and that way, and Elisa went ouer. And whã the children of the Prophets whiche were at Jericho saw hym from a far, they sayde: the spirite of Elia doothe rest on Elisa, and they came to meete hym, and fell to the grounde before hym, and saide vnto him: See, there be with thy seruauntes fiftye stronge men, lette them goo and seeke thy master: happelye the spirite of the Lorde hathe taken hym vp, and cast him vpon some mountain, or into some valey. And he sayde. Ye shall sende none. And whan they lay vppon him til he was ashamed, he sayde. Send. They sent therfore fifty men, which sought him three dayes and three nyghtes, but founde him not. And whan they came agayne to him, which taryed at Jericho, he sayde vnto them: dyd I not saye vnto you, that ye shoulde not go? And the men of the city said vnto Elisa, behold Syr, the dwellinge of this city is pleasaunt as thou thy selfe seest: but the water is naughte, & the ground barren. He said. Bring me a newe cruse, & put salt therin. And they brought it to him. And he went vnto ℔ spring of ℔ waters, & cast the salt in thither, and said: Thus saith ℔ lord.

I haue healed this water, there shall not come hence eyther dearthe or barennesse. So the waters wer healed vnto this day, accordinge to ỳ saying of Elizeus, whiche he spake. And he went vp from thence vnto Bethel. And as he was goinge vp the waye, there came litle childrē out of the city, & mocked him, and said vnto hym. Go vp thou bald heade, goo vp thou balde hed. And he turned back, and loked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lord. And there came .ii. she Beares oute of that woode, and tare .xiiii. childzen of them. And hee wente from thence to mounte Carmell, and from thence he turned again to Samaria.

¶ IEhoram the sonne of Ahab began to raigne vpon Israell in Samaria the xviii. yeare of Iehosaphat kynge of Juda, and raigned twelue yeres. And he wroughte euell in the syght of the Lord: but not like his father and like his mother, for he put away the images of Baal, that hys father had made. Neuertheless, hee cleued vnto the sinnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (whiche made Israel to sinne) and departed not ther frō. And Mesa king of Moab was a lord of shepe, and rendered vnto the kinge of Israel an hundred theusand lābes, and an hundred thousande Rammes with the wol. But whan Ahab was dead, it fortuned that the king of Moab rebelled against the kinge of Israell. And kyng Iehoram went oute of Samaria the same season, & numbred all Israell, and went and sent to Iehosaphat the kyng of Juda, sayinge: ỳ king of Moab hath offended against me, wilt thou come with me agaynst Moab to battel? He answered: I wil come vp, for as I am, so arte thou: and as my people be, so are thy people, & thi horses as mine. And he said: what way shall we go vp? And he answered. The way thorow the wilderness ¶ of Edom. And so the kinge of Israell toke his iourney: and the king of Juda, and the king of Edom. And when they had compassed the way .vii. dais they hadde no water for the hoste, and for the cattell that followed them. And the kinge of Israell said: Alasse, the Lorde hathe called these thre kinges together, to deliuer them ouer into the hande of Moab. But Iehosaphat sayde: Is there not here a Prophet of the Lord, that we may inquire of the Lorde, by hym? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered and saide: heare is Elisa the sonne of Saphat, whiche powred water on the handes of Elia. And Iehosaphat sayde: Is not the worde of the Lorde wyth hym? And so the kynge of Israell, and Iehosaphat and the king of Edom wente downe to him. And Elisa sayde vnto the kinge of Israell. What haue I to do with thee? Gette thee to the Prophets of thy father, & to the Prophets of thy mother. And the king of Israel said vnto him. Oh naye. For the Lord hathe called these thre kynges together to delyuer them into the hande of Moab. And Elisa sayd: as sure as the Lorde of Hooستes lyueth (in whose syght I stande) and it wer not that I regard the presence of Iehosaphat the kynge of Juda, I woulde not looke towarde thee, nor yet see thee. But nowe bringe me a minstrell. And whan the mynstrell playde, the hand of the Lord came vpon hym. And hee sayd: Thus sayeth the Lord, Make thys playne grounde full of diches. For thus sayth ỳ Lord: ¶ ye shall see neyther winde nor raine, and yet the brooke shalbe fylled with water, that ye may dryncke, bothe ye, and your beastes, and your cattell. And thys is yet but a small thynge in the sighte of the Lorde, for as muche as he wil geue ouer the Moabites also into your hands. And ye shal smite euerye stronge Towne, and euerye goodlye Citye, and shall felle euerye pleasaunt tree, and stoppe euery well of water, and marre euerye good platte of grounde wyth stoanes. And in the morrynge, whan the meat offerynge was offered. It fortuned, that that there came water by the way frō Edom, and the countrye was fylled with water. And when all the Moabites heard that the kinges wer come vp to fight against them, they gathered all together, from the youngest that was able to put on harnesse, and so vp warde, and stoode in the border of the lande. And they were vp early in the morning, and the Sunne shone vppon the water, that the Moabites sawe the water a farre of, as redde as bloude, and they sayde. This is the bloud of the slaughter: the Kyngs ar slayn, and one hath smitten another. Nowe therefore Moab, gette thee to the spoyle. And when they came to the hoste of Israell, the Israelites stoode vp and smote the Moabites, so that they stoode before them, but they followed vpon them, and smote Moab. And they ouerthrewe the Cities, and on euery good parcel of land, caste euery man his stone, and filled it, and they stopte all the welles of waters, and felde all the good trees. Only in the citye of bricke left they the stones therof, how be it they went aboute it D with slinges, and smote it. And when the kinge of Moab sawe, that the battayle was sooze against him, he tooke wyth him seuen hundred menne that drewe the swearde to haue gone thorowe, euen vnto the kinge of Edom: but they coulde not. And then he toke his eldest sonne (that shoulde haue raigned in his stead) and offered hym for a burntofferinge vppon the wall. And there was greate indignation against Israel, and they departed from him, and returned to their owne land.

A And there cried a certain woman of the wiues of the prophets vnto Elisa, saying: thy seruaunte my husbande is deade, and thou knowest, that thy seruaunte dyd feare the Lorde. And the creditor is come, to fette my two sonnes, to be his bondmen. Elisa sayde vnto her. Tell me what shall I doo for thee? what haste thou in thine house? She sayde, Thyne handemaide hathe nothinge at all in the house, saue a pytcher with oyle. He sayd vnto her: Go and borowe vessell for thee, of them that are wythoute, euen of all thy neighbours, emptie vessells, and that not a fewe. And when thou arte come in, thou shalt shutte the dooze after thee, and after thy sonnes, and poure oute in to all those vesselles, and sette a syde that whiche is full. And so the B woman wente from hym, and shutte the dooze after her, and after her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she powred oute. And it came to passe, that when the vesselles were full, she sayde vnto her sonne: bringe me yet a vessell. And he saide vnto her: I haue no mo. And the oyle ceased. Then she came, and tolde the man of God. And he sayde: goo and sell the oyle, and pay them that thou arte in dette vnto, but liue thou and thy childrē of the rest.

And it fell on a daye, that Elisa came to Sunem, where was a greate woman, that tooke hym in, for to eate breade. And so it came to passe, that from that time foorthe (as ofte as hee came that waye) hee tourned in thyther to eate bread. And she sayde vnto her husbande. Behoulde, I perceyue, that thys is a holye man of God, that commeth so ofte by oure place. Lette vs make him a chambre (I pray thee) wyth walles, and let vs set him there a bedde, and a table, a stoole and a candlesticke, that he may turne in thither when he commeth to vs. And it fortuned on a daye, that he came thyther, C and turned into the chambre, and laye there in, and sayde to Gehezi hys seruant: call this Sunamite. And when he called her, she presented her self before him. And again he said vnto him: Tell her. Behold, thou hast ben careful for vs, and hast made all this prouision: what shal we now do for thee? Woldest ỹ be spoken for to the king or to the captaine of the hoste? She answered: I dwel amōg mine owne people. And he said againe, what is to be don for her? Gehezi answered, verely she hath no child, & her husbād is old.

And

And he saide: call her. And whan hee had called her, she stode in the dooze.
And he saide • by suche a time, and as soone as the frute can liue, thou shalte

And whē the childe was grown, it fell on a daye, that he wente oute to his father, and to the reapers. And he saide vnto his Father: my heade, my head. And he said to a lad: Carye him to his mother. And whan hee had ta-D ken him, and brought him to his mother, he sate on her knees till noone, and then died. And she wente vp, and laid him on the bedde of the manne of God, and shutte the dooze about him, and went out, and called vnto her husbande and said: send with me (I pray thee) one of the younge men, and one of the Asses. For I will runne to the man of God, and come agayn. And he said: wherfoze wilt thou goo to him, seinge that to daye is neyther newe moone nor Saboth day. She answered: For health. Then she sadelied an Asse, and saide to hir seruaunte: leade away the Asse, and make her not to go slowly (because I ride vpon her) but whan I bid thee. ✠ And so she wente and came vnto the man of GOD, to moune Carmell. And it fortuned: that when the man of God sawe her farre of, he said to Gehezi his seruaunte.
Beholde, ponder is the Sunamite. Runne therfoze to mete her, and saye vnto her: Is all well with thee, and with thy husbande, and with the lad. And she answered. All is well. And when she came to the man of God vp to the hil, she caught him by the feete. But Gehezi wente to her, to thruste her away. And the man of God said: let her alone, for her soule is vexed within her, and the Lozde hath hid it from me, and hath not told it me. Then thee saide: did I desire a sonne of my Lozde: did I not require thee, that thou shouldeste not disceiue mee?

And he saide vnto his seruaunt. Set a great pot on the fyre, and make pot- G.

And one wente oute into the fielde to gather herbes, and found (as it wer) a wilde vine, and gathered thercof wilde Coloquintidas his lappe full, and came, and shredde them into the potte of potage: for they knew it not. So they poured out for the menne to eate. And it fortuned, that when they tasted, tasted of the pottage, they cryed oute, and sayde: O thou man of God, there is death in the pot: and they could not eate therof. But he sayd: bring meale. And he cast it into the pot, and sayde: fill for the people, that they may eate, and there was no more harme in the pot. There came a manne from Baal Salisa, and brought the man of God breade of the fyrste fruites, euen .xx. loaues of barly, and new corne which was yet in hys bagges. And he sayd: Geue vnto the people that they maye eate. And his minister answered: why shall I sette this before an hundreth men? Hee sayde agayne: geue it vnto the people that they mai eat. For thus

The. v. Chapter.

NAaman, captaine of the hoste of the Kinge of Syria, was a greate man, and honorable in the sight of his master: because that by him the Lorde had geuen health vnto Syria. He was also a myghty manne and experte in war, but hee was a leper. And the Syrians had gone oute by companyes, and had brought oute of the countrey of Israel a litle maid, and she was wyth Naamans wyfe. And she sayde vnto her ladye: I wold to God my Lorde were wyth the prophet that is in Samaria: for he wold deliuer hym of his leprosie. And hee went in, and tolde his Lorde, saying: Thus and thus sayde the mayd, that is of the land of Israel, and the kyng of Syria, sayde: Comme and enter in, and I wyll send a letter vnto the kynge of Israell. And he came, and toke wyth hym tenne talentes of syluer, and .vi. thousand pieces of gold, and tenne chaunge of rayments, and brought the letter to the kyng of Israell conteynyng this tenour: Nowe when this letter is come vnto thee: Behold, I haue therwith sent Naaman my seruaunt to thee, that thou mayst rydde hym of hys leprosy: and it fortuned, that when the kynge of Israel: hadde redde the letter, he rent hys clothes, and sayd: • Am I God, Deu. 32

For he doth send to me, that I shold deliuer a manne frome his leprosye. wherfore consyder (I pray you) and see howe he seeketh a quarell against me, wherby when Elisa the man of God had herd, how that the kyng of Israell had rent his clothes, he sente to the kynge, saying: wherfore haste thou rent thy clothes? let hym come nowe to me, and he shall knowe, that there is a prophete in Israell. and so C Naaman came with his horses, and with his charettes, and stoode at the doore of the house of Elisa. And Elisa sent a messenger vnto hym, saying: Go and washe thee in Iordane seuen tymes, and thy flesshe shal come again to thee, and thou shalt be clensed. But Naaman was wrothe, and wente awaye, and sayd: Behold, I thought wyth my selfe: he would surely come out, and stande and call on the name of the Lorde his GOD, and put his hande on the place, that he maye heale the leprosye. Are not Abana and Paraphar, Ryuers of Damasco, better than all the waters of Israell? If I washe me also in them, shal I not be clensed? And so he turned hym, & departed with displeasure. And his seruantes came, and cõmoned with him, and said: Father, If the prophet had byd thee doo some great thyng, oughtest thou not to haue doone it? Howe D muche rather then, when he sayth to thee, washe, & be cleane? Then went he downe and washed hymself seuen tymes in Iordan, according to ỹ saying of the man of God, and his flesshe changed, lyke vnto the flesshe of a litle childe, • and he was clensed. And he Luke 4.

For thy seruant wyl henseforth offer neither burnt sacrifyce nor offeryng vnto any other God, saue vnto the Lord. But herein the Lord be mercifull to thy seruaunt, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon, and doth worshyp there, and leaneth on my hand, and I also worshyp in the house of Rimmō, (when I do worshippe I say (in the house of Rimmon: the Lorde be mercyful vnto thy seruant, because of this thinge. And when he came into a secrete place, he toke them from their hande, and bestowed it in the house, and the men were let go, and they departed. But he went in, and stode before hys master. ¶ The. vi. Chapter.

THe chyldren of the prophetes sayde vnto Elisa: Behold, the place where wee dwell with thee, is to lytle for vs, we wyl therfore go vnto Iordan, and take thence euery man a beame and buylde vs a place to dwell in. And he answered: go. And one said: be content I praye thee, and come with thy seruauntes. And he answered: I will come, and so he went with them. And when they came to Iordan, they cut downe woode. But it fortuned, that as one was fellynge downe of a tree, the axe head fell into the water. And he cried, and said: Alas master, it was lente me. And the man of God sayde: where fell it? and he shewed him the place. And he cut downe a stycke, and caste it in thyther, and immediatly the yron did swim. Therfore said he: take it vp. And he stretched out his hande, and toke it vp. But the kyng of Syria warred agaynst Israell, and toke counceil with his seruauntes, & sayd: In ponder secrete place shalbe my remaynyng. And the man of God sente vnto the kyng of Israell, saying: Beware, that thou go not ouer to such a place, for there the Syrians are lurkyng. Therfore the kynge of Israell sent to the place which the man of god tolde him, and warned him of, and saued hym selfe frome it, not once or twyse. And the herte of the kynge of Syria was troubled for this thynge: and he called for hys seruauntes, and sayde vnto them: Wyll ye not shewe me, which of our men (betrayeth me) to the kyng of Israel? And one of his seruantes sayde: None my Lorde, O kyng. But Elisa the prophet, that is in Israell, telleth the kyng of Israel, yea, euen, the wordes that thou speakest in thy preuye chamber. He sayde: go, and spye where he is, that I may sende and fet him. And one tolde him, sayinge: Beholde, he is in Dothan. Therfore sente he thyther horses and charettes, and a myghty hoste. And they came by nyghte, and compassed the citie about. And when the seruant of the man of God rose vp early to go oute: Beholde, there was an hoste round aboute the towne with horses and charettes. And his seruaunt sayd

And the Lord opened the eyes of the yonge man. And beholde, the mountayne was full of horses, and charettes of fire rounde about Elisa. And when they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Smyte this people Gen.19c (I pray thee) with. blindnesse. And Sap.11c he smote them with blyndnesse, according to the desire of Elisa. And sayde vnto them, this is not the way, neither is this the towne: folowe me, and I wyll bringe you to the man whom ye seke. But hee led them to Samaria. And it fortuned, that whē they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayde: Lorde, open their eyes that they E may see. And the Lorde opened their eyes, and they sawe. And behold they were in the middes of Samaria. And the kyng of Israell saide vnto Elisa, when he sawe them: My father, shal I smyte them? And he answered: Thou shalte not smyte them. But smite those that thou hast taken with thyne owne sworde, and with thyne owne bowe. But rather sette breade and water before them, that they may eate and drynke, and go to their master. And he prepared a great refection for them. And when they had eaten and dronke, he sente them awaye and they went to their master. And so the soudiours of Syria came no more into the lande of Israell. After this it F chaunced, that Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all his host and went vp, and besieged Samaria. But ther was a great dearth in Samaria: and beholde, they besieged it, vntyll an Asses heade (was sold) for foure score syluer pence, and the fourth parte of a Cab of doues donge, for fyue scles. And as the kynge of Israell was gonge vpon the wal, there cryed a woman vnto hym, saying: Helpe, my Lord O kyng. He sayd: If the Lord do not succoure thee: wherwith can I helpe thee: with the barne, or with the wine presse? And the kynge sayde vnto her: what wylte thou? She answered: ponder woman sayd vnto me: bringe thy sonne, that we maye eate hym to day, and we wil eate mine to morow.

shelles of barley for a sycle in the gate of Samaria. Then a certaine Lorde (on whose hand the king leaned) answered the man of God, and sayd: behold, yf the Lorde would make wyndowes in heauen, myght this saying come to passe? He sayd: Beholde, thou shalt see it with thyne eyes, but shalt not eate thereof. And there wer four leperous menne at the entryng in of the gate. And they sayde one to another: why syt we here vntyl we dye? If we saye, we wil enter into the citie: beholde, the dearth is in the citie, and we shall dye therein. And yf wee sit styll here, we dye also. Now therfore come, and let vs fal vpon the host of the Syrians: If they saue our liues we shal lyue: If they kyl vs, then are wee deade. And soo they arose in the nyght, to go to the hoost of the Syrians. And when they were comme to the vtmost parte of the host of Syria: Beholde, there was no manne there. For the Lorde had made the hooste of the Syrians to heare a noyse of charettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a greate hooste. In so muche that they sayde one to another: loe the kyng of Israel hath hyred against vs the kynges of the Hethites, and the kynges of the Egyptians, to come vpon vs. Wherfore they arose, and fled in the nyghte, and lefte theyr tentes theyr horses, and theyr Asses, and the felde which they had pytched euen as it was, and fled for theyr lyues. And when these lepers cam to the edge of the hooste, they went into a tent, and dyd eat, and drynke, and caryed thence siluer and golde, and raymente, and went and hyd it: came again, and entred into an other tente, and carried thence also, and went and hyd it. Then said one to another: Wee do not well thys day, forasmuch as it is a day to bringe good tidinges, and wee holde our peace. If wee tarye tyll the daye lyght, some mischefe wyll come vpon vs. Now therefore come, that wee may go and tell the kynges household. And so they came and called vnto the porter of the citie, and tolde them, saying: we came to the pauilions of the Syrians: and se, there was no manne there, neyther voyce of man, but horses and asses tyed, and the tentes wer as they were wont to be. And so the man called vnto the porters, and they tolde the kinges house within. And the kinge arose in the nyght, and sayd vnto hys seruauntes. I will shewe you nowe, what the Syrians haue done vnto vs. They knowe that wee be hungry, and therfore are they gone out of the pauilions, to hide them selues in the fyelde, sayinge: whan they come out of the citie, we shall catche them alyue, and get into the citie. And one of hys seruauntes answered and sayd: Let men take (I pray you) fiue of the horses that remaine, and ar left in the multitude. Beholde, they are euen as all the multitude of Israell, that are lefte in the citie: beholde (I saye) they are euen as all the multytude of the Israelytes that are consumed, and we wyll sende, and se. They toke therefore the horses of two charettes, and the kynge sente after the host of the Syrians, sayinge: goe, and se. And they went after them, euen vnto Iordan: and lo, al the way was ful of clothes and vessels which the Syrians had cast from them in their hast. And the messengers retourned, and tolde the kyng. And the people went out and spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And soo it came to passe, that a bushell of fyne floure was solde for a sicle, and two bushelles of barley for a sicle, according to the worde of the Lorde. And the kinge appointed that lord on whose hand he leaned, to be at the gate. And the people trode vpon him in the gate, and he dyed according to the word of the man of God which he sayd, when the kyng came downe to him. And so cam the thyng to passe that the man of God hadde spoken to the kynge, sayinge: Two bushels of barley for a sicle, and a bushell of fyne floure for another: shalbe to morowe this tyme in the gate of Samaria.

And at the seuen yeares end, it fortuned, that the woman came againe out of the lande of the Phylystynes, and went out to call vppon the kynge for her house and for her lande. ¶ The. x. Chapter.

A Jehu 8 g Ahab had • lxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, & sente to Samaria vnto the rulers of Jezraell, to the elders, and to them that broughte vp Ahabs children, saying: nowe whan this letter commeth to you, yee that haue with you youre masters sonnes, yee haue with you, both charettes and horses: a stronge citie haue ye also: and harnes: loke which of youre masters sonnes is best and most meete, and set him on his fathers seate, and fight for your lordes house. But they wer exceedingly afrayd, and sayd: se, two kinges were not able to stand before him howe shall we then be able to stand? And he that was gouerner of Ahabs house, and hee that ruled the citie, the elders also, and the tutoures sente to Jehu, saying: we are thy seruauntes: and wyll do al that thou shalt bid vs: we will make no man kyng therfore, do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes. Then hee wrote another letter to them saynge: Yf yee bee myne, and wyll herken vnto my voyce, the take the heades of the men that are youre masters sonnes, and comme to mee to Jezrahell by to morowe thys tyme. And the kynges sonnes were. lxx. persons, and they were with the greate men of the citie, which brought them vp. And whē the letter cam to them, they toke the kinges children, and slu theym, euen. lxx. personnes, and layed theyr heades in baskettes, and sente them to hym to Jezrahell. And there came a messenger, and tolde hym, saying: they haue brought the heades of the kynges sonnes. And he sayde, let them laye them on two heapes in the entryng in of the gate, vntyll the morning. And whan it was day, he went out, and stode, and said to all the folke: ye be righteous. Behold, I conspired C against my master, and slue him. But who slue all these? Learne here, that there shall fal vnto the earth nothing of the worde of the Lorde, whiche he spake concerning the house of Ahab. For the Lorde hath brought to passe the thynges that he spake by the hand of hys seruaunt • Elia. And so Jehu 3 Re. 21 f slue all that remayned of the house of Ahab, in Jezrahell: and all that were great with hym, and hys kinsfolkes, and his priestes, so that he let nothing of hym remain. And he arose, and departed, and came to Samaria. And whanne Jehu was in the way to the house where the shepherdes did shere theyr shepe, he met with the brethren of Ahaziahu kyng of Juda, and said, what are ye? They answered: the brethren of Ahaziahu are wee, and goe downe to salute the childrenne of the king and of the quene. And he sayde: take thē alyue. Whom when they had takē them alyue, they slue thē at the well, whiche was beside the house where the shepe are shoren, euen two and fortie menne, neyther lefte he any of them. And when he was departed D thence, he mette with Jehonadab, the Jer. 25. a son of Rechab comyng againste him. And he blessed him and said to him, is thine hert right, as mine hert is true with thine. And Jehonadab answered: yea that it is, (yf it be saieth hee) then geue me thyne hand. And when he had giuē him his hand he toke him vp to him into the charette, and sayde: come with me, and se the zeale that I haue for the Lord: and soo they made hym ryde in his charet. And when he cam̄e to Samaria, he slewe all that 2 Re. 16; remayned vnto Ahab, in Samaria, tyll he hadde wyped him oute, according to the saynge of the Lorde, whiche hee spake to Elia. And Jehu gathered all the people together, and said vnto them: • Ahab serued Baal a litle: But Jehu shal serue him more Nowe therefore call vnto me all the E prophetes of Baal, all suche as serue hym, and al hys priestes, and let none be lacking. For I haue a great sacryfice to Baal, and therfore whosoeuer is myssed, he shal not liue. But Jehu dyd it for subtiltye, to the intent that he myghte destroye the seruauntes of Baal. And Jehu said: Proclaime an holy conuocacion for Baal, and Jehu sente vnto all Israel. And all the seruauntes of Baall camme, that there was not a manne lefte behynde, that cam not. And they cam into the house of Baal, & the house of Baal was ful from one ende to another. And he sayd vnto hym that was the keper of the vestrye: bryng forth garmentes for all the seruauntes of Baal. And he brought them out garments. And when Jehu wente with Jehonadab the sone of Rechab into the house of Baall, he sayde vnto the seruauntes of Baal: search, and loke, that there bee here with you, none of the seruauntes of the Lorde, but the seruauntes of Baal onely. And when they went in to offer sacrifyce, and burnteofferynge: Jehu appoynted foure score men without, and sayd: If any of the men, whom I haue brought vnder your hande escape, he that letteth him go, shall dye for hym. And it fortuned, that assone as he had made an ende of offerynge the burntesacrifyce, Jehu sayde to the men of warre, and to the captaynes: Go in, and slay them, lette none come out. And they smote them with the edge of the swoard. And the men of warre, and the captaynes caste them out, and went vnto the citye of the temple of Baal, and set the ymages oute of the temple of Baall, and burnt them. And they brake the image of Baal, and brake the house of Baal, and made a draft house of it vnto this daye. And so Jehu destroyed Baall out of Israell. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israell to synne: Jehu departed not, neyther from folowyng of them (neyther forsoke he) the golden calues that were in Bethel and in Dan. And the Lord saide vnto Jehu, because thou hast done ryght wel, in bryngyng to passe the thynge that is ryght in myne eyes, and hast done vnto the house of Ahab accordynge to al thinges that are in myne hert, therfore shal thy children vnto the fourth generacion syt on the seate of Israell. 4 Kt. 15

And the Lorde had mercye on them, and pitied them, and hadde reſpect vnto them, becauſe of hys appoyntment made wyth Abraham, Iſahac and Iacob, and woulde not deſtroy them, nether caſt he them from hym as yet. The. xv. Chapter.

In the twentie and seuen yere of Jeroboam king of Israell, beganne Azaria sonne of Amazia Kynge of Juda to reygne. 2.par.15.a Syxtene yeare olde was he when he was made king, and he reygned two and fyftie yeare in Jerusalem, and his mothers name was Jecholeiahu of Jerusalem. And he did that which was ryght in the syghte of the Lorde, accordynge to all thynges as dyd hys father Amaziahu: saue that the hil alters were not put away, for the people offred, and burned incense still on 4.reg.14.a the hylaultarcs. And the Lorde smote the kyng, and he was a leper vnto the day of hys death, and dwelt in a seuerall house at libertie, and Jotham the kynges sonne gouerned the pallace and iudged the people of the land. The rest of the wordes that concerne Azaria and all that he didde, are they not written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kinges of Juda? And so Azaria slepte wyth his fathers, and they buryed hym with his fathers in the Citie of Dauid, and Jotham hys sonne reygned in hys steade. In the xxxviii. yere of Azaria kinge of Juda did Zacharia the sonne of Jeroboam reygne vpon Israell in Samaria. vi. monethes: and wrought that whiche was euill in the syghte of the Lorde as did his fathers: and tourned not awaye from the sinnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, which made Israell to sinne. And Sallum the son of Jabes conspyred against him, and smote him in the syght of the people, and kylled hym, and reygned in his steade. The reste of the woordes that concerne Zacharia, beholde, they are wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. These be also the wordes of the Lord: whiche he spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: thy sonnes shall sitte on the seate of Israell in the fourth generation after the. And it came so to passe. Sallum the sonne of Jabes beganne to raygne in the. xxxix. yere of Azaria king of Juda: and hee raigned a monthe in Samaria. For Menahem the sonne of Gadi wente vp from Thirza, & came to Samaria, and smote Sallum the sonne of Jabes in Samaria, and slue hym, and raigned in hys steade. The rest of the wordes that concern Sallum, and the treason whyche hee conspired, beholde, they are wrytten in the booke of the chronicles of the kinges of Israel. The same time Menahem destroyed Thipsah, and all that were therein, and the coastes thereof from Therzahi. And (because they opened not to hym) hee smoote it, and rypt vp all theyr wemen with childe. And he dyd euell in the syghte of the Lorde, and tourned not awaye all hys dayes from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whyche made Israell to synne. In the fiftieth yeare of Azaria kyng of Juda, began Pekahia the sonne of Menahem to raigne ouer Israell in Samaria two yere, and dyd that which was euyll in the syght of the Lorde: and left not of from the sinnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whyche made Israell synne. But Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, whyche was a captayne of hys, conspired agaynste hym, and smote hym in Samaria, euen in the palace of the kynges house F wyth Argob and Aria: and with him were fyfty men of the Gileadites: & he kylled hym, and raygned in his roome. The rest of the woordes that concerne Pekahia, and al that he did: behold, they are written in the booke of the Chronicles of the Kynges of Israell. In the. ix. yeare of Azaria kyng of Juda, began Pekah the son of Remaliahu, to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria. xx. yere, and dyd euyl in the sight of the Lord, and turned not away from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, that made Israel syn. In the dayes of Pekah kyng of Israel, came Thiglath Peleser kyng of Assiria, and toke Iton, Abel, Beth maacha, Janoah, Kedes, Hazor, Gilead, Galile, & all the land of Nephthali, and caryed thē away to Assiria. And Hosea the sonne of Ela conspi- G red treason against Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, and smote hym, and slew him: and reigned in his stede in the xx. yeare of Jotham the sonne of Aziahu. The rest of the woordes that concerne Pekah, and all that he dyd, behold, they are written in the boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Israel. The second yeare of Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu king of Israel, beganne Jotham, the sonne of Aziahu king of Juda to reigne. Fiue and twentie yeare olde was he, when he began to reigne: and he raigned xvi. tene yeare in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Jerusa, the daughter of Zadok. And he dyd that which is ryghte in the syght of the Lorde: euen accordynge to all as dyd his father Aziahu, so dyd he. But the hyll aulters were not put away: for the people offered, and burnt incense stvll in the hyll aulters: he built the hither doore of the house of the Lorde. The rest of the woordes that concerne Jotham, and all that he dydde, are they not written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde began to sende into Juda Rezin, the kyng of Syria, and Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu. And Jotham slept with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the citie of Dauid his father, & Ihaz his sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ The. xvi. Chapter.

The. xvi. yere of Pekah the son of Remaliahu king of Israel, Ihaz the son of Jotham king of Juda, began to raygne. And he offered, and burnt incense in the hyll aulters, and on the hylles, and vnder euerye thycke tree. Then Rezin kynge of Syria, and Pekah sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel came vp to Jerusalem, to fyghte. And they fought agaynst Ihaz, but coulde not ouercome hym. At the same tyme Rezin king of Syria, brought Elath agayn to Syria, and ryd the Jewes thence, And the Syrians came to Elath, and dwelte therein vnto thys daye. So Ihaz sente messengers to Thiglath Peleser kyng of Assiria, saying: I am thy seruant and thy sonne, come vp and deliuer me out of the hād of the kinge of Syria, and out of the hande of the kyng of Israel, whiche rise

In the .xii. yeare of Ahaz kynge of Juda, began Hosea the sonne of Ela to reigne in Samaria vpon Israel .ix. yere, & dyd that which was euyll in the syght of the Lorde, but not as the kynges of Israel, that were before hym. And Salmanasar kyng of Assiria came vp agaynst him, and Hosea became his seruaunte, and gaue hym presentes. And the kyng of Assiria found treason in Hosea: for he hadde sent messangers to Sua kyng of Egypt, and brought no present vnto the kyng of Assiria frome yeare to yeare: and therfore the king of Assiria

3. Es. 13 the kyng of Assiria toke Samaria, and caryed Israell awaye vnto Assiria, and put them in Hala, in Habor, by the riuer of Goza, and in the cities of the Medes. For it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lorde theyr God, whyche had brought them out of the lande of Egypte, frome vnder the hande of Pharao kynge of Egypt, and feared other goddes, and they walked in the ceremonies of the Heathen, whome the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel, and in the ceremonies whiche the kynges of Israell, had made. And the chyldren of Israell wente aboute to hyde those things that were not well, from the Lorde theyr God. And they buylte the hyle auiters in all theyr cities, bothe in the towres,

And there they burnte incense in all the hyll aulters as dyd the heathen, (whom the Lorde caryed awaye before them) and wrought wicked thynges to anger the Lorde withall: for they serued moste vyle ydoles, wherof the Lorde hadde sayde vnto them: • Ye shall do no suche thyng. And the Lorde testifyed in Israell and in Juda by all the prophetes, and by all the sears sayinge: • Turne from youre wycked wayes, and keepe my commaundementes and my statutes, accordynge to all the lawe whiche I commaũded your fathers, and which I sente to you by my seruauntes the prophetes. D of Israell, which they made. And the Lorde caste vp all the seede of Israel, and vexed them, and delyuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had caste them out of his syght. For Israell deuided themselues from the house of Dauyd, and made them a kynge, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And Jeroboam drew Israel away, (that they shoulde not folowe the Lorde) and made them syn a great synne. For the chyldren of Israell walked in all the synnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not there from, vntyll the Lorde put Israell awaye oute of hys syght, as he had sayde by all hys seruauntes the prophetes. And so was Israell caried away out of their owne lande, to Assiria, euen vnto thys daye. And the kynge of Assiria broughte men from Babilon, from Cutha, from Aua, frõ Hanath, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cityes of Samaria, in stede of the chyldren of Israell. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities therof. And it fortuned, that at the begynnynge of their dwellyng there, they feared not the lord. And ỹ E Lorde sent lyons among them, which slue them. Wherfore, men sayde to the kyng of Assiria: The nations which thou hast translated, and put in the cities of Samaria, know not the lawe of the God of the lande, therefore he hath sente Lyons vpon them: and behold they slay thẽ, because they know not the maner of worshipping of the God of the lãd. Then the kyng of Assiria commanded saying: Carye thither one or twayne of the Priestes, whom ye brought thẽce, and let them go, and dwell ther, and teach them the fashion howe to serue the God of the countrey. And then one of the priestes whiche they had caryed thence came, and dwelte in Bethell, and taughte theym howe they shoulde feare the Lorde. Howebeit euery nation made theym Goddes of their owne, and put them in the houses of the hil aulters, whyche the Samarians hadde made, euery nacio in their cities wher F in they dwelt. The men of Babilon made Socoth, Benoth: and the men

And so they feared the Lord, & made them Priestes of the hyll aulters, whiche sacrificed for thē in the houses of the hyll aulters. And so they feared ỹ lord and serued theyr owen Gods after the maner of the people, whome they caried thense. And vnto this daye they doo after the olde maner: and neyther feare God, neither doo after their ordinācēs and customes, & after the lawe and commaundement which the lord

The statutes, ordinaunces, lawe, and commandement which he wrote for you, se that ye be diligent to doo for euermore, and fear nat any other godddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you, see ye forget not, and feare none other goddes: but the Lorde youre God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all your enemies. Howbeit, they did not herken, but dyd after their olde custome. And so these nations feared the lord, and serued theyr images also, lyke as dyd theyr chyldren, and theyr childrēs childzen. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this day.

But they lefte the commaundementes of the Lorde their God, and made them ymages of medal, • euen two calues: & made ydoll groues, and worshypped all the hooste of heauen, and serued Baal. • And they sacrificed theyr sonnes and their daughters in fire, and vsed witchcrafte and enchauntmentes, euen sellyng themselues to worke wickednesse in the syght of the Lord, and to anger him. And the Lorde was exceadyng wroth with Israell, and put them out of hys sight, • that there was lefte but the trybe of Juda only. Neuertheles, Juda also kept not the commaundementes of the Lord their God, but walked in the ceremonyes of Israell, which they made. And the Lorde caste vp all the seede of Israel, and vexed them, and deliuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had caste them out of his syghte. For Israell deuided them selues from the house of Dauyd, and made them a kynge, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And Jeroboam drew Israel away, (that they shoulde not folowe the Lorde) and made them syn a great synne. For the chyldren of Israell walked in all the synnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not there from, vntyll the Lorde put Israell awaye oute of hys syghte, as he had sayde by all hys seruauntes the prophetes. And so was Israell caried away out of their owne lande, to Assiria, euen vnto thys daye. And the kynge of Assiria broughte men from Babilon, from Cutha, from Aua, frõ Hanath, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cityes of Samaria, in stede of the chyldren of Israell. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities therof. And it fortuned, that at the begynnynge of their dwellyng there, they feared not the lord. And ỹ Lorde sent lyons among them, which slue them. Wherfore, men sayde to the kyng of Assiria: The nacions which thou hast translated, and put in the cities of Samaria, know not the lawe of the God of the lande, therefore he hath sente Lyons vpon them: and behold they slay thẽ, because they know not the maner of worshipping of the God of the lãd. Then the kyng of Assiria commanded saying: Carye thither one or twayne of the Priestes, whom ye brought thẽce, and let them go, and dwell ther, and teach them the fashion howe to serue the God of the countrey. And then one of the priestes whiche they had caryed thence came, and dwelte in Bethell, and taughte theym howe they shoulde feare the Lorde. Howebeit euery nacion made theym Goddes of their owne, and put them in the houses of the hil aulters, whyche the Samarians hadde made, euery naciõ in their cities wher in they dwelt. The men of Babilon made Socoth, Benoth: and the men of of Cutha, made Nergal: and the men of Hemath made Asima. The Auites made Nibhaz and Tharthak. And the Sepharnites burnt their childzē in ẏ fyre for Adramelech, and Anamelech, the Gods of Sepharuaim. And so they feared the Lozd, & made them Priestes of the hyll aulters, whiche sacrificed for thē in the houses of the hyll aulters. And so they feared ẏ lozd and serued theyr own Gods after the maner of the people, whome they caried thense. And vnto this daye they doo after the olde maner: and neyther feare God, neither doo after their ordinaces and customes, & after the law and commaundement which the lozd

The statutes, ordinaunces, lawe, and commandement which he wrote for you, se that ye be diligent to doo for euermoze, and fear nat any other godddes. And the appoyntmente that I haue made with you, see ye forget not, and feare none other goddes: but the Lozde youre God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all your enemies. Howbeit, they did not herken, but dyd after their olde custome. And so these nations feared the lozd, and serued theyr images also, lyke as dyd theyr chyldzen, and theyr childzēs childzen. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this day.

SO it cam̃e to passe, that when kynge Hezekia heard it, he rente hys clothes and put on sacke, and came into the house of the Lord, and sent Eliachim which was the stewarde of his housholde, and Sobna the scribe, and the elders of the Prestes clothed in sacke, to Isay the prophete the sonne of Amoz: And thei said vnto him, thus sayth Hezekia: This day is a day of tribulation, and of rebuke and blasphempe. And when he heard men say of Thirhaka kyng of the blacke Moores: Beholde, hee is come oute to fyghte againste thee, he departed, and sente messengers vnto Hezekia, sayinge: Thus speake to Hezekia kyng of Juda, saying: Lette not thy GOD dysceaue thee, in whom thou trustest, saying: Jerusalem shall not bee deliuered into the hand of the kyng of Assiria. Dauid therefore did as God commaunded hym, & they smote the hoft of the Philistines, from Gibeon to Gazer. And the fame of Dauid went oute into all landes, and the Lord made all nacions fear him.

AND Dauid made him houses A in the city of Dauid, and prepared a place for the Arke of God, and pitched for it a tente. Then Dauid sayde: The arke of God ought not to be caried but of the Leuites. For them hathe the Lorde chosen to beare the Arke of the Lorde, and to minyster vnto hym for euer. And Dauid gathered all Israell together to Jerusalem, to fetche the Arcke of the Lorde, vnto his place, which he hadde ordayned for it. And Dauid broughte together the children of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cahath was Uziel the chiefe, and of his brethren there were an hundred and. xx. Of the children of Merari, Asaia the chefe: and of his brethren two hūdred and twentye. Of the sonnes of Gerson, Joel the chefe: and of his brethrē an hundred and thirtye. Of the childrē of Elizaphan, Semmaia ỳ chefe: and of hys brethren, two hūdred. Of the sonnes of Hebron: Eliel the chefe: and of his brethren eightye. Of the B sonnes of Uziel, Aminadab the chefe: and of his brethren and. C. and. xii. And Dauid called Sadock and Abiathar the Priests & the Leuites, Uziel, Asaia, Joel, Samaia, Eliel, and Aminadab, and said vnto them: Ye that ar the principall fathers of the Leuites se that ye be holy with your brethren, that ye may bryng in the Arke of the Lorde God of Israell, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it. For because ye were not there at the first, the Lord our God made a rent among vs for that we sought him not, as the fashion ought to be. So the priests and the Leuites sanctified them selues: to fette the Arke of the Lord GOD of Israel. And the children of the Leui-tes bare the arke of God vpon theyr shoulders wyth staues thereon, as Moyses commaunded, accordynge to C the worde of the Lorde. And Dauyd spake to the chefe heades of the Leuytes, that they should appoynte certayne of their brethren to synge with instrumentes of musicke, psalteryes, harpes and symballes that they might make a sounde, and to sing on hie with ioyfulnesse: And the Leuytes appointed Heman the sonne of Joell: and (of his brethren) Asaph the sonne of Berechia: And of the sonnes of Merari, and of theyr brethrē, Ethan the sonne of Cusaiahu: And wyth theym theyr brethren of the seconde degree: zacharia, Ben Jaazeli: Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiahu, Maasiah, Mathathiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikneiahu, Obed, Edom, and Jeiel, porters. So Heman, Asaph, and Ethan the syngers made a sounde wyth symballes of brasse. And zacharia, Aziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maasiahu and Banaiahu, plaid with Psalteries on an Alamoth. Mathathiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikneiahu, Obed Edom, Jeiel and Azaziah plaied vpon harpes, an eight aboue wyth courage. And Chenaniahu the chiefe of the Leuites, was master of the sōg for he taught other to synge, because D he was a man of vnderstanding. Berechia and Elcana kepte the doore of the arcke. And Secaniahu, Jehosaphat, Nethaniell, Amasai, zachariahu, Banaiahu and Eliezer the preestes dyd blowe wyth trompettes before the arke of God. And Obed Edom and Jthai were keapers of the 2Re.6.c doore of the arke. * And Dauid and the elders of Jsrael, and the captaynes ouer thousandes went to fet the arcke of the appointment of the Lord out of the house of Obed Edom with gladnes. And when God healped the Leuites that bare the arke of the apointment of the Lord, they offred seuen oxen, and seuē rammes. And Dauid had on him a linnen garment, like as had also al the Leuytes that bare the arke, and so had the syngers, and Chanania the ruler of the song, with the singers And Dauid had vpon him an Ephod of linnē. And al thei of Jsrael brought the arke of the Lordes couenant with showting: and blowing of ỹ shawme and trompettes, making a noyse with symballes, psalteries and harpes. And as the arke of the appointment of the Lorde came into the citie of Dauyd, Michol the daughter of Saule, looking out at a windowe, sawe kynge Dauid daunsing and playing, and she despysed him in her heart.

A SO they brought in the arcke of God and sette it in the middes of the tente that Dauid pitched for it. And they offered burnte sacrifices and peace offeringes before GOD. And when Dauid had made an ende of offeringe the burntofferynges and peaceoffrynges, hee blessed the people in the name of the Lord, And he dealt to all Jsraell (both man and woman) a crackenel of breade, and a good pece of flesshe, and a flacket of wyne. And he apoynted certayne of the Leuytes to mynyster before the Lorde, and to repete, and to thanke and prayse the Lord God of Jsrael, And Asaph was the chefe, and nexte to him zacharia, Jeiel, Semiramoth: Jehiel, Mathathia, Eliab, Benaia, * Obed Edom, and Jeiel with psalteries and harpes But Asaph made a sounde with symbales. Banaiahu & Jahaziel prieستes blewe wyth trompettes continually before the arcke of the couenaunt of God. And that same time Dauid did B apomte chiefelye to thanke the Lord, by Asaph and his brethren. * O gene thankes vnto the Lorde, call vpon his name, make hys actes knowē among the people. Sing vnto him and plaie vnto him, talke of all hys wonderful dedes. Reioice in his holy name: lette the hartes of theym that seeke the Lorde be gladde. Seke the LORD and hys strengthe: Seeke hys presence alway. Remembre his maruelles whych he dyd, and hys wonders, and the iudgementes of hys mouthe.

The

The sede of Israell are his seruants: the childzen of Jacob are his chosen. He is the Lozde our GOD: in all landes are his iudgementes. Thinke on his appointement foz euer, and on the wozde which he commaunded to a thousand generatoins.) Whiche he made with Abraham, and of his oth to Isahac: whiche he set before Jacob foz a decree, and to Israel foz an euerlastyng conenant, saying: To the wil I gene the land of Canaan, to be the pozion of your enheritaunce. When you were fewe and small in numbze, and soiozners therin. And they walked from nation to nation, and frome one kyngdome to an other people. He suffred no man to do them wzong: but C rebuked, euen kynges foz their sakes.
Touche not myne annointed, and do Pl.95.a. my pzophets no harme. Syng vnto the Lozd all the earth: and shew from day to day his saluation. Tell of hys glozy among the heathen: his wonderfull dedes among all nations. Foz great is the Lozde, and wozthy to be praised exceedyngly: he is to be feared aboue all Gods. Foz all the gods of the people are of no value: But the Lozde made heauen. Pzayse and honour are in his pzesence: strength and gladnes are in his place. Ascribe vnto the Lozd ye kynreds of people, Ascribe to the Lozd, glozy and dominion Ascribe vnto the Lozd, the glozy due vnto his name: Bzyng sacrifices, and come before him, and wozship the lozd with holye honoz. Let all the earthe feare hym, although the compasse of the earth be so estabilished, that it can not be moued: let the heauens reioyce and let the earth be glad, and let men tell among the nations, that the lozde is kyng. Let the sea thunder, and the fulnes therof, let the fieldes reioyce, and all that is therin. Then shall the trees of the wodde reioyce at the pzesence of the Lozd, because he commeth to iudge the earthe. O geue thankes vnto the Lozd, foz he is good, foz hys mercy endureth euer: and say ye, saue D vs (O god) of our saluation, gather vs together, and deliuer vs frome among the heathen, that we may geue thanckes to thy holye name, and tryumphe in the pzayse of thee. Blessed be the Lozde God of Israell foz euer and euer, and let all people say Amen, and pzayse the Lozde. And so, he lefte there before the Arcke of the Lozdes couenaunte, Asaph and hys bzethzen to minyster before the arcke contynually, in suche thynges as were to be doone daye by day, (and that by theyr courses.) And Obed Edom and hys bzethzen, thze score and eight, and Obed Edom the son of Jeduthun, and Hosa were appoynted to bee pozters. And Zadocke the Pziest, and hys bzethzen the pziestes, were before the tabernacle of the Lozde, in the hye place that was at Gibeon, to offer burnte offerynges vnto the Lozde, vppon the burntofferyng altare perpetually, in the mozynnge and euening, accozding to all that whyche is wzytten in the lawe of the Lozde, whyche hee commaunded Israell. And wyth theym were Hemã and Jeduthun, and other that were chosen (whose names wer expzessed) to geue thankes to the lozd, that his mercy lasteth euer. And with them did Heman and Jeduthun, syng wyth the Trumpets and symbalies, making a swete melody wyth instrumentes of musicke and godly songes. And the sonnes of Jeduthun were pozters. And all the people departed, euery manne to his house, and Dauid returned to bielle his house.

C. The. xvii. Chapter.

AND it foztuned that whē Dauid dwelt in hys house, he sayd to Nathan the pzophet: loe, I dwel in an house of Cedar tree: but 2.Re.7.a the Arcke of the Lozdes couenaunte remayneth vnder curtayns. And Nathan sayde vnto Dauid: doo all that is in thyn hart, foz God is wythithee. And the same nyghte it foztuned, that the wozde of GOD came to Nathan, sayinge: goe and tell Dauyd my seruaunte, thus sayeth the Lozde: Thou shalt not buylde me an house

he to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I broughte out the chyldren of Israell, vnto this daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habitacion to another.

And whersoeuer I haue walked with all Israell, spake I euer one word to any of the Iudges of Israel, (whom I commaunded to fede my people) saying: why haue ye not built me an house of Ceder tree? Nowe therfore, thus shalt thou saye vnto my seruaunt Dauid: thus sayth the Lord B of hoostes: I toke the out of the pastures whē thou wentest after shepe, that thou shouldest be captayne ouer my people Israell. And I haue bene with thee whether soeuer thou haste walked, and haue weded out all thine enemyes oute of thy syghte, and haue made thee a name, lyke the name (of one) of the greatest men that are in the earth. And I haue ordeined a place for my people Israel, and made it fast: so that nowe they may dwell in their place, and moue no more. Nether shal the chyldren of wickednes vexe them any more as at the begynnyng. And sence the tyme that I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israel, I haue subdued all thyne enemyes, and I tolde thee, that the Lord wolde C buylde thee an house. This also shall came to passe: when thy dayes be expired, that thou muste go vnto thy fathers, I wyll rayse vp thy seade after thee, which shalbe of thy sonnes, and I wyll prepare for hym the kynge-dome. He shall buyld me an house, and I wyll stablysshe hys seate for euer. I wylbe hys father, and he shall be my sonne, and I wyll not take my mercy away from him, as I toke it frō hym that was before thee. But I will set him in myne house and in my kynge-dome for euer: and hys seate shalbe sure for euermore. Accordynge to all these wordes: and according to al this vision, dyd Nathan tell kynge Da-uid. And Dauid the kynge came and sat before the Lorde, & sayd: What am I (O Lord God,) and what is mine houshold, that thou haste promoted me thus farre? And yet thys semed litle in thine eyes, O God: But thou haste spoken also of thy seruauntes house for a great whyle to come: and haste loked vppon me as vpon a man of hye degree (O Lorde God.) What shal Dauid desire more of thee for the honoure of thy seruaunte? For thou haste knowen thy seruaunt: O Lord, for thy seruauntes sake, euen accordynge to thyne owne herte hast thou done all this magnificence, to shewe all great thynges. Lord, there is none D lyke thee, neither is ther any god saue thou, accordynge to all that we haue heard with our eares. Moreouer, what nacion on the earth is lyke the people Israell, to whom God hath vouchsafed to come and redeme them to be his owne people, and to make thee a name of excellencye and terri-blenes, with castyng out nacions frō before the people, whom thou hast de-liuered out of Egypt? Thy people of Israell diddest thou make thyne own people for euer, and thou becameste their God. Therfore nowe Lorde, let the thyng that thou haste spoken concernyng thy seruaunt, and his house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou hast sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name may be magnified for euer, that it maye be sayde: the Lorde of hoostes is the God of Israell (euen the God of Israell) and the house of Dauyd thy seruauute endureth stable before thee. For thou (O my God) hast told thy seruaunt, that thou wylte builde hym an house. And therfore thy seruaunte hath founde in hys herte to praye before thee. And nowe Lorde, thou art God, and hast promysed this goodnes vnto thy seruaunte. Nowe therfore, let it be thy pleasure to bielle the house of thy seruaunt, that it may continue before thee for euer. For whō thou biellest (O Lord) the same is bielled for euer.

¶ The. xviij. Chapter.

AND after this it fortuned, that Dauid smote the Philistines, and subdued thē, & toke Geth and the townes that longed thereto, out

out of the handes of the Philistines. And he smote Moab, & the Moabits became Dauids seruauntes, and paid him tribute. And Dauid smote Hadarezer king of zoba vnto Hamath, as he went to stablish his dominion by the riuer Euphrates. And Dauid tooke from him a thousand charets, and vii. M. horsmen, and .xx. M. fotemen, and lamed all the charrets horses, and reserued of them an. C. charrettes. And when the Sirians of Damasco came to helpe Hadarezer king of zoba, Dauid slue of the Sirians .xxii. M. and Dauid subdued Siria & Damasco: And the Sirias became Dauids seruauntes, and brought him trybute.

And the Lord preserued Dauid in all that he went to. And Dauid toke the shieldes of golde that were on the seruauntes of Hadarezer, and broughte them to Jerusalem. And from Tebhath, and from Chun (cities of Hadarezer) brought Dauid exceding much brasse. Wherwith Salomon made ♀ 3.m.7.b. brasen lauatorye: • the pillers, and the Je.52.c. besseis of bras. And whē Thou king C of Hemath, hearde howe Dauid had beaten all the strengthe of Hadarezer kinge of zoba: hee sente Hadoram his sonne to kinge Dauid, to make peace with him, and to blesse him, because he had fought against Hadarezer, and beaten him (for Thou had war wyth Hadarezer,) and Dauid broughte all manner of iewels of gold, syluer, and brasse wyth him. And king Dauid dedicated them vnto the Lord, with the siluer and gold that he broughte from all nations: from Edom, from Moab, from the childzen of Ammon, from the Philistines and from Amelec. And Abisai the sonne of zeruia slew of the Edomits in the salt valley .xviii. M. and putte souldiers in Edom, and all D the Edomites became Dauyds seruauntes. Thus the Lord kept Dauid in all that he tooke in hand. And Dauid raigned ouer al Israel, & executed iudgement and righteousnesse among all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zeruia was ouer the host, and Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahihud Recorder, & zadock the son of Ahitob and Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar wer the priestes: and Hauesa was scribe, and Banaiahu the sone of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites, & the Phelethites and the eldest sonnes of Dauid were next vnto the king.

¶ The .xix. Chapter.

AFter thys, it chaunced, that • Nahas the kynge of the childzen of Ammon dyed, and his sonne raigned in his steade. And Dauid sayde: I wil shewe kindnesse vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas: because hys father dealt kyndelye wyth me. And Dauid sente messengers to comforte him ouer the deathe of hys father. And the seruauntes of Dauid came into the lande of the chyldzen of Ammon to Hanon, to comforte hym. But the Lordes of the chyldzen of Ammon sayd to Hanon: thinkest thou that Dauid doeth honoure thy father in thy sight: that hee hathe sente comforters vnto thee? Are not his seruāts come to searche, to looke and espy oute B the land • Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, (and polde them,) & shaued them, and cut of theyr coates hard by theyr buttockes, and sent thē away. And there wēt certayn, & tolde Dauid, howe the mē wer serued. And the king sent to mete them (for the mē wer exceedingly ashamed) & the kyng said: tary at Jericho, vntil your berds be grown: and then return. And whē the childzen of Ammon sawe that they stanke in the sight of Dauid: Hanon, & the childzen of Ammon sente a. M. talentes of siluer to hire them charets & horsmen, oute of Mesopotamia, and out of Siria, Maacha and out of zoba. And they hired .xxii. M. charets, and the king of Maacha and his people, whyche came and pitched before Medeba. And the chyldzen of Ammon gathered them selues together from theyr cityes, and came to battayl. And when Dauid hearde of it, he sent Joab and all the hoste of stronge men.

And

And the childrē of Ammon came out, and putte them selues in aray to battayle before the gate of the citye. And the kings that were come: kept them by them selues backe in the fyelde.

¶ When Joab also sawe that the fronte of the battaile was agaynste hym before and behynde: he chose oute of all the chosen menne of Israel, and putte them in aray against the Syrians. And the reast of the people he delyuered vnto ꝯ hād of Abisai his brother, and they putte them selues in aray agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayde: If the Syrians be to strong for me, thou shalt succoure me: and if the chyldren of Ammon preuayle agaynst thee: I will help thee. Plucke vp thyne hearte, and lette vs play the men: for our peoples sake, and for the cities of our God, and the Lorde shall doo that whiche is good in his owne syghte. So Joab and the people that were wyth hym, drewe nie before the Syrians vnto the battayle, and they fledde before hym. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syryens were fled, they ranne away likewise before Abisai hys brother, and gate them into the citye. And Joab

D came to Jerusalem. And when ꝯ Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israell, they sent messēgers and set out the Syrias that were beyonde the riuer, and Sophach the captaine of the host of Hadarezer wēt before theym. And it was tolde Dauid: and he gathered all Israell, and wente together ouer Jordan, & came and set vppon them. And when Dauid had put hym selfe in aray againste the Syrians: they foughte with him. But the Syrians fled before Israell. And Dauid destroyed of the Syrians seuen thousand charets, and .xl. thousande footemen, and killed Sophach the captayne of the hoste. And when the seruants of Hadarezer, sawe ꝯ they were put to the worse before them of Israell: they made peace with Dauid: and became his seruauntes. Neither wold the Syrians help the chyldren of Ammon any more.

AND it came to passe, that after the yere was expyred, (• about the tyme that kynges go oute a warrefare:) Joab caryed out the armye of the hooste: and • destroyed the countrye of the chyldren of Ammon, & cam and besieged Rabba, and destroyed it. • But Dauid taryed at Jerusalem, whyle Joab smote Rabba, & destroyed it. And Dauid toke the crowne of their kynge, from of his heade, and founde that it hadde the wayghte of a talent of golde, and there were precyous stones in it: and it was ordeyned for Dauids head. And he brought also exceadynge muche spoyle oute of the citye. And he brought oute the people that were in it: and tormented them with sawes and harrowes of yron, ¶ and wyth other sharpe instruments, and so dealt Dauid with all the cities of the chyldren of Ammon. And Dauid and all the people came agayne to Jerusalem. • After this it fortuned, ꝯ there arose warre at Gazer with the Philistines. At whiche tyme Sobochai the Husathite slewe Sappai, that was of the childrē of • Rephaim: and they were subdued. And there was a battaile again with the Philistines: & Elhanam the sonne of Jair, slewe Lahemi: the brother of Goliah the Gethite, whose spere was like a weuers beame. And there chanced yet agayne warre at Geth, whereas was a man of a greate stature, with .xxiiii. fyngers and toes, fyue on euery hand, and fyue on euery foote, & was the son of Raphah. But when he defied Israell, Jehonathan the sonne of Himea, Dauids brother slue him. These were borne vnder Raphah at Geth, and were ouerthrowen in the hande of Dauid: and in the hande of his seruauntes.

¶ The .xxi. Chapter.

AND Satan stode vp agaynste Israel, and prouoked Dauid to noumbre Israel. And Dauid sayd to Joab, and to the rulers of the people: Go ye and noumbre Israel from Beer Seba to Dan, and bringe it to me, that I may knowe the numbre of them. And Ioab answered: the Lord make his people an. C. times so manye mo as they be. But my Lorde, O kynge, are they not all my Lordes seruauntes? why then doth my Lorde require thys thinge? why will my Lord be a cause of trespasse to Israel? Neuertheles, the kynges word preuayled agaynste Ioab. And Ioab departed and walked thorowoute all them of Israell, and came to Ierusalem agayne, and gaue the numbre of ꝑ count of the people vnto Dauid.

And all they of Israell were a thousand thousande, and a hundred thousand men that drue sweard: and Iuda was. cccc. lxx. thousande menne that drue sweard: But the Leuites & Benjamin counted he not amonge them. For the kynges word was abhominable to Ioab. And the Lord was displeased wyth this thynge: and smote Israel. And Dauid sayd vnto God: I haue synned exceedingly e in doynge thys thing. And now (I beseche the) do away the wickednesse of thy seruaunt, for I haue done very foolishly.

And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids sear, saying: goo, and tell Dauid, saying. Thus sayth the Lord: I geue thee the choyse of thre thinges: chose the one of them, that I maye do vnto thee. And Gad came to Dauid, & sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth the Lorde: Chose thee, either thre yeres famyshment, or thre monthes to be destroyed before thyne aduersaryes, and that the sword of thine enemies may ouertake the, or els the sweard of the Lord, and pestilence in the lande thre dayes: and the aungell of the Lorde destroyinge thorowout all the coastes of Israell. And now aduise thy self, what worde I shal bringe againe to him that sente me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad, I am in an exceding strait: Lette me fall nowe into the hande of the Lorde, for passynge greate are his mercyes: but let me not fall into the hande of men.

So the Lord sent pestilence vpon Israell, and there were ouerthrowen of Israel. lxx. thousande men. And God sent the aungel into Ierusalem to destroy in it. And as he was about to destroy, the Lorde beheld, and had compassion on the euil, and sayd to the angell that destroyed: it is inough, lette now thyne hande cease. And the aungel of the Lord stode by the threshing floze of Ornã the Iebusite. And Dauid lift vp his etes, and saw the angel of the lord stand betwene the earth & heauen, hauing a drawen sweard in his hand, stretched out toward Ierusalem. Then Dauid and the elders of Israel which wer clothed in sack, fel vpon their faces. And Dauid said vnto God: is it not I that cõmaunded ꝑ people to be noumbred? It is not I ꝑ haue synned and done euil in dede, and what haue these shepe done? let thyne hand (O lord my God) be on me and on my fathers house, but not on thy people, that they should be punished.

And the aungel of the Lord cõmaunded Gad to say to Dauid, that Dauid shuld go vp, and set vp an auiter vnto the Lord, in the threshing floze of Ornan the Iebusite. And Dauid wente vp, accordinge to the sayinge of Gad, whiche hee spake in the name of the Lord. And Ornan turned aboute, and saw the aungel, and hys foure sonnes were with hym, and hid them selues: But Ornan, was threshing wheate. And as Dauid came to Ornan, Ornan loked and saw Dauid, and went out of the threshinge floze, and bowed hymselfe to Dauid, wyth hys face to the ground. And Dauid said to Ornã geue mee the place of the threshynge floze, that I may build an auiter therin vnto the Lord. Then shalt geue it me for as much monye as it is worth, ꝑ the plage may cesse from the people. And Ornan said vnto Dauid: take it to thee, and let my Lorde the kyng do that whyche semeth good in his eyes. Lo, I geue thee Oxen also for burntsacrifyces, and the threshinge sleades for woode, and wheate for meate offerynge: I geue it all. And kynge Dauid sayde to Ornan: not so, but I will bye it for as muche moneye as it is worth. For I wil not take ꝑ whyche is is thine for the Lord, nor offre burnt-D offerynges without cost. And so Da-uid gaue to Ornan for that place sy-cles of golde. vi. hundred by wayght.

And Dauid built ther an aulter vnto the Lorde and offred burntofferinges and peaceofferinges, and called vppon the Lord, and he heard him from heauen in fyre vpon the aulter of burntoffring. And when the Lorde had spoken to the angel, he put vp hys swerd againe into the sheath of it. At that time when Dauid saw that the Lord had heard him in the threshing floore of Ornan the Iebusyte, he vsed to of-fre there. For the Tabernacle of the Lord, which Moses made in the wil-dernesse, and the aulter of burntoffe-ryng were at that season in the hyll of Gibeon. And Dauid coulde not go before it, to aske counsayle at God, for he was afrayd of the sweard of the aungell of the Lord.

¶ The. xxii. Chapter.

A And Dauid sayde: this is the house of the Lorde God, and this is the altar for the burntofferynge of Israell: And Dauid commaunded to gather together the strangers that were in the land of Israell, and hee set masons to hewe free stone for the building of the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentie of iron for nailes: and dores of the gates, and to ioyne withall, and abound-daunce of brasse without waight, and Cedre trees withoute numbre: For the Zidons and they of Tyre brought muche Cedre woodde to Dauid. And Dauid sayde: Salomon my sonne is ponge and tender, and the house that is to be built for the LORDE, must excede in greatnes, that it may be spoken of and praysed in all lands. I wyl therefore make ordeynaunce for it.
And so Dauid prepared manye thin-ges before hys death. And hee called Salomon hys son, and charged him to builde an house for the Lorde God B of Israell. And Dauid sayde to Sa-2Re.7.b lomon: my son, I thought (as it was 2Re.4.a in myne heart) to build an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God.
But the worde of the Lorde came to me, saying: Thou haste shed muche blood, and haste made greate battayles: thou shalt therfore not buylde an house vnto my name: for thou haste shed much blood vpon the earth in my sight. Behold, a sonne is born to thee, and he shalbe a man of reste, for I wyll geue hym rest from all hys ene-myes roundc about. For his name is Salomon, and I will sendc reste and peace vpon Israell in his dayes. He shall buyld an house for my name, and he shalbe my sonne, and I wylbe hys father, and wyll prepare the seate of hys kyngdome vpon Israell for euer.
Nowe therfore my sonne, the Lorde be with the, and prosper the, and thou shalt buylde the house to the name of the Lorde thy God, as he hath sayd of thee. And the Lorde shall geue thee ¶ wisedome and vnderstandynge, and shal geue thee commaundementes for Israell, that ye maye kepe the lawe of the Lorde thy God. For then thou shalt prosper: euen when thou takeste hede and fulfyllest the statutes and lawes, which the Lord charged Moses with for Israel. Plucke vp thyne herte therefore, and be stronge, dreade not, nor be discouraged. Beholde, in myne aduersitye haue I also prepared for the house of the Lorde, an hundred thousande talentes of golde, and a thousande thousande talentes of syuer, and as for brasse and yron, it cannot be numbred, for it is very muche.
And I haue prepared tymber & stone, and thou mayest prouide more therto.
Moreouer, thou hast workmen with thee ynowe, and masons, and carpenters to worke in stone and tymber: and many men that be actiue for euery worke. And of gold, syluer, brasse and yron, ther is no number. Up therfore and be doynge, and the Lorde shalbe all the Lordes of Israel to helpe Salomon hys sonne, saying: Is not the Lorde your God with you? and hath he not geuen you reste on euery syde? for he hath geuen the enhabitaunces of

the lande into my hande, and the land is subdued before the Lord, and before his people. Nowe therefore set your hertes & your soules to seke the Lord your God. Up, and buyld ye the temple of the Lord God, to bring the arke of the couenaunt of the Lord, and the holy vessels of God into the house, so built for the name of the Lord.

And so the auncient fathers, and the lordes of the trybes of Israell, the captaynes of thousandes and hundredes, with the lordes that were rulers ouer the kynges worke, were wyllyng, and gaue for the seruyce of the house of God, fyue thousande talentes of golde, and ten thousande peces of gold, and ten thousand talentes of syluer, and .xviii. thousand talentes of Brasse, and one hundrede thousande talentes of yron. And they with whom precious stones were founde, gaue them to the treasure of the house of the Lorde, by the hand of Jehiel the Gersonite. And the people C reioyced, when they were so wyllyng to geue their goodes, & with a perfect herte they offered vnto the Lord. And Dauid the kyng reioyced with great gladnes. And Dauid blessed the Lord before all the congregacion, and sayd: Blessed be thou Lorde God of Israel oure father, from euer and for euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, and power, glory, victorye, and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in earthe is thine, and thine is the kyngdome (O Lorde) and thou excellest aboue all, euen as the heade of all. And rychesse and honoure come of thee, and thou reygnest ouer all, and in thyne hande is power and strength, and in thyne hand it is to make greate, and to geue strength vnto al. And now our God, we thanke thee, & prayse thy glorious name. But who am I? & what is my people? ỹ we should enforce ourselues to geue these thynges so wyllyngly?

AND Salomon the sone of Dauid waxed stronge in hys kyngdome: and the • Lord his god was 3 Re.3.a with him, and magnified him in the dignitye. And Salomon spake vnto all Israel, to the captains ouer thousandes, and to the captaynes ouer hundredes, to the Iudges, and to euerye officer in all Israell, and to the auncientе fathers. And so Salomon and 3 Re.3.a all the congregacion with him • went to the hye place that was at Gibeon: 1.pa.21.d • for there was the tabernacle of wit- • Ex.36. nesse of God • which Moyses the ser- 37.38. uaunte of the Lorde made in the wil- 2.re.6.a derneſſe. But the Arke of God • had Dauid brought from Kiriath Iearim, into the place which Dauid had prepared therfore. For he had pytched a tent for it at Ierusalem. Moreouer Ex.38.a the brasen aulter • that Bezaleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur had made was there. before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the congregacion went to visite it. And Salomon gate vp there before the Lorde to the brasen aulter, that was before the tabernacle of witnesse, and 3.Re.3.c • offered a thousande burntsacrifices vpon it. And the same nyght dyd God appeare vnto Salomon, and sayd vnto hym: Aske what I shall gene thee. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed greate mercy vnto Da- Dep. 9.a uyd my father, and • haste made me to 1.re.3.a reygne in his steade. • Now therfore, O Lord God, let thy promysse which thou madest vnto Dauid my father, 3 Re.3.a be true. • For thou haste made me kynge ouer a people, whiche is lyke the dust of the earthe in multitude: wherefore, gene me now wisdome and knowledge, that I maye be able to go in and oute before this people: for who els (wortheye) can iudge thys people that is so greate? • And 3 Re.3.b God sayd to Salomon: Because this ℭ was in thyne herte, and because thou haste not asked treasure and rychesse, and honoure, and the lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but haste asked wisdome and knowledge for thy selfe, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made thee kynge: wisdome and knowledge is graunted vnto thee, and I wyll gene thee treasure and rychesse, and glory: so that amonge the kynges that haue bene before thee, or after thee, none was or shall be lyke thee. And so Salomon came from the hylaulter (that was at Gibeon) to Ierusalem, from the tabernacle of witnesse, and reigned ouer Israell. • And Salomon gathered 3.re.10.b charettes, and horsemen: and he had a ℭ thousand and foure hundred charets: and twelue Thousande horsemen, whom he bestowed in the charet Cityes, and with the kynge at Ierusalem. • And the kynge made syluer and 3.re.10.b golde at Ierusalem as plentrous as stones: and Cedre trees made he as plentye as the mulberye trees, that growe in the valleyes. And the horses whyche Salomon hadde, were brought hym oute of Egypte by the kynges marchauntes, that were together, whiche beynge of one companye, toke them oute at a pryce. They came also and brought out of Egypte a charet for sixe hundred peces of syluer: euen an horse for an hundred and fiftye. And so brought they horses for all the kynges of the Hethites, and for the kynges of Syria, by theyr owne hande.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

AND Salomon determined to ℭ builde an house for the name of the Lorde, and an house for his kyngdome: And Salomon tolde oute threescore and ten thousande men to beare burthens, and fourescore thousand men to hewe stones in the mountayne tayns: and thre thousand and six hun-sent to Hiram the kynge of Tyre, say-1 Re. 5 yng: As thou dyddest deale with Da-uid my father, and ¶ dyddest send hym Cedar wood, to build him an house to dwel in, euen so deale with me. For I am about to builde an house for the name of the Lord my God, to offre vn to him holye thinges, and to burne sweete incense, and to set shewbreade before him continually: to offre burnt sacrifyce of the mornynge and cueninge: on the Sabboth daies, in the first day of euerye newe moone, and in the solempne feastes of the Lorde oure God: for it is an ordinaunce to be continually kept of Israel. And the house which I build shalbe great: for great is oure God aboue all Goddes. But whoe is able to builde him an house: when that heauen, and heauen aboue all heuens is not able to receiue him? what am I then that I shold builde hym an house? nay, but euen to burne sacrifice before hym, shall this buylding be: send me nowe therfore a cunning man, that can worke in gold and siluer, in brasse and yron, in purple cre mosin and pealowe silke, and that can skil to graue, with the cunning men, that are wyth me in Juda and Jerusalem, whom Dauid my father didde prepare. Sende me also Cedar trees, Pyne trees, and Almuge trees, out of Libanon. For I wotte that thy seruauntes can skill to hewe tymbre in Libanon. And beholde my men shalbe with thine, that they may prepare me tymbre inough. For the house which I am determined to build, shalbe wōderfull great. And beholde, for the vse of thy seruantes, the cutters and hew-ers of timbre: I haue geuen. xx. thousande quarters of beaten wheate, and . xx. thousande quartes of barley, and C . xx. thousande bates of wyne, and. xx. thousande bates of oyle. And Hiram the king of Tyre annswered in wry-tinge, whiche hee sente to Salomon: Because the Lord hath loued his peo ple, therfore hath he made thee kyng ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreo-uer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whiche made heauen and earth, and that hath geuen Dauid the kyng a wyse sonne, and one that hath discre tion, prudence and vnderstanding, to build an house for the Lord, and a palace for hymselfe. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man, and a man of vnderstandinge (whom my father Hiram did vse) ¶ the sonne of a woman of the 3 Re. 7. b daughters of Dan, and hys father was a man of Tyre, and hee can skyll to worke in gold and siluer, in brasse, and yron, in stone and timbre, in purple, and pealowe silke, in fyne whyte and cremosin: and can graue sondrye maner of graunynges, and to finde oute diuerse maner of subtil woorke that shalbe set before hym, with thy cunning men, and with ☞ cunning mē of my Lorde Dauid thy father. Nowe therefore, the wheat, and barley, oile, and wine, whych my Lorde hath spoken of, let hym sende vnto his seruan-tes. And we wyll cut wood in Libanon, as much as thou shalt nede, and we will bring it to thee, in shyps by sea to Japho from whence thou mayest carie them to Jerusalem. And Salomon numbred all the straungers that were in the land of Israell, after the numbre of theym, whom hys father Dauid had numbred. And they were found an hundred and three and fyftie thousand and fyue hundred. And he set lxx. thousand of them to bear burthēs and. lxxx. thousande to hewe stones, in the mountaine: and thre thousand, and fyue hundred officers, to sette the people a worke.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

AND Salomon began to build I the house of the Lord at Jeru- 1 par. 21 salē in mount Moria ¶ where (the Lorde) appeared vnto Dauid his father, euen in the place that Da-uid prepared in the threshynge floore Acts. 7. i. of Ornan the Jebusite. And he begā 3 Re. 6. a. to builde in the seconde daye of the second month the fourth yeare of hys rygne. And these are the patternes where-whereby Salomon was instructe to builde the house of God. The lengthe was three score cubites after the olde measure, and the breadthe .xx. cubites.

The porche, that was in breadthe as large as the temple, hadde .xx. cubites: and the heigthe was an hundred and B xx. cubites: And he overlayde it on the inner syde with pure golde. And the greater house he filed with firre tree, which he overlaid with the best gold, and graued therto Palme trees and chaynes. And he overlayde the house with precious stone beautifully. And the gold was gold of Paruaim. The house (I saye) the beames, poostes, walles and doores therof, overlayde he with golde, and made grauen worke vppon the walles. And hee made the house moste holy, whose length was twenty cubites, like to the breadthe of the house, and the breedthe therof, was also twenty cubytes. And hee overlayd it with good gold, euen with vi. hundred talentes. And the waight of the nayles of golde was fiftye syccles. And he overlayd the vpper cham bers with golde. * And in the house moost holy, he made two Cherubins C of ymage worke, like children, and o-Ex. 25.b uerlayed them with golde. And the wynges of the Cherubs were .xx. cu-bites long. The one winge was fyue cubites, reachinge to the wall of the house, and the other winge was lykewise fiue cubites reaching to ỹ wyng of the other Cherub. And euen so the one winge of the other Cherub was fiue cubites reachinge to the wall of the house, and the other wynge was fiue cubites also, and reached to the wynge of the other Cherub. So that the wynges of the sayde Cherubes were stretched oute twentye cubites.
And they stode on theyr feete, and loked inwardes. And hee made a fore hanginge of peloswe silke, purple, cre-mosin, and fine white, and caused the pictures of Cherubs to be broudered theron. And he made before ỹ house, two Pyllers of .xxxv. cubites hyghe.
And the heade that was aboue on the toppe of euery one of them was fyue cubites, and he made chaines of wre-then woorke for the quere, and putte them on the heades of the pyllers, and made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chaynes. And he reared vp the pillers before the Temple: one on the ryght hande: and the other on the left: and called the right Jachin and the left, Boaz.

¶ The .iiii. Chapter.

AND he made an alter of brasse B xx. cubites long, and .xx. cubi-bites broade and ten cubytes hie. * And he caste a brasen Lauatorye 3. re. 7. b. of ten cubits from brim to brym, roud in compasse, and fiue cubites hie: and a line of thirty cubits did compasse it rounde aboute. And vnder it was the fashyon of Oxen which did compasse it round about: with ten cubites vyd they compasse the Lauatorye rounde about, and there were .ii. rowes of oxen whiche were caste of lyke molten worke. And it stode also vpon twelue oxen: three loked towarde the Northe, three toward the west, three towarde the South, and three toward the East: and the Lauatory was set vpon them, and all theyr backes were toward the Lauatory. And the thickest of it was an hand bredth, and the brym lyke the brim of a cuppe with floures of lilies.
And it receyued and held three thousand bates. * And he made ten lauers, B and put fiue on the ryghte hande, and 3. re. 7. b. fiue on the lefte, to washe and clense in them, suche thynges as they offred for a burnt offring. But ỹ great La-uatory was for the priestes to washe in. And he made ten candlesticks of gold (according to ỹ patern that was geuen of them) and putte them in the temple: fiue on the righthand, & .b. on the lefte. And he made also .x. tables, & put them in the temple, .b. on the right side, and fiue on the left. And he made an C. basynes of golde. And he made the court of the priestes, and the great court and doores to it: and overlaid the doores of them with brasse. And he set the great lauatory on the right side of

C th: East end, ouer against the southe. And Hiram made pottes, shouelles, and basens, and finyshed the woorke that hee was appoynted to make, for kynge Salomon in the house of god. The two pillers, the couerynges, or two heades, on the toppe of the pyllers: and the two wreathes to couer the two scalpes or heades that were on the toppes of the pillers: and foure hundred Pomegranettes on the two wrethes, two rowes of pomegranets on one wrethe, to couer the two tops, or heades that were on the pyllers. And hee made two bottomes, and lauers made he vppon the bottomes: the greate Lauatorye, and twelue Oxen vnder it. Pottes also and shouelles, flesshokes, and all these vessels did Hiram (hys father) make to kynge Salomon for the house of the Lorde of bryghte brasse. In the playne of Jordan did the kynge caste them, euen in the clay ground that is betwene Socoth and Zaredatha. And Salomon D made all theese vesselles in greate aboundaunce, for the wayght of brasse could not be reckned. And Salomon made all the vessels that were for the house of God: the golden aulter also & the tables to set the shewbread vpon. Moreouer, the Candelsticke wyth their lampes (to burne after the manner before the queere) and that of precyous golde: and the floures and the lampes, and the snoffers made hee of golde, and that perfecte golde: and the dressinge knyues, basens, spones, and sencers of pure golde. And (he made) the doore of the temple, and the inner dores wythin the place moste holye, and the inner dores of the temple were gylted. And so was all the woorke that Salomon made for the house of the Lord finyshed.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

AND so al the woorke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynyshed, and Salomon brought in al the thinges 3.Reg.7 that Dauid hys father had dedicated, wyth the syluer and golde, and all the iewels, and put them among the treasures of the house of God. Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israell together, and al the heades of the tribes and auncyente fathers of the chyldren of Israell, vnto Jerusalem: to bryngе the Arke of the couenaunte of the Lorde oute of the cityе of Dauid: whiche is in Zion. Wherefore, all the men of Israel resorted vnto the king in the feaste, euen in the seuenth moneth. And all the elders of Israell came, and the Leuites tooke vppe the Arke. And the priestes and the Leuites broughte awaye the Arke and the tabernacle of witnesse, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, B and they bare them. And kinge Salomon, and all the congregation of Israell that were assembled vnto hym before the Arke, offred shepe and Oxen, so manye, that they coulde not bee tolde nor noumbred for multitude. And the priestes brought the Arke of the appoyntmente of the Lorde vnto hys place, euen into the queere of the Temple, wythin the place moste holy, and set it vnder the wynges of the Cherubs, that the Cherubs stretched out theyr winges ouer the place of the Arke, and the Cherubs couered bothe the Arcke and her barres aboue on hye. And the barres of the Arcke were so longe, that the heades of the barres were seene wythout the Arke wythin the queere, but not wythout. And there the Arcke remayned vnto thys day. But there was nothyng in C the Arcke, saue the twoo Tables 3.Reg.8 whiche Moses put therein at Horeb, when the Lorde made a couenaunte with the children of Israel, after they were come out of Egypte. And it fortuned, that when the Priestes were come oute of the holy place (the sanctuarye was fylled wyth smooke) for all the Priestes that were presente, were sanctyfyed, and dydde not then waye by course, that boothe the Leuytes, and the syngers vnder Asaph, Heman and Jeduthun, wer appoynted to sundrye offices, with their children

childzen and bzethzen, and were arayed in fine whyte, hauynge Symbals, Psalteries, and harpes, and stoode at the East end of the aulter: and by thē an hundzed and twenty pzieſtes blowinge with Trompettes. And the trompet blowers and the syngers so agreed, that it semed but one voyce in pzaisynge and thanckynge the Lozde. And when they lyfte vp their voyce wyth the Trompettes, Cimballes, and other Instrumentes of muſycke: and when they pzaised ỹ Lozd (and said:) how that he is good, and that his mercy lasteth euer: the house of God was filled with a cloud: so that the pzieſtes coulde not endure to minister, by the reason of the clonde. For the maiesty of the Lozde hadde filled the house of God.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

3.re.8.b. THen Salomon sayd: • the lozd hathe spoken, how that he wil dwel in ỹ clonde. And I haue builte an habitation for thee, & a place for thy dwellynge for euer. And the kynge turned hys face, and blessed the holecongregation of Israell, and all the congregation of Israel stode. Not withstandinge, thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne whych is procseded out of thy loynes, he shal build an house for my name. The Lozd therfore hathe made good his saying that he hath spoken, and I am risen vp in the roume of Dauid my father, and am sette on the seate of Israell, as the Lozde promised, and haue buylte an house for the name of the Lozde God of Israell. And the kynge stoode before the aulter of the Lozde, in the presence of al the congregation of Israel, and stretched out his hands. Cap. 9. d
2. Par. 8 g
AND • when Salomon had made an ende of prayng • ther came downe fyre from heauen, and consumed the burntofferyng, and the sacrifices. And the house was fylled wyth the glorye of the Lorde, and the Priestes coulde not goo into the house of the Lorde, because the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes house. And when all the chyldren of Israell sawe howe the fyre, and the glory of the Lorde came downe vpon the house, they fell downe flatte vpon their faces to the earth vpon the paue ment, and worshipped, and confessed B vnto the Lorde that he is gracious, and that his mercye lasteth euer. And the kyng and all the people offered sacrifices before the Lorde. And kynge Salomon offered a sacrifice of. xxii.
M. oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand shepe. And so the kyng & all the people dedicated the house of god.
And the priestes wayted on their offices, and the Leuites had the instrumentes of musike of the Lorde, which kyng Dauid had made to confesse vnto ỹ Lord, that his mercy lasteth euer: playing a psalme of Dauid with their hand. And the Priestes blewe wyth trompets before them: and all they of Israel stoode. Moreouer, Salomon halowed the myddle of the court, that was before the Lord: for ther he offred burnt offerings, & the fat of the peace offrings, because ỹ brasen altar which Salomon had made, was not able to receiue the burnt offrings, & the meat offrings & the fat. So at ỹ same time, Salomon kept a • feast of seuen days C and all they of Israell with hym, an 1. Mac. 3 exceedynge greate congregation, euen from the entryng in of Hamath: vnto the riuer of Egypt. And in the eight day they made a gatheryng. For they kept the dedication of the aulter seuē days, and the feast seuen dayes. And the. xxiiii. day of the seuenth moneth, he lette the people departe, into their tents glad and mery in hearte: for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed D racll his people. • And so Salomon fynyshed the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house: and all that cam in his heart to make in the house of the Lorde, and in hys owne house, went prosperously forewarde. And the Lorde appered to Salomon by night and sayde to hym: I haue heard thy petition, and • haue chosen this place 2. pa. 6. a fice. If I shut vp heauen that there ues, and make intercession, and seeke

A 3.re.9.b. AND ✱ it fortuned, that after twentie yere when Salomõ had built the house of the lord and his owne house, he buylte the cities that Hiram gaue hym, and put of the children of Israell in them. And Salomon went to Hamathzoba, and strengthed it. And he buylte Thadmor in the wyldernesse, and repayred all the store cities which were in Hamath. And he builte Bethhoron the vpper, and Bethhoron the nether, stronge cities, hauyng walles, gates, and barres. And Baalah, and all the store cities that Salomon had, and al the charet cities, and the cities of the horsemen, and euery pleasaunte place that Salomon had lust to buylde in Ierusalem and Libanon, and thorow out all the land of his dominion. And B all the people that wer left of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuits and Iebusites, whyche were not of the children of Israell: but were the chyldren of them, whyche were lefte after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the children of Israell, them did Salomon make to paye tribute, vntil this day. But of the chyldren of Israel did Salomon make no bondmen for hys worke: but they wer men of warre, and rulers, and greate Lordes with him, and captaines ouer hys charets and horsemen. And king Salomons officers that ouersaw and ruled the people, were two hundred and fifty. And Salomon brought the C daughter of Pharao oute of the citye of Dauid, into the house that hee had builded for her. For he sayd: my wife shall not dwell in the house of Dauid kyng of Israel, for it is holye: because that the arke of the Lord is come vnto it. Then Salomon offred burnt offerynges vnto the Lorde, on the aultare of the Lorde, whyche he had built before the porche, doing euerye thyng in hys due time, and offeryng accordyng to the commaundement of Moses, in the Sabbothes, newe Moones, and

And Salomon set the sortes of priests to their offices, as Dauid his father had ordered them, & the Leuites in theyr watches, for to prayse and minyster before the priestes daye by daye, and the porters by course, at euery gate. ✱ For so 1.par.9 had Dauid the man of God commãded. And they omitted not the D commaundemente of the kynge vnto the priestes and the Leuites, concernynge any manner of thing, and concernyng the treasures. For Salomon made prouisyon for the charges, from the fyrste daye that the foundatyon of the house of the Lorde was layed: tyll it was fynyshed, that the house of the Lorde was perfect. Then went king Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to

Eloth

Eloth at the red sea side in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the handes of his seruauntes, shippes, and seruauntes that had knowledge of the sea: and they came with the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and caried thence foure hundred and fiftie talentes of golde, and brought it to king Salomon.

3.R.10a mat.12b Lub.10b

AND when the Quene of Saba heard of the fame of Salomon, she came to proue him in hard questions at Jerusalem with a very great companie with camels that bare spices and plentie of golde, and precious stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with him of al that she had in her hearte. And Salomon soyled her all her questions, and there was not one word hid from Salomon, which he tolde her not. And when the Queene of Saba had sene the wisdom of Salomon, & the house that he had built: and the meate of his table, the sitting of his seruauntes, and the standing of his waiters, their apparell, his butlers, their apparell, his going by, by the whiche he went into the house of the Lorde, there was no more spirite in her. And she saide to the king: the saying which I heard in mine owne lande, of thine actes, and of thy wisedome, is true. I beleued not the wordes of them, vntill I came, and mine B eyes had sene it. And beholde, the one halfe of thy wisedome was not tolde me: for thou exceadest the fame that I heard. Happy are thy men, and happy are these thy seruauntes which stand before thee al way, and heare thy wisdome. Blessed be the Lord thy God, which had lust to thee, to set the king on his seate, that thou mightest bee king, ordeined by the Lord thy God: Because thy God loueth Israell, and hath delighte to make them continue euer: therfore made he thee king ouer them, to do righte and equitie. And she gaue the king an hundred and. xx. talentes of golde, and of spices exceading great aboundance, and precious stones: neither was there any more such spice as the quene of Saba gaue king Salomon. And the seruauntes C of Hiram, and the seruauntes of Salomon which brought golde from Ophir, brought also almuge wood and precious stones. And the kinge made of the almuge woode steyres in the house of the Lorde, and in the kinges palace, and harpes and psalteries for singers. And ther was no such wood sene before in the lande of Juda. And kinge Salomon gaue to the Queene of Saba euery pleasaunt thing that she asked, but not so muche as she brought vnto the kinge. And so she turned and went away to her owne lande with her seruantes. The weight D of gold that came to Salomon in one yere, was syxe hundred. lxvi. talentes of golde, besides that which chapmen and marchauntes brought, and al the kinges of Arabia, and rulers of that countrey brought gold and siluer to Salomon. And kinge Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, and syxe hundred sicles of beaten golde were spent vppon one buckler, and three hundred shieldes made he of beaten gold, and one shield cost three hundred peces of golde: and the kinge put them in the house that was in the forest of Libanon. And the kinge made a great seate of Iuorie, and ouerlaied it with pure gold. And there were syxe steppes to the seate, with a footestole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche side of the sitting place, and two Lions standing by the pōmels. And twelue Lions stode on the one side and on the other vpon the syxe steppes, soo that there was no suche worke made in any kingdome. And all the drinking E vesselles of kinge Salomon were of golde, and all the vessels of the house that was in the forest of Libanon were of precious gold: for siluer was counted nothing worth, in the daies of Salomon. For the kinges shippes went to Tharsis with the seruauntes of Hyram: euery three yere broght euery man his present, vessels ous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous as the mulberie trees that

A AND • Rehoboam went to fled into Egipt from the presence of Salomon the king) hearde it, he returned out of Egipt. And they sente and called him. And so Jeroboam and al they of Israel came and communed with Rehoboam, saying: Thy father layde a greuous yoke vpon vs: nowe therfore remit thou somewhat of the greuous seruice of thy father, and of his heauie yoke that he put vpon vs: and we will serue thee. And he saide to them: come agayne vnto me after three daies. And the people departed.

And kinge Rehoboam counselled B with the elders that had stande before Salomon his father, while he yet li-ye me, to aunswere this people again.

And they tolde him, saying: If thou be kind to this people, and shewe thy selfe lowelye to them, and speake lo-thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsayle which the elders gaue men that were growen vp with him, and that stode in his presence. And he said vnto them: what aduise geue ye, that we may aunswere this people, which haue communed with me, saying: Abate somwhat of the yoke whithe ponge men that were growen vp with him, spake vnto him, saying. Thus shalte thou aunswere the people that spake to thee saying: Thy father made our yoke heauye: but make thou it somewhat lighter for vs. Thus shalte thou saye vnto them: my litle finger shall be hea-where my father put a heauye yoke vppon you, I will putte more to your yoke: my father chastised you hoboam the thirde daye, as the kinge badde, saying: Come agayne to me the thirde daye. And the kinge aun-swered them cruelye: and kinge Rehoboam lefte the counsell of the aged menne, and aunswered them after the aduise of the younge men, saying: My father made your yoke greuous, and I will adde thereto: my father chastised you with whippes, but I wil chastise you with scorpiōs.

And so the kinge harkened not vnto D the people, but the occasion came of God, that the Lord might make good his sayinge, • which he spake, by the hande of Ahia the Silonite to Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when all they of Israell sawe that the king would not agre vnto them, the people answered the king, saying: What part haue we with Dauid, or inheritance with the sonne of Isai: let euery man 3.m.12.d of Israell go to his tent. • And nowe Dauid, see to thine house. And so all Israel gat them to their tents, so that Rehoboam reigned ouer no mo of the children of Israell, then dwelt in the Cities of Juda, then king Rehoboam also sent Haduram that was ruler ouer the tribute, and the children of Israel stoned him with stones that he died. But kinge Rehoboam made speede to get him vp to his charet, to flee to Jerusalem. And they of Israel rebelled against the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

3.m.12.e AND when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem • he gathered of the heuse of Juda and Ben Jamin, nine score M. chosen mē of warre to fight against Israel, and to bring the kingdome againe to Rehoboam. And the woord of the Lord came to Semeiahu the man of God, saynge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon king of Juda, and to all them of Israell that are in Juda and Ben Jamin, and say: thus saieth the Lorde: Ye shall not go vp nor fight against your brethren, retourne euery man to his house, for this thing is doone of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lord, and returned frō goinge against Jeroboam. And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, & builte B strong cities in Juda, he builded vp Bethlehem, and Etham, and Theko: Bethzur, Socho, and Aduliam: Gath & Mareša, and Ziph, Adurahim, Lachis and Ašecha: zorea, Aialon, & Hebron, which is in Juda and Ben Jamin, stronge cities. And he repaired the stronge holdes, and put captaines in them, and store of vitaile, and wine and oyle. And in all Cities hee putte shieldes and speares, and made theim exceading strong, hauinge Juda and Ben Jamin on his side. And the priestes and the Leuites that were in all Israell, resorted to him out of al their coastes. For the Leuites left their su-boam and his sons had caste them out from ministring vnto the Lord. • And 3.re.12.g

he ordained him Priestes for the hill aulares, for the Deuiles, and for the caiues whiche he had made, and after the Leuites ther went of al the tribes of Israell, suche as submitted their heartes to seke the Lord god of Israell, and came to Jerusalem, to offer vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And so they strengthed the kingdome of Juda, and made Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon, mighty thre yere longe, for three yeare they walked in the waye of Dauid and Salomon.
D And Rehoboam toke him Mahalath the daughter of Jerimoth, the son of Dauid to wife, & Abiahil the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Isai, which bare him children Jeus, Samaria, & 3.re.15.a zaha. And after her he tooke • Maacah the daughter of Absalon, which bare him Abia, Athai, Ziza, and Selomith. And Rehoboam loued Maacah the daughter of Absalon aboue al his wiues and concubines, for hee tooke xviij. wiues, and thre score concubins and begat. xxviij. Sonnes, and three score daughters. And Rehoboā made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chiefe ruler among his brethren, and to haue the ouersight of the kingdome. And he plaied wiselye, and scattered all his children throughout all the Countries of Juda, and Ben Jamin vnto euery strong citie. And he gaue them aboundaunce of vitaile, and obtained manye wiues.

But for all that, Jeroboam conueied men priuelie about to come behind them, and so they were before Juda, and the layers in wayte were behinde them. And when they of Juda loked about: behold the battell was before and behinde, and priestes blewe with the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a showte.
D And as the men of Juda showted, it came to passe, that God smote Jeroboam, and all Israell before Abia and Juda. And the children of Israel fled before Juda, and God deliuered them into their hande. And Abia and his people slue a great slaughter of them: there fell downe wounded of Israel fyue hundred thousande chosen men. And so the children of Israell were brought vnder at that time, and the children of Juda preuailed: because they leaned vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And Abia followed after E Jeroboam and toke cities from him: Bethel, with the townes belonging therto. Jesana with the townes that belonged thereto, and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboam recouered no strength againe in the daies of Abia. And the Lord plagued him, and he died. But Abia waxed mightie, and maried. xiii. wiues, and begat. xxii. sonnes, and. xvi. daughters. The rest of the actes of Abia, his customes and sayinges are written in the storie of the prophet Iddo.

2 Chr. 15 And Asa did that was good and right in the eies of the Lord his God: for he toke away straunge aulters, and the hil aulters, and brake downe the images, and cut down the groues, and commaunded Juda to seeke the Lorde God of their fathers, and to do according to the lawe and commaundement. And he put away out of all the cities of Juda the hilaulters and the ymages: and the kingdome was quiet before him. And he built strong cities in Juda, because the lande was in reste, and he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had geuen him reste. Therefore he saide vnto Juda:
B let vs build these cities, and make about them walles, towres, gates, and barres, for the lande is yet in rest before vs, because we haue sought the Lord our God: we haue sought him, and he hath geuen vs rest on euery syde: and so they builte, and it prospered with them. And Asa had an armie of menne that bare shieldes and speares, out of Juda, three hundred thousande: and out of Ben Jamin that bare shyldes, and drewe bowes, two hundred & foure score thousand, all these were valiant men. And there C

Thou art the Lord our God, and no man ſhall preuaile againſt thee. D
So the Lord ſmote the blacke Moores before Aſa & Juda, and the blacke Moores fled. And Aſa and the people that was with him, followed after them vnto Gerar. And the blacke Moores hoſt was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them left, but wer deſtroyed before the Lord, and before his hoſte. And they caried away a mightie great praye. And they ſmote all the cities round about Gerar. For the feare of the Lord came vpon them. And they ſpoyled all the Cities, and there was exceding muche ſpoyle in them. They ſmote alſo the tentes of cattell, and caried away plentie of ſheepe and camels, and returned to Jeruſalem.

A AND the ſpirite of God came on Azaria the ſonne of Obed. And he went out to mete Aſa and ſaide vnto him: Heare me Aſa, and all Juda and Ben Jamin. The Lord is with you, while ye be with him, and when ye ſeeke him, he will be founde of you: and againe when ye forſake him, he alſo will forſake you. And truely for a long ſeaſon in Iſraell no man ſought the true God, no mā regarded the prieſt that taught them, no man cared for the lawe. And nation was deſtroyed of nation, and citie of citie: for God did moue all aduerſitie amōg them. Play ye therfore the men, and let not your hands ſlacke for your woorke ſhall be rewarded. B And when Aſa heard thoſe woordes, and the prophecie of Azaria the ſonne of Obed the Prophet, he tooke courage, and put away the abhominable ydoles out of all the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the cities whiche he wanne in mount Ephzaim, and renued the aulter of the Lorde, that was before the porche of the Lord. And he gathered all Juda and Ben Jamin, and the ſtrangers with them out of Ephzaim, Manaſſe, and Simeon. For there fell many to him out of Iſraell, when they ſawe that the Lorde his God was with him. So they aſſembled C at Jeruſalem the third moneth, the fyftenth yeare of the reigne of Aſa. And they offered vnto the Lorde the ſame time of the ſpoyle whiche they had brought. vii. C. oxen, and. vii. thouſande ſheepe. And they made a couenaunt to ſeeke the Lorde God of their fathers, with all their heart, and with all their ſoule. And whoſoeuer would not ſeeke the Lord God of Iſraell ſhold dye for it: whether he wer ſmall or great, man or woman. And they ſware vnto the Lorde with a loude voyce, ſhouting and blowing with trompets and ſhaulmes. And al they in Juda reioyced at the othe, for they had ſworne vnto the Lord with all their heart, and ſought him with all their luſte, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them reſte D

And kinge Aſa put Maacha his mother out of auctozitte, becauſe ſhe had made an abhominable ydol (of Priapus) in a groue: and Aſa brake downe her ydoll, and ſtamped it, and burnt it at the brooke Cedron. But all the hill aulters were not taken away out of Iſraell, though the heart of Aſa was perfect

IN the .xxxvi. yere of the reign of Asa, came Baasa kinge of Israell vp against Juda, and builte Rama, to that intente he would let none passe oute or in (safelye) to Asa king of Juda. And Asa set out golde and siluer, out of the tresures of the house of the Lord, and of the kinges house, and sent to Benhadad kinge of Syria, that dwelt at Damesec, and saide: There is a con-

Beholde, I haue sente thee siluer and golde, that thou wilt come and breake thine appointment with Baasa kinge of Israell, that he maye departe from mee. And Benhadad graunted vnto kinge Asa, and sent to the captaines of his armie to the cities of Israell. And they smot Jion, Dan, and Abelmaim, and the strong cities of Nephthali. And when Baasa heard this, he lefte building of Rama, and let his worke cease. And then Asa the kinge tooke all Juda, and caried away the stones and timber of Rama, wherewith Baasa was a buildinge, and he built therewith Geba & Mizpa. At that time, Hanani the seer came

And Asa was wroth with the seer, and put him into a prison house, for he was displeased with him, because of this thing. And Asa destroyed certaine of the people the same season. And beholde these deedes of Asa, first and laste, are written in the booke of the kinges of Juda and Israell. And Asa in the .xxxix. yeare of his reigne fell sicke in his feete, and that his dis-

And they buried him in his owne sepulchre, which he had made for him selfe in the Citie of Dauid, and laied him in the bed which he had filled with diuerse kindes of spices and sweete odours, made by the crafte of the poticaries. And they burnt very muche spice about him.

Mat.1.d against Israell. And he put souldiers in all the stronge Cities of Juda, & set rulers in the land of Juda, and in the cities of Ephraim whiche Asa his father had wonne. And the Lorde was with Jehosaphat, because he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, & sought not Baalim. But sought the Lord God of his father, and walked in his commaundementes: and not after the doings of Israell. And the Lorde stablished the kingdome in his hande, and all they that were in Juda, brought him presentes, so that he had aboundaunce of riches and honour. And he lift vp his C heart vnto the wayes of the Lord, and he put downe yet more of the hilaultars and groues out of Juda. In the third yere of his reigne he sent to his lordes, euen to Benhail, Obadia, Zacharia, Nathanel, & to Michaahu that they should teach in the cities of Juda, and with thẽ he sent Leuites, euen Semiahu, Nethaniahu, Zabadiahu, Asaell, Semiramoth, Jehonathan, Adoniahu, Tobiahu, and Tubadonia and with them Elisamah and Jehoram priestes. And they taught in Juda, and had the booke of the lawe of God with them, and wente about throughout al the cities of Juda, and

And some of the Philistins brought Iehosaphat giftes, and tribute syluer, and therto the Arabians brought him cattel: euen. vij. M. and vij. hundred rammes, and. vij. M. & vij. hundred hegotes. And so Iehosaphat prospered and grue vp an hye. And he builte in Juda, castelles and strong Cities: and he had great substaunce in the cities of Juda, but the men of armes and strongest souldiers were in Jerusalem. And these are the offices of them in the houses of their father, the capitaines ouer the thousandes in Juda. Adna the captaine, and with him of fighting men three hundred. M. B he answered him: I will be as thou, and my people shall be as thine, and we will go with thee to the war. And Iehosaphat said vnto the king of Israell: aske counsell I pray thee, at the woorde of the Lorde, this same day. Therefore the king of Israell gathered together of prophets. iiij. But Iehosaphat said: is there yet here neuer a prophet more of the Lordes that we might aske of him? And the king of Israel said vnto Iehosaphat: there is yet one man, by whom we may aske the Lorde. But I hate him: for he neuer prophesieth me good, but alway euil, and the same is Michea the son of Jimla. And Iehosaphat saide: Let not the king saye so. And the king of Israell called one of his chamberlaines, and said: fetche hither quickely Michea the sonne of Jimla. And the king of Israell and Iehosaphat king of Juda sat eyther of them on his seate in their apparell, in a threshing flooze beside the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes prophesied before them. And one Zedekia the sonne of Chanana had made him hornes of yron, and saide: thus saieth the Lord: with these shalt thou ouerthrowe Syria, vntill they bee brought to naught. And all the prophetes prophesied euen soo, saying:
C Go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and it shall prosper with thee: for the Lord shall deliuer it into the hande of the king. And the messenger that went to cale Michea, spake to him, saying: behold, the woordes of the prophetes speake good to the kinge with one assent, let thy woordes therfore be like one of theirs, that thou speake that whiche is pleasaunt. And Michea said: as truly as the Lord liueth, euen what my god saith, that will I speke.

And when he was come to the king, the kinge saide vnto him: Michea, shall wee goo to Ramoth in Gilead to fight, or leaue off? And he saide: goe vp, and all shall be well: and they shal be deliuered into your hand. And the king saide to him: So and so many times I charge thee that thou saye nothing but the trueth to me, in the name of the Lord. Then he said: I did

I After this also, it fortuned that the childzen of Moab and the childzen of Ammon, and with them other of the Ammonits came against Iehosaphat to battel. And ther came some that told Iehosaphat, saying: there commeth a great multitude against thee from the other side of the sea, and oute of Siria. And beholde, they be in Hasason Thamar, whiche is Engadi. And Iehosaphat feared, and set him selfe to seeke the Lord, and proclaimed fastinge throughoute all Juda. And they that were in Juda, gathered themselues together, to aske counsell of the Lorde, and they came oute of al the Cities of Juda, to make intercession to the Lord. And Iehosaphat stode betwene the congregation of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lord before the new court, and said: O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in heauen, and reignest not thou on all the kingdomes of the Hethen? And in thine hand is power B and might, and there is no man that is able to withstand the. And he saide, herken all Juda, and ye inhabiters of Jerusalem, and thou king Iehosaphat: Thus saith the Lord vnto you: be not afraide, nor faynte harted by reason of this great multitude: for the battell is not yours but Gods. To morow go ye downe against thē: D for they come vp at ziz, & ye shal finde them at the ende of the brooke before the wildernes of Jeruel. Ye shall not nede to fight in the battell: but steppe forth and stand, and behold the helpe of the Lord which is with you: feare not, nor let your hartes faple you: O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morow go out against them: for the Lord will be with you. And Iehosaphat bowed his face to the earthe, and all Juda and the inhabiters of Jerusalem fell before the Lord worshipping the Lord. And the Lenites of the children of the Cahathites, and of the children of the Corathites stode vp, to prayse the Lorde God of Israell with a loud voice on hye. And when they arose early in the morning, they gat them out vnto the wildernesse of E Thekoa. And as they went out, Iehosaphat stode and said: heare me, O Juda, and yee inhabiters of Jerusalem. Put your trust in the Lord, your God, that ye may be founde faithfull. Geue credence to his prophets, and so shall yee prosper. And he gaue the people counsell, and set some to singe vnto the Lorde, and to prayse him in the bewtie of holines, and to goe out before the armie as they went, and to saye: praise the Lord, for his mercy lasteth euer. And what time as they beganne to laude and prayse, then the Lord stered vp certaine of the children of Ammon and Moab, which layed wait for thē that wer of mount Seir which were come against Juda. And thei wer ouerthrowē with strokes among thēselues. For the children of Ammon & Moab rose against the enhabiters of moūt Seir. And they slue and destroyed them. And when they had made an ende of the enhabiters of Seir, euery one helped to destroy another among themselues. And when Juda came to the edge of the wildernes, they loked vnto the multitude. And behold, they were dead carcasses F fallen to the earth, & none escaped. And when Iehosaphat & his people came to take away the spoyle of them, they founde among them aboundaunce of goods, rayment, and pleasant iewels, which they toke for them selues, more then they coulde carry away: so that they were three daies in gathering of the spoyle, it was so muche. And the fourth day they assembled in the valley of blessing: for ther they blessed the Lorde. And therfore they called the name of the same place, the valey of blessing vnto this day. And so all the men of Juda and Jerusalem returned with Iehosaphat their heade, for to go agayne to Jerusalem with gladnesse: for the Lord had made them to reioyce ouer their enemies. And they came to Jerusalē with psalteries and harpes, and shawmes, euen vnto the house of the Lord. And the feare of god fell on the kingdomes of all landes, when they had harde that the Lorde fought against the enemies of Israel. And so the realme of Iehosaphat was G in tranquilitie: and his God gaue 3.re.12.f them reast on euery side. And Iehosaphat reigned vpon Juda, and was xxv. yere old when he began to reign, and reigned. xxv. yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Abusa the daughter of Silhi. And he walked in the way of Asa his father, and bowed not there from, doinge that whiche was righte in the sight of the Lord. Howbeit the hill auters were not taken away, for the people had not yet prepared their hartes vnto the God of their fathers. The rest of the actes of Iehosaphat fyrst and last: beholde, they are written among the sayings of Jehu the sonne of Hanani, which noted them in the booke of the kinges of Israell. After this did Iehosaphat kinge of Juda ioyne him selfe with Ahaziahu kinge of Israell whose minde was to do wickedly. He coupled him selfe with him to make shipps to go to Tharsis, and they made the shippes in Ezion Gaber. And Elieser the sonne of Dodanah of Maresa prophesied against Iehosaphat, saying: because thou hast ioyned thy selfe with Ahaziahu, the Lorde hath broken thy worckes. And the shipps were broken that they were not able to go to Tharsis.

And thou shalte sucker great paine: euen a disease of thy bowels, vntill thy guttes fall out by reason of thy sickneſſe, day by day. And so the Lord stirred vp against Iehozā the spirite of the Philistines, and the Arabians that were beside the blacke Moores. And they came vp into Iuda, and wasted it, and caried awaye all the substaunce that was founde in the kinges house, and his sonne, and his wiues: so that there was neuer a sonne left him, saue Iehohahas, which was the yongest among his sonnes. And after all these things, the Lord smote him in his bowels with an incurable disease: And it came to passe, ꝑ in processe of time, euen after thend of .ij. yeres, his guts fell out in his sickenes: & so he died of very euill diseases. And they made no burning for him like the burninge of his fathers. When he began to reigne he was .xxij. yeare old, and reigned in Ierusalem .viij. yere, and liued wretchedly: howbeit they buried him in the Citie of Dauid, but not amonge the sepulchres of the kinges.

AND the inhabiters of Ierusalē made Ahaziahu his yonge sonne king in his stead. For the men of war • that came with the 4.Re.21.b hoste of the Arabians, had slaine all his eldest sonnes. And so Ahaziahu the sonne of Iehoram king of Juda, was made king. ¶ Two and fortie yere olde was he, whē he began to reigne, and he reigned one yere in Ierusalē: His mothers name was Athaliahu the daughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wais of the house of Ahab, for his mother (by her counsell) entised him to do wickedly. Wherefore he did that which was euill in the sight of the Lorde, as did they that were of the house of Ahab: for they were his councellers after the death of his father to his destruction. And he walked after their counceil, & went with B Iehoram ẏ son of Ahab king of Israeli, to fight against Hazael kinge of Siria at Ramoth in Gilead: and the Sirians smote Iehoram. And he returned to be healed in Iezreil, of the woundes whiche were geuen him at Rama, when he fought with Hazaeli king of Siria. And Hahaziahu the sonne of Iehoram king of Juda, went downe to see Iehoram the son C of Ahab at Iezrel, because he was diseased. And it came of God, that Ahaziahu should be despised for his comming to Iehoram: for when he was come, he went out with Iehoram againste Iehu the sonne of Nimsi, 4.Re.9.b • whome the Lorde had annointed to destroye the house of Ahab. And so it came to passe, that when Iehu was executing iustice vppon the house of Ahab, and hadde found the Lordes of Juda, and the sonnes of the brethren of Ahaziahu, that waited on Ahaziahu, he slew them. 4.Re.9.f • And he soughte Ahaziahu, and they caught him where he was hid in Samaria, and brought him to Iehu. And when they hadde slaine him, they buried him: because (saide they) he is the sonne of Iehosaphat, which sought the Lorde with D all his heart. And the house of Ahaziahu, hadde no power to kepe still the kingdome. • But when Athaliahu 4.Reg.9 the mother of Ahaziahu saw that her sonne was dead, she arose and destroied all the kinges sede in the kinred of the house of Juda. And Iehosabeth the daughter of the king tooke Joas the sonne of Ahasiahu, and stale him from amonge the kinges sonnes, that were slaine, and putte him and his nourse in a priuie chamber. And so Iehosabeth the daughter of king Iehoram, the wife of Iehoiada ẏ priest, and the sister of Ahaziahu hidde him frō Athaliahu, that he was not slain. And so he was with them hid in the house of God. vj. yeare. And Athaliahu reigned ouer the lande.

AND • in the seuenth yere Iehoiada being bolde, tooke the captains of hundreds, Azariahu the son of Iehoram, and Ismael the sonne of Iehohanam, Azariahu the sonne of Obed, Maaziahu the son of Adaiahu, and Elisaphat the sonne of Zichri, and made a bonde with thē. And they went aboute in Juda, and gathered the Leuites out of all the cities of Juda, and the auncient fathers of Israel: and they came to Ierusalē. And all the congregation made a bōd with the kinge in the house of God. And he saide vnto them: beholde, the Kinges sonne must reigne, • as the 3.re.11.a Lord hath said of the children of Da- and.9.b. uid. This is it therefore that ye shall 2.pa.6.c. do: The third part of you shall (on the 7.d. and Sabboth) come to the Priestes, Le- 21.b. uites, and kepers of the porches. And another third part shalbe by the Kinges house, and another third part shal be at the gate of the foundation, and all the people shalbe in the • courtes Ex.27.b. of the house of the Lorde. But there shall none come into the house of the Lorde, saue the priestes, and they that minister vnto the Leuites. They shal goe in, for they are holye: but all the people shall keepe the watche of the Lorde, and the Leuites shall compasse the shall haue his weapon in his hande: and what other man soeuer doth come into the house of the Lord, he shall be he set al the people euery man hauing Lordes and the trompettes were by Iehoiada the Priest went out to the captains of hundredes, that were go-uerners of the host, and said vnto thē: Haue her out without the dooze of the temple: and who so folowēth her, let him be slaine with the swearde.

For the Priest said, that they shoulde not slea her in the house of the Lord.
And they laid handes on her, till shee they slew her. And Iehoiada made 4.re.9.d.

For wicked Athaliahu and her children brake vp the house of God, and all the thinges that were dedicate for the house of the Lorde did they bestowe for Bealim. And at the kinges com-

C And it fortuned, that at the same time they brought in the cheste (vnto them which were in the kinges business) by the hand of the Leuites. And whē they saw that ther was much money, the kinges scribe (and one appointed by the hye priest) came and emptied the cheste, and toke it, and caried it to his place againe: Thus they did day by day, and gathered muche money. And the kinge and Iehoiada gaue it to suche as did the labour and worke in the house of the Lorde, and hyred masons and carpenters to repayre the house of the Lorde, and so did they ar-tificers in yron and brasse, to mende D the house of the Lorde. And so the workemen wrought, and the worke mended throughe their handes, and they made the house of god as it ought to be, and strengthed it. And when they had finished it, they brought the rest of the money before the king, and Iehoiada: and therwith were made vesselles for the house of the Lorde, euen vessels to minister withall, and to serue for burntofferings, chargers, and spones, vessels of golde and siluer. And they offered burntofferinges in the house of the Lord continually all the daies of Iehoiada. But Ie-hoiada waxed olde, and died full of dayes. For an hundred and thirtie yere olde was he when he died. And E they buried him in the citie of Dauid among the kinges, because he delte well with Israel, and with God, and with his house. And after the death of Iehoiada, came the Lordes of Juda, and made obeisaunce to the king. And the king herkened vnto them. And so they left the house of the Lorde God of their fathers, and serued groues and ydoles. And then came the wrath of God vpon Juda and Jerusalem, for this their trespalles sake. And he sent prophetes to them, to bring them agayne vnto the Lorde. And they te-stified vnto them: But they wold not heare. And the spirite of God came vp-F pon Zacharia the sonne of Iehoiada the priest, which stode by the people, and saide vnto them: Thus saieth God: why transgresse ye the cōmaun dementes of the Lord, that ye can not prosper? For because ye haue forsaken the Lorde, he also hath forsaken you.
• And they conspired against him, and mat.23.B stoned him with stones at the com-maundement of the king: euen in the court of the house of the Lord. And so Ioas the kinge remembred not the kindnes whiche Iehoiada his father had done to him, but slue his son. And when he died, he saide: the Lorde loke vpon it, and require it. And when the G yere was out it fortuned, that the host of Syria came vp against him: & they came against Juda and Jerusalem, & destroyed all the lordes of the people from among the people, and sente all the spoyle of them vnto the kinge to Damasco: for the Syrians came with a small companie of men, and the Lord deliuered a very great host into their hand, bicause they had forsakē the lord God of their fathers. And moreouer they serued Ioas according to his dedes. And when they were departed from him, they left him in great disea-ses: and • his owne seruantes conspired 4.reg.12 him on his bedd, and he died, and they burted him in the Citie of Dauid: but not in the sepulchres of the kings.

And these are they that conspired against him: Zebad the sonne of Si-the sonne of Simrith a Moabite. And his sonnes, and the summe of the taxe Iuda and Beniamin. And he num-bred them from twentie yeare olde, three hundred thousand chosen men able to go to battell, and that could handle speare and shield. He hired also an hun dred thousand stronge fyghting men out of Israell, for an hundred talentes of syluer. And there came a man of God to him, and said: O king, let not the armie of Israell come with thee, for the Lord is not with Israell, neither with all the house of Ephraim: But if thou wilt nedes be faithlesse, come on, and take the battell in hand, & god shall make thee fall before the enemie. For God hath power to ziahu said to the man of God: What shall we doo then, for the hundred ta-host of Israell? The man of God aunswered: the Lorde is able to geue thee muche more then they bee. And Amaziahu seuered them to the army were exceding wrothe with Iuda, thousande dyd the childzen of Iuda take aliue, and caried theim vnto the from the toppe of the rocke, that they armie whiche Amaziahu sent away, that they should not go with his peo- D ple to battaile, fell vpon the Cities of Iuda, from Samaria vnto Bethoro and smote three thousand of them, and toke muche spoyle. And it chaunced, after that Amaziahu was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, hee brought the gods of the childzen of Seir, and set them vp to be his gods, and bowed him selfe before them: and burned incense vnto them. Wherfore the Lord was wrothe with Amaziahu, and sente vnto him a Prophete, whiche saide vnto him: Why haste thou sought the Gods of the people, which were not able to deliuer their owne people out of thine hande? And E it chaunced, that as the Prophet talked with him, the kinge saide vnto be beaten? And the Prophet ceassed, and said: I am sure that God is mindoone this, and agreest not vnto my counsell. • Then Amaziahu kinge of Iuda toke aduise, and sente to Ioas the sonne of Iehoahaz, the sonne of Iehu king of Israel, and said: Come that we may see either other. And Ioas king of Israell sent to Amaziahu, Nowe therefore bide at home: whye doest thou prouoke vnto euil, that thou maist perish, both thou and Juda with thee? But Amaziahu would not hearken to him: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them into the hande of their enemies, because they sought councel at the Gods of Edom.

And so Joas the king of Israel came vp: and they sawe either other, both he and Amaziahu king of Juda at Beth G shames which is in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israell. and they fled euery man to his tente.
And Joas the king of Israell tooke Amaziahu king of Juda, the sonne of Joahas, the sonne of Jehoahas at Bethshames: and brought him to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem (from the gate of Ephraim vnto the gate that was ouer against it) four hundred cubits. And he toke away also all the gold and siluer, and al the Jewelles that were found in the house of GOD with Obed Edom, and the treasures of the kings house, and the ponge wards, and returned to Samaria. Moreouer Uzia builte towres in Jerusalem by the corner gate, and by the valleye gate, and at the tourninge of the wal, and made them stronge. And he builte towres in the wildernesse, and digged many welles: For hee had muche cattell in the valleyes and playnes, plowmenne and vine dressers in the mountaines, and Charmel, for he loued husbandrye. And Uzia hadde an hooste of fighting menne that wente to warre in the armye, accordinge to the number of their office, vnder the hande of Jeiel the Scribe, and Maasiahu the ruler, and vnder the hande of Hananiahu which was one of the Kinges Lordes. And the whole number of the auncient fathers, and of the menne of mighte were two thousande and sixe hundreth: and vnder the hande of theym was the armye of the menne of warre, euen three hundred and seuen thousande, and fyue hundred that made warre with the

And he made subtil enginnes in Jerusalem, which he inuēted and layed on the towres and corners, to shoote arowes and great stones with all. And his name spred farre abroade, because he was helped so excellently, so that he became verye mightie. But in his strength, his heart arose to his destructiō: For he trāsgressed against the Lorde his God, and went into the temple of the Lord, to burne cense vpon the altar of incense. And Asariahu the priest went in after him, and with him foure skore priestes of the Lorde that were valiaunt menne. And they stode by Uzia the king, and saide

And he was faine to go out, because the Lorde had smitten him. And Uzia the kinge continued a leper vnto the day of his deth, and dwelt seuerall in an house, being a leper, and shut out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham his sonne hadde the gouernaunce of the kinges house and iudged the people of the lande.

The rest of the acts of Uzia first and last, did Isay the prophete the sonne of Amos write. And the men that were now rehersed by name, rose vp, and toke the prisoners, and with the spoyle clothed all that were naked among them, and arayed them, & shoed them, and gaue them to eate, and to drinke, and anoynted them, and caryed all that were feeble of them vpon Asses, and brought them to Jericho, (the citie of Palmetrees) to their brethren: & then they returned to Samaria agayn. 4.re.16.b At that same time did king Ahaz send vnto the kinges of Assur, to haue help of them. And the Edomites came agayne, and slue some of Juda, and caryed away captiues. And the Philistines inuaded the Cities in the lowe countrey, and towarde the south of Juda: and tooke Bethsames and Ajalon, and Gederoth, and Socho with the townes longong therto, and Thimna with the tounes of the same: Gimso, and the townes thereof, and dwelte there. For the Lorde brought Juda lowe, because of Ahaz king of Juda, whiche made Juda naked, and transgressed sore against the Lorde.
And Thilgath Pilneser kinge of the Assirians came vpon him, and troubled him, rather then strengthed him.
D For Ahaz toke away a portion out of the house of the Lorde, and out of the kinges house, and out of the Lordes houses, and gaue vnto the kinge of the Assirians, and yet it helped him not. And in the very time of his tribulation did kinge Ahaz trespasse yet more against the Lorde. For he offered vnto the goddes of them of Damasco, whiche bet him, and hee saide: because the goddes of the kinges of Syria helpe them, therfore will I offer to thẽ, that they may helpe me also.

But they were his destruction, and the destruction of al Israell. And Ahaz gathered together the vessells of the house of God, and brake them, and

The rest of his actes and his workes first or laste: behold, they are written in the boke of the kinges of Juda and Israell. And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the citie of Jerusalem, but brought him not vnto the sepulchres of the kinges of Israell. And Hezekia his sonne reigned in his stead.

A HEzekia began to reygne, when 4.re.18a he was fyue and twentye yere olde, and reygned .xxix. yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Abia the daughter of Zachariahu. And he did that which was righte in the sighte of the Lorde, in all poyntes as did Dauid his father. He 2.pa.28b *opened the doores of the house of the Lord (in the first yere and first month of his reigne) and repayred them. And he brought in the priestes and the Leuites, and gathered them together into the east strete, and saide vnto them: Heare me ye Leuites, and nowe be sanctified, and halow the house of the Lorde God of your fathers, bringe fylthinesse out of the holye place. For our fathers haue trespassed, and doone euill in the eyes of the Lord our God, and haue forsaken him, and tourned awaye their faces from the habitation of the Lorde, and turned theyr backes B on it. And beside that they haue shutte vp the doores of the porche, and quenched the lamps, and haue nether burnt incense, nor offered burntofferinges in the holy place vnto the God of Israell. Wherfore the wrathe of the Lorde fell on Juda and Jerusalem: and hee hath brought them to trouble to be wondred on, and to be hissed at, euen as ye see with your eyes. For loe, our fathers were ouerthrowen with the sword, and our sonnes, our daughters and our wiues were caryed awaye captiue for the same cause. And nowe it is in my heart, to make a couenaunt with the Lord God of Israel, that he may turne away his heuy indignation from vs. Now therfore my sonnes C chosen you to stand before him, and for to minister & serue him, and to burne incense. Then the Leuites arose: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Joell the sonne of Asariahu, of the childzen of the Cahathites. And of the sonnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Abdi, and Asariahu the sonne of Jehaleiel. And of the sonnes of the Gersonites: Joah the sonne of Simma, and Eden the sonne of Joah, and of the sonnes of Elizapham, Simri and Jeriell. And of the sonnes of Asaph, Zechariahu & Mathaniahu. And of the sonnes of Heman. Jehiell and Simei. And of the sonnes of Jeduthun, Semeia and Uziell. And they gathered their brethren, and purified them selues, and came accordinge to the commaundement of the king, and the wordes of the Lorde, for to clense the house of the Lorde. And the priestes went into the inner partes of the house of the Lorde to cleanse it, and brought out all the vnclennes that they found in the temple of the Lord into the courte of the house of the Lorde. And the Leuites toke it, to cary it out into the brooke Cedron. They began the fyrst day of D the first month to purify, and the .viii. daye of the monthe, came they to the porche of the Lord: & purged the house of the lord in .viii. daies, and in the .xvi day of the first monthe they made an end. And they went into Hezekia the king, and said: we haue clensed all the house of the Lord, the aulter of burnt offering with all his vessels, and the shewbread table with all his apparel: & all the vessels which king Ahaz did cast asyde when he reigned and transgressed, them we haue prepared and

Oxen, seuen rammes, seuen shepe, and seuen hee goates, to be a synne offeringe for the kingdome, for the sanctuary, ℟ for Juda. And hee commaunded the priestes the sunnes of Aaron, to offer them on the aultar of the Lorde. And they slue the Oxen, and the priests receiued the blud, and sprinkled it vpon the aulter: likewise when they hadde slaine the rammes, they sprinkled the blud vpon the aultar, they slew also ℣ shepe, and they sprinkled the bloud vpon the altar. And then they broughte forth the he goates for the sin offringe before the king and the congregation, and put their handes vpon them. And the priestes slue them, and with the bloud of them they clensed the aultar, to make satisfaction for all Israell: for the king commaunded, that the burnt offering, and the sinne offering should be made for al Israel. And set the Le- ℣ uites in the house of the Lorde with ij.Par.25.a cimbals, psalteries and harpes, • according to the commaundement of Dauid and of Gad the kinges seer, and Nathan the prophet. For so was the commaundement of the Lord through the hande of his Prophetes. And the Leuites stode, hauing the instrumēts of Dauid, and the Priestes heide the Trompets. And Hezekia commaunded to offer the burntofferinge vppon the aultar. And when the burntoffering began, the songe of the Lorde began also, and the trompettes with the instruments that wer ordained by the hand of Dauid king of Israel. And al the cōgregation worshipped, singing a songe, and blowing with the trompets, and all this continued, vntill the burnt offeringe was finished. And when they had made an ende of offeringe, the king and all that were presente with him, bowed them selues, and worshipped. And Hezekia the king, and the Lordes spake to the Leuites to praise the LORDE with the woordes of Dauid, and of Asaph the seer. And the Leuites sang praises with gladnesse, and the other bowed thē selues, and worshipped. And Hezekia answered, and said: now ye haue consecrate your handes to the Lorde: go to therfore, ℟ bring in the sacrifices and thankofferinges into the house of the Lorde. And the congregation brought in the sacrifices and thankeofferinges and burnt offrings, as many as wer of a free liberall heart. And the number of the burntofferinges which the congregatiō brought, was lxx. Oxen, an. C. Rammes. and. CC. sheepe: whiche were all for the burnte offering of the Lorde. And there were dedicated. vi. C. oxen, and. iij. thousād sheepe. And the priestes were to few to slay al the burntofferings: but their brethren the Leuites did helpe theim, til they had ended the worke, and vntill the priestes were sanctified. For the Leuites were purer hearted to be sanctified then the priestes. And there to, the burntofferinges were manye, with the fatte of the peaceofferinges and the drinkeofferinges that belong to the burntoffring. And so the seruice pertainynge to the house of the Lorde, was finished. And Hezekia reioised, and all the people, that God had made the folke so ready: and that the thing was so soone done.

AND Hezekia sent to all Israell and Juda, ℟ wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasse, that they shoulde come to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, and offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israell. And the king held a councel with his Lordes, and all the congregation of Jerusalem, to kepe the feast of passeouer in the seconde month. For they Nu.9.d. coulde not kepe it at that time: because the Priestes wer not sanctified sufficientlye, neither was the people gathered together to Jerusalē. And the thinge pleased the kinge, and all the congregation. And they decreed that it shoulde be proclaimed throughout all Israel from Bersabe to Dan, that they shoulde come, and holde the feaste of Passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel at Jerusalem: for they had not done it of a great season, as they shuld haue done by the lawe. So the postes went with letters of the hande of the kinge, and of his Lordes throughout all Israell and Juda: and at the commaundement of the kinge, they saide: Ye children of Israell, tourne againe vnto the Lord God of Abraham, Isaac and Israell, and he shall returne to the remnaunt that are escaped of you out of the hand of the king of Assur. And be not ye like your fathers, and your brethrē which trespassed against the Lord God of their fathers, which B gaue them vp to be destroyed, as ye se. And nowe be not ye stifnecked, lyke as were your fathers, but yelde youre selues vnto the Lorde, and enter into his holye place which he hath sanctified for euer, and serue the Lord your God: and the fearcenesse of his wrath shall tourne away from you, for yf ye turne againe vnto the Lord, then shal your brethren and your children find compassion in the presence of theym that toke them captiue, and they shall

And so the postes went from Citie to citie in the land of Ephraim and Manasse, euē vnto Zabulon, but they laughed them to scorn and mocked them. Neuertheiesse, yet diuers of Asser, Manasse, and of Zabulon, submitted theim selues, and came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God was in Juda, so that he gaue them one heart, to doo the cōmaundement of the king and of the rulers, according to the worde of the Lord. And there assembled then to Jerusalē much people, and there was C presente a mightie great congregation, to holde the feast of sweete bread in the seconde moneth. And they arose, and remoued the • aultares that were

And the priestes and Leuites which were ashamed, sanctified them selues, and brought in the burntofferinges into the house of the Lord. And they stode in their office after their maner, and according to the lawe of Moses the man of God. And the priestes sprinkled the blud, which they receiued by the hande of the Leuites. For there were manye in the congregation, that were not sanctifyed, and the Leuites did slay Passeouer for all that were not cleane, and that might not execute the holy worke of the Lord. For many of the people and very many, out of Ephraim, Manasse D Issachar and Zabulon were not clensed, and yet did eat Passeouer against the lawe appointed. Wherefore Hezekia praied for them, and said: the good Lorde be merciful vnto them. For he set his whole heart, to seeke the Lorde God, euen the GOD of his fathers but all the other did not so, according vnto vnfained holynesse. And the Lorde heard Hezekia, and healed the people. And the children of Israell that wer presente at Jerusalem, helde the feast of sweete bread seuen daies with great gladnesse, and the Leuites and the Priestes praised, and magnified the power of the Lord daye by daye, vpon instruments. And Hezekia spake hertely vnto all the Leuites that hadde vnderstandinge, and were of a good minds towarde the Lorde. And they did eate throughoute that feaste, seuen dayes longe, and offered peaceofferinges, and thanked the Lorde God of their fathers. And the whole assemble tooke counceil, to do so other seuen dayes, and they helde those seuen dayes with gladnelle. For Hezekia king of Juda toke out (from amonge G his cattel) for the congregation a. M. yonge Oxen, and. vii. M. sheepe. And the Lordes gaue out to the congregation a M. yonge Oxen, and. x. thousande sheepe. And a great number of the Priestes were sanctified. And all the congregation of Juda, with the prieſtes and Leuites, and all the congregation that came out of Iſraell, and the ſtraungers that came out of the lande of Iſraell, and that dwelt in Juda, reioyſed: and there was great gladnes in Jeruſalem. For ſence the time of Salomon the ſonne of Dauid kinge of Iſraell there was no ſuche ioy in Jeruſalem. And the Prieſtes and the Leuites aroſe, and bleſſed the people, and their voyce was heard of the Lord, and their prayer came vp vnto heauen, his holy dwelling place.

AND when all theſe thinges were finiſhed, all they of Iſraell that were preſent in the cities of Juda, went out and brake the ymages, and cutte downe the Idols groues, and al to brake the hye places, and auiters throughout all Juda and Ben Jamin, in Ephraim alſo and Manaſſe, vntill they had vtterly deſtroyed them all. And all the childzen of Iſraell returned euery man to his poſſeſſions, and to their owne cities. and Hezekia appoynted ſundrie companies of the Prieſts and Leuites after the diuerſitie of their miniſtratiõs euery man according to his office, both prieſtes and Leuites, for the burntofferinge and peaceofferinges, to miniſter and to geue thanckes and prayſe in the gates of the hoſte of the Lorde. And the Kinges porcion of his ſubſtaunce that he gaue, were daily burnt offeringes in the morninge and euenинge, and burnte offerynges for the Sabboth daies, new moones, and ſolenne feaſts, according as it is writ- ten in the law of the Lord. And he bad the people that dwelt in Jeruſalem, geue the parte to the prieſtes and Leuites that they mighte ſubſtauncially apply them ſelues to the lawe of the Lorde. And as ſoone as the Kinges commaundementes came abroade, the childzen of Iſraell brought abounduance of fyrſt fruites, of Corne, wine Oyle, Hony, and of all maner of fruites of the field, and the tithes of al maner of thinges brought they in plenteouſly, and the childzen of Iſraell and Juda, that dwelt in the cities of Juda, they alſo brought in the tythes of Oxen and ſheepe, and other holy tythes which were conſecrate vnto the Lorde theyr God, they did offer and brought them all by heapes. In the thirde moneth they began to laye the heapes (in manner of a foundation) and finiſhed them in the ſeuenth moneth. And when Hezekia and the lordes came, and ſawe the heapes, they bleſſed the Lord and his people Iſrael. And Hezekia queſtioned with the Prieſtes and the Leuites concerning the heapes. And Azaria the cheefe prieſt of the houſe of Zadocke aunſwered him and ſaide: Sens the people began to bring the heaue offeringes into the houſe of the Lorde, we alſo haue had ynough to eate, there remayned ſo muche: for the Lorde hath bleſſed his people and this heape is leſte. And Hezekia bad prepare the chambers in the houſe of the Lorde. And they did prepare them, and caried in the firſte fruites, the tithes and the dedicate things faithfully. Ouer which Chonaniahu the Leuite had the rule, and Semei his brother nexte to him. And Jehiell, Aſariahu, Nathath, Aſael, Jerimoth, Joſabad, Eliel, Jeſmachiahu, Mahath, and Banaiahu were ouerſeers ordeyned by Chonaniahu, and Semei his brother was an officer of Hezekia the kinge, and Azaria was the ruler of the houſe of God (vnto whom all theſe thinges belonged.) And vnder his hand were Eden Maniamin, Jeſue, Semeiahu, Amariahu, and Sechaniahu, in the cities of the Prieſts appointed on their fidelitie to geue to their brethren their portions, aſwell to the ſmal as to ỹ great. Except that to the males that were

And to the priestes and Leuites throughout the housholde of their fathers, from twentye yeares and aboue, to wayte when theyr courses came. And to the families of all their babes, wiues sonnes and daughters thorow all the congregation. For vpon the fidelitie of them, were the holye thinges bestowed. And to the children of Aaron, the Priestes, whiche were in the fieldes and suburbes of their cities, citie by citie, the men (whose names were expressed afore) shoulde geue portions, euen to all the males among the priestes, and to all the Leuites, accordynge to theyr number. And of this maner did Hezekia throughout all Juda, and wrought it that is good, and right, and true, before the Lorde his God. And in all the workes that he began for the seruice of the house of God, for the lawe, and for the commaundement, he soughte his God, and that did he with all his hert, and prospered.

AFter that these deedes were faithfully done • Sennacherib kinge of Assur came, and entered into Juda, and compassed the stronge cities, and thought to winne them for him selfe. And so when Hezekia sawe that Sennacherib was come, and that he was purposed to fight against Jerusalem, he toke counsell with the lordes and men of might to stop the water of the fountaynes without his citie: and they did helpe him. For there gathered many of the people together, and stopt all the welles, and the broke that ranne thorowe the middes of the lande, saying: why shall the kinges of Assur come, and fynde muche water? And Hezekia went to iustely, and buylte vp all the wall where it was broken, and made ordinaunce vpon the towres, and to the other wall without, and repayred Millo in the city of Dauid, and made many dartes and shyeldes. And he set captaines of warre ouer the people, and gathered them together to him in the large strete of the gate of the citie, and spake gentelly to them, saying, Plucke vp your hertes, and be strong: Be not afrayed and discouraged for the king of Assur, and for all the multitude that he hath with him. • For there be mo with vs then with him. With him is an • arme of flesshe: but with vs is the Lord our God, for to helpe vs, and to fight our battayles. And the people toke a corage throughout the wordes of Hezekia kinge of Juda. • After this did Sennacherib king of Assur send of his seruauntes to Jerusalem (but he him selfe remayned besyde Lachis, hauing all his power with him) vnto Hezekia king of Juda, and vnto all Juda that were at Jerusalem, saying: Thus saith Sennacherib king of Assur: • Wherin do ye trust, O ye that dwell in Jerusalem whiche is besieged? Doeth not Hezekia entice you to geue ouer your selues vnto death, hunger, and thirst, saynge: The Lorde our God shall ridde vs out of the hand of the kinge of Assur? Hath not the same Hezekia put downe his hye places and his alters, and commaunded Juda and Jerusalem, saying: Ye shall worshippe before one aulter, and burne incense vpon the same. Knowe ye not what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes? were the goddes of the people of other landes able or myghtye to saue theyr landes out of my hande? Whiche of all the goddes of those nacions (that my fathers destroyed) coulde deliuer hys people out of minde hande? And shall your God be able to deliuer you out of my hande? But Ezekia the kinge and the Prophet Isai, the sonne of Amoz, prayed against that blasphemie, and cried vp to heauen. But Ezekia did not agayne vnto God according to it that he had shewed him: for his heart arose, and there came wrathe vppon him, and vpon Iuda and Ierusalem. Notwithstanding Ezekia submitted him selfe (after that his heart was risen vp) he and the inhabiters of Ierusalem: and the wrathe of the Lorde came not vpon them in the dayes of Ezekia. And Ezekia had exceeding

A 4.Ki.22.a Iosia was .viij. yere old when he began to reigne, and hee reigned in Ierusalem .xxxi. yere, & he did that which was righte in the sighte of the Lorde, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, and bowed nether to the right hande nor to the lefte. In the eyghte yere of his reigne (when he was yet a childe) he beganne to seeke after the God of Dauid his father. And in the xij. yeare, hee began to pourge Iuda and Ierusalem from hilaultars, groues, karued Images, and Images of mettall, and they brake downe the aultars of Baalim euen in his presence: and other Images that were in greater honoure then they, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, karued Images, and images of metall, he brake and made dust of them, and strawed it vpon the graues of them, that had offered vnto them. And he burnt the bones of the priestes vpon the aultars of them, and clensed Iuda and Ierusalem. And euen so did he in the Cities of Manasse, Ephraim, Simeon, vnto Nephthalk. And in the wildernesses of them round about, he plucked asunder the altars and the groues, and did beate them and stampe them to pouder, and beate downe all the Images throughoute all the lande of Israell: and returned to Ierusalem againe.

And they putte it in the handes of the woorkemen, that hadde the ouersight of the house of the Lord: and they gaue it to the labourers that wrought in the house of the Lorde, to repaire and amende the house. Euē to masons and carpenters gaue they it, to get stone and timber for coulpes and for beames of the houses, whiche the Kinges of Iuda hadde destroyed: And the menne did the woorke faithfullye. And then Saphan the Scribe shewed the Kinge sayinge: Helkia the Priest hath geuen me a booke, and Saphā red in it before the king. And it fortuned that when the king hadde heard the woordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes: and the king commaunded Helkia & Ahikam the son of Saphan, and Abdon the son of Micah, and Saphan the Scribe, and Asaia a seruant of the kings, saying: go and enquire of the Lorde for me, and for them that are lefte in Israell and Iuda concerning the woords of the boke

e and they that the king had appointed went to Hulda a prophetesse, the wife of Sallum: the sonne of Tokhath, the sonne of Hasra keper of the wardrope (for shee dwelte in Jerusalem within the seconde wall) and so they communed with her. Shee answered them: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell, tell ye the manne that sent you to me: Euen thus sayth the Lord: beholde, I will bring euill vpon this place, and vpon the inhabiters thereof (euen all the curses that are written in the boke which they haue read before the king of Juda) because they haue forsaken me, and haue offred vnto other goddes, to anger me with all maner workes of their handes, therefore is my wrath set on fyre against this place: and shall not be quenched.
And as for the king of Juda whiche sent you to enquire of the Lord, so shall ye say vnto him, thus saith the Lorde god of Israel, concerning the wordes

And he sette in their roume all them that were found in Jerusalem: and Ben Jamin and the inhabiters of Jerusalem didde according to the couenaunt of the Lord GOD of their fathers. And Josiah put away all maner of abominations out of all landes that pertained to the children of Israell, and brought in all that were founde in Israell, to worship and to serue the Lord their God. the great and noble Asnaphar brought ouer, and set in the cities of Samaria: and other, that are nowe on this side the water. This is the copie of the letter that they sente vnto king Artaxerses: Thy seruantes, and the men that are nowe on this syde the water: Be it knowen vnto the kinge, that the Jewes whiche came vp from thee to vs, are come vnto Jerusalem (a ci-tie seditious and frowarde) and build the same, and set vp the walles therof, and laye the foundations. Be it knowen nowe also vnto the kinge, that if this citie be builded, and the wal-les therof made vp againe: then shall not they geue tolle, trybute, and custome, and the kinges profite shall in-curre dammage. And nowe in the C meane season we haue destroyed the temple, and would no lenger see the kinges dishonour. Therfore sent we out also, and certified the kinge, that it maye be sought in the booke of the Chronicles of thy progenitours, and so shalt thou finde in the booke of the Chronicles, and perceaue, that this citie is seditious and noysome vnto kinges, and landes, and that they cause other also among them to rebel of olde, and for the same cause was this citie destroyed. Therfore do we certifie the kinge, that yf this citie be builded againe, and the walles therof made vp: thou shalt hereafter haue no portion on this side the water. Then sent the king an answere vnto Re-hum the recorder, & Samsai the scribe & vnto other of their companions that dwelt in Samaria, and vnto the other that were beyonde the water, in He-lan and Cheheth. The letter which ye sent vnto vs, hath bene openly red before me, and I haue commaunded to make search: and it is founde, that this citie of olde hath made insurrection against Kinges, and that rebellion and sedition hath bene committed therin. Ther haue bene mighty kinges also at Ierusalem, whiche haue reigned ouer all countries beyond the water, and tolle, tribute, and custome was geuen vnto them. Geue ye now therefore commaundement, that the same men be forbidden, and that the Citie be not builded againe, till I haue geuē another commaundement. Take hede nowe that ye be not negligent to do this: for why shoulde the king haue harme therthrough? Now when the copie of king Artharxerses letter was read before Rehum and Samsai the Scribe, and their companions, they went vp in all the haste to Ierusalem, vnto the Iewes, and forbad them with violence & power. Then ceassed the worke of the house of God at Ierusalem, and continued so vnto the seconde yeare of Darius king of Persia.

The.v. Chapter.

THe prophetes, Aggeus and Zacharī the son of Iddo, prophecied vnto the Iewes that were in Iuda & Ierusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. Then gat vp zorobabel the son of Salathiel, & Iesua the son of Iosedec, and began to build the house of God at Ierusalem, and with them wer the prophetes of God which helped them. At the same time came to thē Tahnai, which was captaine on this side the water, & Sthar-bazani, and their companions, & saide thus vnto thē: who hath cōmaunded you to build this house, & to make vp these wals? Then tolde we them the names of the men that made this building. But the eyes of their God was vpon the elders of the Iewes, ẏ they could not cause thē to ceasse, til ẏ matter was brought to Darius, and then they aunswered by letters therevnto. This is the copi of ẏ letter, ẏ Tahnai (which was captaine on this side the water, & Sthar-bazani, & ẏ cōsaillers of Aphahsah which wer on this side the water) sent vnto king Darius, & ẏ matter that they sent vnto him, was writtē thus, within the letter: Vnto Darius the king, al peace: Be it knowen vnto the king, that we went into the lād of Iewrie, to the house of the great god, which is builded w mighty great stones, & beames are laide in the walles, and the worke goeth faste forth, and prospereth in their handes. Then asked we the elders, and saide vnto them as it followeth: who commaunded you to build this house, and to make vp the walles therof? We asked their names also, that we might certifie thee, and write the names of the men that were their rulers. But they answered vs with these words, and said: We are the seruaunts of him that is God of heauen and earth, and builde the house that was builded manye yeares agoe, which a great king of Israell builded, and set vp. But after ẏ our fathers had prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath, he gaue them ouer into the hand of Nabuchodonozor the king of Babilon. and of the Chaldeis, whiche brake downe his house, and caried the people awaye captiue vnto Babilon, But in the firste yeare of Cirus the king of Babilon, the same king Cirus gaue cōmaundement concerning this house of God, that it shoulde be builded againe. And ẏ vessels of golde and siluer of the house of God, which Nabuchodonozor tooke out of the Temple that was at Ierusalem, and brought them into the temple at Babilon, those did Cirus the kinge take out of the temple at Babilon, & they wer deliuered vnto one Sasbazar by name, whō he made captain, & said vnto him: Take these vessels, and go thy way, & set thē in the temple ẏ is at Ierusalē, & let the house of God be builded in his place. Thē cam ẏ same Sasbazar, & laid the fōdation of ẏ house of God, which is at Ierusalē. Since that time also vntil nowe hath it bē in building, & yet it is not finished. If it please ẏ king nowe therfore, let ther be serch made in ẏ kīgs library which is

THen commaunded king Darius, and they made search in the librarie, euen in the place wher they laied vp the treasure at Babilon.
And there was founde in a coffer (in the place that is in the lād of the Me-des) a volume: and therein was it thus writtē, and suche a memoriall: In the first yere of king Cirus, gaue the same king Cirus commaundemēt concerning the house of God at Jerusalem, that the same house should be builded in the place where they offer the Sacrifices, and to ioyne the walles together of three score cubites height, and three score cubites bredth.
Thre rowes of rough stones, and one rowe of timber, and the expenses shal be geuen of the kinges house. And let the gold, and siluer vessell of the house of GOD, which Nabuchodonozor B toke out of the temple at Jerusalem, and brought vnto Babilon) be restored, and brought againe vnto the temple at Jerusalem to their place in the house of God. Get you far from them therefore, thou Thahnai captaine beyonde the water, and Starbozanai, and your coūsailers and Aphersechei, which are beyond the water, get ye away from them. Let the worke of the house of this God alone, that the captaine of the Jewes, and their elders, may builde the house of God in his place. I haue commaunded what shal be doone to the elders of Juda, for the building of the house of God, that there shalbe diligent hede taken of the kinges goodes, euen of the rentes beyonde the water, and geuen vnto the men, that they be not hindred. And yf they haue nede of calues, rammes and Lambes for the burntofferinge of the God of heauen, wheat, salt, wine and oyle, after the custome of the Priestes at Jerusalem, lette the same be geuen them dayly without anye delaye: that they maye offer sweete sauoures vnto the God of heauen, and praye for the kinges life, and for his children. And suche a commaundement haue I geuen, that what man soeuer he be, that altereth this word, there shal a beame be taken from his house, and sette vp, and he shalbe hanged thereon, and his house shalbe made a dong hill, for the same thing. And the God that set his C name there, destroye all kinges and people that put to their hand to alter, and to breake downe the house of god whiche is at Jerusalem. I Darius haue commaunded: that this be done with spede. Then Thahnai the captain of the country beyond the water, and Starbozanai with their counsaillers (to whom kinge Darius hadde sent) did their diligence: And the Elders of the Jewes builded, and they prospered through the prophecyinge of Aggeus the Prophet, and Zachary the sonne of Iddo: and they builded and layed vp the foundation, according to the commaundement of the God of Israel, and after the cōmaun-demente of Cirus and Darius, and Artaxerses kinges of Persia. And the house was finished the thirde daye of the moneth Adar, euen in the .vi. yere of the reigne of King Darius. ¶ And the children of Israel, the priestes, the D Leuites: and the other children of the 2. pa. 7 captiuitie, helde the dedication of this house of God: with ioye, and offered at the dedication of this house of GOD, an hundred Oxen, two hundred Rammes, four hundred goates, and for the reconciling of all Israell twelue hee goates, according to the number of the tribes of Israell: and set the priestes in their sundrye courses, and the Leuites in their di-uers offices to minister vnto God at Jerusalem: as it is writtē in the booke of Moses. And the children of the captiuitie helde Passeouer vpon the .xiiii. day of the first month: for the priestes and Leuites were purified, so that

ẏ they wer all clene together, & killed Passeouer for al the childzen of ẏ captiuitie, and for their bzethzen the pzieſtes, and for them ſelues. And the childzen of Iſraell which were come againe out of captiuitie, and all ſuche as had ſeparated theym ſelues vnto them, from the filthines of the Heathen of the lande, to ſeeke the Lozde God of Iſraell, did eate, and held the feaſt of vnleuened bzead, ſeuen dayes with ioy: for the Lozd had made them glad, and turned the heart of the king of Aſſur vnto theim, to ſtrengthen their handes in the wozke of the houſe of God, euen the God of Iſraell.

¶ The. viȷ. Chapter.

AFter theſe actes, there was in the reigne of Arthaxerſes king of Perſia, one Eſdzas the ſon of Saraiah, the ſonne of Aſaria, the ſonne of Helkia, the ſonne of Sallum the ſonne of Zadoc, the ſonne of Ahitob, the ſonne of Amaria, the ſonne of Aſaria, the ſonne of Meraioth, the ſon of Zerata, ẏ ſon of Uſi, the ſon of Bucki, the ſon of Abiſua, the ſonne of Phinehes, ẏ ſon of Eleazar, the ſon of Aarō the chief pzieſt. This Eſdzas alſo went vp from Babilon, and was a perfecte Scribe in the lawe of Moi-1.Esd.20 ſes, and which the Lozd God of Iſraell did gene. And the Kinge gaue him all that he required, becauſe the Pſa.73 hand of the Lozde his God was vpon him. And ther went vp certaine of the childzen of Iſraell: of the pzieſtes, Leuites, ſingers, pozters, and of the Nethinims vnto Ieruſalem, in the ſeuenth yere of king Arthaxerſes. And he came to Ieruſalem in the fifth month, euen in the ſeuenth yere of the king. For vpon the firſte daye of the firſt moneth, beganne he to go vp from Babilon: and on the firſte daye of the fifth moneth came he to Ieruſalem, becauſe the good hande of God was vpon him. For Eſdzas pzepared his heart to ſeke the lawe of the Lozd, and to do it, and to teach the pzecept and iudgement in Iſrael. And this is the copie of the letter, that B king Arthaxerſes gaue vnto Eſdzas the Pzieſt, and ſcribe: whiche was a wziter of the wozdes and commaundements of the Lozd, and of his ſtatutes ouer Iſraell. Arthaxerſes a kinge of kinges: Vnto Eſdzas the Pzieſte and ſcribe of the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and ſalutation. I haue commaunded that all they of the people of Iſraell, and of the pzieſtes, and Leuites in my realme (which are minded of their owne good will to go vp to Ieruſalem) go with thee: and therfoze arte thou ſente of the kinge and of his ſeuen counſailers, to viſit Iuda and Ieruſalem, accozdinge to the lawe of thy God, which is in thy hande: And that thou ſhouldeſt take with thee ſilner and golde, which the kinge and his Counſailers offer of their owne good will, vnto the God of Iſraell. whoſe habitation is at Ieruſalem) and all the ſilner & golde that thou canſt finde in all the countrey of Babilon, with it that the people offer of their owne good will, and the pzieſtes gene for the houſe of their God whiche is at Ieruſalem. Take C thou the ſame, and bye diligentlye with the ſame money, oxen, rammes, and lambes, with their meatofferinges and dzinkeofferinges, and thou ſhalt offer them vppon the aulter of the houſe of your God, which is at Ieruſalem. And looke what it liketh thee and thy bzethzen to do with the remnaunt of the money, that do after the will of your God. And the veſſelles that are geuen thee for the miniſtration in the houſe of thy God, thoſe deliuer thou before God at Ieruſalem. And whatſoeuer thing more ſhalbe needefull for the houſe of thy God, which is neceſſarie for to ſpend, thou ſhalte receaue the charges oute of the kinges treaſure houſe. I king Arthaxerſes haue commaunded all the treaſures beyonde the water, that loke whatſoeuer Eſdzas the Pzieſte and ſcribe, in the lawe of the God of heauen, requireth of you, that ye fulfil the ſame ſpedelye, vntill an hundzed talentes of syluer, and till an hundred quarters of wheate, and till an hundred Bates of wine, and till an hundred bates of oyle, and salte without measure. Whatsoeuer also belongeth to the law of the God of heuen, let the same be done without any delaye for the house of the God of heauen, that he be not wroth against the realme, and against the kinge, and his children. And we certify you: that ye haue no authoritie to require taxing and custome, and verely rentes vppon any of the priestes, Leuites, singers, Porters, Nethinims and ministers in the house of his God. And thou Esdras (after the wisedome of thy God, that is in thy hande) set iudges and arbitrers (by my authoritie) to iudge all the people that is beyonde the water, euen all suche as knowe the lawe of thy God: and them that know it not, those see that ye teache. And whosoeuer will not fulfill the lawe of thy God and the kinges lawe, lette him haue his iudgement without delay, whether it be vnto death, or to be rooted out, and to bee condempned in goodes, or to be put in prison. Blessed be the Lorde God of our fathers, which so hath inspired the kings hert to garnishe the house of the Lord, that is at Jerusalem, and hath enclined his mercy vnto me in the presence of the kinge, and his counsaylers: and before all the kinges hye estates. And I was comforted (euen as the hande of the Lord my God was vpon me) and so gathered I the heades of Israell together, that they might go vp with me.

These are the principall fathers of them, and this is their register that wente vppe with me from Babilon, what time as kinge Arthaxerses reigned. Of the children of Phinehes, Gerson: of the children of Ithamar, Daniell: of the children of Dauid, Hatus: of the children of Zechania, amonge the children of Pharos, Zacharie, and with him were numbred an hundred and fiftie men. Of the children of the captaine of Moab, Elionai, the sonne of Zerahia, and with him two hundred men. Of the children of Zechania the sonne of Jahaziel: and with him thre hundred men. Of the children of Adin, Abed the sonne of Jonathan, and with him fiftye men. Of the children of Elam, Jsai, the sonne of Athalia, and with him seuentie men. Of the children of Saphatia, Zebadia the sonne of Michaell, and with him foure score men. Of the children of Joab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiell, and with him two hundred and eightene men. Of the children of Selomith the sonne of Josophia, and with him an hundred and three score men. Of the children of Bebai, zachari the sonne of Bebai, and with him eight and twentie men. Of the children of Asgad, Johanan the sonne of Hakathan, and with him an hundred and ten men. Of the children of Adonicam that were the laste, whose names are these: Eliphelet, Jehiel and Samaiah, and with them three score men. Of the children of Biguai, Uthai, and Zabud, and with theym seuentie men. And I gathered them together by the water that runneth towarde Ahaua, & there abode we three dayes. And I looked amonge the people and the Priestes, and founde there none of the children of Leui. Then sent I to Eliezer, to Ariel, Semeia, Elnachan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zachary, and to Mesullam the rulers, and to Joiarib and Elnathan, whiche were men of vnderstanding: and to those gaue I commaundement, vnto Iddo the chiefest at Casphia, that they shoulde fetche vs ministers for the house of our GOD: and I told them what they should say vnto Iddo: and to his brethē the Nethinims at Casphia. And (through the good hande of our God vppon vs) they brought vs a wise man from amonge the children of Moholi the sonne of Leui, the sonne of

of Israel: and Sarabia with his sons and his brethren, euen eightene. And Hasabia, and with him Isai of the children of Merari, with his brethrē, and their sonnes twenty. And of the Nethinims, whom Dauid and the princes gaue to minister vnto the Leuites, two hundred and twentye of Nethinims, which all were named by name. And euen ther at the water, beside Ahaua I proclaimed a faste, that we might humble our selues before our God, and seeke of him a right way for vs, and for our children, and for all our substaunce. For I was ashamed to require of the king, souldiers and horsemen, to helpe vs against the ennemy in the waye: but we saide vnto the kinge: The hande of our god is vppon all them that seeke him, in goodnes, (and his dominion,) his violence and wrath, is against all them that forsake him. So wee fasted, and besought oure God for this, and hee heard vs. And I tooke out twelue of the chiefe priestes: Sarabia, and Hasabia, and ten of their brethren with them, and wayed them the siluer and golde, and vessels that were appointed for the house of oure God, which the king and his counsailers, and his Lordes, and all Israell that wer there at hande, had geuen together. And I wayed vnto their hande sixe hundred and fiftie talentes of siluer, and in siluer vessels an hundred talents, and in golde an hundred talentes, twentie basens of golde, of a thousande peces: and two costlye ornamentes of good brasse, as cleare as golde, and I saide vnto them: Ye are consecrate vnto the Lord, like as the vessels are holy also, and the golde and siluer are geuen of a good will vnto the Lorde God of your fathers. Watche ye, and keepe it for ye shall way it downe before the chiefe priestes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israell at Jerusalem in the Treasuries of the house of the Lorde. Then tooke the Priestes and Leuites the wayed siluer and golde, and vessell, to bring it to Jerusalem, vnto the house of our God. And we brake vp, from the water of Ahaua on the .xij. day of the first moneth, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hand of our God was vpon vs, and deliuered vs from the hande of the enemies, and of suche as laid wait for vs by the way. And we cam to Jerusalem, and abode there .iij. dates. But on the .iiij. daye was the siluer and golde, and vessell wayed in the house of our god, by the hand of Merimoth, the sonne of Uria the priest, and with him was Eleazar the sonne of Phineches, and with thē was Josabad the sonne of Jesua, and Noadia the sonne of Benor the Leuites. Accoryding to the number and waight of euery one, was the waight all writtē vp at the same time. And the children of the captiuitie whiche were come out of prison, offred burnt-offeringes vnto the God of Israell, twelue bullockes for all Israell. xcbj. rammes, seuen and seuentye lambes, twelue hee goates for a sinneoffering, all to the burntoffering of the Lorde. And they deliuered the kinges Commission vnto the kinges officer, and to the captaines that were on this side the water. And they promoted the people, and the house of God.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

When these things were done, the rulers came to me, and saide: The people of Israell and the Priestes and Leuites, are not seperated from the people of the landes (as touching their abhominatiōs) namely, of the Cananites, Hethites, Pherezites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egiptians, and Amorites. For they haue taken the daughters of the same to them selues, and to their sonnes, and the holy sede is mixed with the natiōs in the land, and the hande of the Princes and rulers hath bene principall in the trespasse. And when I heard this saynge, I rente my clothes and my garmente, and pluckte off the heere of my head, and of my beard, and sat mourninge. And there resorted vnto me all suche as feared the woordes of the Lorde God of Israell, because of the transgression of the people of the captiuitie. And I sate mourning vntill the euening sacrifice. And aboute the euening sacrifice, I arose vp fro my heuinesse, and rent my clothes and my raiment, and fell vpon my knees, and spread out my handes vnto the Lorde B my God, and saide: My God, I am ashamed, and dare not lifte vppe mine eyes vnto thee my God: for oure wickednesses are growen ouer our head: and our trespasse is waxed great vnto the heauen. Since the time of our fathers, haue we bene in great trespasse

C now is ther a litle and a sodaine graciousnesse come from the Lorde oure God, in causing some of vs to escape, and that he may geue vs a naile in his holye place, and that oure God maye lighte our eyes, and geue vs a little life to take breathe in our bondage. For wee are bondmen, and our God hath not forsaken vs in our bondage, and hath enclined mercie vnto vs in the sighte of the kinges of Persia, to geue vs life, to set vp the house of our god, and to redresse the desolatiō therof, and to geue vs a wall in Juda, and Jerusalem. And nowe, O our God, what shall we saye after this? for we haue forsaken thy commaundements, which thou hast commaunded by thy seruauntes the Prophetes, sayinge: The lande vnto whiche ye go to possesse, it is an vncleane land, because of the filthinesse of the people of the landes, which with their abhominatiōs haue made it full of vnciennes on e-

And after that all these thinges D are come vpon vs (because of our euil dedes and great trespalles) thou oure God hast thrust downe our wickednesses, and hast geuē vs a deliuerance, (as it is come to passe this day.) And if we turne backe againe, to let go thy commaundements, and make cōtracte with the people of these abhominations, wilt thou not then be wrothe at vs (and not without cause) til we be vtterly consumed, so that nothing remain, and till ther be no deliuerance?
O Lorde God of Israell, thou art righteous, for we remaine yet escaped as it is to see this day. Beholde also, in thy presence are we in our trespasses, and because of it may we not stand before thee.

AND when • Eldras praied after this manner, and knowe- A 3.El.11 ledged, wepte, and laye before the house of God, there resorted vnto him out of Israell a very great congregation of men and women, and children: and the people wepte verye sore. And Sechania the sonne of Jehiel one of the children of Elam, answered, & said vnto Eldras: We haue trespalled against our G O D, and haue taken straūge wiues of the people of the lande. Nowe there is hope yet in Israell concerning this thing: for nowe we will make a couenaunt with our God, and put away all the wiues (and such as are borne of thē) according to the Counsaile of the Lorde, and we will be in the feare of the commaundementes of our God, that wee maye doo according to the lawe. Sette thee vp, for this matter belongeth vnto thee: we also will be with thee: be of good comfort therfore and doe it. • Then rose Eldras, & toke 3.El.9 an othe of the chiefe priestes and Leuites, and of al Israel, that they shuld do according to this worde: and they B sware. And Eldras stoode vp from before the house of God, and wente into the chambre of Jehanan the son of Eliasib. And when he came thither, he did eate no bread, nor drinke water, for he mourned because of the transgression of the people that had ben in captiuitie. And they caused a proclamation to go throughout Juda and Jerusalem, vnto all the children which had ben in captiuitie, that they should gather them selues together vnto Jerusalem. And that who soeuer came not within three dais, according to the deuise of the rulers and elders, all his substãce should be forfait & he should be put out from the congregation of the captiue. Then al the mẽ of Juda and Ben Jamin, gathered them selues together vnto Jerusalem within three dais, euẽ the twentie day of the ninth month: and all the people satte in the streete before the house of God, and trembled because of this matter, and for the rain. And Esdras the priest stoode vppe, and saide vnto them: Ye haue transgressed, and haue taken straũge wiues, to make the tresspasse of Israel yet more: confesse now therfore vnto the Lord God of youre fathers, and do his pleasure, and separate your selues from the people of the lande, and from the straunge wiues. And all the congregation aunswered, and saide with a loude voice: It shall be so: and we will doo as thou haste said. But the people are many, and it is a rainie wether, and the people are to faint to tary without in the strete neither is this a worke of one day or two: for we haue offended very sore in this thing. Let our rulers stand therfore in all the congregation, and let all them which haue taken straunge wiues in our cities, come at the time appointed: and let the Elders of euerye citie, and their iudges be with them till they haue turned the wrath of our God away from vs, concerning this matter. Then were appointed Jonathan the soonne of Asahell, and Jahasia the soonne of Tekua ouer this matter. And Mesullam and Sabathai, the Leuites helped theym. And the children of the captiuitie did euen so. And Esdras the priest, and the ancient heades thorough the house of their fathers, all men of great fame, separated theim selues, and sat theim down in the first day of the tenth moneth, to examine the matter. And vntil the first day of the first month, they were finishing the busines, with all the men that had taken straunge wiues. And amonge the children of the priests, there wer men found that had taken straunge wiues, namely among the children of Jesua, the sonne of Josedec, and of his brethren Masiah, and Eliezer, Jarib, and Jedalia, and they gaue their handes therupon, that they would put awaye their wiues, and for their trespasse offeringe to geue a ram for their trespasse. And amonge the children of Emer, Honany and Zabadia. Among the children of Harim, Saasia, Elia, Semeiah, Jehiel, and Uzia. Among the children of Pashur, Elioenai, Maasia, Ismaell, Nethanell, Josabad, and Elasa. Among the Leuites, Josabad, Simei, Kelaia (whiche same is Kalathah.) Pathahiah, Juda, and Eleazer. Among the singers also Eliasib. And among the porters, Sellum, and Telem and Uri. And of Israell amonge the children of Pharohs, Remeia, Jesiah, Malchia, Miamin, Eliazar, Malchia, and Baania. Among the children of Elam, Mathania, Zacharie, Jehiell, Abdi, Jerimoth, and Elia. Among the children of Zathu, Elioenai, Eliasib, Mathania, Jerimoth, Zabad, and Aziza. A THe wordes of Nehemia, the son of Hachalia. It fortuned in the moneth Chisleu, in the twentye yeare that I was in the castell at Susā: and Hanani, one of my brethren came with certain men of Juda, & I asked thē howe the Iewes did, that were deliuered, and escaped from the captiuitie, and howe it went at Jerusalē. And they saide vnto me: The remnaunte of the captiuitie are there in the lande in great misfortune and rebuke. * The wall of Jerusalem also is broken downe: and the gates thereof are brent with fire. It fortuned, that when I heard these woordes, I satte me downe and wept, and mourned certaine dayes, and fasted, and prayed before the G O D of heauen, and saide: O Lorde God of heauen, thou greate and terrible G O D, *thou that keepest couenaunte and mercye for them that loue thee, and obserue thy Commaundementes, let thine eares hearken, I beseeche thee, and let thine eares be open, that thou maiest heare the prayer of thy seruantes, whiche I praye nowe before thee day and night, for the children of Israell thy seruauntes, and knowe-ledge the sinnes of the children of Israell, whiche wee haue sinned against thee. I and my fathers house haue sinned: we haue bene vtterly disparsed from thy lawe, and haue not kept thy commaundements, statutes, and lawes, whiche thou commaundedst thy Seruaunt Moises. I beseeche thee call to remembraunce the woorde that thou commaundest thy Seruaunt Moises, and saidest: Ye will transgresse, and * I will scatter you abrode among the nations. But if ye turne vnto me, and kepe my commaundementes and do them: though ye were caste out vnto the vttermoste part of heauen, yet will I gather you from thence, and will bringe you vnto the place that I haue chosen, to set my name there. They are thy seruantes and thy people, whom thou haste deliuered through thy great power, and in thy mightie hande. O Lorde, I beseeche thee let thine care harken to the prayer of thy seruaunt, and to the prayer of thy seruauntes, whose desire is to feare thy name, and let thy seruaunt prosper this day, and graunt him mercy in the sight of this man for I was the kinges butler.

IT fortuned, that in the Moneth * Nisan, in the twentieth yeare of king Arthaxerses, the wine stoode before him, and I tooke vp the wine, and gaue it vnto the kinge. And I was heauie in his presence. And the kinge said vnto mee: why lokest thou so sadlye, when thou art not sicke? it is nothing els, but that thou art heuy harted. And I was sore afraid, and saide vnto the king: G O D saue the kings life for euer. How shuld I not I March.

loke sadly, when the citie and place of my fathers buriall lieth waste, and the gates thereof are consumed with fyre? And the kinge saide vnto me: what is then thy request? I made my prayer also to the God of heauen, and sayde vnto the kinge: if it please the king, and yf thy seruaunt haue found fauoure in thy sighte, sende me vnto B Juda vnto the citie of my fathers buriall, that I may buylde it. And the kinge saide vnto me (the queene his wife sitting by him) how longe shall thy iourney continue, and when wilt thou come agayne? And it pleased the kinge to sende me: and I sette him a time, and sayd vnto the kinge: Yf it please the kinge, let him geue me letters to the captaines whiche are beyond the water, that they maye conuaye me ouer, till I come into Juda, and letters vnto Asaph the lord of the kinges wood, that he may geue me tymber to make beames for the gates of the palace (whiche is harde by the house) and for the wals of the citie, and for the house that I shall enter into. And the king gaue me according to the hand of my God which was good vpon me. And when I came to the captaines beyond the water, I gaue them
C the kinges letters. And the king did send captains and horsemen with me. Sanabalat also the Horonite, & Tobia a seruaunt (the Ammonite) heard of it, and it greued them sore, that ther was come a man, whiche sought the wealth of the children of Israel. And I came to Jerusalem, and was there three dayes, and I gatte me vp in the night season, and a few men with me, neyther tolde I any man, what God had geuen me in my hart to do at Jerusalem: and there was not one beaste with me, saue it that I rode vppon. And I departed in the night by the valley porte, before the dragon well, and to the donge porte, and considred the walles of Jerusalem, howe they were broken downe, and the portes thereof consumed with the fyre. And I went ouer vnto the well port, and to the kinges condite, & there was no roome for the beaste that was vnder me to passe. Then went I on in the night by the broke side, and considered the wall, and turned backe, and came home againe by the valley porte. And the rulers knew not whither I went or what I did: neyther did I as yet tel it vnto the Iewes, to the priestes, to the noble men, to the rulers, and to the other that laboured in the worke.
Then saide I vnto them: ye see the D miserie that we are in, howe Jerusalem lieth waste, and how the gates ther of are brent with fyre: come therfore, that we may buyld vp the wal of Jerusalem, and that we be no more a rebuke. And I tolde them of the hand of my God, that it was gracious ouer me, and the kinges wordes that he had spoken vnto me. And they saide: Let vs get vp & build: and they streng thed their hand to good. But when Sanabalat the Horonite, and Tobia the seruaunt (an Ammonite) and Gesem the Arabian herd it, they laughed vs to scorne, and mocked vs, and said: what is this that ye do? Will ye fall away from the king? Then answered I them, and said: the God of heauen, he it is that hath graunted vs prosperitie, and we be his seruauntes. Let vs get vp and build: As for you, ye haue no portion, nor right nor remembraunce in Jerusalem.

BVt whē Sanabalat herd that we builded the wall, he was wroth in him selfe, and tooke greate indignation, and mocked the Jewes, and saide before his brethren and the souldiers of Samaria, what doo these impotent Jewes? will the hethen suffer thē? shall they offer? shal they perfourme it in one day? shall they make the stones whole againe, that are brought to dust and brente? And Tobiah the Ammonite was beside him, and said: Though they build yet if a foxe go vp, he shall breake downe their stonye wall. Heare (O thou oure God) for we are despised turne their shame vppon their owne headde, and geue them ouer into the despisinge in the lande of their captiuitie. Couer not their wickednesse and let not their sinne be put oute in thy presence: for they haue prouoked the builders. And so builded we the wall, and it was ioyned whole together, vnto the halfe height therof. And the people were minded to labour.

B And it fortuned that when Sanabalat, and Tobiah and the Arabians, Ammonites, and Asdodites hearde, that the walles of Jerusalem were made vp, and that the gappes beganne to be stopped, they were very wroth, and conspired all together to come and fight against Jerusalem, and to make the people an hinderance therein. Neuertheiesse, we made our prayer vnto our god, and set watchmenne by them which builded day and night ouer against them. And Juda saide: the strength of the bearers is to feble and there is yet muche more morter, and wee are not able to builde on the wall. And our aduersaries saide: they shall not knowe, neither see: till wee come in the mids among them, & slaye them & hinder the worke. But it fortuned ỳ when the Jewes (which dwelt beside them) came, they tolde vs as good as tenne times: that in al places wher ye go vnto, they are apointed to fall vpon vs. Therfore set I the people after their kinredes with their swoordes, speares, and bowes beneth in the lowe places behinde the wall, and I loked, and gat me vp: and saide vnto the chiefe menne, to the rulers: and to the other people: be not ye afraide of them: but thinke rather vppon the great Lorde, which ought to be feared, and fight for your brethren, your sonnes, your daughters, youre wiues, and your houses. Neuertheiesse, it chaunced that when our enemies heard, that we had gotten word of it, God brought their councell to nought: and we tourned all againe to the wall: euery one vnto his labour. And from that time forth it came to passe, that the halfe parte of the yong men did the labour, and the other half part of them held the speres, shieldes, bowes, & brestplates: and the rulers stoode behinde all the house of Juda, which builded on the wall, and bare burthens from those that laded them. With one hand did euery one worke, and with the other held he his weapon: And euery one that builded: had his swoorde, girde by his thigh, and so builded they. And the trompette bleswe beside me. And I said vnto the principall menne, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worke is greate and large, and we are separated vpon the wal one farre from another. Loke in what place therefore ye heare the noise of the trompette, resorte ye thither vnto vs, and our GOD shall fight for vs: and we wilbe labouring in the worke. And the half part of thē helde the speares from the morninge lyinge, til the starres came forth. And at the same time said I vnto the people: euery one abide with his seruant at Jerusalem, that in the night season we may watche, and laboure on the day time. As for me and my brethren, my seruauntes, and the menne of the watche (which were behinde me) we put neuer off our clothes, no more the other did their harnesse, saue only because of the water.

A And there arose a greate complaint of the people, and their wiues, against their brethren the Jewes. For there wer some that saide: our sonnes and daughters, and we are to many, therfore wil we take corne for them, that we may eate and liue. Some also there were that said: let vs set our landes, vineyardes and houses to pledge, and take vp corne in the dearth. But some there were that said: let vs borow mony for the kings tribute, and that vpon our landes and vineyards. Behold our bodies as the bodies of our brethren, and oure children as their children: eis shoulde we subdue our sons and daughters vnto bōdage, and some of our daughters are subdued vnto bondage alredy, and no strength is there in our hands, and other men haue our landes and vineyardes. And when I heard their cōplaint and such wordes, it displeased me sore, and I aduised so in my mind, that I rebuked the coūcellers, and the B rulers, and saide vnto them: Euery one of you is to chargeable vnto his brother, and I brought a great congregation against them, and said vnto them: we (after our habilitie) haue bought oure brethren the Jewes, whiche were solde vnto the heathen. And wil you sel your brethren againe vnto the heathen, after that they haue bene solde vnto vs? Then held they their peace, and could finde nothinge to aunswere. And Nehemia saide: It is not good that ye do. Ought ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the Heathen, that are our enemies? I and my brethren, and my seruauntes do lende them money and corne: but as for vsury, let vs leue it. Therefore, this same daye I praye you se that ye restore them their landes againe, their vineyardes, oyle, gardēs, and their houses, and remit the hundred parte of the money of the corne, wine, and oile that ye haue wonne of them. Then saide they, we will restore them again, and wil require nothinge of them: and will do as thou haste spoken. And I called the priests and tooke an othe of them, that they should so do. And I shooke my lappe, C and saide. God shake out euery man after the same maner from his house and labor, that maintaineth not this woorde: euen thus be he shaken oute and voide. And all the congregation saide: Amen, and praised the Lorde, And the people did so. And from the time forth, that the king committed vnto me to be a captaine of them that were in the land of Juda, euen from the. xx. yeare vnto the. xxxij. yeare of king Artharxerses (that is. xii. yeare) I with my brethren liued not of such sustinaunce, as was geuen to a captaine. For the olde captaines that were before me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, and had take of them breade and wine. and. xl. sicles of siluer: yea, and their seruauntes had oppressed the people. But so did not I, and that because of the feare of God. But I laboured also in the woorke vpon the wall, and bought no lande. And all my seruauntes came thither together vnto the woorke. Moreouer, D there are at my table an. C. and fifte of the Jewes and rulers, which came vnto me from amonge the Heathen, that are about vs. And there was prepared for me daylye an Oxe, and sixe chosen shepe, and birdes, and euer once in ten dayes a great summe of wine. Yet required not I the liuinge of a captaine, for the bōdage was greuous vnto the people. Thinke vpon me my 2. Esd. 6. God vnto the best, according to all and. 13. that I haue done for this people.

A And when Sanabalat, Tobiah, and Gesem the Arabian, and the other of our enemies hearde that I had builded the walle: and that there were noo moe gappes therein (howbeit at the same time, hadde I not hanged the doores vppon the gates) Sanabalat and Gesem sente vnto me, saying: Come, that we may mete and take counsayle together in the villages that are in the plaine of the Citie Ono. Neuertheless, they thought to do me euill. And I sent messengers vnto theim, saying: I haue a great busines to do, and I can not come downe. The worke shoulde stande still, yf I were negligent, and came downe to you. Howbeit, they sent vnto me as good as foure times after the same maner. And I gaue them the same aunswere. Then sent Sanabalat his seruaunt againe vnto me the fifth time with an open letter in his hand, wherin was writen: It is told the Heathen, and Gesem hath said it, that thou and the Iewes thinke to rebel: for the which cause thou buildest the wal, that thou maiest be their king in these matters, and haste ordeined the Prophetes to preach of thee at Jerusalē, and to say:
B He is king of Juda. And nowe shall this come to the kinges eares: come nowe therefore, and let vs take our counsell together. And I sent vnto him, saying: there is no suche thinge doone as thou saiest: for thou faynest them out of thine owne hearte. For they were all minded to make vs afraide, saying: they shall withdraw the their handes from their worke, that it shall not be finished. Howbeit, I strengthed my hand the more. And I came vnto the house of Semeia the sonne of Delaia, the sonne of Mehetabeel, and he had shut him selfe within, and said: let vs come together into the house of God, euen vnto the midst of the temple, and shutte the doores of the temple, for they will come to slaye C thee: yea, euen in the night will they come to put thee to death. And I said: should any such man as I flye? who is that, being as I am, that wil go into the temple, to saue his life? I will not go in. And I perceaued that God had not sent him. Yet spake he prophesie vpon me, neuertheless, Tobiah, & Sanabalat, had hired him for money. Therefore tooke hee the money that through feare I should so do, and sin, that they might haue an euil report of me, to blaspheme me, My God, thinke thou vpon Tobiah and Sanabalat according vnto these their workes, and of the prophet Noadia, & of the other prophetes, that would haue put me in feare. And the wall was finished on the .xxv. day of the moneth Elul, in .lii. daies. And when al our enemies hard therof, all the Heathen that wer about vs, were afraid, and their courage fayled them. And they perceiued that this D worke came of our God. And at the same time wer there many of the chefe of Juda, whose letters wente vnto Tobiah: and againe from Tobiah vnto them (for there wer many in Juda, that wer sworn vnto him, for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechania, the sonne of Arah, and his sonne Jehonathan, had the daughters of Mesullam the sonne of Barachia, and they spake good of him before me: and tolde him my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters, to put me in feare.

The. vi. Chapter.

NOwe when the wall was builded, I hanged on the doores also, and the porters, syngers, and Leuites wer appointed. And I commaunded my brother Hanani, and Hanania the ruler of the castell at Jerusalem: for he was a faythfull man, and feared God more then did many other. And I said vnto them: let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened vntill the sonne bee whote. And while they were standing in the watch, they shut the doores and barred them. And we appointed certayne citizens of Jerusalem, to be watchemen, euery one to keepe his watch, & euery one to be ouer against his house. As for the citie, it was large of roome, & great, but the people were fewe lewe therin, and the houses were not builded. And God gaue me in my hart that I gathred together the principal men, and the officers, and the people, to number them: and I found a reste-

And all the people wente their waye to eate and drinke, and to sende parte vnto other, and to make great mirth, because they had vnderstand the woordes that were declared vnto them. Thes were the heades among the pzieſtes & theyz bzethzen in the dayes of Jesua

The Leuites wer these: Jesua, Bennui, Cadmiell, Sarabia, Juda, and Mathania which was ouer the office of thanke sgeuing: he and his brethrē, Bacbukia and Hynni, and their brethren, were aboute them in the watches. Jesua begate Joakim, Joakim also begate Eliasib, and Eliasib begat Joiada, Joiada begat Jonathan, and Jonathan begat Jadua. In the days of Joakim wer these the chief fathers amonge the prieſtes: vnder Saraia, Maraia, vnder Jeremy Hanania, vnder Esdras, Mesuliam, vnder Amaria, Jehoanan, vnder Melico, Jonathan, vnder Sebania, Joseph, vnder Harim, Adna, vnder Maraioth, Helkia, vnder Iddo, zachari, vnder Genthon, Mesuliam, vnder Abia, Zichri, vnder Miniamin, and Moadia, Piltai, vnder Belga, Samua, vnder Semeia, Jehonathan, vnder Joiarib, Methenia, vnder Jadaia, Uſi, vnder Helai, Kelai, vnder Amok, Eber, vnder Helchia, Hasabia, vnder Jaiada, Nathanael. And in the time of Eliasib, Joiada, Johanan and Jadua wer the chiefe fathers among the Leuites and the Prieſtes, written vnder the reigne of Darius the Perſian. The children of Leui, the principall fathers were written in the Chronicles, vntill the time of Jonathan the ſonne of Eliasib. And theſe were the chiefe amonge the Leuites, Hasabia, Serebia, and Jeſua the ſone of Cadmiel, and their brethren in their preſence, to geue praiſe and thankes, accordinge as Dauid the man of God had ordened it, one watch ouer against another, Mathania, Baibukia, Obadia, Meſuliam, Talmon, and Akub, wer porters in the watch at the threſholdes of the gates. Theſe were in the daies of Joakim, the ſonne of Jeſua, the ſonne of Joſedec, and in the dayes of Nehemia the captaine, and of the Prieſt Esdras the ſcribe. And in the dedication of the wall at Jeruſalem, they ſought the Leuites out of all their places, that they might be brought to Jeruſalem, to kepe the dedication and gladneſſe, with thankeſgeuinge, and ſinging with Cimbals, Pſaltaries and harpes. And the children of the ſingers gathered theim ſelues together from euery ſide out of the plaine country about Jeruſalem, and from the villages of Nethophati from the houſe of Gilgall, & out of the countreis of Geba, and Aſmaueth: for the ſingers had builded them villages round about Jeruſalem. And the Prieſtes and Leuites were purified, and cleanſed the people, and the gates, and the wall. And I brought the Princes of Juda vpon the wall, and appointed two great Queeres of men to geue thankes, whiche wente on the righte hande of the wall toward the Dongegate, and after them went Haſaia, and halfe of the princes of Juda, and Aſaria, Esdras, and Meſuliam, Juda, Ben Jamin, Semia, Jeremie, and certaine of the Prieſtes children with trompettes: namely zachari the ſonne of Jonathan, the ſonne of Semia, the ſone of Mathania, the ſonne of Machaia, the ſonne of Zacur, the ſonne of Aſaph, and his brethren, Semeia, Iſarael, Melalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathanaell, and Juda, and Hanani: with the Muſical inſtrumentes of Dauid the man of god. And Esdras the ſcribe wente before them, and beſide the well gate, they went vp ouer against them vpon the ſteps of the citie of Dauid: at the going vp of the wall beyonde the houſe of Dauid, vnto the watergate Eaſtward. The other queere of them that gaue thankes went ouer against thē, and I after them, and the halfe part of the people vpon the wal, beyonde the fornace gate vnto the brode wall, and beyond the port of Ephraim, & beyond the olde gate, beyonde the fiſhe gate, and the tower of Hananeli, and the tower of Mea, vntill the ſhepegate. And they ſtode ſtil in the priſon gate: and ſo ſtode the two queres (of them that gaue thankes) in the houſe of God: and I, and the half of the rulers with mee, and the Prieſtes, namelye Eliakim, Maaſia, Miniamin, Michaia, Eliocnai, zachari and Hanania with trompets: and Maasia, Semiah, Eleaser, Vrsi, Iehohanan, Melchiah, Elam, and Ser. And the singers sange loude, hauing Iestahiah, for their ouersear. And the same day they offered great sacrifices, and reioyced: for God had geuen them great gladnesse, so that both the wiues and childzen were ioyfull, and the myzth of Ierusalem was heard farre off. At the same time wer there men appointed ouer the tresure houses (wherein were the heaueofferinges, the fyzstelinges, and the tythes) that they should gather them out of the fieldes about the cities: to distribute them vnto the Pziestes and Leuites accozdinge to the lawe: for Juda was glad of the Pziestes and Leuites, that they stode and waited vpon the office of their God, whiche is a pure office. Nu.23a dzen of Israell with bzead and water, • but hyzed Balaam against them that he shoulde curse them, and our God turned the curse into a blessing. Nowe when they heard the lawe, it fortuned that they separated from Israell euery one that had mixte himselfe therein. And before this had the Pziest Eliasib the ouersight of the tresure of the house of our God, and he was kinsman vnto Tobia, and had made him a great chamber, and there had they afozetime laied the offerings, frankinsence, vessell, and the tithes of cozne, wine, and oyle (accozding to the commaundement geuen to the Leuites, syngers, and Pozters,) and the heaueofferinges of the Pziestes. But 6 in all this time was not I at Ierusalem: for in the two and thirtie yere of Artharerses king of Babilon, came I vnto the king, and after certaine daies obtained I licence of the kinge to come to Ierusalem. And I gate knowledge of the euill that Eliasib did vnto Tobia, in that he had made him a chambze in the courte of the house of God: and it greeued me sore: and I cast forthe all the vessels of the house of Tobia out of the chambze, 8 commaunded them to clense the chambers. And thither bzought I agayne the vessels of the house of God, with the meateoffering and the encense. And I perceiued that the pozcions of the Leuites were not geuen theim, and that euery one fled to his lande, euen the Leuites and syngers that executed the wozcke. Then repzoued I the rulers and said: why is the house of God forsaken? And I gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then bzought all Juda the tithes of cozne, and wine and oyle vnto the tresure. And I made treasurers ouer the treasure: euen Selemiah the Pziest, and Zadoc the scribe, and of the Leuites, Phadaia, and vnder their hande was Hanan the sonne of Zacur, the sonne of Mathania, for they were counted faithfull, and their office was to distribute the pozcions vnto their bzethzen. • Thinke vppon me 1.Es.5 O my God herein, and wipe not out my mercye that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the officers thereof. And the same time sawe I some treading wine pzesses on the Sabbothe, and bringinge in sheues, and Asses laden with wine, grapes, figges, and bzinging al maner of burthens vnto Ierusalem, vpō the

Sab-

Sabboth day. And I rebuked them earnestly the same day that they solde the vitayles: There dweite menne of Tyre also therein, which brought fishe and all maner of ware, and solde on the Sabboth vnto the childzen of Juda in Jerusalem. Then repzoued I the rulers in Juda, and saide vnto them: what euill thinge is this, that ye doo, and breake the Sabboth daye? Did not your fathers euen thus, and our GOD brought all this plague vpon vs, and vpon this Citie? And ye make the wzath moze yet vppon Israell, in that ye breake the Sabboth. And it fortuned, that when the portes of Jerusalem began to be darke in the euening, before the Sabboth, I commaunded to shut the gates, and charged that they shoulde not be opened till after the Sabboth: add some of my seruauntes sette I at the gates, that there should no burthen be brought in on the Saboth day. Then remayned the chapmen and marchauntes once or twyse ouer nighte without Jerusalem with all maner of ware.

Then repzoued I theim sooze, and saide vnto theim: why tarye ye all nyght about the walle? If ye doo it once agayne, I will laye handes vppon you. From that time soozthe came they no moze on the Sabboth. I saide vnto the Leuites, that they shoulde clense them selues, and that they shoulde come and keepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbothe daye. Thinke vppon me (O my GOD) concerning this also, and spare me, according to thy greate mercye. And at the same time sawe I Jewes that maried wines of Asdod, of Ammon, and of Moab: and the childzen spake halfe in the Speeche of Asdod, and coulde not speake in the Jewes language, but by the toungue mighte a man perceiue euery people. Then I repzoued theim, and cursed theim, and smote certaine men of them, and made them bare, and tooke an othe of theym by GOD: Ye shall not geue your daughters vnto their sonnes: Neyther shall yee take their daughters vnto your sonnes, or for your selues. Did not Salomon the king of Israell synne for suche? And yet among many Heathen was there no Kinge lyke him, whiche was deare vnto his God: and God made him kinge ouer all Israell: and yet neuertheleste outlandyshe women caused him to sinne. Shall we then obey vnto you to doo all this greate euill, and to transgresse against our GOD, and marry straunge wiues? And one of the childzen of Jehoiada, the sonne of Eliasib the high pziest, had made a contracte with Sanaballat, the Hozonite: But I chased him from me. (O my God) thinke thou vppon them that defyle the Pziesthode, and the couenaunt of the Pziesthoode, and of the Leuites. Thus clensed I them from all suche as were outlandishe, and appointed the courses of the Pziestes & Leuites, euery one in his office, & to offer the wood at times appointed, and the firste fruites. Thinke thou vpon me, O my God, for the best. Amen.

¶ The Booke of Esther

A T ſoꝛtuned, in the dates of Ahaſuerus, which reigned from India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hundꝛed and. xxvij. landes) euen in thoſe dayes when the king Ahaſuerus ſat on his ſeate royall, which was in Sulan the chiefe Citie, in the third yeare of his reigne, he made a feaſte vnto all his ꝓnces and ſeruants. And the mightie men of Perſia and Media, the captains alſo and rulers of his countreis were before him, and he ſhewed the riches and glorye of his kingdome, and the glorious worſhip of his gretneſſe many dayes long: euen an hundꝛed and four ſcore dayes. And when theſe dayes were expired, the Kinge made a feaſte vnto all the people that were in Sulan the chiefe citie, both in the Court of the garden by the kings palace: where there hanged white, grene and yealowe cloathes, faſtened with coardes of fine ſilke, and purple in ſiluer rynges, vpon pillers of marble ſtones. The benches alſo were of golde and ſiluer, made vppon a pauement of grene, white, yelow, & blacke marble. And they dꝛanke in veſſelles of gold, and changed veſſell after veſſell. And the kinges wine was much accoꝛding to the power of the Kinge. And the dꝛinke was ſo appointed that none ſhoulde compell any man: foꝛ ſo the king had commaunded by the officers of his houſe, that euery one ſhuld doo as it liked him. And the Queene Aſthi made a feaſt alſo foꝛ the women in the palace of Ahaſuerus. And on the ſeuenth daye when the Kinge was merye after the wine, he commaunded Nehuman, Bizetha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, Zethar, and Charchas, the ſeuẽ chamberlains, that did ſeruice in the preſence of king Ahaſuerus, to fetche the queene Aſthi with the croꝛwne regall into the kinges preſence, that he might ſhewe the people and ꝓnces her fairenelle, foꝛ ſhe was beautifull. But the Queene Aſthi would not come at the kinges woꝛd by his Chamberlaines. Then was the king very woꝛth, and his indignation kindled in him. And the King ſpake to the wiſe men that had vnderſtanding in the oꝛdinaunces of the land: foꝛ the kinges matters muſt be handled before all ſuche as haue knowledge of the law and iudgemẽt. And (the chiefe and) nexte vnto him were Carſena, Sethar, Admata, Therſis, Mares, Marſena, and Memucan, the ſeuen ꝓnces of Perſia, and Media, which ſawe the kinges face, and ſat aboue in the kingdome. What law (ſayeth the King) ſhould be executed vpon the Quene Aſthi, becauſe ſhee did not accoꝛding to the woꝛde of the king Ahaſuerus, which he commaunded by his chamberlaines? And Memucan anſwered before the king, and the ꝓnces: The queene Aſthi hath not onely done euill againſt the king, but alſo againſt all the ꝓnces, and againſt all the people that are in all the lãds of king Ahaſuerus: foꝛ this dede of the quene ſhal come abꝛode vnto all women, ſo that they ſhall deſpiſe their huſbandes before their eyes, and ſhall ſay: The king Ahaſuerus cõmaunded Aſthi the Queene to be bꝛought in before him, but ſhe would not come. And ſo ſhall the ꝓnceſſes in Perſia and Media, ſay likewiſe vnto all the kinges Pꝛinces, when they heare of this dede of the quene: thus ſhal there ariſe to much deſpitefulnes & wꝛath. If it pleaſe the king therfoꝛe, let there go a commaundement from him, and let it be wꝛittẽ accoꝛding to the lawes of the Perſians and Medians, (and not to be tranſgreſſed) that Aſthi come no moꝛe before king Ahaſuerus, and let the Kinge gene her kingdome vnto an other, that is better then ſhe. And when this commaundemente of the Kinge (whiche ſhall be made) is publiſhed thoꝛoughe oute all his his empyre (which is great) all women shall holde their husbandes in honour both among great and small. This pleased the king, and the princes, and the king did according to the worde of Memucan. For he sent letters forth into all the kinges landes, into euery land: according to the writing therof, and to euery people after their language, that euery man should be lorde in his owne house. And this caused he to be spoken after the language of his people.

The. ij. Chapter.

¶ After these actes, whē the displeasure of kinge Ahasuerus was nowe layed, he thought vpon Vasthi, and what she had done, and what was concluded against her. Then sayde the kinges seruauntes that ministred vnto him: Let there be sayre younge virgins sought for the king, and the king appointed certaine men in all the landes of his empyre, whom he charged that they shoulde bynge together all the sayre yonge virgins vnto Susan the head citie, to the womens building, vnder the hand of Hagei, the kinges chamberlayne, that kept the women, to geue theim their apparell, (and other thinges necessarie to be had.) And that the damosell which pleased the kinge should be quene in Vasthis stede. And this pleased the king and he did so. In the City of Susan there was a Jew, whose name was Mardocheus, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Semei, the sonne of Cis a man of Jemini, which was caried away from Jerusalem, • when Jeconia the king of Juda was lead awaye, (whom Nabuchodonozor the kinge of Babilon caried thence) and he norished Hadassa (that is Esther) his vncles daughter: for she had neyther father nor mother, and she was a sayre and a beautiful damosell: whom Mardocheus (when her father and mother was deade) receyued for his owne daughter. So it fortuned, that when the kinges commaundement and commission was published, and many damselles were brought together in the citie of Susan, vnder the hande of Hagei, Esther was brought also vnto the kinges house vnder the hande of Hagei the keper of the women, and the damsell pleased him that she founde fauour in his sighte. And he caused ornamentes to be geuen her, and such thinges as belonged to her, and apointed her seuen comly damsels out of the kinges house, and fauoured both her and her gentle women synguleriy in the house of the women. But Esther shewed not her people and her kinred: for Mardocheus had charged her that she should not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery day before the court of the womens house, that he might knowe howe Esther did, and what shoulde become of her. And when the appointed time of euery damsell came, that she should go in to kinge Ahasuerus, after that she had bene twelue monethes in the decking of the women (for their decking must haue so much time, namely syxe monethes with Balme and Myrre, and syxe monethes with good spyces, so were the women beautified) then wente there one damosell vnto the kinge, and whatsoeuer she required (so that it were comelye) that must be geuen her to go with her out of the womens building vnto the kinges palace. In the euening she went, and on the morowe agayne, into the seconde house of the women abyding vnder the hande of Saasgas the kinges chamberlaine, whiche kepte the concubines. And she came in vnto the king no more, except it pleased the king to haue her and that he called her by name. Nowe when the time came of Esther the daughter of Abihan the vncle of Mardocheus (which had receiued her as his own daughter) that she shoulde come in to the kinge, she desyred nothinge, but what Hagei the kinges chamberlayne, the keper of the women sayde. And Esther founde fauoure in the sighte of all theym that looked vpon her. And Esther was taken vnto the kinge Ahasuerus into his house royall, in the tenth moneth, which is the moneth Tebeth, in the seuenth yere of his reigne. And the kinge loued Esther aboue al the wemen, and she found grace and fauour in his sight before al the virgins: so that he set the crowne of the kingdome vppon her head, and made her Queene in steede of Vasthi. And the kinge made a great feast vnto all his princes and seruaunts (which feast was because of Esther) and caused the landes to be in quietnesse, and gaue giftes, as became the royaltie of a king. And when the virgins were gathered together the seconde time, Mardocheus sate in the kinges gate. And as yet had not Esther shewed her kinred and her people, accordinge as Mardocheus had bidden her, for Esther did after the word of Mardocheus, like as if she had bene yet vnder his gouernaunce. At the same time, while Mardocheus sat in the kinges gate, two of the kinges chamberlains Bithan and Theres, which kept the dore, were wroth, and soughte to laye their handes on the kinge Ahasuerus wherof also Mardocheus gat knowledge, and told it vnto Queene Esther, and Esther certified the kinge thereof in Mardocheus name. And when inquisition was made, it was found so. And they were both hanged on tree: and it was written in the Chronicles before the kinge.

The. iij. Chapter.

AFter these actes did king Ahasuerus promote Haman the sonne of Amadatha, the Agagite, and set him on hie, and set his seat aboue all the princes that he had with him. And all the kinges seruauntes that were in the kinges gate bowed their knees and worshipped Haman: for the king had so commaunded, concerning him. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worshipped him not. Then the kings seruants which wer in the kings gate said vnto Mardocheus: why trāsgressest thou ỹ kinges commaundements. And whē they spake this daylye vnto him, he folowed them not, and they told Haman, that they might se how Mardocheus matters would endure: for he had told them, that he was a Iewe. And when Haman sawe that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto him, nor worshipped him, he was full of indignation, and thought it to little to laye handes onely on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him the nation of Mardocheus: wherefore he soughte to destroye all the Iewes that were throughout the whole empire of Ahasuerus, and that were of the nation of Mardocheus. In the firste moneth (that is the moneth Nisan) in the tweluth yere of king Ahasuerus, they caste Phur (that is a lot) before Haman from daye to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the twelueth moneth, that is the moneth Adar. And Haman saide vnto King Ahasuerus: There is here a people scatred abrode, & dispersed among all people in all the landes of thine empire, and they haue their lawes contrary from all people, and do not after the kings lawes: neither is it the kinges profite to suffer them after this maner. If it please the kinge, let it be written, that they maye be destroyed, and so wil I waye down ten thousand talentes of siluer, by the handes of the workemen, to be brought into the kinges treasure: and the king toke his ring from his hand, and gaue it vnto Haman the sonne of Amadatha, the Agagite, the Iewes enemie. And the king saide vnto Haman: Let the siluer be geuen thee, and do with that people as it pleseth thee. Then were the kinges scribes called on the thirtenth daye of the firste moneth (Nisan) and there was written (according as Haman commaunded) vnto al the kinges officers, and to the captaines that were in all the landes, and to the rulers of euery people in the countreys of euerye side, according to the writing of euery nation, and after their language: in the name of king Ahasuerus was it written, and sealed with the kinges ring. And the writings were sent by postes into all the kinges landes, to roote oute, to kill and to destroye all Iewes, both yong and olde, childzen and women in one daye (namelye, vppon the thirtenth daye of the twelfth month, Februa. which is the moneth Adar) and to spoile their gooddes. This was the sume of the writing, that ther should be a commaundement geuen in al landes, and published vnto all people, that they shoulde be ready against the same daye. And the postes went in all the hast, accozding to the kinges commaundement. And in Susan the chefe citie was the commaundement deuised. And the kinge and Haman satte and dzanke: when in the meane time the citie of Susan was disquieted.

WHen Mardocheus perceaued all that was doone, hee rente his clothes, and put on sackecloth: with ashes, and went oute into the middes of the Citie, and cryed loude and lamentablye, and came before the kinges gate: but he mighte not enter within the kinges gate, by cause he had sackecloth on, and in all landes, countryes and places as farre as the kinges woozde and commaundemente extended, there was greate lamentation amonge the Iewes, fasting, weeping and mourninge, and many lay in sackclothes, and in ashes. So Esthers damosels and her chamberlaines came and tolde it her. Then was the Quene excedingly astonished. And she sent raiment, that Mardocheus shoulde put on, and laye the sackcloth from him. But Mardocheus woulde not take them. Then called Esther Hathath, one of the kings chamberlaines (which stoode before her) and gaue him a commaundement vnto Mardocheus, that hee mighte know what it were, wherfoze he did so. So Hathath went fozth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of the Citie, whiche was before the kinges gate. And Mardocheus tolde him of all that had happened vnto him, and of the summe of siluer that Haman had promised to weye down into the kinges treasurye because of the Iewes, if he woulde destroye theim, and hee gaue him the coppe of the kings commaundemente, that was deuised at Susan, to destroy thē, that he mighte shewe it vnto Esther: and to speake to her, and charge her, that she shoulde go into the king, and make her prayer and supplicatiō vnto him foz her people. And when Hathath came in, hee C tolde Esther the woozdes of Mardocheus. And again, Esther spake vnto Hathath, and commaunded him to say vnto Mardocheus: all the kinges seruauntes, and the people in the landes of the kinge, knowe that whosoeuer commeth within the courte vnto the kinge, whether it be man oz woman, which is not called, the commaundement is, that the same shall die, except the kinge holde out the golden scepture vnto him (in token of graciousnes) foz then he shall liue. As foz me, I haue not bene called to come into the Kinge nowe this thirtie dayes. And they certified Mardocheus of Esthers woozdes, and Mardocheus D bad say againe vnto Esther: think not to saue thine owne life while thou arte in the kinges house, before al Iewes: foz yf thou holdest thy peace at this time, then shall the Iewes haue helpe and deliueraunce oute of an other place, and thou and thy fathers house shall be destroyed. And whoe knoweth whether thou art come to the kingedome, foz this causes sake? Esther bad them gene Mardocheus this answer: Go thou thy way, & gather together all the Iewes together that are founde at Susan, and fast ye foz me, that ye eat not and dzinke not in thzee daies, neither day noz night. I and my damoselles will faste likewise: and so will I go into the king, which thing yet is contrary vnto the commaundement: and yf I perishe, I perishe. Soo Mardocheus wente his waye, and did all that Esther had commaunded him.

And

A Nd on the third daye it fortuned, that Esther put on her roi all apparell, and stoode in the court of the kinges palace within, ouer against the Kinges house. And the kinge sat vpon his royall seate in the kinges palace, ouer against the gate of the house. And when the king sawe Esther the Queene standing in the Courte, she founde grace in his sighte. And the kinge helde oute the golden scepter that was in his hande towarde Esther. So Esther stepte forth and touched the top of the scepter. Then saide the kinge vnto her: What wilte thou queene Esther? and what requirest thou? al be euen the halfe of the empire, and it shalbe geuē thee. And Esther aunswered: If it please the king, let the kinge and Haman come this daye vnto the banket, that I haue prepared for him. And the king saide: cause Haman to make haste that he maye do as Esther hath saide. So the kinge and Haman came to the banket that Esther had prepared, and the kinge saide vnto Esther at the banket of wine: What is thy petition? that it maye be geuen thee. And what requirest thou? Yf it be euen the halfe of the empire, it shall be done. Then aunswered Esther, and saide: My petition and desire is, yf I haue founde grace in the sighte of the king: and if it please the kinge to geue me my petition, and to fulfill my request, then let the kinge and Haman come to the banket that I shall prepare for them, and so wil I do to morowe, as the kinge hath saide. Then went Haman forth the same day ioyfull and mery in his mind. And when the same Haman sawe Mardocheus in the kinges gate that he stode not vp and kneled before him, he was full of indignation at Mardocheus. Neuertheless, Haman refrained him selfe: and when he came home he sente, and called for his frendes, and Zares his wife: and Haman tolde them of the glorye of his richesse, and the multitude of his childzen, and all together howe the kinge had promoted him so greatly, and howe that he had set him aboue the princes and seruauntes of the kinge. Haman saide moreouer: Yea, and Esther the queene did let no man come in with the kinge vnto the banket, that she had prepared, excepte me. And to morowe am I bidden vnto her also with the kinge. But in all this am I not satisfied as longe as I see Mardocheus the Iewe sitting at the kinges gate. Then saide Zares his wife, and all his frendes vnto him: Let them make a galowes of fiftye cubites hye, and to morowe speake thou vnto the kinge, that Mardocheus may be hanged theron, and go thou in merily with the kinge vnto the bankette. And Haman was well content withall, and caused the galowes to be made.

The. vi. Chapter.

THe same nighte could not the kinge sleepe, and he commaunded to bringe the Chronicles and storyes: which when they were red before the Kinge, they happened on the place, where it was written, howe Mardocheus had tolde that Esth. 2 Bigthana and Theres, the Kinges two chamberlaines (which kepte the thresholdes) sought to laye handes on king Ahasuerus. And the kinge saide: What worshipp and good haue we don to Mardocheus therfore? Then saide the kinges seruauntes that ministred vnto him: there is nothing at all done for him. And the king said: who is in the court? for Haman was gone into the court without before the kinges house, that he might speake vnto the king to hang Mardocheus on ỹ tree (that he had prepared for him.) And the kings seruants said vnto him: behold, Haman standeth without in the courte. And the kinge saide: Let him come in. And when Haman came in, the king saide vnto him: What shalbe done vnto the man whom the Kinge wold faine bring vnto worshipp? Haman thought in his hert: whom desireth the king to bring vnto worshipp, more then me? And Haman answered the king: Let the mā whom the kinge pleaseth to bringe vnto worshipp, be brought hither, that he may be arayde with the royall garmentes, whiche the kinge vseth to weare: and the horse that the kinge rideth vpon, and that the crowne royall maye be sette vpon his head. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnto the hande of one of the kinges princes, that he may araye the man withall (whom the king is disposed to bringe to honour) and carry him vppon the horse thorow the strete of the citie, and proclaime before him: thus shal it be done to the man, whom the king pleaseth to bringe to honour. And the kinge sayde: Make hast, and take as thou hast said: The rayment and the horse, and do euen so vnto Mardocheus the Iewe, that sitteth before the kinges gate: and let nothing fayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment and the horse, and arayed Mardocheus, and brought him on horsebacke thorowe the streete of the citie, and proclaymed before him: Euen this shall it be done vnto the man whō the king is disposed to honour. And Mardocheus came againe to the kinges gate: but Haman gate him home in all the haste mourning bare headed, and tolde Zares his wife, and all his frendes, euery thing that had happened him. Then saide his wise men, and Zares his wyfe vnto him: If it be Mardocheus of the seede of the Iewes, before whom thou haste begon to fall thou shalt not preuayle against him. And while they were yet talking with him, came the kinges chamberlaynes, and caused Haman to make haste, to come vnto the banket that Esther had prepared.

The. vij. Chapter.

AND the king & Hamā came in to the banket that quene Esther had prepared: and the king said vnto Esther on the seconde daye at the bankette of wyne: what is thy petition (queene Esther) that it may bee geuen thee? And what desyrest thou? Yea, aske euen halfe the empire, and it shall be done. And Esther the Quene answered and saide: If I haue found grace in thy sight (o king) and if it please the king, then graunt me my life at my desyre and my people, for my petitions sake: for we are solde, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to perishe. And would God that we were sold to be bondmen and bondwomen, then wold I holde my tongue. For the enemie pondreth not the kings harme. Then king Ahasuerus answered, and saide vnto queene Esther: who is he? And where is he, that dare presume in his minde to do after that maner? And Esther sayd: the enemy and aduersary is this wicked Haman. Haman was exceadingly afrayde before the kinge and the queene. And the kinge arose from the banket, and from the wyne, in his displeasure, and wente into the palace garden. And Haman stode vp, and besought queene Esther for his lyfe, for he sawe that there was mischefe prepared for him of the kinge all ready. And when the kinge came agayne out of the palace garden, into the place where they dranke wyne: Haman had laied him vppon the bed, that Esther sate vppon: Then sayde the king: will he force the Quene also before me in the house? Assoone as that worde went out of the kinges mouthe, they couered Hamans face, And Harbona one of ỹ chamberlains that stode before the kinge, sayde: Behold, ther standeth a galous in Hamās house, fifty cubites hye, which he had made for Mardocheus, ỹ spake good for the king. The king said hang him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the galowes, that he hadde made for Mardocheus. Then was the kinges wrath pacified.

The. viij. Chapter.

THe same day did king Ahasuerus geue the house of Haman the Iewes enemie, vnto quene Esther. And Mardocheus cam before the king: for Esther told how that he belōged vnto her. And the king put of his finger ring, which he had take frō Haman, & gaue it vnto Mardocheus.

And

And Esther sette Mardocheus ouer the house of Hamã. And Esther spake yet moze before the king, & fell downe at his feete weeping, and besought him that he would put away the wickednesse of Haman the Hagagite, and his deuise that he had ymagined against the Iewes. And the king (according to the maner) healde out the golden scepter toward Esther, (wher by was declared a token of graciousnesse. Then rose Esther, and stoode before the king, and sayde: if it please the king, and if I haue founde grace in his sight, and if it be acceptable before the king, then let it be written, that the letters of the deuice of Haman, the sonne of Hamadatha the Agagite may be called agayne, whiche letters he wrote to destroye the Iewes, which are in all the kinges landes. For how can I suffer and see the euill that shall happen vnto my people? Or howe can I looke vpon the destruction of my kinredde. And the king Ahasuerus saide vnto Queene Esther, & to Mardocheus the Iewe: Beholde, I haue geuen Esther, the house of Haman, whom they haue hanged vppon a tree, because he layde hande vppon the Iewes. Wzite ye also for the Iewes, as it liketh you, in the kinges name, and seale it with the kinges ringe, for the wzitinges that were wzitten in the kings name, and sealed with the kinges ring, durst no man disanull. Then were the kinges Scribes called at the same time, euen in the third moneth, that is the moneth Siuan, on the thze & twentith day. And it was wzitten (accozding to all as Mardocheus commanded) vnto the Iewes, and to the princes, to the debities and captaynes in the lands, which are from India vnto Ethiopia, namely an C. and seuen and twenty landes vnto euery one, accozding to the wziting thereof, and vnto euery people after their speche, and to the Iewes accozding to their wziting and language. And he wzote in the king Ahasuerus name, and sealed it with the kinges ringe. And by postes that rode vpon hozses and swift yong mules sente he the wzitinges, wherein the king graunted the Iewes (in what cities soeuer they were) to gather themselues together, and to stand foz their life, and foz to roote out, to slaye, and to destroy all the power of the people and land that would trouble them, with childzen and women, and to spoile their good vpon one day, in all the landes of king Ahasuerus, namely vpon the thirteenth day of the xij. month, which is the month Ader. The sum of the wziting was, howe there shoulde be a commaundement geuen in all landes, and published among all people, and that the Iewes shoulde be ready against that day, and to auenge them selues on their enemies. And so the postes that rode vpon the swift hozses and mules, made haste with all speede, to execute the kinges wozde, and the commaundement was deuised in Susan the chefe Citie. And Mardocheus went out (from the place, and) from the kinge in royal apparel, of yelow and white, and with a great crowne of Gold, being arayed with a garment of silke and purple, and the city of Susan retoyced and was gladde: and vnto the Iewes there was come (a newe) lyght and gladnesse, toy and wozshyp. In all landes and Cities into what places soeuer the kinges wozde and commaundement reached, there was ioye and mirth, prosperitie and good daies among the Iewes, in so muche that many of the people in the land became of the Iewes belefe, and the feare of the Iewes came vpon them.

The. ix. Chapter.

IN the twelueth monthe, that is the monthe Ader, vpon the thirtenth daye of the same, when the kinges wozde and commaundement should be done, euen vppon the same daye that the ennemies should haue destroyed the Iewes to haue oppressed them, it turned contrary wise, euen that the Iewes shoulde subdue their enemies. For then gathered the Iewes together in their cities within all the landes of king Ahasuerus, to lay hande on suche as would do them euill, and no man coulde withstande them, for the feare of them was come ouer al people, and al the rulers in the landes, and princes & debities, and officers of the kinge promoted the Iewes, for the feare of Mardocheus cam vpon them. For Mardocheus was great in the kinges house, and the report of him was noysed in all landes, B howe he encreased and grewe. Thus the Iewes smote all theyr enemies with a sore slaughter, and slue and destroyed, did after their will vnto such as wer their aduersaries. And at Susan the chef citie slew the Iewes, and destroyed fyue hundred men, and slue Pharsandatha, Dalphon, Aphatha, Phozatha, Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmastha, Arisai, Aridai, and Waizatha, the ten sonnes of Haman, the sonnes of Hamadatha the enemie of the Iewes: but on his goodes they layed no hands. At the same time was the king C certified of the number of those that were slayne in the Citie of Susan. And the king said vnto quene Esther: The Iewes haue slayne and destroied fyue hundred men in the citie of Susan, and the ten sonnes of Haman. What haue they doone thinkest thou in other landes of the Kinge? And what is thy petition, that it maye be geuen thee? or what requirest thou moze to be doone? Esther aunswered: If it please the kinge, let hym suffer the Iewes to mozowe also to do accozdinge vnto this dayes commaundement, that they may hange Hamans ten sons vpon the tree. And the kinge charged to do so: and the commaundement was deuised at Susan, and they hanged Hamans ten sonnes. For the Iewes that were in Susam gathered theym selues together vpon the fouretenth day of the monthe Adar, and slue three hundred men at Susan, but on theyr goodes they layed no handes. As for the other Iewes that were in the kinges landes, they cam together, and stode for their liues that they might haue rest from their enemies, & slue of their enemies fyue and seuenty thousande: howbeit they layed no handes on their goods. This D they did on the thirteenth day of ỹ moneth Adar, and on the .xiiij. day of the same moneth rested they, whiche day they helde with feasting and gladnes. But the Iewes that were at Susan cam together both on the .xiij. day, and on the .xiiij. and on the .xv. day of the same they rested, & held that day with feasting & gladnes. And therefore the Iewes that dwelt in the vilages and vnwalled townes held the .xiiij. day of the month Adar, with gladnes and feasting, & kept holy day, & euery one sent giftes vnto another. And Mardocheus wrote these acts, and sent the writinges vnto all the Iewes, that were in all the lands of king Ahasuerus, both nye and far, that they should make a lawe among them selues, and hold the .xiiij. & .xv. day of the month Adar, as the days wherin the Iewes cam to rest from theyr enemies, and as a month wherin their paine was turned to ioye, & their sorow into an holy day: and that in those days they shold E make feastes and gladnes, and one to sende giftes vnto another, and to distribute vnto ỹ poze. And the Iewes wer content with it that they had begon to do, & that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: howe that Haman the son of Hamadatha al the Iewes enemie, had deuised against the Iewes, howe he might destroye them, and caused to cast Phur (that is a lotte) for to putte theym in feare, and to bringe theym to nought: And howe Esther went and spake to the kinge, that throughe letters his wicked deuise (which he ymagined against the Iewes) might be turned vpon his owne head: and howe he and his sonnes were hanged on the tree. For the which cause they called this day Phurim, because of the name of the lotte, and because of all the woordes of this writing, and what they them selues had sene, and what had happened vnto them.

F And the Jewes set it vp, and tooke it vpon them and their sede, and vpon al suche as ioyned them selues vnto thē, that they would not misse but obserue these two dayes yerely, accordyng as they wer wryten and appointed, how that these daies are not to be forgottē, but to be kept of chyldren childzen amonge all kynreds in all landes and cities they are the dayes of Phurim, whiche are not to be ouerslipt among the Jewes, and the memorial of them ought not to perishe from their sede. And queene Esther, the daughter of Abihail, and Mardocheus the Jewe wrote with al auctoritie (to confirme this second wryting of Phurim) and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundred and seuen & twenty lands of the empire of Ahasuerus, with frendly and faithfull wordes, to confirme these daies of Phurim, in their time appointed, accordyng as Mardocheus the Jew, and Esther the quene G hadde appoynted theym. And they bounde their soule and their sede to fastynge and prayer. And Esther stablished the wordes of these lottes, as it is wryttē in the booke. And the king Ahasuerus layde this Tribute vpon the lande, and vpon the Iles of the sea. And all that he dyde by his power and auctho:itie, and the great worshippe of Mardocheus, whiche the kynge gaue him, bee they not wryttē in the Chronicles of the kinges of Media and Persia? For Mardocheus the Jewe, was the second nexte vnto kinge Ahasuerus, and great among the Jewes, and accepted among the multitude of his brethren, as one that seeketh the wealthe of hys people, and speaketh the best for all his sede.

IN the lande of Hus there was a man, whose name was Job: and the same was a perfecte and iuste man, suche a one as feared God, and eschueth euill. And he hadde seuen sonnes, and three daughters. * His substance also was seuen M. sheepe, and three M. Camels, fyue C. yoke of Oxen, and fyue C. she asses, and a very great housholde, so that he was one of the most principall men among all them of the East countrey. And his sonnes went and made bankets: one day in one house, another day in another, and sente for their three sisters to eate and drynk with them. And it fortuned, that when they had passed ouer the tyme of theyr banketting rounde about, Job sente for them, and sanctified them, and gat vp early, and offred for euery one a burntoffring. For Job said: lest peraduēture my sonnes haue done some offence, and haue bene vnthankful to god in their hertes. Thus did Job euery day. And vpon a daye * when the childzen of God came and stode before the Lord, it fortuned, that Sathan came also among them. And the Lord sayde vnto Sathan. From whens comest thou? Sathan answered the Lord and saide: * I haue gone about the land, and walked thorow it. B And the Lord said vnto Sathan: hast thou not considered my seruaunt Job howe that there is none like him in the land: a perfect and a iust man, such a one as feareth God, and eschueth euill? Sathan answered and said vnto the Lord: Doeth Job feare God for nought * hast thou not preserued him, and his house, and all that he hath on euery syde? But laye thine hande nowe vppon him, and touch once his bone and flesh, and hee shall curse thee to thy face. And the Lorde said vnto Sathan: lo there hast thou him in thy power, but spare his life. So went Satan forth from the presence of the Lorde, and smote Job with meruailous sore biles, from the sole of his foote, vnto his crowne, so that he sat vpon the ground in the asshes, and scraped off the filth of his sores with a potsheard. Now when Jobs frendes heard of all the trouble that happened vnto him, there came thre of them, euery one from his own place, namely Eliphas the Themanit Bildad the Suhite, and Sophad the Naamathit. ¶ The. iij. Chapter.

A After this opened Job his mouthe, and cursed his daye. And Job answered, and said: Lost be the day, wherin I was borne: and the nighte, in the whiche it was saide: there is a man childe conceaued. The same day be turned to darkenes, and not regarded of God from aboue: neither let him shine vpon it with light, but let it be stained with darkenesse, and the shadow of deth. Let the dimme cloude fall vpon it, and let it be lapped in with sorowe, on the daye tyme. Let the darke stormie ouercome that night: and let it not be ioined vnto the daies of the yere, nor counted in the monethes. Desolate be that night and without gladnesse: let theim that curse the daye, and that be readye to raise vp mourninge, geue it also their curse. Let the starres of that night be dimme through darkenesse of it. Let it loke for light, but let it see none, neyther the rising vp of the fayre morning, because it shut not vp the wõbe that bare me. For then should the sorowes haue bene hid from mine eyes.

B Alas. whype dyed I not in the birth? Jer. 10d Why did not I perishe as soone as I came oute of my mothers wombe? why set they me vpon their knees: why gaue they me sucke with their breastes? Then shoulde I nowe haue lyen still, I should haue slepte, & bene at reste, like as the kinges and lordes

Or why was not I hid, as a thinge borne out of time, either as yong childen, whiche neuer sawe the lighte? There must the wicked cease from their tiranny, and there suche as are ouer labored be at rest: there are those set out fre, which haue bene in prison, so that they heare nomore the voice of the oppressour. There are small and greate, and the seruaunte is free from his master. Wherefore is the light geuen to him that is in miserie? and life vnto them that haue heauye hearted? Which longe for death (and though it come not) woulde digge it out of hid D places, whiche also woulde be exceading glad, and reioice if they coulde finde their graue anye where. That should be ioy to that man whose way is hid, and God kepeth it backe from him. For my sighes come before I eate, and my rorynges fall out like the water. For the thing that I feared is come vpon me: and the thinge that I was afraide of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy? Had I not quietnesse? Was I not in reste? And nowe commeth suche misery vpon me.

But yf it be taken out of his place, euery man denieth it, saying: I knowe thee not. Lo thus is it with him, that reioyceth in his owne doinges: and as for other, they growe out of the earth. Beholde, God will not cast away a vertuous man, neyther will he helpe the vngodly. Thy mouthe shall be fyll with laughing, and thy lippes with gladnes. They also that hate thee shalbe confounded, and the dwelling of the vngodly shall come to naught.

As it stode with me when I was younge, when God prospered my house: when the almighty was yet with me: when my children stode about me: when my wayes ranne ouer with butter, and when the stonie rockes gaue me riuers of oyle, when I went throughe the citie vnto the gate, and when they sette me a chaire in the streete: when the yong men (as soone as they sawe me) hidde them selues, and when the aged arose, and stoode vppe vnto mee: when the princes left off their talking and layed their hande to their mouth: when the mightie kept stil their voice and when their tongue cleaued to the roofe of their mouthe. When all they that hearde me, called me happie: and when all they that sawe mee, spake good of me. For I deliuered the poore when he cryed, and so didde I the fatherlesse, and him that hadde none to helpe him. He that shoulde haue bene lost, gaue me a good woorde: and the widdowes heartes praised me. And why, I put vpon me righteousnesse, which couered me as a garment, and equity was my crowne. I brake the chawes of the vnrighteous man, and pluckt the spoile out of his teeth. Therefore I thought verily that I should haue dyed in my neaste: and that my dayes shuld haue ben as many as the sandes of the sea. For my roote was spread oute by the water side: and the dewe laye vpon my corne. My honoure encreased moze and moze, and my bowe was euer the stronger in my hande. Vnto me men gaue eare, me they regarded: and with silence they taried for my counsaile. If I had spoken, they woulde haue it none other waies, my woordes were so well taken amonge them. They waited for me as for the raine: and gaped vppon mee, as the grounde doeth to receiue the latter shoure. When I laughed, they knewe wel it was not earnest. C Here ende the wozdes of Job.

C The. xxxij. Chapter.

SO these three men would strive nomoze with Job, because he held himselfe a righteous man. But Elihu the son of Barachell, the Bullite of the kinred of Ram, was very soze displeased at Job, because he called himselfe iuste before God. And B with Jobs three frendes he was angry also, because they had founde no reasonable answer to ouercome Job. Nowe taried Elihu, till they hadde ended their cōmunication with Job: foz why? they were elder then he. So when Elihu the sonne of Barachell the Bullite sawe, that these thze men were not able to make Job aunswer: he was miscontent: Elihu the sonne of Barachell the Bullite aunswered him selfe, and saide: • Consideringe Eccl. 32 that I am yong, and ye be men of age, I was afraide and durste not shewe foozth my mind. Foz I thought thus within my selfe. It becommeth olde men to speake, and the aged to teache wisedome. Euerye man (no doubte) hath a minde, • but it is the inspira- 3. Esd. 4 waye wise, neyther doeth euery aged man vnderstande the thinge that is lawfull. Therfore will I speake also (heare me) and I will shewe you also mine vnderstanding. For when I had wayted till ye made an ende of your talking, and herd your wisdome what argumentes ye made in your communication: yea, when I had diligently pondred what ye sayde, I founde not one of you that made any good argument against Job, that directly coulde make answere vnto his wordes: leste ye shoulde saye: We haue found out wisdome. God shall caste him downe and no man. He hath not spoken vnto me, and I will not answere him as ye haue done (for they were so abashed, that they coulde not make answere, nor speake one word) but in so much as ye will not speake, standing still like dumme men, and making no answere: I haue a good hope for my parte, to shape him an answere, and to shewe him my meaning. For I am full of wordes, and the spirite that is within me compelleth me. Beholde, my belly is as the wine which hath no vente, and bursteth the newe vessels in sundre. Therfore will I speake, that I may haue a bene: I will open my lyppes, and make answere. I will regard no maner of person, no man will I spare. Iob.32.b For if I would go about to please men: I knowe not howe sone my maker would take me away.

The. xxxiij. Chapter.

WHerefore, heare my wordes (O Job) and hearken vnto me all that I will saye: Beholde, I haue nowe opened my mouth, my tongue hath spoken in my throte. My harte doeth order my wordes aright, and my lippes talke of pure wisdome. The spirite of God Gen.2.b hath made me, and the breath of the Almightie hath geuen me my lyfe. If thou canst then geue me answere: prepare thy selfe to stand before me, face to face. Beholde before God am I euen as thou: for I am fashioned and made euen of the same mold. Therfore thou nedest not to be afraide of me: neyther nedest thou to feare that my authoritie shall be to heauie for ther. Nowe haste thou spoken in mine eares, and I haue heard the voyce of thy wordes: I am cleane without any fault, I am innocent, and there is no wickednesse in me. But lo, he hath piked a quarell against me, and taketh me for his enemie: he hath put my fote in the stockes, and loketh narowly vnto all my pathes. Behold, in this hast thou not done right. I will make answere vnto thee: that God is more then man. And whye doest thou then strine against him: for he shall not geue thee accomptes of all his woordes. For when God doeth once commaunde a thing, there should no man be curious to searche whether it be right. In dreames & visions of the night (when slombering commeth vpon men, that they fall asleepe in their beddes) he roundeth them in the eares, he enfourmeth them, and sheweth them plainelye that it is he, which withdraweth man from euill, deliuereth him from pride, kepeth him from the graue, and his life from the sweard. He chastneth him with sickenesse, and bringeth him to his bedde: he layeth sore punishement vppon his bones, so that his life may away with no bread, and his soule abhorreth to eate any dayntye meate. In so muche that his body is cleane consumed awaye, and his bones appeare no more. His life draweth vnto the graue, and his life to death. Nowe, yf there be a messenger (one amonge a thousande) sente for to speake vnto man, and to shewe him the right way: then the Lord is mercifull vnto him, and sayeth. He shall be deliuered, that he fall not downe to the graue, For I am sufficiently reconciled. Then shall his flesshe be as well liking as it was afore, and shall be as it was in his youthe. For if he submit him selfe vnto God, he shalbe gracious vnto him, and shewe him his countenaunce ioyfullye, and rewardeth man for his righteousnes.

Gen.20.b 28.c.31.d Dan.2.d Mat.2.b

Suche a respect hath he vnto men. Therfore let a man confesse (and say) I haue offended, I did vnrighteously and it hath done me no good. Yea, he hath deliuered my soule from destruction, and my life shal see the light. Lo, thus worketh God alway with man, that he kepeth his soule from perysshinge, and letteth him enioye the lyght of the liuing. Marke well (O Job) and heare me: hold thee still, and I will speake. But if thou hast anye thinge to saye, then aunswere me, and speake, for thy aunswere pleaseth me. If thou hast nothing, then heare me, and holde thy tongue, so shall I teach thee wisdome.

¶ The. xxxiiij. Chapter.

A ELihu proceading foorth in his aunswere, saide: Heare my wordes (O ye wise men) herken vnto me ye that haue vnderstanding, for the eare proueth and discerneth Job.12b the woordes, and the mouth tasteth the meates: As for iudgement let vs seke it out among our selues, that we may know what is good. And why? Job hath saide: I am righteous, but God doth me wronge. I must nedes be a lyer, though my cause be right: and violently I am plaged where as I made no fault, where is there such a one as Job, that drinketh vp scorne fulnesse lyke water? which goeth in the company of wicked doers, & walketh with vngodly men. For he hath saide: Though a man be good, yet is he naught before God. Therfore herken vnto me, ye that haue vnderstan-

There is no darkenesse, nor shadowe of death, that can hyde the wicked doers from him. For no man shalbe suffred to go into iudgement with God. Many one: yea, innumerable doth he punishe, and setteth other in their steades. Therfore shal he declare their workes, he shall turne the night, and they shalbe destroyed. They that wer in the steade of sears dealte lyke vngodly men: and therfore he punished them, because they turned backe from him, and wouldе not consyder all his wayes. In so muche that they haue caused the voyce of the poore to come vnto him: and nowe he heareth the complaint of suche as are in trouble. If he graunte pardon, who will condemne? And if he hide away D his countenaunce, who shall be able to see it? Whether it be to the people, or to any man, thus will he do. For the vngodlinesse of the people doeth God make an ipocrite to reigne ouer them. For so muche then as I haue begon to talke of God, I will not hynder the. If I haue done amisse, enfourme thou me: yf I haue done wronge, I will leaue of. Can he do nothing without thee? For thou haste reproued his iudgeiudgement. Thou also haste thine owne mind, and not I. But speake on what thou knowest. Let men of vnderstanding tell me, and let a wise man herken vnto me. As for Job, he hath neyther spoken to the purpose, nor wisely. O father, let Job be well tryed, because he hath aunswered for wicked men, yea aboue his sinne he doth wickedly, triumpheth amonge vs, and multiplieth his woordes agaynst God.

Elihu spake moreouer, and said: Thinkest thou it righte, that thou sayest: I am righteous before God. For thou sayest: What aduauntage will it be vnto thee, and what profyte shalte thou haue of my synne. Therfore wil I geue answere vnto thee, and to thy companions with thee: loke vnto the heauen, and behold it: consider the cloudes, whiche are hyer then thou. Yf thou hast synned, what hast thou done against him? If thine offences be many, what hast thou done vnto him? If thou be righteous, what geuest thou him? Or what will he receiue of thine hande. Of such an vngodly person as thou, and of the sonne of man that is righteous, as thou pretendest to be: there is a great crye and complainte made by them that are oppressed with violence: yea euery man complayneth vpon the crueltie of tyrauntes. For such a one neuer saieth: Where is God that made me? and that geueth vs occasion to prayse him in the nighte? which geueth vs more vnderstanding then he doeth the beastes of the earth, and teacheth vs more then he doth the foules of heauen. If any suche complayne, no man geueth aunswere, and that because of the wickednesse of proude tyrauntes. But yf a man call vpon God, doth not he heare him? Doeth not the Almightie accept his crye? when thou speakest then, should not he pardon thee, yf thou open thy selfe before him, and put thy trust in him? Then vseth he no violence in his wrath, neyther hath he pleasure in curious and deepe inquisitions. Therefore doth Job open his mouthe but in vayne, and foolishely doth he make so many woordes.

¶ The. xxxvi. Chapter.

Elihu proceded forth in his talkinge, and sayd: Hold thee still a lytle, and I shall shewe thee what I haue yet to speake on Gods behalfe. I will open vnto thee yet more of mine vnderstanding: & proue my matter righteous. And truely, my woordes shall not be vayne, seyng he is with the that is perfect in knowlege: behold, the great god casteth away no man: for he him selfe is mightie in power & wisdoome. As for the vngodly, he shall not preserue him, but shall helpe the poore to their right. He shal not turne his eyes away frō the righteous, but as kinges shall they be in their trone: he shall stablishe them for euer, and they shalbe exalted. But yf they be layde in prison and chaynes, or bounde with the bondes of trouble, then wil he shewe them their worke, and the sinnes wherewith they haue vsed cruell violence. He with punishing and nurturing of them roundeth them in the eares, warneth them to leaue off from their wickednesse, and to amende. If they nowe will take heede and serue him, they shall weare out their daies in prosperitie, and their eares in pleasure and ioye. But if they will not herken, they shall go through the swearde, and perysshe or euer they be aware. As for suche as bee fayned ypocrites, they shall heape vp wrath for them selues: for they call not vpon him, though they be his prisoners. Thus shall their soule perysshe in folyshnesse, and their lyfe shall be condempned among the fornicatours. The poore shall he deliuer out of his affliction, and round them in the eare when they be in trouble. Euen so shall he kepe thee (yf thou wilte be content) from the bottomlesse pitte that is beneath: and yf thou wilte holde thee quiet, he shall fill thy table with plenteousnes.

It geueth an horrible ſounde when God ſendeth out his voyce: great thinges dothe he, which we can not comprehend. *When he commandeth the ſnowe, it falleth vppon the earth: As ſone as he geueth the rayne a charge, immediatelye the ſhowres haue their ſtrength, and fall downe.
